BRITISH PLANE ST. RAPHAEL IS IN FLIGHT FROM ENGLAND TO AMERICA

Imperial Airways Company Reported That the America-Bound Plane Was Flying at 9.30 P. M.—Whereabouts of the Plane Was Not Mentioned—All Canadian Wireless Stations Are On the Alert for News of the Flight—Good Weather Now Prevails Along the Entire Newfoundland Coast—Not Expected Over Newfoundland Before 345. A. M. Eastern Standard Time.

By the Associated Press

Through the black darkness of a cloudy night over the mid-Atlantic, a super-powered airplane hurtled ahead of the sun this (Thurs.) morning on one of the few yet unconquered air trails.

Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim and her two escorts of the air, Col. Frederick F. Minchin and Capt. Leslie Hamilton, in the St. Raphael, were computed to be at least 1,000 miles from the Irish coast at midnight—more than half way across the 1,900-mile "water leg" of their hop from Upavon, England, to Ontario.

Beyond a terse message from the Imperial Airways company, relating that the St. Raphael "still was flying" at 9:30 last night, no word had come from the intrepid trio since noon yesterday when their ship darted past Inverin, on the Irish coast.

The British plane is attempting the eastward course between the continents which already has cost the lives of Nungesser and Coli in a French machine and thwarted the ambitions of two German ships.

Weather permitting, three other transpacific flights were to start today:

The Canadian plane, Royal Windsor, from Windsor, Ont., to Windsor, Eng.

The German plane, Bremen, from Dessau, Germany, to some unannounced point in the United States.

The American plane, Old Glory, from New York to Rome.

The American plane, Pride of Detroit, was at Constintinople, six days and 5,000 miles out on its round-the-world flight; next stop Allepo, with departure from Constantinople expected about dawn today.

REPORTED FLYING AT 9:30 LAST NIGHT

LONDON, Aug. 31—(AP)—The Imperial Airways company has informed the Westminster Gazette of the receipt of a message time of 9:30 p. m., stating that the St. Raphael still was flying.

The whereabouts of the plane was not mentioned nor was the source of the message indicated in the Westminster Gazette's announcement.

GOOD WEATHER ALONG NEWFOUNDLAND COAST

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Aug. 31—(AP)—"Much improved" weather conditions along the entire Newfoundland coast were reported to this city at 9 o'clock eastern daylight time, tonight, after a day of lowering clouds, rain, and some fog.

Although the big Fokker monoplane, St. Raphael, which hopped off from England today with its royal passenger, Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, was not expected over Newfoundland before dawn (between 3:30 a. m., and 4 o'clock eastern daylight time) lighthouse keepers along the entire east coast were preparing for an all-night watch for the plane.

The chain of government wireless stations on the east coast also were to be manned all night in case the plane is spoken at sea and the message relayed ashore.

BARELY ESCAPED DEATH ON THE TAKE-OFF

UPAVON, England, Aug. 31—(AP)—While others waited for the favor of the elements, two British aviators and a princess went up into the air from this flying field today to achieve that which for many months has been the dream of airmen, the winging of the Atlantic from Europe to America.

At 7.32 o'clock in the morning the monoplane St. Raphael sped down the runway with Colonel Frederick F. Minchin at the controls and Captain Leslie Hamilton and Princess Lowenstein Wertheim aboard. There had been no certainty of a start today, but Hamilton and Minchin were on the ground, and the princess drove down at an early hour and without more ado declared her intention of going along.

Added to the dramatic aspect of the start was a touching incident of devotedness. The fliers assembled under the wings of the plane and the Most Rev. Francis Mostyn, Roman Catholic archbishop of Cardiff, blessed the plane, blessed the aviators and bade them Godspeed.

At Upavon tonight the pilot lights are aglow and a small force under Wing Commander Vernon Brown will stay up all night ready to handle the St. Raphael should she encounter storms at sea and return here. But nobody at the airdrome thinks the plane will come back.

The daring trio of fliers barely escaped death in the hopoff, as the plane left the ground just in time to avoid disaster, and it is believed that they are determined to reach their Canadian goal and get their bag of Canadian gold $25,000, as the prize, or die in the attempt. They are bound for Ottawa, 2920 miles distant and thence to London, Ontario.

WEATHER CONDITIONS OVER ATLANTIC OCEAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—(AP)—Low barometric pressure and a stormy area off the coast of Ireland extending for several hundred miles was reported by the local weather bureau today as one of the difficulties which the Fokker monoplane St. Raphael with Captain Hamilton, Colonel Minchin, and Princess Lowenstein Wertheim would have to surmount on its hop from England to Ottawa.

If successfully passed, the weather bureau declared, a wide area in mid-Atlantic of cloudy weather and showers would be the next test of the plane's capabilities. Off the Newfoundland coast a heavy fog was reported. The entire distance from the western edge of the storm area to the North American coast would have to be traversed, according to the bureau, against head winds which would materially lessen the plane's speed.

CANADIAN WIRELESS STATIONS ARE ALERT

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 31—(AP)—Canada's capital city tonight awaited news from the east of the three gallant flyers who set out this morning from Upavon, England, to blaze another air trail this time from the capital city of the mother country to the administrative centre of the dominion.

The staffs of Canadian government wireless stations stretching along the Atlantic coast have been ordered to stand-by at down tomorrow to flash to this city any news of the monoplane, St. Raphael.

PRIDE OF DETROIT HAS ARRIVED AT CONSTANTINOPLE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 31—(AP)—The Pride of Detroit with the transatlantic fliers, William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee aboard, made a lonely landing at the airdrome about fifteen miles west of Stamboul at 11.45 o'clock this morning only a handful of journalists and a few stray Turkish peasants were present.

The plane left Belgrade about 4.30, covering the distance of some 500 miles slowly because of head winds.

The aviators were anxious to continue their flight to Aleppo and Bagdad as soon as the machine could be refuelled, but were obliged to stay overnight at Constantinople to comply with necessary formalities for obtaining permission to proceed over Turkish territory. They hope to continue their journey at dawn tomorrow.

WIND STILL AGAINST OLD GLORY'S TAKE-OFF FOR ROME

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 31—(AP)—Old Glory's flight to Rome was again postponed today when the wind failed to swing into the needed direction.

Lloyd Bertaud and J. D. Hill, the pilots, said they would take off as soon as there was a west wind at any time in daylight. They said they could leave on 10 minutes notice as the plane was completely fuelled and stocked with food.

POSTPONE THEIR NON-STOP TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHT

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 31—(AP)—C. A. "Duke" Schiller, pilot of the Royal Windsor and his navigator, Phil Wood, who were scheduled to leave this afternoon on their non-stop trans-Atlantic flight, announced this evening that the hop-off would not be made until Thursday morning at 8 o'clock. The aviators stated that they had been advised by the weather bureau not to make the flight today. They have told members of the flight committee that they will definitely leave tomorrow.

BRAZILIAN SHIP TO HUNT FOR PAUL REDFERN

PARA, Brazil, Aug. 31—(AP)—The governor of the state of Para today ordered a ship to hunt for Paul Redfern, the American aviator, who disappeared while flying alone from Brunswick, Georgia to Brazil.

At the request of the American consul the steamer Our Lady of Mercy will virtually comb the whole northern coast for a trace of the missing flyer.

WEATHER PREVENTS THE FLIGHT OF JUNKERS

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 31—(AP)—The projected flight of the Junkers airplane Bremen was postponed tonight on account of the weather.

THE 36TH ANNUAL BABY PARADE AT ASBURY PARK

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 31—(AP)—The juvenile champion of America something new in the way of titles for babies, was named today in Asbury Park's thirty sixth annual baby parade and pageant.

She is Norma Dreyer, five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Dreyer, of 42 Smith court, Elizabeth, who won the hearts of the judges and $500 in cash by her appearance in a howdah atop a paper mache elephant mounted on a float. Nothing was lacking to make the float, which depicted "A Dream of India," complete. There were even four little imitation Nubians one at each leg of the elephant.

Prize winning is not so new to Miss Dreyer. She won the grand prize of Asbury Park's baby parade last year.

A perfect day greeted the 750 babies entered in various events by their 1,500 proud parents. A gay crowd estimated at more than 100,000 by the police of 12 shore towns who co-operated with local authorities in keeping order, was on hand. The official decorations of purple and white were almost outdone by variegated bunting strung by merchants and residents.

GOV. "AL" SMITH HAS NO FRIENDS IN W. C. T. U.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 31—(AP)—After welcoming to its cause an organization credited on the floor with having kept Gov. Al Smith out of the white house, the National Woman's Christian Temperance union concluded its annual convention here tonight with pledges renewing loyalty to prohibition and law enforcement.

Seven days of activity centering around plans for relentless warfare against "wet" candidates were climaxed by repeated reference to the proposed presidential candicay of Gov. Smith.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

The prince of Wales and his party will sail from Quebec to England on September 7 on the liner Empress of Scotland.

Dr. Charles C. Godfrey, Bridgeport physician and well known throughout the state died at Bridgeport hospital early yesterday.

Dr. Frank M. Ross, a leader in the medical profession at Kennebunk, Maine, died suddenly yesterday, aged 76 years.

During the month just ending New Haven had the worst drenching it has had during any August since 1874. A total of 9.98 inches of rain fell.

The soviet government has selected Dimitri Bogomoloff as minister to Poland to succeed Peter Volkoff who was assassinated here in June.

The cruiser Omaha and six destroyers sailed for California from Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, resuming their search for the seven lost Dole fliers.

Joseph Paulinonis, 47, died of a fractured skull in St. Mary's hospital a half hour after he fell downstairs at his home in Waterbury yesterday afternoon.

Livingston Davis, prominent Boston clubman and yachtsman, and Miss Georgia Appleton, New York, a member of the family of book publishers, were married at Bar Harbor, Me.

Lieutenant Thomas B. Williamson, naval aviator, was convicted by a court martial of having violated flying regulations when he swooped over the northwest section of Washington July 24.

Mrs. Leonara Jones, a capitol guide, who was temporarily suspended because of her activities in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, was ordered reinstated by David S. Barry, senate sergeant-at-arms.

Sale of the bus lines of the Winsted-Torrington-Hartford Jitney association to the New England Transportation company, announced August 26 at the Winsted offices of the association, was confirmed.

John Dion, truck driver for an oil re-fining company is in Wing Memorial hospital, Palmer, Mass., with injuries received when a truck tire he was placing on a wheel burst under 30 pounds pressure.

Mrs. Christine C. Chatfield, 55, a widow, committed suicide at the home in New Haven of John H. Nuhn, her brother, by inhaling illuminating gas from a tube which was found clenched in her teeth.

A bid for the American Scantic line amounting to an average of $6 a ton, from Moore and McCormick, Inc., the present operators, was the only one received by the shipping board before time for submitting offers expired.

Curtailment of trans-oceanic flights by stunt fliers when such adventures are of negligible value to science and are inspired by the pursuit of the dollar is favored by Theodore Douglas Robinson, assistant secretary of the navy.

Abraham Silverstein, under arrest in New York as a fugitive from justice from Bridgeport, is alleged to have been one of the so-called "cue sluggers" who came from New York to intimidate garment workers in clothing shops.

Two immigration patrolmen were the targets for alleged rum runners armed pith pistols at Richford, Vt. Several shots were fired at the officers, one of which went through the windshield narrowly missing the driver. Neither was hurt.

Albert A. Waters, 35, believed to be a representative of a New York buying house, was found dead in his apartment in Cambridge, Mass. Medical Examiner David C. Dow, who summoned the police reported that Waters was apparently a suicide.

A new problem—wildcat breweries— confronts prohibition enforcement officers in this state, and according to a statement by Frank T. Putney, United States prohibition director in Connecticut, may develop into one of considerable proportions.

W. L. Walker, owner of the Liliane stable and well known turfman, died at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., yesterday following a brief illness with pneumonia. He raced Sunsini when that monia. He raced Sunshine when that horse was at his best.

Bristol was without lights and trolley service for two hours early last night, which a switch in the main power line over Fall Mountain blew out causing a short circuit which blew another switch in the sub-station. The explosion shattered all the station windows.

Carrington T. Marshall, chief justice of the supreme court of Ohio, speaking at the closing session of the juricial section of the American Bar association, declared that the courts are failing to exercise their full powers and have lost prestige which they must seek to regain.

Miss Laura Volstead, daughter of the author of the Volstead law, urged the National W. C. T. U. convention to pay more attention to the political field and to ask of presidential candidates that they agree to appoint to office only men "who are earnest in favor of seeing prohibition enforced."

Walter E. Shean of Springfield who is serving a sentence of from one to five years in the state prison at Wethersfield for his part in the robbery of the New Britain store during which Policeman James J. Skelly was fatally shot, will seek parole at a meeting of the board of parole next Wednesday.

Volume of employment and of total payrolls during July was at a lower level than at any time in the past three years, it was brought out yesterday in the July and August business review of the Federal Reserve board which reported that more than seasonal decline in industrial production continued through August.

Passengers Landed From Leaking Liner

Were Put Ashore On a Foggy Night [illegible] Miles From Wrangell, Alaska.

WRANGELL, Alaska, Aug. 31—(AP)—[illegible] hundred and sixty nine tourists who set sail from Vancouver, B. C., last week on an excursion tour of southeastern Alaska, were sheltered in this hamlet tonight after a perilous night at sea aboard a ship caught helplessly in the treacherous Seymour Narrows.

They were brought here today by the coast and geodetic vessel, explorer, after their excursion ship, the Canadian Pacific Railway liner, Princess Charlotte, struck a rock and punctured her hull on Vichnefsky reef, near St. John's harbor, 22 miles from here late last night.

Among the tourists were Sir Godfrey Dalrymple White, a member of the English house of commons, Lady many prominent persons from scattered parts of the United States and Canada.

The liner was being towed slowly into port by fishing vessels. The Princess Alice, a sister ship of the Charlotte, was on its way from Vancouver to bring the passengers to their destination.

The Charlotte was southbound and struck the rock just south of the entrance to the treacherous Seymour Narrows. The vessel went aground in the heavy current about 9.30 o'clock last night and when she was freed about midnight a jagged hole in her outer skin had admitted enough water to flood fuel tanks and engine room, rendering the vessel helpless

BUSINESS CONDITIONS IN NEW ENGLAND IMPROVING

BOSTON, Aug. 31—(AP)—Business conditions in New England improved slightly in July but there has been no marked change sinche March, the Federal Reserve bank of Boston reports in its monthly review.

"The New England business activity index," the review says, "indicates that activity during the first three months of 1927 was substantially below that of the corresponding period a year ago, while during the months of April-July inclusive activity has been more pronounced this year than in 1926. When allowance for the usual seasonal fluctuations hes been made, some industries reflected appreciable increases in activity in July as compared with June, while others showed a distinct falling off.

"Cotton consumption by the New England mills in July was materially less than in June. In fact the July consumption was 11,100 bales less than in any other month this year. The recent strength of raw cotton prices has apparently caused a decrease in the demand for finished fabrics.

"Wool consumption, which showed considerable activity in June, declined somewhat in July, while raw wool prices have continued firm. Activity in the shoe industry increased in July by more than the usual seasonal amount, but the increase in New England was relatively greater than that of the entire country. Hide and leather prices have softened recently.

"The square foot space of contracts awarded for new building in New England—residential group—declined in July by about the usual seasonal amount, while in the commercial and industrial group there was an increase, which was contrary to the usual seasonal movement, between June and July. Sales in new automobiles in New England declined in July as compared with June, due to a decrease in the sales of two lower priced four cylinder cars.

"Employment conditions have shown no marked change during weeks. The number of persons on payrolls in Massachusetts declined in July, but less than from June to July a year ago. The number of business failures in this district declined, whereas there is usually a seasonal increase in July.

"Sales of department stores in New England in July were about four percent under a year ago, but preliminary reports indicated that August sales would be about 8 to 10 per cent higher than the corresponding month a year ago."

SAN FRANCISCO WELCOMES DOLE FLIGHT WINNERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31—(AP)—A home-welcoming, tinged with sorrow because of the missing in the Dole flight, marked the arrival here today of Art Goebel and Lieutenant William V. Davis, Jr., U. S. N. pilot and navigator of the monoplane Woolaroc which won the first prize of $25,000 in the James D. Dole air derby.

The Matson liner Manoa was decorated with flags and the greetings given the fliers by city officials and citizens were enthusiastic but the wild cheering attendant to the homecoming of other California-Hawaii fliers was absent, at the request of Goebel and Davis.

The airmen moved up Market street in an impromptu parade and but few passersby realized who they were.

Commenting on the fate of Miss Mildred Doran and the six men missing in connection with the Dole race Goebel declared he feared they were "gone.

"All the way home I studied the sea," he said. "If the planes crashed I am afraid the fliers would have been so dazed they could not get out their life rafts, and the planes very likely would sink quickly in the rough water that prevailed.

PLANE SIR JOHN CARLING TO HOP OFF AT DAYBREAK

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 31—(AP)—The monoplane Sir John Carling, piloted by Captain Terry Tully and with Lieutenant James Medcalf as navigator, will hop off at daybreak tomorrow for Harbor Grace, N. F., on the first leg of their proposed flight to London, England, the flight committee announced late tonight.

The flight committee made its announcement after it had received a report that indicated favorable weather between here and Newfoundland and had conferred with the fliers.

Tully and Medcalf plan to refuel at Harbor Grace before taking off for England.

REDUCTION OF GASOLINE PRICES IN MASSACHUSETTS

BOSTON, Aug. 31—(AP)—The Standard Oil company of New York today announced a reduction of one cent a gallon in the price of gasoline in Masschusetts. This makes the tank wagon price 17 cents and the service station price 19 cents.

Air Express to be Inaugurated Today

First Plane Will Leave Boston at 7.15 This Evening—Prospects Promising.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 31—(AP)—Flowers, candy, groceries, dry goods and machinery comprise shipments booked for New York, Chicago, San Francisco and intermediate points for the first air express tomorrow, said American Railway Express officials tonight. Prospects for the new service seemed highly promising, they said.

The first plane will leave Boston at 7:15 tomorrow evening for New Brunswick, N. J. instituting daily express service with Boston, excepting holidays and Sundays. At New Brunswick the Boston planes, operated by the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., will connect with the National Air Transport Service.

The Colonial planes are of the Fokker Universal, cabin monoplane type, equipped with single Wright Whirlwind engines, capable of carrying loads of express, mail and passengers, of 1,000 pounds, at the rate more than 100 miles an hour. They are equipped with strong boxes for valuables.

Rates from Boston, per quarter pound, are: To New York, 40 cents; to Cleveland or Chicago, 50 cents; to points west of Chicago served by National Air Transport lines, 60 cents; to Pacific coast 75 cents.

CROP PRODUCTION PROSPECTS UNCHANGED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—(AP)—Prospects of crop production remained virtually unchanged during August, except for cotton but recent price advances in cotton and corn have lifted the purchasing power of farm products, the department of agriculture said today in its September review of the agricultural situation.

"Of the country's two greatest cash crops, wheat has turned out well, while cotton promises anything by a big yield. Of the two leading feed crops, Hay was a record crop while corn is a partial failure," the report says.

"Cotton has been hurt by the boll weevil. Corn is still a great uncertainty, a substantial portion of the crop requiring almost a miracle of good weather to mature. Potatoes give promise of a fairly large production though blight has become evident locally through the east. The hay crop is by far the largest ever grown, but rainy weather made it difficult to secure the latter part of the crop. Apples promise to yield about half as great a supply as last year, being better in western than in eastern districts."

Cotton production as indicated by late forecasts, the report said, will meet only consumptive needs, but "the subsequent upturn in cotton prices bids fair to give the south a greater total income than it received from last year's record crop," adding:

"The wheat crop as a whole was reported to be excellent."

GRANTED DIVORCE FROM AUTHOR HARRY L. WILSON

SALINAS, Calif., Aug. 31—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Cooke Wilson of Carmel, Cal., was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce in superior court here today from Harry Leon Wilson, author, whom she charged with desertion and failure to provide.

Details of the arguments of opposing counsel over a property settlement in the case are to be submitted on briefs to Superior Judge Fred A. Treat. Mrs. Wilson accused her husband of hiding assets from her when he made a property settlement.

She asked $5,000 monthly alimony instead of the $350 he granted her, and a larger share in his stocks, bonds, real estate, holdings and royalty earnings.

Today's session of the divorce trial was marked by introduction by counsel for Mrs. Wilson of a letter written by Mr. Wilson in which he expressed distaste for divorce suit publicity but willingness to fight for his money.

14-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED IN CRASH OF AIRPLANE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 31—(AP)—A 14-year-old boy was killed instantly and the air pilot seriously injured when the plane in which they were flying crashed at Wildwood Gables early tonight.

The dead youth was John Applegate, Cape May Court House, a helper employed by the South Jersey Flying company.

Bun Cole, 26, Avalon, pilot of the plane is in Mace's hospital Wildwood, suffering from a possible skull fracture, fractured left knee and internal injuries.

This was the second fatal accident with the same plane in the last two weeks, Corliss Jones, also of Cape May Court House, a partner of Cole, having been beheaded when he was struck by the propeller of the machine.

WEALTHY LITHUANIAN FARMER WAS MURDERED

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 31—(AP)—That John Cassel, wealthy Lithuanian farmer whose decapitated body was found in the Allingtown woods near the Milford turnpike late in July, was murdered and did not commit suicide, was disclosed today as the theory on which state police and Coroner Eli Mix have quietly reopened their investigation which was thought to have been discontinued. It also developed that the coroner has never filed an opinion in the case.

NORMAN GRATTAN EQUALS RECORD AT SYRACUSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 31—(AP)—Sep Palin of Indianapolis, equalled the track record on the cinder course at the New York State fair today, winning the claiming race for pacers with Norman Grattan in straight heats. Palin's gelding paced the second mile in 2:04 3-4 thereby tieing the mark set by George Loomis with Sir Roch several years ago.

Race officials announced the Hambletonian stake had been definitely set for Friday. Tomorrow the Chamber of Commerce purse and the Empire State stake, both $10,000 events, will be raced.

WOMAN'S HAIR OCCASIONS DEATH BY LIGHTNING

BERLIN, Sept. 1, (AP)—Her long hair proved a fatal conductor of electricity to Grentchen Schaefer, a young peasant woman of Stettin. She was struck and instantly killed by lightning which shot down the electric lighting fixture to a lamp, and from there to her hair as she was combing it out.

HELD FOR ROBBERY OF THE PLANTSVILLE NAT'L BANK

William Kappell, 37 Years Old, Was Arrested in Chicago—Was Found Sitting in an Automobile Having a Bullet-Proof Enclosure—Kappella is Being Held for the Connecticut Authorities—The Bank, in Southington, Was Robbed June 22 of Nearly $4,500 in Cash.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31—(AP)—Arrested last night when found sitting in an automobile having a bullet-proof glass enclosure, William Kappella, 37 years old, was taken to the detective bureau today where it was found he is wanted by authorities at Hartford, Conn., in connection with the robbery of the National bank of Plantsville, a suburb of Southington. He is being held for the Connecticut authorities.

BANK WAS ROBBED OF NEARLY $4,500 IN CASH

HARTFORD, Aug. 31—(AP)—William Kappella has been sought by the state police for more than two months as the fourth member of the gang which held up the Plantsville National bank in Southington on June 22, escaping with nearly $4,500 in cash.

Last week Policeman Paul Lavin was sent to Chicago to carry on the search there, inasmuch as two of the other three robbers, all of whom were arrested within a few days after the robbery, were from Cicero, Ills., a Chicago suburb, and it was believed that Kappella would be likely to go there.

The state police were informed today by Policeman Lavin that he had apprehended Kappella and secured his arrest. Details of the way in which he traced the alleged robber were lacking. Extradition papers were being prepared by the police today and Lieutenant-Governor Brainard will probably be asked to sign them tomorrow after which they will be forwarded to Chicago.

According to confessions said to have been made by the other robbers after their arrest, Kappella was one of the two men who entered the bank and held the cashier, Raymond Olsen, and his wife at the point of guns while rifling the tills. The other two remained outside in an automobile.

Less than half the money stolen from the bank was found on the persons of the three men who were captured in the woods near Lake Compounce. It was believed that the fourth bandit had taken the rest of the loot.

The other three men arrested in connection with the robbery are Thomas De Marco and Albert Meyer, of Cicero, Ills., and Stewart Florian, of Southington. They were bound over to the September term of the superior court under bonds of $50,000 each.

ARMY FLIERS WELL TREATED IN MEXICO

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 30—(AP)—Capt. C. H. Reynolds and Sergeant Gus Newland, army aviators, personally put in an appearance on the Mexican border today after being reported missing three days following a forced landing in the Sage Brush desert near Ojinaga, in northern Chihuahua.

Army officials were advised the aviators communicated with authorities at Marfa, Tex., reporting they had been well treated by Mexican military authorities and had at no time been restrained as prisoners. After spending a few hours at Presidio, Reynolds and Newland returned to a point near Ojinaga where their plane is under guard of Mexican soldiers pending its official release by the government officials here learned.

Colonel C. S. Babcock, commandant of the First Cavalry at Marfa, telegraphed the soldiers were prepared to clear a runway as soon as the government approves release of the plane and minor repairs are made.

News of the safety of the fliers relieved anxiety here over their plight.

Deputy Sheriff C. M. Blackwell of Marfa reported the aviators told him they had been "royally entertained" as the guests of General de la Vega at Ojinaga.

Advices from Mexico City said the men had not been detained as prisoners, and their official release was expected as soon as legal technicalities concerning the landing were cleared up.

FRANCE AND CANADA PAY TRIBUTES TO U. S. LAWYERS

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 31—(AP)—Tributes from France and Canada to the lawyers of the United States and an outline of the work that is before it marked the opening today of the fiftieth annual convention of the American Bar association.

Maurice Bokanowski, French minister of commerce, paid France's tribute. That of Canada was delivered by George K. Montgomery, batonnier of the Montreal Bar association, and representative of the Canadian Bar association. Both lauded the efforts of American lawyers in the interests of humanity.

Charles S. Whitman, president of the American Bar association and former governor of New York, set the wheels of the convention in motion with his opening address, in which he cited as a work of outstanding merit the accomplishments of recent conferences between members of the bar association and the American Federation of Labor, looking toward the settlement of interstate commerce labor disputes by modern methods.

MARATHON SWIMMERS PHYSICALLY EXHAUSTED

TORONTO, Aug. 31—(AP)—A number of swimmers taken from the water in the $50,000 marathon staged here today were in a physically exhausted condition and required immediate attention on their arrival at the base hospital.

The most serious casualty of the derby proved to be F. Kalm, the "Eskimo swimmer," who was injured at the start of the race. He was treated at the emergency hospital and appeared to be normal, but this afternoon suffered a relapse and was taken to the western hospital, where an X-ray photo revealed a fracture at the base of the skull. He was reported to be resting easier late today.

Myer Mendelsson, of Montreal, and Jan Montenack, of Toronto, stuck to their tasks to the bitter end, and they were taken to the emergency hospital, where they were unconscious for several minutes.

Helen Garland, Ottawa mermaid, succumbed to the chill of the water, and was taken out virtually exhausted.

DISSENSION IN CONN. VALLEY TOBACCO ASS'N.

HARTFORD, Aug. 31—(AP)—About 400 members of the Connecticut Valley Tobacco association, have reached the end of the road in their negotiations with the officers of the association to settle their differences, and late tomorrow will petition a judge of the superior court for a receiver to liquidate the affairs of the association.

The complaint on which they will base their request for a receiver has been virtually completed by their counsel, Arthur L. Shipman and John J. Burke. While the terms of it could not be learned from counsel, who said they would not make it public until it had been first presented to the court, it is understood that it charges that the managements of the association has resulted in a depreciation of assets.

CAMP COOLIDGE TO BE RETREAT FOR BOY SCOUTS

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 31—(AP)—Another memorial to President Coolidge's summer in the Black Hills was left to South Dakota today when Camp Coolidge was dedicated as a retreat for Boy Scouts near Custer at a ceremony attended by the president.

Previously the state had re-named one of the peaks in the Black Hills Mount Coolidge and the rippling trout stream which flows past the summer white house has been called Grace Coolidge creek. Farther up in the hills a memorial is being carved of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt and the president has been asked to write the inscription to appear below explaining its meaning.

Except for the short journey to Custer, Mr. Coolidge spent the whole day at the game lodge preparing the address he will make at Brookins, Sept. 10, dedicating the Lincoln Memorial library at the South Dakota Agricultural college.

Tomorrow the President and Mrs. Coolidge will make their last trip from the summer white house, going by special train to Newell, S. D., to inspect a government reclamation project, and from there to Nisland to attend the Butte county fair.

Meanwhile preparations are going ahead for Mr. Coolidge's departure for Washington next week.

M'CRAY REGAINED HIS HEALTH WHILE IN PRISON

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 31—(AP)—Silent on all political matters, but voluble in his joy at freedom, former Governor Warren T. McCray, of Indiana, was homeward bound tonight. He was released on parole today after serving three years and four months of a ten year sentence in the federal prison here.

McCray, who had been convicted on a charge of "using the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud," was released on telegraphic instructions from Washington, confirming Attorney General Sargent's approval of the parole board's recommendation.

"Yes, I've kept in touch with political conditions, national and in Indiana, but I have absolutely nothing to say on that score. I'm anxious to get back to my family and my two grandchildren."

McCray, who recently spent four months in the prison hospital, said he was in excellent physical condition and attributed his health to a cessation of attempts to secure a pardon before his parole date arrived.

"As soon as I made up my mind there was no use seeking a pardon and resigned myself to wait, my health picked up immediately."

BROTHERS KILLED AT NEWFIELD GRADE CROSSING

TORRINGTON, Conn., Aug. 30—(AP)—Thrown from their machine when it was struck by a gasoline car at the Newfield grade crossing tonight, Fred Glasstetter, 52, and his brother, Edward, 40, received injuries from which they later died at the Charlotte Hungerford hospital. Eileen and Loretta Glasstette, young daughters of the older man were badly bruised and shaken up.

The car in which the four were riding, a touring model, was demolished.

Both brothers suffered fractured skulls and were in a dying condition when admitted to the hospital. No hope was held out for their recovery and they lived but a few hours although emergency treatment was administered.

Hospital authorities were not conversant with the details of the accident.

SUPREME CHIEF RANGER FORESTERS OF AMERICA

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—(AP)—Maurice F. Roche, of New York, today was elected supreme chief ranger of the Foresters of America, at the twentieth annual session of the order. T. Calbert Crowe, of Detroit, was elected subchief ranger. Officers re-elected included T. M. Donnelly, of Jersey City, secretary; John J. Mack of Hartford, Conn. treasurer, and John H. Baehr, of Cleveland, recording secretary.

CANADA REALLY TRYING TO PREVENT SMUGGLING

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 31—(AP)—Canada's part in carrying out the treaty for the prevention of smuggling between this country and the United States is being honestly carried out declared W. D. Euler, minister of national revenue, today.

The minister's reference to the treaty provisions followed announcement from Washington that the United States border patrol in the Lake Huron-Buffalo section was to be increased.

BRITISH PLANE ST. RAPHAEL IS IN FLIGHT FROM ENGLAND TO AMERICA

Imperial Airways Company Reported That the America-Bound Plane Was Flying at 9.30 P. M.—Whereabouts of the Plane Was Not Mentioned—All Canadian Wireless Stations Are On the Alert for News of the Flight—Good Weather Now Prevails Along the Entire Newfoundland Coast—Not Expected Over Newfoundland Before 345. A. M. Eastern Standard Time.

By the Associated Press

Through the black darkness of a cloudy night over the mid-Atlantic, a super-powered airplane hurtled ahead of the sun this (Thurs.) morning on one of the few yet unconquered air trails.

Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim and her two escorts of the air, Col. Frederick F. Minchin and Capt. Leslie Hamilton, in the St. Raphael, were computed to be at least 1,000 miles from the Irish coast at midnight—more than half way across the 1,900-mile "water leg" of their hop from Upavon, England, to Ontario.

Beyond a terse message from the Imperial Airways company, relating that the St. Raphael "still was flying" at 9:30 last night, no word had come from the intrepid trio since noon yesterday when their ship darted past Inverin, on the Irish coast.

The British plane is attempting the westward course between the continents which already has cost the lives of Nungesser and Coli in a French machine and thwarted the ambitions of two German ships.

Weather permitting, three other oceanic flights were to start today:

The Canadian plane, Royal Windsor, from Windsor, Ont., to Windsor, Eng.

The German plane, Bremen, from Desau, Germany, to some unannounced point in the United States.

The American plane, Old Glory, from New York to Rome.

The American plane, Pride of Detroit, was at Constntinople, six days and 5,000 miles out on its round-the-world flight; next stop Alepo, with departure from Constantinople expected about dawn today.

REPORTED FLYING AT 9:30 LAST NIGHT

LONDON, Aug 31—(AP)—The Imperial Airways company has informed the Westminster Gazette of the receipt of a message time of 9:30 p. m., stating that the St. Raphael still was flying.

The whereabouts of the plane was not mentioned nor was the source of the message indicated in the Westminster Gazette's announcement.

GOOD WEATHER ALONG NEWFOUNDLAND COAST

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Aug. 31—(AP)—"Much improved" weather conditions along the entire Newfoundland coast were reported to this city at 9 o'clock eastern daylight time, tonight, after a day of lowering clouds, rain, and some fog.

Although the big Fokker monoplane, St. Raphael, which hopped off from England today with its royal passenger, Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, was not expected over Newfoundland before dawn (between 3:30 a. m., and 4 o'clock eastern daylight time) lighthouse keepers along the entire east coast were preparing for an all-night watch for the plane.

The chain of government wireless stations on the east coast also were to be manned all night in case the plane is spoken at sea and the message relayed ashore.

BARELY ESCAPED DEATH ON THE TAKE-OFF

UPAVON, England, Aug 31—(AP)—While others waited for the favor of the elements, two British aviators and a princess went up into the air from this flying field today to achieve that which for many months has been the dream of airmen, the winning of the Atlantic from Europe to America.

At 7.32 o'clock in the morning the monoplane St. Raphael sped down the runway with Colonel Frederick F. Minchin at the controls and Captain Leslie Hamilton and Princess Lowenstein Wertheim aboard. There had been no certainty of a start today, but Hamilton and Minchin were on the ground, and the princess drove down at an early hour and without more ado declared her intention of going along.

Added to the dramatic aspect of the start was a touching incident of devoutness. The fliers assembled under the wings of the plane and the Most Rev. Francis Mostyn, Roman Catholic archishop of Cardiff, blessed the plane, blessed the aviators and bade them Godspeed.

At Upavon tonight the pilot lights are aglow and a small force under Wing Commander Vernon Brown will stay up all night ready to handle the St. Raphael should she encounter storms at sea and return here. But nobody at the airdrome thinks the plane will come back.

The dazing trio of fliers barely escaped death in the hopoff, as the plane left the ground just in time to avert disaster, and it is believed that they are determined to reach their Canadian goal and get their bag of Canadian gold $25,000, as the prize, or die in the attempt. They are bound for Ottawa, 2920 miles distant and thence to London, Ontario.

WEATHER CONDITIONS OVER ATLANTIC OCEAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—(AP)—Low barometric pressure and a stormy area off the coast of Ireland extending for several hundred miles was reported by the local weather bureau today as one of the difficulties which the Fokker monoplane St. Raphael with Captain Hamilton, Colonel Minchin, and Princess Lowenstein Wertheim would have to surmount on its hop from England to Ottawa.

If successfully passed, the weather bureau declared, a wide area in mid-Atlantic of cloudy weather and showers would be the next test of the plane's capabilities. Off the Newfoundland coast a heavy fog was reported. The entire distance from the western edge of the storm area to the North American coast would have to be traversed, according to the bureau, against head winds which would materially lessen the plane's speed.

CANADIAN WIRELESS STATIONS ARE ALERT

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 31—(AP)—Canada's capital city tonight awaited news from the east of the three gallant flyers who set out this morning from Upavon, England, to blaze another air trail this time from the capital city of the mother country to the administrative centre of the dominion.

The staffs of Canadian government wireless stations stretching along the Atlantic coast have been ordered to stand-by at down, tomorrow to flash to this city any news of the monoplane, St. Raphael.

PRIDE OF DETROIT HAS ARRIVED AT CONSTANTINOPLE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 31—(AP)—The Pride of Detroit with the transatlantic fliers, William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee aboard, made a lonely landing at the airdrome about fifteen miles west of Stamboul at 11.45 o'clock this morning only a handful of journalists and a few stray Turkish peasants were present.

The plane left Belgrade about 4.30, covering the distance of some 500 miles slowly because of head winds.

The aviators were anxious to continue their flight to Aleppo and Bagdad as soon as the machine could be refuelled, but were obliged to stay overnight at Constantinople to comply with necessary formalities for obtaining permission to proceed over Turkish territory. They hope to continue their journey at dawn tomorrow.

WIND STILL AGAINST OLD GLORY'S TAKE-OFF FOR ROME

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 31—(AP)—Old Glory's flight to Rome was again postponed today when the wind failed to swing into the needed direction.

Lloyd Bertaud and J. D. Hill, the pilots, said they would take off as soon as there was a west wind at any time in daylight. They said they could leave on 10 minutes notice as the plane was completely fuelled and stocked with food.

POSTPONE THEIR NON-STOP TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHT

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 31—(AP)—C. A. "Duke" Schiller, pilot of the Royal Windsor and his navigator, Phil Wood, who were scheduled to leave this afternoon on their non-stop trans-Atlantic flight, announced this evening that the hop-off would not be made until Thursday morning at 8 o'clock. The aviators stated that they had been advised by the weather bureau not to make the flight today. They have told members of the flight committee that they will definitely leave tomorrow.

BRAZILIAN SHIP TO HUNT FOR PAUL REDFERN

PARA, Brazil, Aug. 31—(AP)—The governor of the state of Para today ordered a ship to hunt for Paul Redfern, the American aviator, who disappeared while flying alone from Brunswick, Georgia to Brazil.

At the request of the American consul the steamer Our Lady of Mercy will virtually comb the whole northern coast for a trace of the missing flyer.

WEATHER PREVENTS THE FLIGHT OF JUNKERS

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 31—(AP)—The projected flight of the Junkers airplane Bremen was postponed tonight on account of the weather.

THE 36TH ANNUAL BABY PARADE AT ASBURY PARK

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 31—(AP)—The juvenile champion of America something new in the way of titles for babies, was named today in Asbury Park's thirty sixth annual baby parade and pageant.

She is Norma Dreyer, five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Dreyer, of 42 Smith court, Elizabeth, who won the hearts of the judges and $500 in cash by her appearance in a howdah atop a papier mache elephant mounted on a float. Nothing was lacking to make the float, which depicted "A Dream of India," complete. There were even four little imitation Nubians one at each leg of the elephant.

Prize winning is not so new to Miss Dreyer. She won the grand prize of Asbury Park's baby parade last year.

A perfect day greeted the 750 babies entered in various events by their 1,500 proud parents. A gay crowd estimated at more than 100,000 by the police of 12 shore towns who co-operated with local authorities in keeping order, was on hand. The official decorations of purple and white were almost outdone by variegated bunting strung by merchants and residents.

GOV. "AL" SMITH HAS NO FRIENDS IN W. C. T. U.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 31—(AP)—After welcoming to its cause an organization credited on the floor with having kept Gov. Al Smith out of the white house, the National Woman's Christian Temperance union concluded its annual convention here tonight with pledges renewing loyalty to prohibition and law enforcement.

Seven days of activity centering around plans for relentless warfare against "wet" candidates were climaxed by repeated reference to the proposed presidential candidacy of Gov. Smith.

Passengers Landed From Leaking Liner

Were Put Ashore On a Foggy Night [illegible] Miles From W[illegible], Alaska.

[illegible]ELL, Alaska, Aug. 31—(AP)—[illegible] hundred and sixty nine tourists who set sail from Vancouver, B. C., last week on an excursion tour of southeastern Alaska, were sheltered in this hamlet tonight after a perilous night at sea aboard a ship caught helplessly in the treacherous Seymour Narrows.

They were brought here today by the coast and geodetic vessel, explorer, after their excursion ship, the Canadian Pacific Railway liner, Princess Charlotte, struck a rock and punctured her hull on Vichnefsky reef, near St. John's harbor, 22 miles from here late last night.

Among the tourists were Sir Godfrey Dairymple White, a member of the English house of commons, Lady many prominent persons from scattered parts of the United States and Canada.

The liner was being towed slowly into port by fishing vessels. The Princess Alice, a sister ship of the Charlotte, was on its way from Vancouver to bring the passengers to their destination.

The Charlotte was southbound and struck the rock just south of the entrance to the treacherous Seymour Narrows. The vessel went aground in the heavy current about 9.30 o'clock last night and when she was freed about midnight a jagged hole in her outer skin had admitted enough water to flood fuel tanks and engine room, rendering the vessel helpless

BOSTON, Aug. 31—(AP)—Business conditions in New England improved slightly in July but there has been no marked change sinche March, the Federal Reserve bank of Boston reports in its monthly review.

"The New England business activity index," the review says, "indicates that activity during the first three months of 1927 was substantially below that of the corresponding period a year ago, while during the months of April-July inclusive activity has been more pronounced this year than in 1926. When allowance for the usual seasonal fluctuations has been made, some industries reflected appreciable increases in activity in July as compared with June, while others showed a distinct falling off.

"Cotton consumption by the New England mills in July was materially less than in June. In fact the July consumption was 11,100 bales less than in any other month this year. The recent strength of raw cotton prices has apparently caused a decrease in the demand for finished fabrics.

"Wool consumption, which showed considerable activity in June, declined somewhat in July, while raw wool prices have continued firm. Activity in the shoe industry increased in July by more than the usual seasonal amount, but the increase in New England was relatively greater than that of the entire country. Hide and leather prices have softened recently.

"The square foot space of contracts awarded for new building in New England—residential group—declined in July by about the usual seasonal amount, while in the commercial and industrial group there was an increase, which was contrary to the usual seasonal movement, between June and July. Sales in new automobiles in New England declined in July as compared with June, due to a decrease in the sales of two lower priced four cylinder cars.

"Employment conditions have shown no marked change during weeks. The number of persons on payrolls in Massachusetts declined in July, but less than from June to July a year ago. The number of business failures in this district declined, whereas there is usually a seasonal increase in July.

"Sales of department stores in New England in July were about four percent under a year ago, but preliminary reports indicated that August sales would be about 8 to 10 per cent higher than the corresponding month a year ago."

SAN FRANCISCO WELCOMES DOLE FLIGHT WINNERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31—(AP)—A home-welcoming, tinged with sorrow because of the missing in the Dole flight, marked the arrival here today of Art Goebel and Lieutenant William V. Davis, Jr., U. S. N. pilot and navigator of the monoplane Woolaroc which won the first prize of $25,000 in the James D. Dole air derby.

The Matson liner Manoa was decorated with flags and the greetings given the fliers by city officials and citizens were enthusiastic but the wild cheering attendant to the homecoming of other California-Hawaii fliers was absent, at the request of Goebel and Davis.

The airmen moved up Market street in an impromptu parade and but few passersby realized who they were.

Commenting on the fate of Miss Mildred Doran and the six men missing in connection with the Dole race Goebel declared he feared they were "gone.

"All the way home I studied the sea," he said. "If the planes crashed I am afraid the fliers would have been so dazed they could not get out their life rafts and the planes very likely would sink quickly in the rough water that prevailed.

PLANE SIR JOHN CARLING TO HOP OFF AT DAYBREAK

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 31—(AP)—The monoplane Sir John Carling, piloted by Captain Terry Tully and with Lieutenant James Medcalf as navigator, will hop off at daybreak tomorrow for Harbor Grace, N. F., on the first leg of their proposed flight to London, England, the flight committee announced late tonight.

The flight committee made its announcement after it had received a report that indicated favorable weather between here and Newfoundland and had conferred with the fliers.

Tully and Medcalf plan to refuel at Harbor Grace before taking off for England.

REDUCTION OF GASOLINE PRICES IN MASSACHUSETTS

BOSTON, Aug. 31—(AP)—The Standard Oil company of New York today announced a reduction of one cent a gallon in the price of gasoline in Massachusetts. This makes the tank wagon price 17 cents and the service station price 18 cents.

Air Express to be Inaugurated Today

First Plane Will Leave Boston at 7.15 This Evening—Prospects Promising.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 31—(AP)—Flowers, candy, groceries, dry goods and machinery comprise shipments booked for New York, Chicago, San Francisco and intermediate points for the first air express tomorrow, said American Railway Express officials tonight. Prospects for the new service seemed highly promising, they said.

The first plane will leave Boston at 7:15 tomorrow evening for New Brunswick, N. J., instituting daily express service with Boston, excepting holidays and Sundays. At New Brunswick the Boston planes, operated by the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., will connect with the National Air Transport Service.

The Colonial planes are of the Fokker Universal, cabin monoplane type, equipped with single Wright Whirlwind engines, capable of carrying loads of express, mail and passengers, of 1,000 pounds, at the rate more than 100 miles an hour. They are equipped with strong boxes for valuables.

Rates from Boston, per quarter pound, are: To New York, 40 cents; to Cleveland or Chicago, 50 cents; to points west of Chicago served by National Air Transport lines, 60 cents; to Pacific coast 75 cents.

CROP PRODUCTION PROSPECTS UNCHANGED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—(AP)—Prospects of crop production remained virtually unchanged during August, except for cotton but recent price advances in cotton and corn have lifted the purchasing power of farm products, the department of agriculture said today in its September review of the agricultural situation.

"Of the country's two greatest cash crops, wheat has turned out well, while cotton promises anything by a big yield. Of the two leading feed crops, Hay was a record crop while corn is a partial failure," the report says.

"Cotton has been hurt by the boll weevil. Corn is still a great uncertainty, a substantial portion of the crop requiring almost a miracle of good weather to mature. Potatoes give promise of a fairly large production though blight has become evident locally through the east. The hay crop is by far the largest ever grown, but rainy weather made it difficult to secure the latter part of the crop. Apples promise to yield about half as great a supply as last year, being better in western than in eastern districts."

Cotton production as indicated by late forecasts, the report said, will meet only consumptive needs, but "the subsequent upturn in cotton prices bids fair to give the south a greater total income than it received from last year's record crop," adding:

"The wheat crop as a whole was reported to be excellent."

GRANTED DIVORCE FROM AUTHOR HARRY L. WILSON

SALINAS, Calif., Aug. 31—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Cooke Wilson of Carmel, Cal., was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce in superior court here today from Harry Leon Wilson, author, whom she charged with desertion and failure to provide.

Details of the arguments of opposing counsel over a property settlement in the case were to be submitted on briefs to Superior Judge Fred W. Treet. Mrs. Wilson accused her husband of hiding assets from her when he made a property settlement.

She asked $5,000 monthly alimony instead of the $350 he granted her, and a larger share in his stocks, bonds, real estate, holdings and royalty earnings.

Today's session of the divorce trial was marked by introduction by counsel for Mrs. Wilson of a letter written by Mr. Wilson in which he expressed distaste for divorce suit publicity but willingness to fight for his money.

14-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED IN CRASH OF AIRPLANE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 31—(AP)—A 14-year-old boy was killed instantly and the air pilot seriously injured when the plane in which they were flying crashed at Wildwood Gables early tonight.

The dead youth was John Applegate, Cape May Court House, a helper employed by the South Jersey Flying company.

Bun Cole, 26, Avalon, pilot of the plane is in Mace's hospital Wildwood, suffering from a possible skull fracture, fractured left knee and internal injuries.

This was the second fatal accident with the same plane in the last two weeks, Corliss Jones, also of Cape May Court House, a partner of Cole, having been beheaded when he was struck by the propeller of the machine.

WEALTHY LITHUANIAN FARMER WAS MURDERED

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 31—(AP)—That John Cassel, wealthy Lithuanian farmer whose decapitated body was found in the Allingtown woods near the Milford turnpike late in July, was murdered and did not commit suicide, was disclosed today as the theory on which state police and Coroner Eli Mix have quietly reopened their investigation which was thought to have been discontinued. It also developed that the coroner has never filed an opinion in the case.

NORMAN GRATTAN EQUALS RECORD AT SYRACUSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 31—(AP)—Sep Palin of Indianapolis, equalled the track record on the cinder course at the New York State fair today, winning the claiming race for pacers with Norman Grattan in straight heats, Palin's gelding paced the second mile in 2:04 3-4 thereby tieing the mark set up by George Loomis with Sir Roch several years ago.

Race officials announced the Hambletonian stake had been definitely set for Friday. Tomorrow the Chamber of Commerce purse and the Empire State stake, both $10,000 events, will be raced.

WOMAN'S HAIR OCCASIONS DEATH BY LIGHTNING

BERLIN, Sept. 1, (AP)—Her long hair proved a fatal conductor of electricity to Grentchen Schaefer, a young peasant woman of Stetin. She was struck and instantly killed by lightning which shot down the electric lighting to a lamp, and from there to her hair as she was combing it out.

HELD FOR ROBBERY OF THE PLANTSVILLE NAT'L BANK

William Kappell, 37 Years Old, Was Arrested in Chicago—Was Found Sitting in an Automobile Having a Bullet-Proof Enclosure—Kappella is Being Held for the Connecticut Authorities—The Bank, in Southington, Was Robbed June 22 of Nearly $4,500 in Cash.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31—(AP)—Arrested last night when found sitting in an automobile having a bullet-proof glass enclosure, William Kappella, 37 years old, was taken to the detective bureau today where it was found he is wanted by authorities at Hartford, Conn., in connection with the robbery of the National bank of Plantsville, a suburb of Southington. He is being held for the Connecticut authorities.

BANK WAS ROBBED OF NEARLY $4,500 IN CASH

HARTFORD, Aug. 31—(AP)—William Kappella has been sought by the state police for more than two months as the fourth member of the gang which held up the Plantsville National bank in Scuthington on June 22, escaping with nearly $4,500 in cash.

Last week Policeman Paul Lavin was sent to Chicago to carry on the search there, inasmuch as two of the other three robbers, all of whom were arrested within a few days after the robbery, were from Cicero, Ills., a Chicago suburb, and it was believed that Kappella would be likely to go there.

The state police were informed today by Policeman Lavin that he had apprehended Kappella and secured his arrest. Details of the way in which he traced the alleged robber were withheld. Extradition papers were being prepared by the police today and Lieutenant-Governor Brainard will probably be asked to sign them tomorrow after which they will be forwarded to Chicago.

According to confessions said to have been made by the other robbers after their arrest, Kappella was one of the two men who entered the bank and held the cashier, Raymond Olsen, and his wife at the point of guns while rifling the tills. The other two remained outside in an automobile.

Less than half the money stolen from the bank was found on the persons of the three men who were captured in the woods near Lake Compounce. It was believed that the fourth bandit had taken the rest of the loot.

The other three men arrested in connection with the robbery are Thomas De Marco and Albert Meyer, of Cicero Ills., and Stewart Florian, of Southington. They were bound over to the September term of the superior court under bonds of $50,000 each.

ARMY FLIERS WELL TREATED IN MEXICO

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 30—(AP)—Capt. C. H. Reynolds and Sergeant Gus Newland, army aviators, personally put in an appearance on the Mexican border today after being reported missing three days following a forced landing in the Sage Brush desert near Ojinaga, in northern Chihuahua.

Army officials were advised the aviators communicated with authorities at Marfa, Tex., reporting they had been well treated by Mexican military authorities and had at no time been restrained as prisoners. After spending a few hours at Presidio, Reynolds and Newland returned to a point near Ojinaga where their plane is under guard of Mexican soldiers pending its official release by the government officials here learned.

Colonel C. S. Babcock, commandant of the First Cavalry at Marfa, telegraphed the soldiers were prepared to clear a runway as soon as the government approves release of the plane and minor repairs are made.

News of the safety of the fliers relieved anxiety here over their plight.

Deputy Sheriff C. M. Blackwell of Marfa reported the aviators told him they had been "royally entertained" as the guests of General de la Vega at Ojinaga.

Advices from Mexico City said the men had not been detained as prisoners, and their official release was expected as soon as legal technicalities concerning the landing were cleared up.

FRANCE AND CANADA PAY TRIBUTES TO U. S. LAWYERS

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 31—(AP)—Tributes from France and Canada to the lawyers of the United States and an outline of the work that is before it marked the opening today of the fiftieth annual convention of the American Bar association.

Maurice Bokanowski, French minister of commerce, paid France's tribute. That of Canada was delivered by George K. Montgomery, batonnier of the Montreal Bar association, and representative of the Canadian Bar association. Both lauded the efforts of American lawyers in the interests of humanity.

Charles S. Whitman, president of the American Bar association and former governor of New York, set the wheels of the convention in motion with his opening address, in which he cited as a work of outstanding merit the accomplishments of recent conferences between members of the bar association and the American Federation of Labor, looking toward the settlement of interstate commerce labor disputes by modern methods.

Although three sessions were held the actual business of the convention was left for tomorrow.

MARATHON SWIMMERS PHYSICALLY EXHAUSTED

TORONTO, Aug. 31—(AP)—A number of swimmers taken from the water in the $50,000 marathon staged here today were in a physically exhausted condition and required immediate attention on their arrival at the base hospital.

The most serious casualty of the derby proved to be F. Kalm, the "Eskimo swimmer," who was injured at the start of the race. He was treated at the emergency hospital and appeared to be normal, but this afternoon suffered a relapse and was taken to the western hospital, where an X-ray photo revealed a fracture at the base of the skull. He was reported to be resting easier late today.

Myer Mendelson, of Montreal, and Jan Montenack, of Toronto, stuck to their tasks to the bitter end, and they were taken to the emergency hospital, where they were unconscious for several minutes.

Helen Garland, Ottawa mermaid, succumbed to the chill of the water, and was taken out virtually exhausted.

DISSENSION IN CONN. VALLEY TOBACCO ASS'N.

HARTFORD, Aug. 31—(AP)—About 400 members of the Connecticut Valley Tobacco association, have reached the end of the road in their negotiations with the officers of the association to settle their differences, and late tomorrow will petition a judge of the superior court for a receiver to liquidate the affairs of the association.

The complaint on which they will base their request for a receiver has been virtually completed by their counsel, Arthur L. Shipman and John J. Burke. While the terms of it could not be learned from counsel, who said they would not make it public until it had been first presented to the court, it is understood that it charges that the managements of the association has resulted in a depreciation of assets.

CAMP COOLIDGE TO BE RETREAT FOR BOY SCOUTS

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 31—(AP)—Another memorial to President Coolidge's summer in the Black Hills was left to South Dakota today when Camp Coolidge was dedicated as a retreat for Boy Scouts near Custer at a ceremony attended by the president.

Previously the state had re-named one of the peaks in the Black Hills Mount Coolidge and the rippling trout stream which flows past the summer white house has been called Grace Coolidge creek. Farther up the hill a memorial is being carved of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt and the president has been asked to write the inscription to appear below explaining its meaning.

Except for the short journey to Custer, Mr. Coolidge spent the whole day at the game lodge preparing the address he will make at Brookins, Sept 10, dedicating the Lincoln Memorial library at the South Dakota Agricultural college.

Tomorrow the President and Mrs Coolidge will make their last trip from the summer white house, going by special train to Newell, S. D., to inspect a government reclamation project, and from there to Nisland to attend the Butte county fair.

Meanwhile preparations are going ahead for Mr. Coolidge's departure for Washington next week.

M'CRAY REGAINED HIS HEALTH WHILE IN PRISON

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 31—(AP)—Silent on all political matters, but voluble in his joy at freedom, former Governor Warren T. McCray, of Indiana, was homeward bound tonight. He was released on parole today after serving three years and four months of a ten year sentence in the federal prison here.

McCray, who had been convicted on a charge of "using the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud," was released on telegraphic instructions from Washington, confirming Attorney General Sargent's approval of the parole board's recommendation.

"Yes, I've kept in touch with political conditions, national and in Indiana, but I have absolutely nothing to say on that score. I'm anxious to get back to my family and my two grandchildren."

McCray, who recently spent four months in the prison hospital, said he was in excellent physical condition and attributed his health to a cessation of attempts to secure a pardon before his parole date arrived.

"As soon as I made up my mind there was no use seeking a pardon and resigned myself to wait, my health picked up immediately."

BROTHERS KILLED AT NEWFIELD GRADE CROSSING

TORRINGTON, Conn., Aug. 30—(AP)—Thrown from their machine when it was struck by a gasoline car at the Newfield grade crossing tonight, Fred Glassteter, 52, and his brother, Edward, 40, received injuries from which they later died at the Charlotte Hungerfor dhospital. Eileen and Loretta Glassteter, young daughters of the older man were badly bruised and shaken up.

The car in which the four were riding, a touring model, was demolished.

Both brothers suffered fractured skulls and were in a dying condition when admitted to the hospital. No hope was held out for their recovery and they lived but a few hours although emergency treatment was administered.

Hospital authorities were not conversant with the details of the accident.

E. L. AVERILL WILL OPEN ELKS FAIR THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin).

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 31—The Elks' Country fair will be officially opened here Thursday evening at Elks' park on Pleasant street by Ernest L. Averill of Branford, deputy attorney general of Connecticut. The choice of state official to pronounce the fair underway was made known today by Harold C. Lincoln, chairman of the general committee. Scores of men were at the park today making ready for the big event. Various amusements and booths were being placed in readiness and fair weather was the only doubtful matter worthy of consideration. Gilbert P. Flynn, chairman of the grounds committee has been directing several notable improvements to the midway for the attraction and convenience of the public. The exhibition buildings have likewise been given the most careful attention and not less can be said of the booking of free vaudeville acts. Concert and accompaniment music will be furnished by the B. P. O. Elks band with Charles N. C. Wheeler director. J. Francis Keon, chairman of the entertainment committee said that due to the fact that all available help from members of the lodge will be drafted to attend to the numerous activities at the park, there would not be a street parade prior to the opening. A band concert on Main street will sound the news that the fair is about to be open.

Rev. James G. Graham, resigned pastor of the Windham Center and South Windham Congregational churches and Sydney B. Alling of Windham Center, were tendered farewell testimonials at a special meeting of the Windham Men's Community club Monday evening. Rev. Mr. Sanford of Landsdowne, Pa., expressed the feeling of the neighboring communities in his words of farewell to Rev. Mr. Graham which gave him occasion to mention the resigned pastor's efforts in organizing the Community club which has been very successful in a fellowship program. Donald McDonald extended the farewell words to Mr. Alling and presented him with a gift in gratitude for the interest of the former club president during his regime as first president of the organization.

The funeral of Captain Vladimir Alexandrovich Polouektoff was held this morning with services at nine o'clock in the Russian Orthodox church at New Britain. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were, James H. Thacher, Alexander Gregorieff, Kenneth N. Hillhouse, G. Everett Harrington, Elmer Yake and Raymond A. Parker. Arrangements were by the J. C. Lincoln company.

Valley street, from Windham to Watson streets, where new concrete sidewalks have just been laid was under process of repair by men under Street Superintendent Edwin O. Sumner today. The sidewalks were built along approved lines thus lowering the grade, and making the street level higher than the sidewalk in some instances. The defective drainage which would result from this condition is being overcome by scraping down the shoulders two feet to give a curb clearance of six or seven inches.

A Hupmobile sedan which was badly damaged was removed from a livery stand to a repair garage today, having apparently figured in a wreck during the night. The registration of the car is 58-630 listed under the name of Waldo R. Hills of 49 Beverly Row, Hartford. It is thought that a local man was with Hills at the time of the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Moran of Windham Road entertained in honor of the latter's nephew Arthur Rizy of Philadelphia, Pa., Tuesday evening, dancing, singing and refreshments being enjoyed. Present were, Fred Sweet of Waltham, Mass., who is guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. NOANK

A young deer came from Goat Point woods and swam to the railroad bridge near the railroad station, Tuesday morning, then went over to Edgar Ashly's yard and taking its time, went up Church street. The deer was not afraid of anybody. Dogs were barking and the children were chasing him. He ran for a short ways then bounded into some one's yard, later coming up the trolley track, taking it at a slow walk. Finally he came on the platform looked in the door of the waiting room, then ran across the train tracks over Prospect Hill and was soon out of sight in some near-by woods. It is the first deer to pay a visit to the villiage this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Brady Barber of New York are visiting at the home of Mrs. John Fitzpatrick on Clark avenue for several weeks. Mr. Barber is here to make arrangements for a movie picture to be taken in Noank and surrounding towns. So again Noank will be on the map, for movie actors and stars will be seen along the streets. Mr. Barber is well remembered by local people as he took the part of the heavy villain in the picture Hope, taken last summer along the short front. He also was seen in the Brown Derby, as the heavy villain. The actors and actresses will arrive in a few days.

Lewis Main of New Haven is home on a short visit.

Capt. Charles T. Potter of Norwich was at his cottage on Riverside avenue Tuesday.

William Crowell gave some of his friends an automobile ride in his Nash car to Baltic to visit friends. On arriving there they found that the Labonty sisters had the house decorated in honor of Edward Ellis' birthday, who is turning 20. He did not know that Miss Janet Labonty had a birthday on the same day; she was 17. It was a double celebration in which everybody took part and the Sunset orchestra from Essex played for the dancing. Miss Margaret Mahoney with William Crowell won in the prize waltz. Bill got a silver pencil while his partner received a pocketbook. Edward Labonty gave a drum solo with Eddie Ellis at the piano. Miss Eleanor Tryon in behalf of friends, gave Miss Labonty a handsome fountain pen while George Saxson, as a gift from his Baltic friends gave Eddie Ellis a pocket book having his name on the inside. Refreshments served included sandwiches, cake and jello with banana punch.

Miss Mary Robertson spent a day in Providence with friends, this week.

WESTERLY

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED AT FIRE DISTRICT MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Aug. 31—The annual meeting of the Westerly fire district was held in the Westerly town hall this evening when Lewis Stanton was re-elected moderator for a term of two years at a salary of $10 a meeting and Carl E. Burdick was re-elected clerk for a term of two years at a salary of $100 a year. Everett E. Whipple was re-elected treasurer and collector.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand from last year of $1,694.15, receipts, $94,291.26, total receipts of $95,985.41; cash on hand, $26,583.30; expenditures of $69,392.11, total of $95,-985.41. Cash on hand of $26,583.30 less notes at bank of $22,000 leaves a balance above liabilities of $4,593.30.

George E. Egger was re-elected chief engineer and Robert Bonner, first assistant engineer, George A. McKenzie, second asst. engineer and Columbus J. Pasetti, third asst. engineer.

The matter of levying a tax on the fire district property was voted continued to an adjourned meeting to be held on Tuesday, Nov. 22, 1927, to enable the district officers to ascertain the probable cost of re-building fire stations and equipping them.

Harold D. Livingston was re-elected auditor, Walter C. Hiscox, Oliver P. Crandall and D. Harold Rogers were elected assessors of taxes. All officers were elected for a term of two years.

The bond of the treasurer and collector was fixed at $3,000.

The board of engineers was elected a committee on stovepipes and chimneys.

The treasurer was authorized to hire such sum or sums of money as might be necessary.

The annual report of the Board of Engineers, signed by George E. Egger, chief; Robert Bonner, first assistant engineer; George A. McKenzie, second assistant engineer; and Columbus Pasetti, third assistant engineer, was read by George A. McKenzie. The report showed a total loss of $120,870.

There were a total of 51 alarms responded to as follows: Regular alarms, 28; telephone calls, 11; false alarms, 2 and out of the Westerly Fire District, 10 calls.

The report concluded that the fire cisterns were in good condition.

Hose—The district has on hand 2,000 feet of good hose and 900 feet in fair condition.

Motor apparatus-Seagraves pump in first class condition; ladder truck in fair condition; combination truck, in fair condition.

Membership—Board of Engineers, 4 men; Rhode Island Ones Co., 36; Alert Hook & Ladder Co., 32; Cyclone Engine Co., 40; Fire Police, 12; First Aid squad, 8.

Recommendations—"We would recommend that the salaries and appropriations for the year ehsuing be as follows:

Chief Engineer, $700; assistant engineers, $300; treasurer & collector, $250; R. I. Ones Co., $500; Alert Hook & Lader Co., $500; Cyclone Engine Co. ..500; Fire Police, $200.

For the committee of investigation as to the needs of the Westerly Fire District, following the fire of April 30th last, Chief George E. Egger, Engineers Robert Bonner, George McKenzie, Columbus J. Pasetti, and taxpayers of the district, Walter C. Hiscox, Frank A. Sullivan, C. W. Campbell and George A. Dolan, the committee secretary Louis J. Rossi reported that the Panciera property, purchased by the Fire District last Tuesday had been contingent upon the transfer of Panciera property to the Town of Westerly for highway purposes. This transfer depended upon the removal of the two-family dwelling on Union street and the establishment of highway lines on the new Union street layout with assurance that the work was to be done. "Owing to various details involved in these transfers, and many conferences required between parties," the report continued, "it was impossible to proceed further than to close the deal for purchase of the additional land required for the fire station site".

John J. Dunn moved that it be voted that the report of the special committee be received and accepted, and the committee continued to further carry out the district votes and report at the adjourned meeting to be held on Tuesday, Nov. 22.

John DeFanti introduced the resolution from the Westerly Central Labor union requesting that local contractors be given preference in the awarding of contracts for the rebuilding and equiping the Westerly fire stations.

William Sheldon left Wednesday morning for a several days' business visit to Pawtucket.

William M. White of Pawcatuck left Wednesday for a business trip to Boston.

C. H. Arnold of Providence was in Westerly Wednesday.

Judge Oliver H. Williams was in Norwich Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac G. Smith have returned to Westerly after several days' trip in Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Sampson Cramer of Norwich was in Westerly Wednesday.

Willard H. Browning and Louis Bell of Wakefield were Westerly visitors Wednesday.

A committee consisting of Arthur L. Perry, Lewis Stanton, Everett E. Whipple, Clifford W. Campbell and John J. Dunn were elected to apply to the Rhode Island general assembly for an act to amend the fire district charter raising the expense limit from $17,000 to $50,000; also to amend the charter to include in the fire district the village of White Rock, recently sold. The committee is to report back at the special meeting of Nov. 22.

The eighth in the summer series of band concerts will be rendered this (Thursday) night at 8 o'clock from the band stand in Wilcox park by the Westerly band. Following is the program:

March—Sagamore, Goldman, Overture—Light Cavalry, Suppe. Waltzes—Millicent, McKee, Popular air—Blue Skies, Berlin. Fantasia—In Days of Old, Rollinson. Novelty—Hashed Brown, Allen. Popular air—Yankee Rose, Berlin. Grand selection from Maritana, Wallace. Gems from Prince of Pilsen, Luders. Popular Air—Russian Lullaby, Berlin. Overture—Marimo Follies, Donizetti. March—Who's Who in Navy Blue, Sousa. Finale, Star Spangled Banner.

At the junction of East avenue and Granite street Tuesday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock an express truck, owned by Frederick R. Lamb and operated by Frederick R. Lamb, Jr., was proceeding southerly on Granite street, to turn down East avenue. At the same time the roadster driven by Elmer A. Barnes of the Shore road was going up East avenue toward Granite street. In the collision the front ends of both autos were damaged.

A birthday party was held Tuesday at Stillholme farm on the Potter Hill road, the residence of Dr. and Mrs. William Thompson, in honor of Mrs. Thompson's mother, wife of the late Capt. Griffin, of Stonington. Besides the family of Dr. Thompson, there were present for the afternoon and evening Mr. and Mrs. George L. Stillman, Mrs. Allan L. Thompson and family, all of Westerly and Capt. and Mrs. Harry Thompson and son, of Galveston, Texas.

Employes of the Westerly highway department, under the supervision of Highway Engineer A. L. Leon, have been engaged in piecing out the shoulders of the highway both on Railroad avenue and Canal street with tar patches. Frequent rains had washed the gutters into gullies which were filled. The surface was relaid to the curb line and smoother with a 5-ton roller. Patches were laid on Canal street where holes had worn in the road surface along car track rails and in the gutter by the recently constructed Nardone block and United Theatre.

At the old Westerly town hall building on Union street, recently used as a Manual Training school, a staging has been erected outside the top story windows to permit work on the reboarded roof, which was burned in the fire of April 30th On the north side of the building wooden staging has been erected against the blank brick wall. The half-burned roof of the clock tower in which was formerly located the Westerly town clock has been removed and retimbered for a new roof, while the tower floors and interior timbers for stairways have been replaced. In the courthouse end of the Westerly town hall building progress has been made in removing charred woodwork and painters have gone over the interior walls of the superior court and district court hallways. State Finance Commissioner Fred S. Peck of Providence and Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell inspected the work Wednesday.

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 46 Granite street, funeral services were held tor Mrs. Lydia Richardson Burdick. Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church of Westerly, conducted the services. The bearers were Dudley Cottrell, Arthur Babcock and Joseph A. Girard, sons-in-law, and Joseph Cottrell, a grandson.

She was born in North Stonington, 73 years ago, the daughter of Benedam and Sarah Richardson, and was the widow of Joseph Burdick. She resided in North Stonington until the death of her husband, since which time she had resided with her daughters, having gone to Mystic about a year ago. She was an active member of the Second Baptist church of North Stonington. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Dudley Cottrell of Mystic and Mrs. Joseph A. Girard and Mrs. Arthur Babcock, both of Westerly, and by six grandchildren.

A fire which started on the roof of the Pleasant View cottage of Mrs. Delia Wheeler, of North Stonington, caused the Pleasant View Beach firemen to respond late Tuesday afternoon. Their well directed efforts was the reason that a small hole in the roof was the sole damage. Although Chief Charles Lamb and some of his assistants were away from the resort at the time, members of the company drove the truck to the scene and soon had a stream of water playing on the roof. The house is one of two owned by Mrs. Wheeler a short distance west of the Pleasant View House. The fire is thought to have originated from sparks caused by papers burning in the fireplace.

Representatives of the Rhode Island State Board of Public Roads held their last Wednesday session of the year today in the district court rooms, Westerly town hall. The sessions have continued through July and August. By their visit to Westerly, similar to their Newport visits, which continue the year around, applicants for automobile registration papers and operators' licenses are relieved of the necessity of visiting or sending to Providence for them. Inspector Earl of the state board of public roads accompanied by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, investigated recent Westerly auto mishaps which included the collision between automobiles owned by Herbert Dawley, of Norwich and Westerly Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton.

Harry Stewart, arrested Tuesday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock on Pierce street by Police Patrolman Frank E. Knight, was presented Wednesday morning in a special session of the Third District court before Judge Oliver H. Williams. He was charged by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown with the operation of a Ford touring car, not equipped with at least two powerful brakes and on a second complaint with the operation of an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The accused had been previously warned not to attempt to operate his auto, and on his persisting, his arrest followed.

Stewart pleaded guilty to the improper brake charge and was fined $25 and costs. He pleaded not guilty to the drunken driving charge and placed under $500 bail, his case was continued to Friday, Sept. 2nd. Late Wednesday afternoon he remained at the Westerly lockup, unable to secure bail.

DANIELSON

REPORT OF KILLINGLY HIGH SCHOOL IS ANTICIPATED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 31—It was announced tday, following a meeting last evening, that the building committee of Killingly high school has prepared its final report, which will be submitted to the voters in printed form at the annual town meeting on the first Monday in October.

This report will show that the total cost of the additions to the school built the past year and the equipment and all incidental costs amounts to $178,734.01. Of this amount $161,149 accruing from the sale of bonds and the premiums thereon was paid by the selectmen. The remainder of the cost was met by a special appropriation of the town and by unexpended balances from the school committee's funds for the years 1925-26 and 1926-27.

Men familiar with the school as it is today and with the cost of materials and labor and other expenses incident to construction work estimate that the replacement cost would be in the neighborhood of $400,000 and some of the estimates run even higher.

JOHN REGAN DIES FROM INJURIES RECEIVED TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 31—John Regan, who was fatally injured at the Wauregan railroad station Tuesday morning when he was struck by a beam on the front of the locomotive of the boat train, while he was there to load milk, died this morning at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. The body was brought here in charge of Undertaker Louis E. Kennedy.

Mr. Regan, who was in his late 60s, was a native of Ireland, but had lived the greater part of his life in this country and for many years was a faithful and efficient worker on the Davis farm, just north of Wauregan. He leaves two brothers, Michael and William in this country and other relatives of more distant kin. Others of his relatives are resident in Ireland.

The school committee has established six years as the minimum age for all pupils entering school for the first time. The committee do not wish to be arbitrary in this matter, it was stated today, and because there are no kindergartens in Killingly or the Brooklyn schools and because it is recognized that there are individual differences in pupils, it has been decided that this fall pupils who would become six years of age before Christmas be admitted to the first grade providing they pass satisfactorily a physical and mental test.

Requests for permission for such children to enter school must be made to first grade teachers on the first day of school, which will be next Tuesday. An appointment will be made by the teacher for the individual testing of such pupils at an early date. Pupils who cannot pass satisfactorily such a physical and mental test will be deemed too immature to enter school and their entrance will have to be deferred to September of the succeeding year.

For the committee it was said today that the new method of determining the admission of very young children should prove equitable to all concerned. The tests are fair and have been established to be sound in hundreds of thousands of cases. It is pointed out today that there are differences in the mentality of young children as there is among their elders. Children who have not attained the age of six and who do not promisingly respond to the tests would gain nothing by entering school at such a tender age.

Again, not being able to progress with first grade work, they form bad habits that may cling to them and handicap them all through their years of study, if not through life.

Children who are approaching their sixth birthday and who meet the tests to which they are to be subjected will be received in first grades of the town's schools up to the seating capacity.

Mrs. Anna Reynolds and daughter, Gertrude, were in Bridgeport today, visiting with relatives.

Rolling northward days this week are many Pullmans to be used in taking care of the homeward rush of summer visitors that set in tonight from Maine vacation resorts via the Bar Harbor and State of Maine expresses and which will continue until after Labor day.

Miss Alice Monchan visited with relatives in Providence today.

SEVERAL CHANGES IN FACULTY OF KILLINGLY SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 31—The schools of Brooklyn and Killingly will open for the new year Tuesday morning September 6 at the usual hour. Killingly high school opening at 8.30 and the elementary grades at 9.00 o'clock. At the high school the day will be devoted to registration, assignment to classes, assignment of lockers and other details necessary to the opening of a new year. A morning session only will be conducted at the high school on the first day.

Teachers for the year and the schools which they are to teach are as follows:

Town of Killingly

Killingly high school, Ernest R. Welch, William K. Schofield, Adah A. Danielson, Louise W. Danielson, Roberta A. Horton, Flora E. Shippee, Esther G. Sauter, Cora Luts, Beryl Proctor, Rachel P. Barnes, Catherine Devine, Alma K. Sayles, Carrie E. Main.

Danielson grammar, Grace M. Stanton, Clara M. Williams, Emma J. Keach, Elizabeth R. Woodworth, Beatrice B. Beckett, Anna M. Hammett, Edith L. Fuller, Esther C. Holley.

Dayville, Rebecca Hollowell, Olive McCune, Maude D. Capron, Sophia H. Burdick.

Goodyear, Carl LeRoy Sears, A. Laura Chase, Caroline E. Day, Lillian M. Keech, Helen P. Given, Mabel C. Frink, Agnes W. Jacobs.

Attawaugan, Margaret MacConnell, Mary MacConnell, Rene B. Morse.

Ballouville, Marion P. Burnham, S. Eloise Shelton.

East Killingly, Rebecca A. Pease, Elsie D. Rose.

Valley, Beatrice Rose Lindner.

South Killingly, Mildred E. Kelley.

Supervisor of music, M. Louise Perrins.

Town of Brooklyn

East Brooklyn, ora M. Logee, Marjorie R. Yates, Ethel G. Lyon, Ruth Mullen.

Brooklyn Center, Mabel M. Ennis, Ella E. Lawton, Emily F. Davis.

Supervisor of music, Emma A. Burbank.

The most important change over last years' assignment is found at Goodyear where a new one room school has just been erected. There will thus be at Goodyear this year seven teachers instead of six. The number of pupils per teacher being reduced and thus making it possible for the teachers to do more efficient work. The number of teachers in the town is not increased for the additional teacher at Goodyear is provided by reducing the number of teachers at the Attawaugan school to three.

In the elementary schools there are six teachers new to the town of Killingly. Miss Olive McCune who will have charge of grades 5 and 6 of the Dayville school, is a recent graduate of the Willimantic normal school. Mrs. Philip Keech, a graduate of the Willimantic normal school goes to the Goodyear school after teaching three years in the elementary grades in Norwich. Miss Rebecca Pease, principal of the school in East Killingly is a normal school graduate and a successful teacher of four years' experience and Miss Elsie D. Rose, a normal school graduate and likewise a teacher of three years' successful experience will teach the primary room in the East Killingly school. Miss Beatrice Lindner, a June graduate of the Willimantic normal school will teach at the Valley school.

At the high school Miss Cora Lutz of Rockville, a graduate of the Conn. college last June succeeds Miss Marion D. Chollar and Miss Carrie Main of Norwich, a Connecticut Agricultural college graduate with two years' experience succeeds Miss Gladys Harris. Mr. William K. Schofield, a graduate of Connecticut Agricultural college succeeds Mr. Brundage. Miss M. Louise Perkins of Brockton, Mass., succeeds Miss Krans as supervisor of music.

KILLINGLY VOTERS TURN DOWN MACHINE PROPOSITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 31—Two hundred voters at a special town meeting tonight turned down the proposal that Killingly could adopt the use of voting machines at all elections. The vote was on a motion to lay on the table officers by Patrick Riley of Dayville. The motion was carried 127 to 72. It was stated after the meeting that the proposal will be reintroduced at the annual town meeting in October. There was a particularly large attendance this evening from the second and third districts of the town, especially from Dayville and East Killingly. The meeting voted to appropriate $5,000 to cooperate with the state in the building or improvement of public highways, Killingly being entitled under the arrangement to $20,000 of state money. The meeting voted to discontinue a short unused piece of highway running westerly from the Ballouville school on route leading to Putnam. Attorney Harry E. Bach was chairman of the meeting and Frank T. Preston, clerk.

In the schools of Brooklyn there is but one change. Miss Ruth Mullen of Norwich succeeds Miss Parmenter in the primary grades at the East Brooklyn school.

Start saving today and reap a dividend December 1st in the savings department of the Windham County National bank.—adv.

Miss Helen Heath has resigned her position as member of the staff of the office force of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, Danielson division.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gorman are this week entertaining Mrs. Arthur Rougeau of Marlboro. On Thursday they will be in Willimantic to attend an event arranged by the Elks, and at the week end with their son, Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. Gorman are to go to South Norwalk for a visit with relatives.

The Founding of the Grange will be the general topic for the literary program at next Monday evening's meeting of Killingly grange. Past lecturers of the grange are to provide the program. Friday evening of this week the members of Killingly grange are to neighbor with Ekonk grange and furnish the program.

National guardsmen making up the state rifle team put in another busy day at the range south of here today and will also shoot on Thursday and on Friday morning, breaking camp Friday afternoon preparatory to leaving for Camp Perry, O., on Saturday.

A promise is that there will be a clause in the warning for the annual town meeting requiring the selectmen to employ only citizens and voters on road work in the town and other such labor as is allotted by the selectmen.

The promise is on many farms in this territory for splendid crops of corn unless a severe early frost occurs. The crop was late in developing this year, but has made remarkable progress in recent weeks.

Occasionally, as was the case today, Chief John McFarland, finds it necessary to tag automobiles left in "no parking" areas that are plainly marked.

Prior to tonight's special town meeting numbers of electors took occasion to examine and try out the voting machine that was on demonstration, with a view to helping voters to decide whether they would commit the town to the use of them, as told elsewhere in the paper this morning.

Miss Agnes Jacobs, who has been spending the summer in Europe, will resume her duties as a teacher at the Goodyear school next Tuesday morning.

A large number of the cattle disposed of in the auction sale for Harold Cunningham, under the direction of J. C. Witter, at Elliott today, came from the George Kimball Wood's hill farm in the town of Brooklyn.

Manufacturing plants in town will close this week end until next Tuesday morning, giving a Labor day holiday period of ample length to allow of pleasure trips even to distant points.

Mrs. Mary Griffiths, mother of F. E. Bitgood, passed her 97th birthday this week at his home here.

PLAINFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dragon and daughter, of Baltic, were recent callers at the home of Mr Pierce Allard.

COLCHESTER

Ronald K. Brown, returned Monday to New York after a few days at his summer home on Broadway.

There was a large attendance at the third annual ball and bazaar given by Colchester Fire company, No. 1, in Grange hall, Saturday evening. Dave Lyons' and his orchestra furnished music. Parties from Norwich, New London, Mystic and other surrounding towns attended.

Prof. Cannard and several of his pupils stopped here over Saturday night, en route from Mystic to Meriden. Mr. Cannard ha sa riding academy in Meriden and each year passes through this village going to Mystic for his sum r school in that place. Eight of his pupils went with him this year in July. The trip is made on horseback.

PUTNAM

JOHN MIRON ASPHYXIATED BY GAS AT HIS HOME

PUTNAM, Aug. 31—John Miron, father of Attorney Irving H. Miron, was found dead in his bead at his home this evening. Mrs. Miron had been at North Ashford taking care of her mother who is ill and her husband was alone at home. Being unable to reach him by telephone, she asked a neighbor to go to her house and see if he was ill.

When the door of the house was opened it was found to be filled with gas that had escaped from an open jet on the lower floor which Dr. F. A. Morrill, the medical examiner said was the cause of death. Dr. Morrill said the death was undoubtedly an accident as Mr. Miron was in his own room on the second floor and there were no other jets turned on.

Mrs. Louise F. Robbins, wife of Edward E. Robbins, died Tuesday afternoon at her home on Main street. Mrs. Robbins was 78 years of age, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Pierson. Mr. Pierson owned the Central block on Main street and other valuable real estate in the city, the ownership passing at his death to Mrs. Robbins and her sister, Mrs. Harriet Ross; her only other near relative. She was married to Mr. Robbins on July 4, 1877. Mr. Robbins, who is 81, is in excellent health. They have always made their home in Putnam.

The funeral services of Mrs. Mary A. Clark took place this afternoon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Newton A. Ballard on Main street, Rev. John E. Duxbury of the Methodist church and Rev. Henry E. Hodge of the Baptist officiating.

Had Mrs. Clark lived until September 1, she would have celebrated her 85 birthday. Despite her age she had been in excellent health until a few weeks before her death and had only recently returned from an extended visit with relatives in Worcester and Salem, Mass. She was born in Dudley, Mass., the daughter of Aaron and Submit Wallace, one of the pioneer families of that section. The body was takento Webster, Mass., for burial beside that of her husband, who died 32 years ago. Mrs. Clark had been a resident of Putnam for more than 30 years.

FORMER PASTOR OF ST. MARY'S CHURCH DIES IN HOLLAND

PUTNAM, Aug. 31—Rev. Fr. Van den Noort, formerly of Putnam, died at his home in Holland last week at the age of 85 years. He left Putnam in 1912 after having served St. Mary's church here as pastor for 23 years and returned to Holland to spend his declining years. He was highly esteemed here by all classes of people and the messages that have come back to Putnam from him have been received here with general interest.

Father Van den Noort had been a resident of the United States for more than 40 years, 23 of which he spent as pastor of St. Mary's church here. He retired at the age of 70 after having given nearly half a century of work to the church. An accident which he had sustained about six months before his retirement prevented him from giving the same service to the church, and after careful deliberation h decided to retire and give over his church work to a younger man. He was succeeded in Putnam by the late Rev. Charles F. Bedard.

Rev. John Van den Noort was born in Holland in 1842 and was ordained at Brenda, Holland, in 1867 at the age of 25 years. He came to this country in 1872 and was appointed curate in Danielson by Bishop McFarland. At that time the parish at Danielson included Hampton, Brooklyn, Dayville, Williamsville, now Goodyear, Ballouville, Attawaugan and Pomfret Landing. After serving four years in Danielson, Father Van den Noort was transferred to Baltic as pastor of the church there and at that time the town of Baltic was in a deplorable condition because of the closing of the old Sprague mill and in two weeks 260 tenements were vacated and the pastor was left without a flock. In 1889 when Father Vrgen, pastor at St. Mary's died, he was transferred to Putnam, and remained as pastor of the church here until ill health compelled him to give up his work. The present St. Mary's church was built under his pastorate.

Rev. Adrian Dykeman on next Sunday will officiate at his last mass at St. Mary's church after a continuous service as curate for 23 years.

The following week he will sail on the steamer Rotterdam for Holland, his native land where he will continue his work as a priest at the head of a smaller parish than St. Mary's. The work will be lighter for him than it has bee here, a relaxation that he has fully earned as he is 68 years of age and for almost half a century has been engaged in church work. Father Dykman will take with him the good wishes of the entire community by whom he is held in the highest esteem.

After his ordination, Fr. Dykeman spent several years in the west doing missionary work. He first came to this parish as pastor during the absence of Fr. Van den Noort on a trip ot Europe. After the return of Fr. Van den Noort, he was sent to Rockville as a curate at the church there, and in 1904 coming to Putnam as a curate, where he has been ever since.

Funeral services for Theron S. Clapp were held yesterday afternoon at the Congregational church at Abington, followed by burial in the Abington cemetery. Mr. Clapp was 71 years old and for the past 34 years had conducted a general store at Elliott. Because of ill health he had recently disposed of his store. On Sunday evening Mrs. Clapp and her daughters heard the sound of a gun and hastened to the room of Mr. Clapp where they found him lying across the bed and found life extinct. Dr. Overlook was hastily summoned and pronounced death due to suicide. Dr. Overlook inferred that he had placed the gun against his breast and pulled the trigger with his cane.

Mr. Clapp had been ill for some time and was quite despondent. He was born in Pomfret and had lived in that section all of his life and his standing in the community was of the highest. He is survived by his wife, four daughters, the Misses Edith, Grace, Olive and Alice Clapp, all of whom are employed at Hartford but were home for over the week-end. He also left three sons, Ernest of North Haven, Arthur of Bristol and Richard of Manchester.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph C. Jenkins, Mrs. Jenkins and their sons, Page and Ward, have returned from a vacation spent in the Adirondacks.

Mark Gallant of Church street left yesterday for a visit to his birthplace at Monkton, Canada.

The Misses Dorothy and Thera Ames have returned from Crescent Beach where they have been spending the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Porter have returned to their home in New York city after a visit of two weeks with Mrs. Porter's sister, Mrs. W. W. Averill.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Roth and family of Richmond Hill, Long Island, are the guests of Mrs. Rowan at Pomfret.

Mrs. Frederick F. Woodward of New York city is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Blodgett at the Ben Grosvenor inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Royle and daughter, Miss Helen Royle, of Buffalo, N. Y., are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Pease and family on Fremont street.

Miss Edith Pease spent yesterday in Hartford and Manchester.

Henry L. Converse, mail carrier on Route No. 1 in the city is back on his route after his summer vacation.

Wilfred Barrette and George Lachapelle are on a motor trip through New York and Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Barber and two children of Philadelphia have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Williams.

JEWETT CITY

RESTAURANT PROPRIETOR STUNG BY FAKE ACTORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Aug. 31—Six persons claiming to have hired The Bijou to give a show of some kind ate dinner at The Eagle restaurant today. They also engaged meals until Saturday. The dinner was very excellent they said, but it was not paid for. The proprietor found that The Bijou had not been engaged for any show and was told of these same people coming here last year, having to borrow money to leave town. Also that certain Taftville people had been out of pocket through them last year. He later discovered three of the couples in different places on the main street, flagging machines in an attempt to leave town. He reported the matter to Officer Veglard and Deputy Sheriff Dolan.

The manager is held at the local police station to await trial in the police court Thursday morning, while the remaining members are staying at the Jewett City hotel. They claim that they were ignorant of the manager's mode of procedure.

MRS. RANSOM READ DIES SOON AFTER HUSBAND

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Aug. 31—Lillian Howe, widow of Ransom Read, 61, died at Backus hospital Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Read was born in Jewett City June 30, 1886, the daughter of Fred and Lydia Mason Howe. September 26, 1906 she married Ransom Read, of Lisbon, he having died August 20 of this year. Mrs. Read was a member of the Newent church, was secretary and treasurer of the Ladies' Aid society and treasurer of the Missionary society of that church. For ten years the family has lived in Jewett City. Mrs. Read has been in failing health for several years. Three years ago she was not expected to live, but her marvelous and unwavering cheerfulness under the most depressing conditions, coupled with her determination to be of as little trouble as possible to her friends, really seemed to prolong her life. She has always looked on the bright side of life, being a woman of beautiful Christian spirit. Her step-daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Read James has given her parents the most devoted care. Besides her daughter she is survived by five cousins, Mrs. Sarah Tracy and L. D. Howe, of Jewett City, Mrs. Anna Roberts, of Springfield, Mrs. Fanny Packer and Mrs. Herbert Culver, of Jersey City.

Feel Stiff and Achy?

To Be Well the Kidneys Must Thoroughly Eliminate Waste Poisons From the Blood

To feel constantly lame and achy is often indication of improper elimination. The kindneys are the blood filters, and rid the blood of waste impurities.

Sluggish action, however, does not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous waste and is apt to make one languid, tired and achy with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging backache. A common warning of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning excretions.

Assist the kidneys at such times with a stimulant diuretic. Since 1885 Doan's Pills have been winning friends the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DANGEROUS BLASTING CAPS

If an actual demonstration was needed of the danger involved in playing with blasting caps, Norwich has had a sufficiently vivid one. Such being the case there ought to be no more such accidents, but that does not necessarily follow, and the result is that the Institute of Makers of Explosives is working with other agencies for the purpose of placing emphasis upon this danger.

When we stop to realize that there are approximately 500 children crippled each year in this country by playing with blasting caps, it is evident that there is good reason for the effort which the institute is making, for if here is wisdom in curbing the Fourth of July accidents there is equally as much in striving to prevent the more serious m[illegible] of children.

Blasting caps c[illegible] possession of th[illegible] various ways. Many [illegible] and, being left about or t[illegible] by careless handlers, and it is [illegible] natural that a curious youngste[illegible] would proceed to find out what has come into his possession. These caps contain fulminate of mercury, a powerful explosive which responds quickly to fire, a blow or friction.

They are not intended as playthings nor are they objects which the curious should bother with. The fact that they seem harmless in appearance doesn't make them so, for the exact contrary prevails. Many of those who are familiar with the use of the caps get careless and carry marks which will remain with them until death, while some have been killed outright.

The plea therefore that such caps should at all times be kept out of the reach of children is an excellent one. They should get the same treatment that firearms do and it must be evident to school authorities that if it is found that children have come into possession of such caps prompt warning should be given to their parents. If proper care is used they can be kept from the hands of the youngsters and too much commendation cannot be given to the efforts put forth in sounding the warning.

SEPTEMBER

Summer hasn't officially gone but September has rolled around and when that change takes place we are not only looking for the opening of school, fairs and harvest but we are realizing that while shorter days and cooler weather can be expected there is a chance, and a good one, that it will be one of the best months of the year.

We have been watching with much interest the claim that was put forth at the opening of the year that it would be a year without a summer. There have been times when we have had abnormal weather, many cloudy, rainy and cool days not at all like August should be, and yet in states in the middle west it has been as hot and humid as any hot weather fiend could ask for.

Because of the much thought which has been given to the "year without a summer," since we had our attention called to it in advance, and the unfavorable August dependence is being placed upon September to make up for the summer which ought to have come but failed to arrive. Those who note the almanac days cannot find anything in the last Friday and Saturday of August to get enthusiastic about but they cannot reconcile themselves to the belief that we are going to plunge into colder weather and escape some of the finest days of the year.

However fine September may prove to be, and however far such weather may extent into October, it will be too late to bring much consolation to the resort proprietors who will see the season's business practically end after Labor day. For them the summer has been a decidedly poor one.

CECIL LEAVES CABINET

Termination of a relationship which has not always been pleasant, though up to now tolerated, has been accomplished by Viscount Cecil by his resignation from the British cabinet. Up to a certain point he was ready and willing to accept and abide by cabinet decision, but he evidently got to the point where he could do so no longer. The result is that he retires and in retiring he says some things which throw light on the past and which indicate his policy for the future.

Lord Cecil has long since been regarded as a strong man of the British cabinet. He was the representative of the conservatives, the British league of nations man and one upon whose judgment much reliance was placed. In leaving the cabinet he makes it plain that his views have run counter to those of Premier Baldwin and he intimates that had he had his way there would have been a different outcome of the disarmament conference at Geneva.

According to his statement he recognized of course that he was the representative of Great Britain when sent to conferences, but he was obliged in obeying instructions to support propositions which were hard to reconcile with any serious desire for the successful outcome of the undertaking. He especially stressed the wide difference existing between him and the cabinet on the matter of disarmament and his intimation is that had his views prevailed there would have been a different outcome at Geneva.

When Premier Baldwin, in accepting the resignation and replying indicated that the disarmament conference might prove a complete failure, but that it might result not only in a possible early reduction of armament but give each nation a better understanding of the position of the others, he may or may not have been endeavoring to cover up the sting of the viscount's charge. If it was impossible for the two men to get along together and make their views jibe Lord Cecil has of course done the proper thing in getting out and removing any handicap to the cabinet. It is evident however that the cabinet is going to feel his loss.

BORDER TROUBLES

Assistant Secretary Lowman of the treasury department has declared that the Canada border patrol is to be doubled. This will mean that where 200 have been trying to sustain the laws of this country along the northern border twice as many will be employed.

The inference to be gained from this is that the present patrol is not accomplishing what is expected in the way of law enforcement, and that there has been recognition of the fact that too much cannot be expected of a small force which is obliged to cover so much territory.

Representatives of this country and Canada are at the same time trying to come to some agreement concerning measures for bettering border conditions. This might have seemed like a one sided proposition with the United States asking all the favors for the upholding of the dry law, but such doesn't appear to be the case. Canada has a complaint as well as we have. There is liquor being smuggled into the United States from Canada but there is alcohol being smuggled into Canada from the United States and with each country being able to cooperate for the checking of these practices the chance for a successful culmination of the conference is increased.

Canada has a law calling for a tax of $10 a gallon on real spirits, but it complains that what is smuggled from this country is denatured alcohol which has been reconstructed and while they recognize that there is a loss of revenue from such smuggling it also means that much alcohol that may prove to be poison is being carried across the line. Some of that may come back under the name of Canadian whiskey and some may be consumed in the dominion. But if Canada can get real whiskey it is anxious to prevent the sale of that which is looked upon as dangerous. If the two countries can work together in meeting the problems the task will be greatly simplified.

FLYING WESTWARD

Once again the effort to cross the Atlantic from east to west is under way. It is only a few weeks since the French aviators Nungesser and Coli undertook to fly from Paris to New York and were never heard from, but since that time the ocean has been crossed several times in an easterly direction.

The British plane, guided by Hamilton and Minchin, with Princess Lowenstein as a passenger, is headed for Ottawa on a route not far different from that taken by the French aviators and they hope to cover over 2900 miles in 37 hours. It will be the first flight between such points if it is successful and it will also mark the first crossing of the Atlantic in the air by a woman. The distinction of being the first passenger to be taken over must however go to Levine, whose ambition is also to be the first to make the air crossing to the westward. Whether he undertakes the return flight may hinge upon the success or failure of the present flight by the St. Raphael.

Whatever the weather conditions have been at the take off of those who have crossed the Atlantic in the air, they have invariably encountered storms and bad weather at some point along their route to increase the peril of their undertaking. Fog has likewise added to the serious handicap until it becomes apparent that such crossings are not mere pleasure jaunts and picking favorable conditions is more or less of a gamble.

Every effort for a new transatlantic record awakens keen interest and it will not abate until the landing is made or the safety of the fliers is assured. To most people it involves a hazard which they are not ready to face.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Welcome to September, considered by some to be the best month in the year.

The man on the corner says: Don't expect opportunity to give something for nothing.

It is hard to please everyone. August has made an excellent impression in the middle west even if it hasn't in Connecticut.

With a dozen new cruisers in prospect for this country, how much responsibility will the British assume for the increase?

The continued adverse conditions might be taken to indicate that the weatherman is not favorably disposed to flights across the Atlantic.

Floggings in southern states may not be as bad as lynchings, but they are cowardly and unlawful and should be checked by proper punishment for all concerned.

THROUGH A NEEDLE'S EYE

"I never was very fond of reading stories." Aunt Nell bit the sentence off with the same quick snip of the teeth that severed the thread close to the needle's eye.

"Now, your mother, she was different. As a girl she was always reading something, and I guess you take after her, or you couldn't be writing books yourself. She turned deftly the garment which she was sewing and held her needle up to the light, peering at it over her spectacles. The needle threaded, she glanced again at the man seated beside her.

"I suppose I should be ashamed," she went on, "to say I've never read a single story that my nephew has written, when he is so well-known that everybody is talking about him. But I guess I'm not the romantic sort. I've always care more for sewing than for reading all this stuff about other folks loving and fighting and dying. Other people's lives don't mean much to me, I guess."

The young man smiled. He liked this queer aunt, who had lived alone for years, making a comfortable living by means of her skill as a seamstress. He arose and slowly circled the room.

"Well," he said, "I guess we are about even, at that, for I've never been very much interested in dress-making! But women, you know, are supposed to fairly 'eat up' stories, particularly those about loving and fighting and dying, as you call them. And I'm glad they do, or I'm afraid they'd find me in the poorhouse before long."

"Well," she answered, her busy hands continuing their work, "maybe I am different from most women. All I care about is my sewing, and, goodness knows, there's nothing romantic or exciting about that."

The young man had stopped on the far side of the room, close to a huge closet, whose door was standing open. He was gazing at its shelves, piled high with boxes of all sizes and shapes.

"Aunt Nell," he remarked, "ever since I was a boy I have wondered what you kept in those boxes. And I've never found out. What's in them, anyway?"

"Oh, nothing that would interest you," she answered. "They are full of little pieces of dress goods." He pulled one of the boxes from the shelf.

"Every time I make a dress for one of my customers I put a little scrap of the goods in one of those boxes—just in case I'd want to know what it was later on, you know. I have a box for each customer."

"This one belongs to Mary Widner," he mused, reading the name scribbled on the side of the box. "Well, Mary must have worn quite a few dresses in her time, for it is almost overflowing."

The old lady put down her needle and sighed.

"Yes," she said softly. "I just finished a dress for her last week. Only, it was Mrs. Sampson then, though her name was Widner when I made her first dress for her. Why, look here! Here's a piece of that very cloth—the first dress I ever made for her." She held up a triangular scrap.

"She was a pretty little blue-eyed thing when she wore this," she continued, her eyes lighting up with the fire of awakened memory. "Her mother brought her to me for her graduation dress. And what a dainty dress it was—she looked glorious in it."

Aunt Nell's eager fingers were now rummaging to the bottom of the box.

"See!" she exclaimed snatching up a bit of white satin. "a bit of her wedding gown that she wore when she married David Sampson. She was a happy bride, for she got a wonderful man, and I was awfully proud of the dress I made for her. And see this gingham? That is from some house dresses I made for her just after she came back from her honeymoon."

The box was now spilling its contents into the old lady's lap. She clutched a tiny shred of batiste in great excitement.

"Oh! see this is a piece of the goods from which I made her baby's first dress. Little Donald, that was—he would be older than you now, only—ah!" Her hands dropped to her lap, and a little piece of drab wool yarn was entwined about a finger.

"I knit a pair of socks for her to send to Donald while he was in France, and this is the very yarn! But I guess—" there was the suspicion of a sob in her voice—"I guess he never got them."

The hands were now holding a bit of black crepe. "I made this up for her just after she got the news that Donald had been killed in France. Her heart was almost broken, poor woman! She was never the same after that. Then Mr. Sampson died, and last week—" A bit of gray silk, still smooth and shiny, was drawn from among other pieces of brighter material. "This is the dress I made for her to be buried in. Poor woman! There won't be any more pieces in that box."

The lid was replaced. The hands, now trembling, took up the needle again. The young man, who had been watching her in silence, smiled gently.

"And you are the woman who is different from other women'—who doesn't like to read stories about loving and fighting and dying!"

The old lady coughed. "Perhaps I don't need to read them," she said softly.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Should Be Governed By Divine Law.

Mr. Editor: Until the laws of any nation are founded in accordance with divine law there can be no peace, harmony or safety for the inhabitants thereof. This good old U. S. A. that we love is called a Christian nation. The truth is there are few Christians walking the earth today. There are millions who profess and call themselves Christians it is true, In order for a nation or a people to be Christian they must obey divine law and not deviate from it. Attending church on Sunday repeating the creed, the Lord's prayer and the ten commandments does not make a Christian. It is when he or she applies divine law in the every day life that makes one a Christian. Now, capital punishment is in direct disobedience to divine law. "Thou shalt not kill" is the law given to all mortals by the Lord God, Creator of the Universe.

Jesus of Nazareth, the great teacher in whom was incarnated the Christ, the Son of the Infinite Father upheld and taught the divine law of the Father as incorporated in the ten commandments. "Vengeance is Mine," said the Lord God; which is a command for mortals not to take the law into their own hands, thereby putting iniquity upon their souls; but leave the evil doer to Me for no man can escape Me.

A governor who signs the death warrant or the hangman that springs the trap or turns on the electric current, to put to death another man is as guilty of murder in the sight of God as the man they are executing; because they are recognizing and obeying man made law and placing it abve divine law, "Thou shalt not kill" applies to state officials as well as to other individuals. Nor does capital punishment stop crime; but on the other hand increases it. Every convicted criminal should be punished and this can be done in other ways that work with divine law and not against it. I believe the United States would find it more economical to purchase a lonely, isolated island where those found guilty of first degree murder in any state could be banished for life where they must work for the government. From this penal colony there should be no return except the innocence of the accused be established. This penal colony would relieve our over-crowded penitentiaries.

Safe it is to say that when a man is alone with his iniquity, cut off from his home and his loved ones he would live in hell the remainder of his life.

He has a right to live because divine law gives him that right by forbidding others to take his life; but the community in which he committed his crime has the right to banish him forever from their midst till he proves his innocence. He has made himself an abomination to his fellows. France has such a penal colony at which no ship is allowed to land except those of France.

If Sacco and Vanzetti are guilty they should have been punished in this life before being punished in the next. As it is, they have escaped punishment on earth and have been dispatched across the border where they will influence others of like mind, causing them to commit the same crime. The sad thing about a liar is that he is never believed when he does tell the truth. The probation law is wrong. A man sentenced to ten years in prison should serve the full term. Probation makes punishment a farce. Moving pictures and other entertainments for criminals incarcerated in our prisons is an effront to the law.

Men are sent to prison to be punished not to be entertained. Neither should silly women be allowed to carry flowers to evil doers behind the bars. I am inclined to believe that if our prison fare consisted each day of bread and water men would try to keep out.

We now come to another much talked of law—the prohibition law. What a farce that is! I am in favor of prohibition because I believe it is a good thing; but we don't have prohibition. We have become a nation of law breakers and the law breaker is the one who prospers. There is nothing in divine law that forbids a man drinking a glass of wine or beer. There is no sin in doing that; but it is a sin to put himself in a drunken condition. Intoxication robs a man of his senses and he commits evil. A man has the right to drink what he wants, so long as he is master of himself; but he has no right to appear among his fellow citizens in an intoxicated condition, for then he or she becomes a nuisance and nuisances are quickly done away with. It seems to me if we had a national law against drunkenness we would have better results and less expense in enforcing the law.

And I believe also if the penalty for drunkenness was that a man guilty of breaking this law must work on the streets for the benefit of his community for 30 to 60 days, where his friends and neighbors could see him working out his sentence, that man would never be seen drunk again.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Rex Beach, known to every lover of stories of adventure and to all patrons of the "movies," is in line for congratulations today on the occasion of his 50th birthday anniversary. The popular author is a Michigan man who chose law as his profession and then, when established as a lawyer, found that he had facility as a writer of fiction, and in the course of time of time settled down to the writing of settled down to the writing of novels. His stories are of the melodramatic sort, not unlike some of Jack London's. They sell well, and lend themselves to adaptation for motion-picture scenarios. Mr. Beach makes his home in the vicinity of New York, when not wandering in out-of-the-way places in search of material for his thrilling tales. Stories That Recall Others

The Caddie Steps In

A "mixed" twosome, completing a round of golf, were on their way to the club house, which took them past a particularly difficult hole. At least it was proving such for one who had cleared the green with a pitch shot and landed in the sand trap. He was more than disgusted; he was furious and had not noticed the approaching girl. Determined to put the despicable little pellet up where it belonged he took his stance with care and precision, and trying to ignore the jibes of his friends, attacked it with a mashie. Up into the air went the ball and then right back into the trap! The player ground his teeth.

The caddie who had been standing by quietly, sensed the situation and its possibilities. At the same time he saw the girl and awake to the ethics of society, which prevails even on a golf course, called out to the amusement of the feminine golfer: "Jiggers! Don't cuss!"

Just Wished Five Cents Worth

"Oh," she replied, "Then just give me a puppy."

YOUR HEALTH

THE HOUSE FLY

By Franklin H. Martin, M. D., Chicago President Gorgas Memorial

Insects are more deadly than wild beasts, C. Wesley Edwards, of Evanston, Ill., points out in an interesting article concerning the common house fly. Mr. Edwards is an engineer and was in the field of service in the U. S. Army Signal Corps from 1912 to 1918 under the late Major-General William Crawford Gorgas, during which time he had extensive experience in the methods of eradicating mosquitoes and flies. He is enthusiastic about Doctor Gorgas and the continuation of his noble work by the Gorgas Memorial, and his writings concerning insects are authoritative. His article follows:

"Civilization has eliminated from modern communities the scourge of wild beasts, which in past centuries wore a deadly menace to humanity. But civilization is just beginning to realize that its own development has given added impetus to the much deadlier menace of insect life. And that if present tendencies continue unchecked, within a very few centuries insect life will dominate the globe, and the human race will be exterminated.

"Of all the insects that afflict us there are none more common, or more deadly, than the ordinary house flies. They are found all over the world. The meanest hovels are always swarming with them, and no mansion or castle can screen tightly enough to keep them out. They are found everywhere, although science has proved that they transmit many of our deadliest diseases. It would be far safer to keep a tiger cub or a pet rattlesnake in the nursery with the baby than to have the house flies now swarming there. The tiger might stay good natured all its life and a rattlesnake never bites except when provoked. But a fly distributes filth every time it alights, and disease germs thrive in filth.

"Ninety per cent. of the diseases of childhood are disorders of the digestive tract. The house fly is most efficiently equipped to carry the germs causing such diseases, and its life history shows that it spends much of its time in places where disease germs are likely to be found.

"The strangest part of the whole thing is that the house fly is just as unnecessary as any other household vermin and even more easily eradicated. The only difference is that the house fly is usually bred outside the house. But the housewives of the nation should awaken to the fact that their home standards of cleanliness, if applied to community housekeeping, would absolutely wipe out the house fly scourge.

"Flies live upon filth and can breed only in filth. They are enormously prolific, as are most insects, and under favorable conditions will increase with appalling rapidity. Fortunately they are short-lived and if prevented from breeding will very quickly disappear. But screening and swatting the adult flies are only makeshifts. Prevention of breeding is the only effective method of control."

Japan is rapidly developing its long-distance telephone service. A toll cable now building will extend the length of the country and will be comparable with the cable between New York and Chicago. The automatic exchange system is being installed in all of the larger cities.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Woebegone Little Bear

This mischievous will always find,
Regrets will follow behind.
—Old Mother Nature.

If ever there was a woebegone little Bear, it was Cubby, the little Bear near the top of a tree in Farmer Brown's dooryard. He didn't know what had happened to himself. He really didn't. He was no longer a little black imp of mischief he was a white one. You know he had upset a pan of milk over himself in Mother Brown's pantry and then fallen into a barrel of flour.

Now, you know flour and milk make paste. Already in the outdoor air this paste began to dry all over him. Clinging there in the top of the tree there was nothing he could do about it. He did lap his paws off somewhat, but this was about all he could do.

Farmer Brown's Boy came to the foot of the tree and called him. Cubby looked down. He wanted to go down. You see, he wanted somebody to comfort him. He was thoroughly miserable. Never in his whole life had he been more miserable. But he had a feeling that he had been in mischief. You know, we sometimes know without being told when we have been in mischief. He had climbed that tree because he had been taught by Mother Bear that in time of trouble the safest place for a little Bear is high up in a tree. So Cubby wouldn't come down. He was up there where nothing could happen to him and he just couldn't come down. He had a feeling that more unpleasant things might happen if he did go down. So he whimpered and whined and clung to the tree and nothing that Farmer Brown's Boy could say would bring him down.

Finally, Farmer Brown's Boy gave up and Cubby was left to himself away up there in the tree. It seemed to him that every minute he felt more uncomfortable. You see, that paste was drying all over him. It was even in his eyelashes. It was in his ears. It made him so uncomfortable that he couldn't keep still. He started to go down. Bowser the Hound came out of his little house and yawned. Bowser didn't know anything about what had happened. Suddenly Cubby longed for the companionship of Bowser. You know they had become very good friends. Bowser heard the sound of Cubby's claws and looked up in the tree. He didn't recognize Cubby. How could he? All he saw was a strange creature up there in that tree—a creature which had no business to be up there. The hair on Bowser's neck and shoulders began to rise. He bounded over to the foot of the tree and began to bark. Cubby stopped climbing down. There was an ugly sound in that voice of Bowser's. There was nothing friendly about it. Cubby whimpered and whined. Bowser got more and more excited. He was doing his best to tell his master that there was something wrong out there.

He whimpered and whined and clung to the tree

By and by the back door slammed and Farmer Brown's Boy came around the corner of the house. Cubby promptly scrambled back up where he had been before. How Farmer Brown's Boy did laugh when he discovered what all the fuss was about: "It's all right, Bowser," said he. "It's all right, old fellow! That's your new friend up there. Come away now and leave him alone. Come on!"

Bowser didn't want to come on. There was a low rumbly grumbly growl down in his throat. But he went because his master ordered him to. So once again that woebegone little Bear was left to himself up in the tree. And he was woebegone. What is more, he was getting more woebegone every minute.

POETRY

A Noble Band

"The Indian Ocean sets an' smiles";
The English Channel does the same.
For rather over twenty miles
Lie between here and deathless fame
Many aspirants, tired and numb,
Give up the task—but still they came.

Fair damsels from the U. S. A.
And others born on Britain's shore
Toward the water wend their way,
And hefty fellows by the score
Wade bravely in and splash about
For hours are they are taken out.

For though the tide be fair, maybe,
And swimmers make a decent pace,
How oft does a choppy sea
Slap the aspirants in the face
Till those of quite the sternest stuff
Admit that they have had enough.

Yet I admire the noble band
Who in the Silly Season still
Are game to lend a helping hand
With columns that are hard to fill.
'Tis well such dauntless hearts are bred
Since the sea-serpent stunt is dead.

"Touchstone" in the London Morning Post.

In Time of Peace

Ah, pity those by troubles torn,
Who look on years with dread!
But I, God knows, am soldier born,
And I was soldier bred.

And he who lives beneath Command
Must serve, as soldier do,
Not only with the foot and hand,
But with the spirit, too.

To press through Trial's fiery arch
With an unswerving pace,
To sing upon the weary march,
And laugh in Danger's face.

O Lord, our Captain! I give thanks
For life and love, and then
That I was bred within Thy ranks,
And born of fighting men!

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Friend—Are you affiliated with a reform organization?

She — Indeed, I am. I'm married! —Detroit News.

Have I the pleasant expression you require?

Photographer—Perfectly, sir.

Then shoot quick; it hurts my face. —Boston Transcript.

Stranger—Ah, Mrs. Mudge, one half the world is ignorant how the other half lives.

Not in this village, miss.—Answers.

A judge threatened to fine a lawyer for contempt of court.

"I have expressed no contempt for court," said the lawyer; "on the contrary, I have carefully concealed my feelings."—Boston Post.

Jumbleberry went into a department store, and said to the floorwalker; "Do you keep stationery?"

"No," replied the floorwalker. "If I did, I should lose my job."—Exchange.

Car Salesman—This car has all the latest attachments. This, for instance, is the trouble light.

Binks—Humph! That doesn't interest me.

Car Salesman—Oh, you'll use it often.—Pathfinder.

The grocer's daughter went to a masquerade ball and met her father there.

"Hullo dad!" she said. "How do you like my costume? I'm a salad."

"It's nice, my dear," replied her father. "But haven't you forgotten the dressing?"—Progressive Grocer.

"If you collect this money," said the hardware merchant, "I will give you a regular job."

To the merchant's astonishment, the young man returned in half an hour with the money.

"How did you do it?" he gasped.

"I told him," said the young man, "that if he didn't pay me I would tell all his other creditors that he had paid."—Good Hardware.

Ernest Hicks, 13-year-old schoolboy, of Raleigh, N. C., is out for a roller skating championship. He skated from Raleigh to Greensboro, 34 miles, in six and one-half hours. His destination was Stuart, Va., 102 miles farther on, but his skates wore out and he had no spares.

Mayor Nishikubo, Tokio's wrestling executive, believes in the voice of the people. The mayor has announced the opening of a municipal letter box in which he invites the 2,000,000 citizens of Japan's capital to deposit their complaints, advice and suggestions regarding the government of the city. This is a distinct departure from the customary autocracy of officialdom in Japan.

Coffee tasting is the profession of Miss Emma Mast, of San Francisco, who has been blind for years. She is employed by large manufacturers of coffee and tea because they believe in the theory that the deprivation of one sense enhances the value of the others. Through her keenness of taste of the coffee roasted in its "green state," Miss Mast is relied upon to keep the blend up to its standard. Miss Mast is credited with being the only blind person employed as a coffee taster.

The most renowned eye clinic in Munich is conducted by the Duchess Karl Theodor, of Bavaria, who recently celebrated her 70th birthday. Despite her age, the duchess is active at the clinic which she conducts according to the plans of her late husband, famous ophthalmologist. Besides this medical aid, the duchess is patroness to numerous artists and is a supporter of the students' aid movement. She organized the relief kitchens for middle-class families made destitute after the war, during which she served as a Red Cross nurse in the German army.

From the diary of
Enna Jettick

"Went for lunch to alumnae club meeting to decide whom to bring for our next concert. Marge Belton said if we got McCormac again she would ask him to sing a song that I wrote, as an extra drawing card! Nobody volunteered to tell her that that would drive everybody away. So I said we'd better get a good orchestra instead, for variety. They elected me chairman to do it. I've called on eight leading citizens for advice, and written three orchestras already. Running a concert means a lot of work, but with these Enna Jettick shoes I never get tired any more."

Sargent	93	93	95	93	94	—468

The above scores were made in a special match between Frank Marcheault, Howard Rivers and Sargent, at 50 yards. On the 50 foot range Maynard made the following scores: 85, 85, 83, 67, 78—338.

COLCHESTER TOWN MEETING ON SCHOOL PROJECTS

At 2 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon a special town meeting will be held at Colchester to take action on two school projects. One is for the removal of the Scott Hill school building from its present location to a site on the Norwich road and the other is to build an addition to the Westchester school building. The reason given for the removing of the Scott Hill building is that it is not needed as school population there has been depleted. The addition to the Westchester school building is necessary because of the crowded conditions at that building.

Farewell Party for Playmates

In celebration of their birthdays and as a farewell to their playmates at Neptune park, Ocean Beach, Mary Patricia Judd, 5, Grace Landers Judd, 3, of New Britain and Joseph Worth, Jr., 4 of Norwich, were given a very enjoyable party Monday afternoon at the cottage in Mott avenue of Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Judd of New Britain. The dining room was prettily decorated with balloons and streamers and there a fine collation made one of the features of the occasion. Games were played and the children given happy memories to take home with them a few days hence.

Other guests present included Leslie B. Harper, Marjorie Lee Ludd, Joseph L. Storye, Sam Hyde, the park's genial guardian of the law; Edwina Cotter, Albert Cotter, Mortimer N. Judd, Jr., Huntington Worth, Allen Elsner, Barbara Thomson, Peggy Fox, Mary Agnes Ahearn, Geraldine Bailey, Herbert Bailey, Bobby Dahill, Edwin Dahill, Bill Brandon, Peggy Brandon and Gertrude D. Tyler. Mrs. Roosevelt is soon to go to Maine, and on coming down will stop among other places in Norwich, where her grandfather, Gen. Dan Tyler, resided on Washington street.

LOCAL POLICE MADE TOTAL OF 92 ARRESTS DURING AUGUST

During the month of August 92 prisoners were booked at local police headquarters. The majority of the arrests were made on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace. On the former charge 39 were booked and on the latter 11 were booked. Arrests made on other charges were as follows:

Theft 2; violation of the liquor law 5; embezzlement 1; being incorrigible 2; violation of city ordinances 6; statutory rape 1; operating under the influence of liquor 5; reckless driving 2; evading responsibility 1; non-support of family 1; interference with witness 4; injuring private property 1; fortune telling 1; trespass of fowl 1; violating motor vehicle law 3; operating without registration 2; loaning number plates 1; operating without license 3; failure to grant right of way 1; operating to left of traffic beacon 1.

Fines and costs were imposed in 58 of the cases and the remainder were either nolled, continued or discharged.

FOUR PLAYGROUNDS HAVE CLOSED SEASON

The four larger playgrounds of the city, Greeneville, Jail Hill, Lake street and Elizabeth street formally closed their respective seasons Wednesday evening at their centers with a final demonstration of the work carried on during the past ten weeks. Hundreds witnessed the events and a general note of approval of the efforts of the instructors and children was sounded by all present.

At Greeneville the number ran close to 1,000 where Ed Sullivan and Miss Anne Carroll had arranged a most attractive programme. The grounds were well filled while many lined the fence for the programme which lasted over an hour. The boys were loud in proclaiming their volley ball championship, taken this year for the third consecutive season and they gave a short exhibition of this lively sport. Greeneville has also won the swimming title for the same number of years, but it would have been hard for them to demonstrate their work along this line. The girls entertained with several playlets, etc.

At Jail Hill, the baseball team came in for much notice, inasmuch as Les Carroll's nine has already clinched the national league title and on Wednesday took the first game of the world series from Thamesville. The girls' hockey, stride and dodge ball teams, under Miss Cecelia Brock, here also did well during the season while dramatics already had a goodly share in the life of the center. The attendance here Wednesday night was over 500.

Lake street had another large number present. Ted Finnegan and Miss Constance Raymond had a well-balanced programme outlined and it was carried out to perfection. Lake street won the field hockey title again this year while their midget baseball team was regarded as just about the best in the city.

Elizabeth street's track team, champions of the playgrounds, came in for much praise at this center. Ed Brewer had a well balanced outfit at this center that well deserved the title. The Misses Miriam Shershevsky and Lois Latimer put in a great deal of time with dramatics at their center during the season and their efforts were greeted with much success. Another large crowd was present at this center for the closing exercises.

Another feature of the playgrounds that has formally closed was the industrial work under the supervision of Miss Bessie Bruckner. Hundreds witnessed the final display at the Boston store and remarked favorably upon the work done by the children during the season.

CROPS ARE DAMAGED BY HEAVY RAINFALL

The potato crop in this section of the state is suffering heavily from the recent heavy rainfall. The tubers are rotting in the ground.

The great loss in the potato crop is greater felt by the failure of many other drops during the current season. Tomatoes have been far below their average quality and they have been picked in but small quantities. This, farmers agree, is caused by the weather, the absence of sufficient sunlight, having retared the ripening of the fruit on the vines.

The vines of many of the earliest varieties of tomatoes have blasted and the smaller fruit on these will probably never ripen, or if they do, they will be of inferior quality.

It has been noted that there were few tomatoes on the majority of the vines in this vicinity. After thr first fruit had set on the vines there was a lapse of flowering. Tomatoes have not set in some cases where blossoms did appear.

The wet weather is blamed for the blasting of the tomatoes. It is blammed for many other things. Beans have also blasted. Both the bush and pole varieties have been affected.

The corn crop this year in some sections, has been good,, while in others it has not been up to standard. Some have complained that the skin of the corn kernels has been thicker than usual. The sages might predict cold weather. But, on the average, the corn received in the local market has been of good quality.

The wet weather has not hampered the growth of the corn to any great extent, for with the start of the filling of the ears, it has come along swiftly.

Squashes have been plentiful this year. The market price, however, has been high.

One of the reasons for great loss suffered by some farmers, has been that low land was selected for planting. The land, excellent in time of average rainfall, has under the downpour of the present summer, been transformed in some cases into quagmires, and the vegetables planted have been subsequently killed, or badly damaged.

MAIN STREET PAVEMENT IS NEARING COMPLETION

The laying of the asphalt pavement on Main street, from the north side through and including the double trolley tracks was completed Tuesday and it is expected that the entire street will be completed by the middle of next week. Parking is now being allowed on the north side of the street.

Work on Boswell avenue has now been practically completed and on Wednesday the road roller was taken to Perkins avenue where the work of laying a tar bou[illegible]cadam road is to be completed by [illegible]day night.

SALEM JUSTICE FINES FOUR AUTO DRIVERS

Fines were meted out to four auto drivers Tuesday night by Charles Beebe, J. P., at Salem. All four drivers were charged with speeding. James J. Coughlin of Manchester was fined $10 and costs, Allie G. Wright of Newington was fined $10 and costs, Louis Waxman of Hartford was fined $5 and costs and Philip C. Magnuson of Hartford was fined $10 and costs.

The accused were all arrested at Salem Four Corners on the Hartford turnpike in connection with a series of arrests made there over the week end in an effort by state police to stop reckless driving by that intersection. Waxman was fined for failing to grant the right of way and the others for speeding.

PRESTON, YANTIC, VERSAILLES DRIVERS LOSE LICENSES

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are seventy-two names on the list. Three cases were appealed. One was a Connecticut operator convicted in another state. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

HEALTH EQUIPMENT FOR SCHOOL DAYS

During September about 20,000 children will enter Connecticut schools for the first time. If these children are healthy their school tasks will be easier. Wise mothers know this and start in infancy to guard against any defects becoming established. Many mothers, through the well child conferences and the summer round-up, have learned the importance of sending their children to school glowing with health. There are other mothers who have not found it convenient to take advantage of these opportunities. The regular monthly well child conferences still offer a chance to begin. The next monthly conference in Wauregan will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 6th, at Company hall, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

CITY'S RESERVOIRS ARE NEARING HIGH WATER MARK

The city's reservoirs are in much better condition this summer than they were a year ago, due to the unusually heavy rainfall the past few weeks. Stonybrook is within 1 foot 10 inches of the old high water mark and Fairview is 55 inches down from high water mark.

Work on the new Deep River reservoir is progressing as rapidly as possible and it is expected that it will be completed by December. The contractors are now working on the spillway.

SUES TO COLLECT BILL FOR HEATING SYSTEM

Elizabeth Warner of New London, representing the F. L. Warner Mfg. Co., also of New London, has brought suit in the common pleas court against Louis Cohen and Bessie Cohen of New London claiming damages of $700. The action is brought for payment for the installing of an oil heating system in their house. The contract for the oil heating system, as alleged in the complaint, called for several payments in meeting the total cost of $600 but the complaint alleges that only $200 has been paid.

CHARGES MAN MADE ATTEMPT AT ASSAULT

Charging that Peter Albano of New London, made an attempt at indecent assault upon her, Mae Edmunds of New London has brought suit against him in the superior court asking damages of $1,000. The alleged attempted assault took place August 5th. Albano is awaiting trial in the criminal court on the same charge.

TELLS ROTARY CLUB OF RED CROSS WORK

The work of the Red Cross during wartime, national disasters and the routine of peacetime was very graphically told by William G. Kieb of Washington, field representative of the Red Cross, at the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon. Mr. Kieb was introduced by President Clarence A. Spear, who presided at the meeting.

In his talk Mr. Kieb briefly outlined the work of the Red Cross during the war and then told at length of the rescue work carried on during the flood in the Mississippi valley early this spring. He said that it was remarkable that there was such a low loss of life when so many hundreds of square miles were inundated. He told of how the Red Cross pressed into service every conceivable craft to perform rescue work; how many thousands were fed by the Red Cross workers in refugee camps and how even that now that the crisis is over the Red Cross is still assisting in the restoration work.

Mr. Kieb gave facts and figures relative to deaths in the United States from accidents and told how many of these deaths could be eliminated through prompt and competent administration of first aid by one having a knowledge of what to do in emergencies. He told how arterial bleeding could be stopped by prompt action; how to revive a person from fainting; care of burns; and resuscitation either from electric shock or drowning. All his facts were very instuctive as well as interesting.

Another speaker at the meeting was L. M. Crandall who spoke on the Historical pageant which is to be given at the New London County fairgrounds on Labor Day. He strongly urged the support of the Rotarians in making the pageant a success.

At the business session President Spear presided and M. E. Standish was the song leader. One of the pleasing musical featured of the meeting was the two solos by Maurice E. (Shorty) Wallen of Hartford who sang Rose of Picardy and as an encore The Kingdom of Your Eyes.

Dr. Fred Richards, in charge of the program for September announced his program as follows:

Sept. 7—A. J. Fitzgerald, speaker; song leader, Lincoln Crawford.

Sept. 14—Constitution week. Speaker to be announced later; song leader, Frank Aubrey.

Sept. 21—Speaker, E. O. Rodier; song leader, Herbert Adams.

Sept. 28—Speaker, Charles L. Stewart; song leader, Alex McNicol.

President Spear made a report on the executives meeting in Hartford earlier in the week. He also announced the appointment of C. A. Gager, Walter Turner and Charles A. Saxton as the committee in charge of the local arrangements for the fall conclave at Lenox on Oct. 6, 7, and 8th.

OVER 100 ENLISTED IN NAVY FROM THIS STATE

Of the 2831 navy recruits received at training stations throughout the country during the months of May and June, 1927, 72.4 per cent made scores of 50 or more in the general classification test. This percentage is well above the average of all navy recruits received during the past two years of navy recruiting and has not been exceeded since January 1926, a month in which only 577 recruits were received at training stations.

The New Haven recruiting district, comprising the state of Connecticut, supplied the Newport naval training station with 102 of these high quality recruits, enlistments having been recruited from every section of the state. Many of the recruits enlisted from Connecticut had completed at least one or more years of high school education and the majority had completed a grammar school education.

The main navy recruiting station for the state is located at 938 Chapel street, New Haven, and there are seven subrecruiting stations at which men may apply for enlistment, located in every large city of the state.

FUNERALS

John F. Burns

Funeral services for John F. Burns were held Wednesday morning at 8.20 o'clock from his late home at Peck's Corner, a solemn requiem mass being celebrated at the Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Edward Quinn was celebrant of the mass and was assisted by Rev. Myles P. Galvin as deacon and Rev. John J. Reilly as sub-deacon.

The musical program was in charge of Mrs. William A. Murphy, who was at the organ. Miss Mary Buckley sang De Profundis at the offertory and Walter LaFontaine sang When Evening Comes as the waiting hymn. At the recessional Miss Buckley and Mr. LaFontaine sang Lead Kindley Light.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service, from Newport and Providence, R. I., Fitchville, Norwich and other places. The floral tributes were most numerous and beautiful.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. Quinn. The bearers were John A. Dunn, John Sweeney, John McKenna, Richard Marks, Sr., Michael J. Curran and Theodore Marchand, members of the Knights of Columbus. Arrangements were in charge of Cummings & Ring.

Mrs. Franklin H. Brown

With relatives and friend spresent the funeral of Mrs. Franklin H. Brown was held Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from her late home on Laurel Hill avenue, the service being conducted by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D.

Burial was in Yantic cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Pitt. The bearers were C. Edward Smith, John Barnes, Gilbert S. Raymond and Harold S. Burt. Arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Church & Allen.

Miss Elizabeth P. Gallagher

Funeral services for Miss Elizabeth P. Gallagher, whose death occurred in New York on Monday, were held Wednesday morning at 8.15 o'clock from the undertaking parlors on Main street. Requiem mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock by Rev. William A. Keefe. Included in the large attendance were relatives and friends from New York, New Jersey, New London and other places and the flowers were numerous.

The musical part of the service was in charge of Henry J. LaFontaine, who was at the organ. At the offertory Horace P. Corning rendered Pie Jesu and as the waiting hymn, Beautiful Land on High. At the recessional Messrs. LaFontaine and Corning rendered Nearer My God to Thee.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. Keefe. The bearers were Edward Kilby, William Weldon, Timothy Driscoll, Harry Millea, George Nolan and John J. Gallagher.

Zadoc Long White

The funeral of Zadoc Long White, wealthy banker and cotton manufacturer and president of the Falls Cotton Co., this city, took place Tuesday afternoon at his home, "Ingleside", Winchendon, Mass., and was largely attended. Services were conducted by Rev. Alfred Free, pastor of the Church of the Unity, Winchendon.

The honorary pallbearers were Charles D. White of Norwich; Homer S. White of East Jaffrey, N. H.; John A. White of North Brookfield; Allan T. White; Nelson D., Joseph, Jr., Windsor W. and Joseph E. White, James Gainey and Patrick J. McCabe of Winchendon. The active pallbearers were foremen from the several White mills, and hundreds of operators attended the services at the grave.

SEVEN CALLS FOR LOCAL FIRE DEPT.

During the month of August the fire department responded to seven calls, the majority being during the last half of the month. The most serious fire was that of the estate of Elmer R. Pierson at East Great Plain when damage of about $5,400 was done. All calls were by telephone.

The summer months this year have been banner months for the Norwich fire department, calls being fewer than in past years and losses held to a minimum.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO OPEN NEXT TUESDAY

All public schools of the town will be opened for the fall session on Tuesday, Sept. 6th, was the announcement made Wednesday night by Superintendent Edward J. Graham. Superintendent Graham also stated that he would be at his office in the town building on Saturday of this week from 9 until 12 and on Monday from 9 until 12 for the purpose of conferring with Norwich people relative to school matters.

MACHINES COLLIDED AT NO. MAIN AND 4TH STREETS

Early Wednesday morning an Overland touring car, driven by Sam J. Chabot of Taftville and a Chevrolet coupe driven by Albertus H. Dawley of No. 44 Franklin street, collided at the corner of North Main and Fourth streets. Both cars were damaged to the extent of about $20 each.

The Danger . . . that lurks in an Infant's Cry!

BABY must cry a certain amount. It's his only form of exercise. Yet, more than half the time, his little wail may be traced to some real irritation that he is pleading with you to remove.

Medical authorities now tell us that at least 66% of all babies are allowed to suffer needlessly the torture of Urea Irritation. The stinging acids in the urine form tiny, gritty crystals—invisible to the eye, yet harsh and cruel to tender skin.

Frequent diaper changing is not enough. The one remedy is to keep these crystals from contact with the body.

Z. B. T. Baby Talcum is made exactly for this type of irritation. It contains a special ingredient which clings to the skin and forms a delicate protective coating against acids, irritation and chafing.

Use Z. B. T. to keep Baby's skin sweet and healthy. At all druggists; in three sizes—10c, 25c, $1.00. Crystal Chemical Co., New York, N. Y.

EXTENSIVE ATHLETIC PROGRAM AT FAIRGROUNDS ON LABOR DAY

Open and closed track and field events, 5 bouts of amateur boxing and a three-mile road race around the track will feature the athletic program to be presented at the fairgrounds on Labor day from 10 to 2 o'clock previous to the pageant.

The field events closed to the military organizations will be contested by teams representing the Submarine Base, Coast Guard, Fort Wright and Conn. National Guard. The lineup is as follows:

100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 1-2 and 1 mile runs, and the relay. Individual prizes will be presented to the first three to place in each contest and a point trophy to the team with the best score.

The playground events consisting of 5 contests, will practically decide the championships of the local centers, as each ground has been anxiously waiting for the meet with a team of boys trained to the minute. The other closed divisions is that of the Industrial organization, with practically the same lineup of prizes and contests as those for the military units.

The open A. A. U. events, open to any and all athletes, will consist of the 100 yard dash, the 220, half mile, and 3 mile run. These contests will be staged last, so as to give the men participating in the close events a chance to enter in these also. Joe Jackson of this city and Gordon Winslow, Connecticut's speediest speed merchants, together with many other fast boys, are entered for the dashes, while at least a dozen men will run the 3 mile grind.

The distance run which will cover 3 laps around the track will have at least 12 entries, the most prominent of which are Johnny Keeley, Irving Keeley, Eddie Kowelenko, Bill Mags, Irving Merrill, Irving Dobson and several others of the long distance men of eastern Conn., and western R. I.

The boxing, probably the most attractive part of the program, will consist of 5 three round bouts of action such as has been witnessed over at the Duwell field during the past few weeks. This feature alone is bound to attract thousands of fans at this time while amateur boxing has such a strong grip on the fans of the city. All athletes, either runners or boxers, seeking information relative to the met may do so by addressing "Sports" Dilwell A. A.

BOTTLERS TAKE EASY GAME FROM VELVETMEN

The Thermos practically clinched the second division leadership and also showed 700 fans that they will have to be seriously recokned with as a first division contender by defeating J. B. Martin Wednesday night in the Industrial league at the Academy campus, 8 to 4. The Bottlers now have a two and a half game lead over the Martins, their nearest rival for the second flight leadership, and are but a half game out of the first division.

Piling up their eight runs in the first two innings, the Thermos coasted on to victory while the Martins made up half of this advantage during the remainder of the tilt.

Keller started for the Martins but was wild and generally ineffective runs grickled over in the first stanza. Lefty Lucier replaced him in the second and got off to a bad start which, together with a bit of the poor support that had hounded Keller, allowed five of the enemy to dent the final scoring station.

Starting in the third, the Martins scored in their last three times at bat but never seriously threatened the Thermos lead. Mullins replaced Dudek in the last inning and yielded one run. Dudek allowed but one safety, Fontaine's line single to center in the fourth. Score:

CADDIE TOURNEY REACHES THE SEMI-FINAL ROUND

Cy Jankowski, Rufe Goodman, Myer Brauman and Frank McCarthy went to the semi-finals in the caddy tournament at the Norwich Golf club on Wednesday as the result of their play in the second round matches. H. Valiquette, medalist, fell before the powerful driving and accurate iron shots of Jankowski who won on the sixteenth 3 and 2. Goodman enters the semi-finals at the expense of Fred Murphy whom he beat 6 and 5. In the upper half of the semi-finals Jankowski and Goodman will battle it out this morning.

Brauman had a tough battle with Johnny Skelly, last year's winner of the class B tournament, winning one up. Brauman will meet Francis McCarthy who beat Tom O'Neil 6 and 5.

In the second sixteen W. Valiquette and Joe Finnegan will meet in the semi-finals, Valiquette having won from Lloyd Cook one up and Finnegan having beaten Dave O'Neil 7 and 6. Stanley Golumb eliminated Shorty Gilman 4 and 3 and will meet Benski who beat F. Finnegan 2 and 1. The semi-final matches will be hotly contested with Jankowski and Goodman furnishing the feature match today.

NATIONAL DOUBLES PLAY REACHES QUARTER FINALS

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 31—(AP)—The way was cleared today with but one upset, for a program of fast quarter final matches in the 46th Annual National Doubles championship at the Longwood Cricket club here tomorrow.

Today's second round matches saw America's 1927 "Big Four" come through unscathed in fighting trim for tomorow. The Davis cup team from France found things a bit rough for two of its players, Jean Borotra and Rene LaCoste, who had a hard tussle with the Providence pair, Arnold W. Jones, former Yale tennis captain, and William W. Ingraham, former leader of Yale's tennis men, before they won at 6-0, 1-6, 6-1, 3-6.

The upset of the day and the first in the tournament came late in the day when, after playing 57 games, Watson M. Washburn and Nathaniel W. Niles, Yankee veterans of Boston, eliminated the Belgian singles champion, Jean Washer, who teamed with Frank W. Shields, of New York, 1927 National Junior Singles title holder.

The veteran Boston pair won 7-5, 9-7, 1-6, 5-7, 6-4. In the fourth set Washer and Shields, who were seeded third in the foreign listings, broke through Niles to even the set score. But in the final contest Washburn and Niles came through with a rush, allowing Washer and Shields but 10 points in the last two games.

LUQUE SHUTS OUT BRAVES WITH 6 HITS

BOSTON, Aug. 31—(AP)—Adolph Luque held the Braves to six scattered hits and the Cincinnati Reds took the last game they will play here this season by a score of 1 to 0. A single by Hargrave, Luque's sacrifice, Dressen's single and Walker's sharp bounder that pulled Fournier off first base accounted for the lone tied tally in the eighth. The score:

CARDS CONCLUDE EASTERN TRIP WITH VICTORY

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 31—(AP)—The Cardinals concluded their last eastern trip with a 3 to 1 victory over the Robins today earning an even break in the four-game series as well as drawing up half a contest on the Cubs. Flint Rhem pitched the distance for the world champions, holding Brooklyn to four hits. It was his first victory after seven successive setbacks. The score:

PIRATES CUT DOWN LEAD BY WINNING TWO

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates cut the idle Chicago Cubs lead to one full game today by finishing their eastern invasion with a double header triumph over the tail end Phillies. The Pirates won the first game 3 to 2, by breaking up an overtime battle in the 13th inning and took the second by a score of 7 to 2.

Vic Aldridge and Frank Ulrich hooked up in a hurling duel in the first game the Phils not scoring until the ninth inning when Fresco Thompson hit a two bagger that drove Wrightstone and Leach over the plate with the tieing runs.

The Pirates slammed Jack Scott for fifteen hits in the second game but did not assume a commanding lead until they scored four runs in the ninth inning. The score:

RECRUIT PITCHES SENATORS TO WIN OVER ATHLETICS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—(AP)—Irving Hadley, a recruit, pitched Washington to a 5 to 3 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics today, smashing a jinx that has hovered over the Senators.

Goslin took the lead in returning the Senators to the winning column by pounding out his eleventh homer of the year and also a triple.

The game also celebrated Ty Cobb's start on his twenty-third year in the American league. He pummeled out one hit in as many times at bat. The score:

ELM CITY GIANTS CLASH WITH TAFTVILLE SUNDAY

At the J. B. Martin diamond in Taftville the Martinis will clash once more with the Elm City Giants of New Haven, one of the leading colored ball clubs of New England. The Giants won the first game of the series 7 to 3 and a victory on Sunday is needed for Taftville to even up the count. Russ Fisher will be Manager Troland's choice for mound duty and it is a good one for Fisher has been pitching the best ball of his career for the Taftville team this season.

BROWNS TAKE TWO GAMES FROM TIGERS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 31—(AP)—Effective pitching and timely hitting enabled the St. Louis Browns to end their losing streak and win both games of a doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers today 3 to 1 and 4 to 3. Both teams had lost 6 in a row prior to today.

Ken Williams home run with two men on base in the first inning accounted for the Browns scoring in the first game. Rice's homer with one on helped in the second game in which Vangilder allowed the visitors only three hits. The score:

HOME RUNS FEATURE YANKS' VICTORY OVER SOX

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—(AP)—The Yanks nursed their latest winning streak to seven straight by drubbing the Red Sox by 10 to 2 on the resumption of hostilities here today after a western invasion. Tony Lazzeri walloped two homers, one in the third and the other in the fourth, for a total of 13 while Babe Ruth hammered out homer No. 43 to top Gehrig by two runs. The score:

JAIL HILL WINS FIRST GAME IN PLAYGROUND SERIES

Jail Hill got off with the first game of the playground "world series" Wednesday morning at the Academy campus when Thamesville fell 7 to 2 in a fast game. Action was nip and tuck all the way and until the final out the fans were off their seats.

Gillis pitched well for the winners while Matthews brothers also did well. In fact, the whole Jail Hill bunch supported their flinger in grand style.

The Jail Hill lineup: O'Neil 3b; H. Matthews ss; A. Matthews c; Gillis p; Hamil 2b; Kirker 1b; Capperelli rf; O'Brien and Vulgares cf; Caulfield and McCarthy lf.

The second game of the series comes this morning at 10 o'clock at the campus and another fast game looms. Should the Hillers win tonight they will walk away with the title. Les Carroll is coaching Jail Hill, winners of the National league title and Art McGowan has charge of Thamesville, winners in the American league race.

MORE CHANGES MADE IN DUSTY LEAGUE SLATE

Because of many postponements a slight change has been made in the Industrial league schedule for the rest of the season. It follows:

Friday, Sept. 2—Richmonds vs. J. B. Martin.

Saturday, Sept. 3—Corticelli vs. Thermos and Corticelli vs. Insilcos.

Tuesday, Sept. 6—Richmonds vs. Atlantics.

Wednesday, Sept. 7—Thermos vs. Y. M. C. A.

Thursday, Sept. 8—J. B. Martin vs. Werman Shoe.

Friday, Sept. 9—Insilcos vs. Richmonds.

Saturday, Sept. 10—Y. M. C. A. vs. Atlantic Carton and Thermos vs. Werman.

VIERKOETTER WINS LAKE ONTARIO $30,000 MARATHON SWIM

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 31—(AP)—Ernst Vierkoetter, a powerful German baker who previously had conquered the English channel, won the Canadian national 21-mile marathon swim tonight. He covered the distance in 11 hours 43 minutes and 12 seconds, winning $30000 of the $50000 prize money.

The throng that jammed the water front gave the German a tremendous ovation as he crossed the finish line more than two miles ahead of his nearest competitor, Georges Michel, of France, another baker who also had swum the English channel.

Vierkoetter appeared comparatively fresh at the finish, despite the gruelling grind in the cold waters of the lake. After he crossed the line he held his hands high out of the water in a gesture of jubilation while the hundreds of boats let loose with their sirens.

Starting at 8:30 a. m., eastern daylight time, Vierkoetter ploughed his way around the triangular course, took the lead from George Young, winner of the Catalina swim and Toronto favorite, at the four and one half mile mark and from then on was never headed. Young collapsed shortly after the German passed him.

Vierkoetter maintained a steady stroke throughout the three trips around the course and appeared to find the cold waters of Lake Ontario mild in comparison with the treacherous tides and choppy waves of the English channel. As he went into the turn at the last mile there was no quickening of pace, no splashing, no looking back, despite the fact that a fleet of boats escorted him. At every stroke spectators counted, while a crowd in a large sailboat sang, "Show me the way to go home."

There was a rush on the part of the crowd at the finish line as the thousands jammed the waterfront to see the winner. They could detect no appearance of nervousness as Vierkoetter's stroke brought him over the finish line.

The grease with which he had been so liberally smeared when he started the race had washed off in patches. He was rushed away by his trainer.

While Vierkoetter was listening to the plaudits of the thousands, Georges Michel was steadily ploughing his way over the course in an attempt to capture the second prize of $7,500. Throughout the day Michel, for hours miles behind many of the leading contenders who subsequently gave up the struggle, had proved a model of perseverance.

One by one, George Young, of Toronto, Byron Summers, of California, and Edward Keating, of New York, had quit and made way for the Parisian to take the position of runner-up. Struggling behind was Arthur Compton, 14-year-old swimming ace of Long Beach, Calif., who later was taken from the water after he had completed 14 miles of the course. At the time Vierkoetter finished Compton was in third place and from the speed he was making it was estimated that he would have finished at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mrs. Lottie Schoemmel, of New York, also was swimming gamely when the German baker finished. Others still in the race at that time included William Erickson, of New York; Martha Stager, of Portland, Ore.; Clarabelle Barrett, of Pelham, N. Y.; Edith Hedin, Toronto; Norma Bovanzeri, of Niagara Falls, Myron Cox, Los Angeles, Calif., and Herr von Papenfus, of South Africa.

MRS. SCHOEMMEL HAS GOOD CHANCE OF WINNING

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 31—(AP)—Mrs. Lottie Moore Schoemmel, of New York, at 10 o'clock tonight appeared to have the best chance of winning the special prize of $5,000 for the first woman to cross the finish line. At that hour she was in fourth place among the remaining competitors.

The standing of the others was:

Georges Michel, Paris, second; Walter Erickson, New York, third; Myron Cox, Los Angeles, fifth; Herr Von Papenfuss, South Africa, sixth; Edith Hedin, Toronto, seventh; Henry L. Sullivan, Lowell, Mass., eighth, and Martha Stager, Portland, Oregon, ninth.

WERMAN HAS FIGHTING CHANCE FOR PENNANT

The Industrial league first pennant lies in the balance of tonight's game at the Academy campus when the leading Richmond Radiators grapple with the second place Werman Shoers in a game that has been long awaited by Norwich fandom. This tilt has been postponed three times but each delay has only served to increase interest in the affair so that tonight when the Red-stockinged Ironmen take the field against their nearest and bitterest rival, one of the largest crowds ever to witness a twi game is expected. It starts at 6:15.

Popular sentiment no doubt, will fall to the Shoers, who besides playing the role of underdog tonight also will have plenty behind them for the snappy aggressive way they have gone about things this season. They have piled up friends with regularity all through the season and ton

JOY RIDERS ABANDON DAMAGED CAR TAKEN ON THE SLY AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 31—Sergeant Patrick Murphy, in passing through Ocean avenue at 3 o'clock this morning, found a Ford automobile overturned and badly damaged at the corner of Neptune avenue. There was no one in the vicinity and it was apparent that the occupants of the auto had abandoned the machine following the accident. In the auto was found the driver's license of the owner of the car, Charles Facas, 187 Main street, proprietor of a restaurant, also Facs's registration. Facas was found at his home and declared that someone had used the machine without his permission. He said the car was parked by him in front of the restaurant about 8 o'clock and it was there when he retired at 11:30 o'clock.

H. L. KIRSCHNER'S FUNERAL WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 31—The funeral of Henry L. Kirschner, former commercial salesman, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his former residence at Pleasure Beach, Waterford, and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Wolcott Linsley, of Webster. The body was forwarded to Oxford, Mass., where burial took place this afternoon.

WEYANT IS BOUND OVER—FURNISHES BOND OF $3,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 31—In the police court today, Philip Weyant, 63, married and a well known journeyman carpenter, was bound over to the superior court on a charged of attempted rape. He furnished a surety on his bond of $3000. Weyant had been a prisoner at the county jail since his arrest a week ago. Weyant, who has before served a sentence in state prison for a similar crime, denies his guilt and plans to fight the case. The statement of two Polish girls, both 13, is that they made several appointments with Weyant and kept them by going to a carpenter shop on Federal street where the attacks upon them were made. One of the girls has stated that she had an appointment to go to the carpenter shop the afternoon of the day Weyant was arrested.

The charge against Weyant was brought by State Humane agent Frederick H. Wyant, of Norwich. In the matter of the girls making the charge, Policewoman Jane H. Cassidy, of New London, has been looking after one of the girls concerned in the case.

The funeral of Agnes F., widow of Charles Holmes, was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large concourse of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Michael Reagan. As a waiting hymn, Edward F. Murray sang, "Some Sweet Day". The bearers were Stephen, Edward and William McMullen, John H. James, John Lawrence, of Hartford and William Dougherty, of Norwich. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Regan.

John Conitin, 23, of 223 Dorchester avenue, Boston, was arrested today by Patrolman William Graham. Conitin is undoubtedly of unsound mind as he was acting quearly on Main street. Conitin was taken to police headquarters and is being held there pending information from his father as to whether the latter will come here and take charge of his son. The father resides in Arlington, R. I.

Anthony Iriandi has sold a house and lot on Ocean avenue to Aaron and Sophie Schumyatzky.

Barney Belgrad has sold six building lots on Ann street to Lena Zwiel.

Ernest E. Rogers has sold a building lot on Robinson street to John D. Sheflott.

Maude T. Haney, administratrix of the estate of Ellen E. Murphy, has sold a house and lot, corner of Jay and Franklin streets, to Barney Belgrad.

John J. Jacques, of Gales Ferry, was in police court today on a charge of reckless driving. Judgment was suspended. Jacques was driving his automobile on Ocean avenue last night and at a time that Chester H. Brigham, of Waterford constabulary was also in his car there. Brigham said that Jacques crowded the constable off the highway and so endangered his safety that he made complaint to Patrolman Henry Hick, who arrested Jacques.

Tony DiMarco, public service operator, was charged with reckless driving and he, too, was given suspended judgment. DiMarco was driving his car on Bank street last midnight and at a terrific speed because of the absence of traffic. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Motorcycle Officer Elwood Bailey observed DiMarco and arrested him.

Edna Lopez, colored, 16 John street, made complaint to the police last midnight that two soldiers from the mine planter, General Baird, moored at the government pier, Water street, in passing her home hurled two stones through the windows. Patrolmen George Cockell and George Laboue made a search for the soldiers, but did not find them, they probably having speeded back to their boat.

ENORMOUS N. Y. MAIL DELAYS GILT EDGE EXPRESS

NEW LONDON, Aug. 31—The Gilt Edge express, due to arrive here from New York at 8.05 o'clock was late in reaching the union station tonight and a further delay of 10 minutes was caused here because of the vast amount of mail matter. The parcel post matter was enormous and it required one entire truck load to transfer it from the train to the sub-station at the north end of the depot, while other mail matter occupied another truck. The mail brought to New London by this train was one of the largest since the last of December and January.

The work of repairing the municipal wharf is progressing and probably will be finished by the end of the week for the major part of the laying of the new planking has been completed. During the progress of the work the several fish boats that have maintained moorings on the north side of the pier, have been compelled to move to the public landing. When the work of repairing the wharf is completed it is possible that the Fishers Island Navigation company's pier will receive the attention of the carpenters for that pier is in need of repairs. A space of the pier has already become dangerous through a section of the planking collapsing. The entire pier, however, needs repairs because of the great amount of travel over it daily.

Leo Monroe, 20, son of Mrs. Mary Monroe, 50 Hempstead street is missing and the police of this city and Norwich have been furnished with a description of the young man in an effort to locate him. The young man is in a pitiable condition because of a misfortune that befell him 10 years ago. He was injured in an automobile accident, the injury affecting his brain and producing a condition of feeblemindedness. He disappeared mysteriously from home several days ago and when the efforts of the mother failed to reveal the whereabouts of her son, she appealed to the police. Mrs. Monroe believes that her son may have wandered to Norwich and for that reason the police of that city have been requested to watch out for the unfortunate young man.

The city will have to remove the Daly building on Atlantic street, which was recently condemned, together with six others, for tomorrow bids will be asked for that the building can be razed. The building is owned by the Bartholomew Daly heirs and although all of them have been notified to remove the building, today was the final day for them to do so. Having that fact in mind, the council recently passed a vote authorizing the city manager to obtain bids for the razing of the building in the event that the heirs of Mr. Daly did not comply with the edict of the council. When this building is razed the other five buildings condemned will receive like attention.

William F. Schaub, of Sandusky, O., and Miss Kathryn M. Coffey, daughter of Mrs. Kathryn Coffey, 151 Ashcraft road, this city, were married yesterday afternoon at the rectory of the Immaculate Conception church, Westerly. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. S. Vincent. The best man was John Halpin of New York and the bridemaid was Miss May Hanley of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Schaub will make their home in New London upon the termination of a wedding trip.

Mrs. Leonard C. Sheflott, clerk in the office of Director of Finance Carey Congdon is having her vacation of two weeks. With her husband, Mrs. Sheflott is making a motor trip to Philadelphia, Washington and Atlantic City.

Mrs. Charlotte Treanor, New York, is being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Cassidy, 434 Williams street.

Miss Mary Jones of Pleasure beach, Waterford, left tonight for New York, from which port she will take a steamer for a trip on the Great Lakes, going west as far as Cleveland. Miss Johnson will not return home for three weeks.

John Mullen of West High street, a carpenter in the employ of Arthur Jackson company, fell from the roof of a building upon which he was at work last Monday at the plant of the former Groton Iron Works, sustaining a fractured wrist.

Thieves made a haul aboard the government transport, General Nathaniel Greene, last night. This morning when John A. Lombe, cook, employed on the boat, went there to begin his work he found that the kitchen had been broken into. Three cartons of cigarettes a box of cigars, two cases of soda water, two cases of near beer, a pair of shoes and a razor, were missing. Lome reported the burglary to the police and Patrolmen Cornelius Moriarty and George Laboue made an inspection of the boat, but were not successful in obtaining any clue. It is believed that the break was perpetrated by some of the many uniformed men who frequent the pier.

The neighborhood of Summer street was aroused last midnight and because of the nature of the loud and boisterous talk from the house corner of Summer and Wall street, it was believed that a fight was in progress. A telephone message to that effect was sent to police headquarters and Sergeant Patrick Murphy, Motorcycle Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Harry Watterson were sent there. The officers determined that a family row had occurred in the home of Joseph Poretta, but none of those who engaged in the brawl would make a complaint. The officers cautioned all the occupants to refrain from any further demonstrations that would cause additional complaints from the neighbors.

C. A. Palmer, 83 Federal street, made a desperate attempt to capture an automobile thief, early this morning when he fired a half dozen shots at the occupant of his automobile, after it had been stolen from in front of Palmer's residence. Palmer parked the auto during the evening and intended to let it remain in the highway the remainder of the night. About 1 o'clock, before Palmer had retired he heard a sound that indicated that some one was trying to start the engine of the automobile. Palmer seized his revolver and started for the street. By that time the auto engine could be heard and before Palmer got from the house the car was speeding toward Main street. Palmer opened fire, sending the entire contents of the chambers after the auto, but none of the bullets struck it. He then reported the theft at police headquarters. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Motorcycle Officer Elwood Bailey made a tour of the northern and eastern sections of the city, for the stolen auto turned from Federal into Main street and was headed northerly when it disappeared from view. As the police auto was passing through Crystal avenue a half hour afterwards, a Ford auto was seen parked beside the highway and an investigation revealed that it was the stolen car. It is believed by the police that the auto was taken by a resident of East New London and then parked a short distance from the residence of the thief.

Samuel Eisenberg, 13, a summer visitor at 36 Boardwalk, Ocean Beach, is a patient at Home Memorial hospital as a result of a bad laceration of the foot, which injury he sustained this morning while bathing. The boy stepped on a sharp object, probably a broken bottle.

Rabbi Wolf Roggin, Linden street, has resigned as pastor of the two Hebrew synagogues here after 10 years. Rabbi Roggin and family went last night to Brooklyn and in which city Rabbi Roggin will be located hereafter. A successor to Rabbi Roggin will not be appointed at once and a temporary rabbi will be engaged to officiate at the New Year's service the latter part of September.

Mrs. James Lockwood of West Hartford; Herbert and Madeline Lawrence, 18 Robinson street; Lydia Hoppen, Lyme; Daniel Sinclair, Fishers Island, Mrs. Joseph Knowles and infant son, Pearl street; William Halliday, West Mystic and Freddie Wentworth, Saunders street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

After a lull of several days, during which time no cases of infantile paralysis developed, three new cases were reported to Health Officer Benjamin N. Pennell at the municipal building today. The patients are John Murray 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Murray, 33 Blackhall street; Henry Wade, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wade, 42 Maple avenue and Mildred Landry, 2, daughter of Mrs. Elsie Landry, 171 Garfield avenue. Only the Landry child was taken to Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital. The new cases make seven in this city and one in Groton that have developed the past week or 10 days.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

Commencing today for three days the Palace brings forth another of their famous combination bills of five big acts of supreme vaudeville. The feature headline act Dance Flashes is a beautifully set song and dance revue, just a little different from the usual run of dance acts. The cast consists of six people, three young ladies and three gentlemen. Gordon and Gates a man and woman comedy team have a very unique comedy act that is reported to be a howl. McCarthy and Stenard have a little skit on the wets and the drys. Vic Laurie, Americas clever vaudevillian will favor with some very clever songs and stories. Dillion and Margaret musical acrobats present a novelty that will go big. The reports on the various acts scheduled have been investigated and each one rates perfect.

The war of the non-combatants deprived of the tools of war. Men and women goaded by thoughts of murder and destruction but lacking the opportunity to give vent to their feelings.

This is Barbed Wire, the new Pola Negri starring vehicle for Paramount which is now running at the Palace theater.

Barbed Wire, a dramatic love story of gigantic power and universal appeal has been acclaimed the most unusual war picture ever filmed. It is unique in that it is not primarily a story of the battlefield itself; it reveals the dark currents of the back eddies from the time of the declaration of hostilities until after the armistice was signed.

It is from the pen of Hall Caine, being an adaptation by Jules Furthman of the novel The Woman of Knockaloe.

Clive Brook, Einar Hanson, Claude Gillingwater, Clyde Cook, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Ben Hendricks, Jr., and Norman Peck are in the supporting cast.

The Broadway

The Broadway theater occupies a unique place in the theater history and commands extraordinary public attention at this time because now it is emerging from an eventful past into a newer, younger, and more brilliant era as a shrine to the silent drama.

Shoppers of entertainment value will find that the Broadway theater programs are of the best selected photoplays representing the best entertainment of clean and wholesome pictures, that should appeal to every member of the family.

The Broadway theater employes have been instructed to give courtesy and attention to the patrons. They are at your service at all times, their only purpose is to please you that you may enjoy our shows in the greatest of comfort.

The management is always happy to receive suggestions from its patrons. Your comments determine our policies.

The Broadway theater equipment is most modern and uptodate in every respect.

Bread Theatre

An unusual motion picture came to the Breed yesterday and it will be shown for the last times today at 2:15, 7 and 8:45. It was "The Return of Peter Grimm." A word of advice—don't miss it.

For Fox Films version of David Belasco's great drama of life after death reflects credit upon the entire motion picture industry. It shows what a cast of real actors and a director who understands his business can turn out.

Janet Gaynor, who is making rapid strides toward the pinnacle with each picture in which she appears, scores heavily in the role of the kindly Peter Grimm's ward.

Alec B. Francis, who knows no peer among motion picture character actors, plays the role of Peter Grimm, the peppery old master of the Grimm estate who returns to earth after his death. The characterization of Mr. Francis is superb.

Then there is young Richard Walling, one of the most promising young actors of the day, who plays Jimmie Hartman, in love with Peter's ward. Walling fits the part as a kid glove fits the hand of a fair lady.

John Roche, John St. Polis, Lionel Belmore, Elizabeth Patterson, Mickey McBan and others are in the excellent cast. Hank, the yellow dog of the movies, gives a performance which explains why he rides to work in a Rolls Royce.

EKONK

Mrs. Wanton Briggs and daughter, of Danielson returned home Monday, after a visit with Mrs. Briggs' brother Judge E. A. Douglas.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Gallup and daughters attended camp meeting at Willimantic Sunday.

Mrs. Byron P. Young and her sisters, Misses Juliette and Mary Richmond spent Saturday and Sunday at Willimantic camp ground.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Slocum, of Westerly spent Monday at their cottage at Ekonk.

Schools in Sterling opened Wednesday Aug. 31st.

The school at Ekonk has been closed and the pupils are being transported to Sterling Hill school, Miss Hilliard, teacher. Walter Frink has the contract for carrying the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Holmes and three children and Mrs. Simmons, of Willimantic were visitors Sunday at George Tanner's.

Mrs. Walter Congdon spent Sunday night with relatives in Danielson.

Mr. Benjamin Colburn was taken suddenly ill Friday and he was carried to the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, Saturday where he underwent a surgical operation.

Mrs. Colburn is staying with her granddaughter, Miss Ella Gardner.

Robert de Bruce of New York is spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. John P. Woods.

Mrs. S. C. Higdee is to give a program of interesting facts of Windham history gathered from old letters, in the chapel Friday evening. Music will be furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tucker of North Windham.

At the farewell reception given Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Graham a gift of $80 was presented them from friends in Windham and South Windham.

Rev. J. G. Graham left this week to assume his new duties as professor of Bible literature at Mercersberg, Pa., academy. Mrs. Graham and little son and Miss Jennie Ives left last Thursday to spend a few days with Mrs. Graham's parents, in Washington, D. C.

Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Plumb and sons of Edgewood, R. I., who have been visiting Mr. Plumb's mother in Bridgeport arrived in town Monday to spend the week with Mrs. Plumbs mother Mrs. Charles Larrabee.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Allen of Hartford and Mrs. Nellie Prentice of Detroit, Mich., were calling on friends in town Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eden Cook motored to Maine Friday with Mrs. Cook's brother, DeWitt Lathrop for a 10 days' vacation.

Rev. W. B. Sanford of Lansdowne, Pa., who is spending his vacation at his summer home here, is to preach in the Congregational church Sunday.

A farewell dinner was given in South Windham Monday evening by the Men's Community club, for Rev. J. G. Graham, who organized the club two years ago. Sidney B. Alling of Westerly, R. I., a former president of the club and Rev. N. B. Sanford, of Lansdowne, Pa., were guests of the club also

AMSTON

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Boyer and two children, who are enroute to California by motor, spent the week end with Mrs. Boyer's sister, Mrs. Max Ams, who also entertained her mother, Mrs. L. B. Ford and Capt. Babcock, both of New York.

Miss Rose Nonenbacher returned to New York with Mr. and Mrs. John Nonenbacher and their son, Frank.

The Inn has had a good registration in spite of the stormy weather.

Mrs. W. A. Coulter and children of Bridgeport are guests of Mrs. Max Ams for the week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Bailey and son [illegible] and Mrs. C. [illegible] Kinney and [illegible] Kinney were in attendance at the Rockville fair Tuesday.

Mrs. J. Cox and Mrs. J. McNamara of Bridgeport, motored up to attend a bridge party given at the Ams home

Mrs. Belle Epstein, Miss Sadie Kay and Miss Laura Kay returned to New York after visiting at the Turschin home.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks irregular; General Electric touches 142.

Bonds firm, French government 7 1-2s at new high.

Foreign exchanges steady, Norwegian kroner rise 20 points above 26 cents.

Cotton lower, general liquidation.

Sugar higher, Cuban buying.

Coffee easy, European selling.

Chicago

Wheat lower, disappointing foreign demand.

Corn easy, larger country offerings.

Cattle strong.

Hogs higher.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—The long expected technical reaction took place in today's stock market. Although speculators for the advance endeavored to maintain bullish enthusiasm by marking up recent favorites, the pressure of offerings became too great to absorb and prices generally fell back 1 to 3 points, with a few declines running as much as 4 to nearly 7 points.

With the exception of sugar, which was firm, all the leading commodity markets also displayed a slightly reactionary tendency.

Directors of the Moto-Meter Company omitted the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents on class B stock and a cut of 15 per cent. in window glass prices was announced in Pittsburgh as a result of European competition.

Banks called about $10,000,000 or $15,000,000 in loans to meet the usual month-end demands for currency, but the call money rate held steady at 3 1-2 per cent. Dividend distributions tomorrow are expected to total $250,000,000 on about 250 issues, including Atchison, American Smelting, American Tobacco, Republic Steel, F. W. Woolworth and Studebaker.

Buying was most effective in such issues as General Electric, National Biscuit, Reynolds Tobacco B, Rossia Insurance, International Telephone, Nash Motors, North American company and the Kelly-Springfield preferred issues, all of which reached new high ground.

U. S. Steel common, selling ex-dividend $1.75, touched 146 7-8 in the early trading and then sold down to 142 1-8, for a net loss of 2 1-8 points on the day. Trading in the General Motors issues quieted down somewhat, the old stock showing a net loss of 2 1-4 points at 246, after having touched 245, and the New York stock closing 1 3-8 lower at 123 1-4. Pierce Arrow common and preferred again sank into new low ground.

Atchison, Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central, Southern Railway and Wabash all sold down 1 to 2 points.

Time money and commercial paper raters were unchanged.

A spirited rally of more than 20 points in Norwegian krone to around 26.15 cents overshadowed all other developments in today's foreign exchange market. The demand for the Norwegian currency is believed to have arisen from a trapped short interest, apparently alarmed by reports of the country's early return to the gold standard. Demand sterling was slightly easier around $4.85 3-4, and French francs ruled firm just under 3.92 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L'hereux and their eight children of Merchants avenue are on a motor trip to Canada.

At the regular weekly business meeting of the members of St. Veronica's T. A. and B. society, Miss Mary Ward, the president, presided.

The National Sportsman has an interesting article this month in the annual outing and clambake of the Taftville Rod and Gun club which was held at Hopeville this month. The paper also prints a communication from the secretary of the club regarding hares and rabbits. Some of the members feel that now the streams are stocked and the covers are full of pheasants, anglers and birdhunters have received their share, and some attention should be paid to those who like to hunt rabbits. It is well known that in many states rabbits are a pest, and it would seem that it would be more economical to obtain them from the states where they are plentiful than it would be to raise them in captivity. As a matter of fact, it is a difficult thing to raise cottontails in captivity unless the breeding pen is an enclosure of large size. It is also known that the common rabbit, Belgian hare and Flemish Giant are purely domestic animals and that they will not become wild. The Belgian hare is not a hare at all, but a rabbit. Hares are a different breed of animals altogether. However, if the local Rod and Gun club desire to obtain rabbits from other states, the animals will have to be kept under a strict quarantine for some time before their release, as in some states, rabbits suffer from highly contagious diseases, which indirectly affect the dogs that are used in hunting them.

A number of the members of the club are planning to attend the outing and barbecue of the Connecticut sportsmen to be held September 3rd at Lake Compounce, sponsored by the state board of fisheries and game. Already two of the members have entered the long distance casting contest. They are Edward Duprey and Edward Weseman, both well known as local experts in casting.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Meyer of Blissville had as guests Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. James Hodgson of Westerly, Mrs. Louise Graichen and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rollins of Providence.

Mrs. Edith Schofield of Hunter road has returned from a week's stay in Fall River, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pearson Hoyle have returned from their wedding trip which was spent in New York, and are at their home at 18 North Third avenue.

Miss Solfride Fregeau, R. N., of Rockville, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fregeau of Providence street.

Skunks are plentiful in the village of Blissville and are causing the residents of that section of Lisbon some concern, as they are frequenting the highways each night.

Services at the Taftville Congregational church will be resumed next Sunday, the church having been closed during the month of August.

Members of the local Boy Scout troops are to take part in the Indian pageant which is to be given at the Norwich fairgrounds on Labor day.

On Tuesday evening a miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Mary Taggart at her home on lower Norwich avenue, in anticipation of her approaching marriage to Fred Handy, of North Third avenue.

Joseph Carter of Newmarket, N. H., is the guest of Emil B. Sweet of Norwich avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene N. Monty of Riverside grove left Tuesday morning in their car for Canada.

Pastor on Vacation

Rev. A. E. Whitten will not preach at Gardner lake the first two Sundays in September as he is having his vacation.

BILL LIBRARY ASS'N RE-ELECTS OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

LEDYARD, Aug. 31—The annual meeting of the Bill Library association and the serving of the annual Bill dinner was of special significance Wednesday for it marked the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the association, started in 1867 after Henry Bill of Norwich had given the sum of $1,000 and 500 volumes and had instructed the residents of Ledyard to organize a library association to provide proper library facilities for the people of the town.

Blue skies greeted the anniversary date and friends of the association from near and far to observe the anniversary and gather once more about the festive board with friends, some of whom they had not met in years.

The annual meeting of the library association was held at the Bill library at 11 o'clock and was called to order by President William I. Allyn. Reports showed the library in a flourishing condition. Treasurer Billings T. Avery, summing up the financial condition of the association since its inception, concluded with the report that funds on hand, either in cash or stocks and bonds, now amounted to about $13,500. The librarian, Mrs. Billings T. Avery, reported an increase in volumes taken out during the past year and that a number of new volumes had been received. It was voted that the catalogue work be continued until the entire library is catalogued.

The election of officers closed the meeting, officers being re-elected as follows:

President, William I. Allyn; secretary, Frederick W. Burton; treasurer, Billings T. Avery.

Trustees, William I. Allyn, Billings T. Avery, Frederick W. Burton, Joseph A. Clark, Everett Gallup, Jacob Gallup, Charles A. Gray, Charles S. Hewitt, Earl B. Geer, Samuel E. Holdridge, Joseph E. Holdridge, Rev. A. E. Kinmouth, Rev. W. F. White, Rev. G. F. Goodenough.

With the closing of the business session the public exercises were started in the Ledyard Congregational church, President William I. Allyn calling on Rev. Ralph Krout, pastor of the Ledyard Congregational church for the welcoming address. People were speedily made at home by Rev. Mr. Krout—this being an easy task for him inasmuch as these anniversaries are always real welcoming celebrations.

Prayer was then offered by Rev. G. F. Goodenough, former pastor of the Ledyard church, now of Jewett City, after which Miss Marian Geer rendered two delightful selections, Tell Her My Lodge Is Warm, by Charles Wakefield Cadman, and Trees, by Oscar Rasbach. Both were rendered in excellent voice and brought forth applause from her delightful audience. Mrs. C. D. Geer accompanied on the piano.

The address of the day was delivered by Rev. George B. Spalding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of New London. Rev. Mr. Spalding stated that it was something new for him to attend a Bill dinner and celebration but that he believed it a wonderful thing that the people of Ledyard and the friends of Ledyard, set aside one day each year to memorialize the founder of the Bill library.

For his subject Rev. Mr. Spalding chose The Unsuspected Interest In America. Thousands of Americans, he said, annually make pilgrimages to the old country to see the wonderful sights over there. In America however there is much of interest still unknown to many. One matter of great interest, about which little is known, is the Maya people, the race of Yucatan. This country today holds a degenerate race of descendants of what was once, 1,000 years before the Christian era a powerful people. They had wonderful ideas of building and their construction was similar to buildings found in southern India. The culture they possessed has no relation to any found on the American continent. They lived 1,000 years in Yucatan and built their wonderful buildings and then, for some unknown reason, left them all behind to be overgrown by vegetation of the ages.

The history of the Maya people nearly parallels two important dates in Anglo-Saxon history. In Anglo-Saxon history there is the year 1066 for the Norman conquest and 1492 for the discovery of America. The Maya people in 1004 rebuilt their cities once abandoned and lived in pomp and power until 1448, then disappeared as a great race. Five years ago great discoveries were made in Yucatan. Massive temples were discovered that for years had been hidden in the dense vegetation. One of these buildings has 1,000 pillars of many sizes and of various types of decoration. Acoustics of this out of door temple, evidently the legal and military seat of government, have never been bettered in the modern world, for the voice, softly spoken, carries throughout the entire structure.

While in Yucatan, said Rev. Mr. Spalding, I learned several folk stories from an old man and these I have published. He then told briefly the stories of the Yucatanian as related to him, these covering three subjects of interest in Maya history.

The Maya people, he said, celebrated Thanksgiving much the same as we do, November 1st was the day set aside for what they called The Banquet of the Soul. The head of the family killed chickens of sufficient number to provide one for each member of the family. Chicken pies were then made and baked in ovens in the ground, heated stones being used for baking. It was believed by the Mayas that the spirits of the dead relatives entered the pies through the ground and blessed them, also protected the members of the family against harm. Black candles were then provided for the married people and white candles for the virgin people and the family went to prayer. Then they stood about the table and ate the ceremonial pies with their bare hands. When through the food was left on the tables over night that those without friends might partake of it, in the morning what was left was burned.

Another story had to do with Maya belief in immortality. The dead were cremated, said Rev. Mr. Spalding, and their ashes placed in urns.

These urns were then taken and flower seeds planted after loam had been added to the ashes. Various kinds of flowers were used, according to whose ashes were placed in the urn. A budding flower signified the departure of the soul and the perfume of the flower evidenced a happy immortality. At the next death in the family, flowers were picked from the ceremonial urns and a wreath made from them and placed on the body. Twenty-four hours later the cremation took place and the same practice again started.

The third Maya story had to do with the legend of the last of the Maya kings some 200 years before the Spanish conquest. A report, said Rev. Mr. Spaulding, reached the king of the Maya people that a wise man, with healing powers had arrived in the country nearby. This man made the people build three hills, one large to the north and two smaller ones to the east and west. Caves were then dug into these hills. Reports then came to the king of the Mayas and he became afraid lest his kingdom be taken by this wise man. Representatives were sent to the new comer and finally the king, with his beautiful daughter, met the newcomer and a marriage soon resulted. The old king then allowed his daughter and son-in-law to rule the country. War with the Aztecs soon came and the young king was mortally wounded. At his death, following a request, the queen buried his head in the larger cave, and one arm and one leg in either smaller cave. She then left the city and stayed at the big cave, always standing looking to the north. Legend has it that she became a statue and today she stands there, a statue, looking to the north whence came her mortally wounded husband.

WILLIAM I. ALLYN

The address was one of unusual merit and Rev. Mr. Spalding held the interest of his large audience throughout his talk, many being reluctant to have him conclude his remarks.

The program then came to a close with another group of selections, O Heart of Mine, by H. Clough-Leighter and Thank God For a Garden, by Teresa Del Riego, by Miss Marian Geer and the pronouncing of the benediction.

Adjournment was then taken to the tables on the church lawn, where the Ledyard men and women served clam chowder, sandwiches, cake, pie, coffee and ice cream.

The afternoon was spent in visiting the library, school and other points of interest to those who make the annual pilgrimage to Ledyard and the sixtieth annual meeting was at an end.

THREE DIVORCE SUITS IN SUPERIOR COURT

Three divorce suits have been brought in the superior court, returnable the first Tuesday in September. Mary V. Robbins of Stonington brings suit against Joseph A. Robbins of Stonington on grounds of cruelty and intemperance. Her maiden name was Mary V. Tanner and the couple were married Feb. 18, 1911. The plaintiff asks a divorce, custody of four children and alimony. The eldest child is 14 and the youngest 5 years of age.

Charging cruelty, Clara Denison Brooks, New London, asks a divorce and custody of two children, in an action she has brought against Charles R. Brooks, also of New London. They were married June 26, 1908 and cruelty is alleged since June 1, 1922.

Mary Esty Benefield of New London has brought suit for divorce from Joseph B. Benefield, now of unknown address. They were married July 2, 1924 and she charges desertion since August 18, 1924.

ASKS PARTITION OF PROPERTY IN NEW LONDON

A partition of property is asked by David L. Possin of Hartford in a suit he has brought in the superior court against Rose M. Reilly and June McNamara, both of New London. Plaintiff claims he and the defendants own property on Bentley avenue, New London, each having an undivided one-third interest. It is alleged the plaintiff has a lease of the property which will expire October 31, 1931.

ASKS PERMISSION TO DEED COLLINS PROPERTY

The borough of Stonington has brought a superior court action against the town of Stonington nad John Elton Wayland by which the borough seeks permission from the court to deed to John Elton Wayland certain property known as Collins Wharf property in exchange for a fund of $5,000 offered by Mr. Wayland for the care of a place known as Harbor Recreation in Stonington.

Both pieces of property were given to the borough by the late Chandler L. Wayland for the purpose of providing a place for the recreational activities of young and old, free of charge, and for the docking free of fishing boats and pleasure craft. The Collins Wharf property was deeded to the borough on Nov. 12, 1921 and the other pieces on Nov. 16, 1921. On Oct. 22, 1922, the donor died and his only heir-at-law was John Elton Wayland who now owns property adjoining Collins Wharf property.

The donor made no provision for the care of the property and the town has no funds "properly applicable thereto." It is set forth in the papers that John Elton Wayland needs the Collins Wharf property for the peaceful enjoyment of his residence and at a meeting of the wardens and burgesses his offer of $5,000 to keep the harbor recreation site in shape was approved. The borough now seeks permission from the court to sell the Collins Wharf property.

HURT IN ACCIDENT SUES FOR $5,000

Cesare Conti of this city has brought suit in the superior court against John M. Mallon, Jr., and Joseph Mondelci, both of New London, asking damages of $5,000. The plaintiff brings the action for injuries he is alleged to have suffered when he was riding in an automobile owned by Mr. Mondelci. The machine was in a collision with a machine owned by Mr. Mallon.

NEW LONDON WOMAN HURT IN ACCIDENT, BRINGS SUIT

Damages of $5,000 are asked by Laura Mysrol of New London in a superior court suit which she has brought against Jacob Goldberg, also of New London. The plaintiff alleges she received serious injuries as the result of an automobile accident at Garfield avenue and Connecticut avenue, New London on April 24th last.

ART ASS'N ANNOUNCES SKETCH PRIZE WINNER

LYME, Aug. 31.—Charles Vezin, member of the Lyme Art association, has been declared the winner of the prize for the best sketch in this year's exhibit at Lyme. But though he wins the prize, Mr. Vezin does not get the money, for the very good reason that he cannot take his own money. It was Mr. Vezin himself who offered a prize for the best sketch, the award to be made according to the popular vote of those who attended the show. Each visitor, when he paid his admission, was given his catalogue and a card upon which he was asked to record his vote for his choice among the 316 sketches shown.

Apparently those who came liked nothing better than this chance so to express themselves. At the end of the first two weeks, the ballot box was so jammed that it had to be emptied. By Sunday, August 28, the last day of the contest, the box was overflowing again. Counted, the ballots totalled the astonishing figure of 2,863. Charles Vezin received the largest number of votes for his sketch "The Parsonage," and following him in the order of their popularity were Guy Wiggins, William S. Robinson, Percival Rosseau, and Frank A. Bicknell. The prize money goes to Guy Wiggins.

Both artists and critics declare the popular vote to have been a most discriminating one. The choice represents also the opinion of a very wide public. One had only to glance at the license plates of the cars parked in front of the gallery to realize from what distance some of the visitors had come. Besides the hundreds of Connecticut cars were others from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia and even as far west as California.

On the evening of September 10, the Lyme Art associtaion will hold its annual artists' frolic in the gallery. Only the associate and artist members and their 'house guests' will be admitted. All those attending will appear in fancy costume.

STONINGTON MAN BRINGS SUIT FOR $2,000 DAMAGES

As the result of a collision between a motorcycle and an automobile at Cliff and Pearl streets, Mystic, June 27, 1927, Floyd Watson of Stonington has brought suit against John Whittle and George Main of Groton, claiming damages of $2,000. Plaintiff alleges he was riding on the rear saddle of the motorcycle which was being operated by Main when the collision with the automobile, operated by Whittle, took place. Plaintiff claims he was seriously injured.

ASKS $5,000 DAMAGES FOR ALLEGED SLANDER

Damages of $5,000 are sought by Valentine Podeszwa of New London in a suit which he has brought in the superior court against Leon Podbielski, also of New London. The plaintiff claims that the defendant said in Polish in the hearing of John Buresky and others, what translated to English meant, "You are a crook, you stole money from the church and bought your property with it." Plaintiff claims the words are false.

NORWICH TOWN

While on vacation for one week, Mrs. Henry Butler a member of the staff at the Johnson Home, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Wilfred Sabourin, of Town street, has been enjoying day auto trips to various places. Tuesday, was spent in New Haven and Wednesday in Hartford.

Many Norwich people were in attendance at the Bill dinner, held Wednesday at Ledyard Congregational church. From Norwich Town, those attending included Miss Doris Browning, of the New London road and Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Town street.

Wednesday's summer weather sent the crowds to the beaches.

NO DIRECT WORD FROM MONOPLANE ST. RAPHAEL SINCE NOON WEDNESDAY FRENCH PLANE HOPS OFF FOR AMERICA

Fear America Bound Monoplane Must Have Met Disaster—Fuel Supply Would Have Become Exhausted, Even Under the Most Favorable Conditions—The Pride of Detroit Has Been Granted Permission to Fly Over Turkey.

FRENCH PLANE, BLUE BIRD TAKES OFF FOR AMERICA

LE BOURGET, France, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Another airplane, the biplane Blue Bird, manned by Leon Givon and Pierre Corbu, of France, took off and headed for the west this morning, with New York as its destination. After a thousand yard run, with motors straining in a tremendous effort, the big biplane left the ground at 6.21 a. m., and soon disappeared into the mist, headed for the great Atlantic expanse.

GIVON AND CORBU HAVE HAD LONG EXPERIENCE

Leon Givon and Pierre Corbu, flying the biplane "Blue Bird," have had long experience in the air, flying not only in the war but reeling off hundreds of miles in commercial aviation. Givon is one of the top-notch pilots on the Farman air lines and is credited with nearly 3,500 hours of flying. He has flown almost daily between Paris and Rotterdam. He is 32 years of age.

Corbu is another military aviator who went in for commercial flying, identifying himself with the Farman company on the Paris-Rotterdam and Paris-Berlin routes. He has flown nearly 1,200 hours in commercial work. Corbu is only 25 years old, and was given a military pilot's license when 17. He was cited for work in the Moroccan campaign.

The fliers, originally planned to head away for the Azores, then set a course for Halifax, N. S., thence along the Nova Scotia and New England coasts to New York. By this course the "Blue Bird" would avoid fogs and bad weather off Newfoundland.

The fuselage of the "Blue Bird" is light blue in front while the rear and tail are greyish brown. The name "Farman" is painted on the nose in white letters while "Farman" is painted in black on the tail piece, which also bears the large letters "O. F." The wings are yellowish gray and beneath the under wing is painted "Farman."

The words "Paris-New York" are painted on both sides of the fuselage in white letters on a blue background.

The "Blue Bird" carries no radio.

OTTAWA READY TO WELCOME MONOPLANE ST. RAPHAEL

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 1—(AP)—Great crowds gathered at the capital's main airport tonight to welcome the monoplane St. Raphael but their welcoming gestures went unaccepted. No definite word came from the east of the plane and its three occupants, Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Capt. Hamilton and Col. Minchin.

A Canadian government plane sent out to search for the missing trans-Atlantic plane circled over Montreal, giving rise to reports there that one of the three planes had passed over the city. It was not until the plane returned to the field here that it was learned that it had been mistaken fro fliers engaged in trans-Atlantic flight.

A checkup of the federal government's chain of radio stations along the St. Lawrence river tonight failed to bring in any report of the St. Raphael and her crew.

The station at West Point, Anticosti Island, reported that fresh south winds prevailed on the south side of the island, while along the north shore a light east wind was blowing. There had been no word of the plane.

The government station at Belle Isle reported clear, calm weather with no information on the St. Raphael. Other stations along the river sent similar messages.

BRITISH AIRMEN ARE BECOMING CAUTIOUS

LONDON, Sept. 1—(AP)—British hopes and fears hover nervously over the Atlantic tonight. The monoplane "St. Raphael" with Captain Hamilton, Colonel Minchin and Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim aboard, is now so many hours overdue, after making the greatest allowances for slower speed than it was thought she would develop that hopes still held in the afternoon grew fainter and fainter as the night wore on.

The presence of a woman in the plane, and that woman a princess, makes public interest and anxiety all the greater.

The plane has a supply of petrol sufficient only for 44 hours flying, and unless heard from within a very few hours, the fate of the fliers must necessarily arouse the greatest anxiety.

Captain Hinchcliffe, the Columbia's new pilot, and other aviators, throughout the day maintained that anxiety was needless even if the "St. Raphael" was not heard from by 10 o'clock tonight. But that hour has passed and most of them are beginning to have the gravest fears, with the possibility remaining that the trio have been rescued by some ship lacking a wireless outfit.

The air ministry has had no news whatever since the report from an unknown source Wednesday night, stating: "Going strong at 11:30," which it was assumed came from a steamer in the Atlantic. Since then there has been complete silence.

Absence of news of the "St. Raphael" is having its effect on other prospective flights. Charles A. Levine has decided that unless the British aviators are heard from, he was not likely to hop off tomorrow. He added that weather reports were very unfavorable and that there were several things he wanted to have done to Columbia.

SEVENTH DAY PASSES WITH NO WORD FROM REDFERN

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Sept. 1—(AP)—The seventh day since Paul Redfern took off here on his projected non-stop flight to Brazil has passed with nothing except indefinite reports to fan the hopes of his relatives and friends that the young flier has not met disaster.

The keenest disappointment came today with official denial of a report from Para, Brazil, that Redfern's monoplane had fallen in the vicinity of Alemequer on the Amazon river, but this report had been shadowed with the fear that the aviator may have met injury.

While executives of South American states ordered expeditions prepared to search for the monoplane, one other report came from Miami, Fla. H. K. Smith, of Smith, Parks and Smith, Miami and Nassau shipping agents, on his return from a cruise to the Bahamas reported that natives of two Bahaman villages heard an airplane which was supposed to be the Port of Brunswick.

At Para, Brazil, the governor of the state authorized the equipment of boats to cruise the River Igarape and approved the organization of expeditions to search the interior. Upon receipt of advices that the Alemequer report was groundless he ordered the search to proceed.

ROYAL WINDSOR WAS FORCED DOWN AT ST. JOHNS

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 1—(AP)—The monoplane Royal Windsor was forced down at St. Johns, Que., tonight, when a wing took fire in the air, according to a long distance telephone call received here at 11:30 o'clock tonight from the fliers, Clarence Schiller and Phil Wood.

The message said the airmen made a safe landing and the fire was immediately placed under control.

The aviators said they would be able to have repairs made to their plane during the night and would take off in the morning for Harbor Grace, N. F.

St. John's, the capital of St. John's county, is situated about 27 miles southeast of Montreal. It is a railroad center for trains operating between New York and Boston and Montreal.

THE SIR JOHN CARLING LANDED NEAR CARIBOU, ME

CARIBOU, Me., Sept. 1—(AP)—The monoplane Sir John Carling, attempting a flight from London, Ontario, to London, England, landed about 6 o'clock eastern standard time tonight in an open field in the township of Washburn, six miles from here. Foggy conditions forced the fliers southward from their course to Newfoundland and compelled them to interrupt their flight.

GRANTED PERMIT TO FLY OVER TURKEY

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 1—(AP)—Official permission was received by the American aviators Brock and Schlee from the Turkish government late tonight to fly over Turkey. The Pride of Detroit will therefore hop off for Bagdad at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning, weather permitting.

OLD GLORY TO SEARCH FOR MISSING FLIERS

NEWYORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—The Fokker monoplane Old Glory will leave Roosevelt field early tomorrow morning bound for Harbor Grace, N. F., to search for the missing British flyers of the crew of the St. Raphael. Philip Payne, Hearst representative, announced tonight.

180 LIVES LOST IN FLOODS IN SOUTHERN POLAND

WARSAW, Poland, Sept.1—(AP)—More than 180 persons have perished, as estimated by present reports in the floods which have raged in southern Poland. Ten thousand persons are homeless and utterly destitute.

The town of Kuty has been destroyed and the fortress town of Przemysl, of 47,000 inhabitants, is inundated. The oil fields near Drohobycz and Borysiav are badly damaged.

The flood area extends for 15 miles from Przemsyl and Sambor in the north to the Rumanian frontier. Airplanes are being used in directing rescuers to the most distressed places. And there are many instances of heroic rescues of women and children by soldiers and students, some of whom lost their lives.

A heavy rainfall continues.

OBITUARY

Elwood L. Wilson

MANOMET, Mass., Sept. 1—(AP)—Elwood L. Wilson of Jamaica Plain, assistant passenger traffic manager of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, died suddenly at his summer home on Long pond here today. He was 55 years old. He entered the employ of the road 33 years ago as secretary to the passenger traffic manager at New Haven. He was appointed assistant general passenger agent at Boston on March 11, 1912, and was promoted to the position he held at his death on July 1, 1924. He was a native of Bridgeville, Del.

MAYOR WALKER FOUND GERMANY PROSPEROUS

MUNICH, Germany, Sept. 1—(AP)—Mayor Walker of New York, before embarking on the night train for Venice summed up Germany as "a smiling land of smiling people, happy, prosperous, thrifty, industrious, with a great future before them", as he bade farewell to the country.

His European trip, which carried him from the Blarney stone to the Munich ratshaus, familiarized him with more varied aspects of the science of municipal administration and night life than he could have absorbed had he covered the same distance in the United States, he said.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, Sept. 1—(AP)—Plans for a $10,000,000 garden city for mental defectives on a beautiful estate near London are being completed by the Middlesex County council and the Ministry of Health.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 1—(AP)—A manifesto issued by the Geneva section of the Sacco-Vanzetti committee, urging a general boycott of American products, leads the Journal de Geneve to stigmatize the movement as "[illegible] and only calculated not to harm the great United States, but little Switzerland, which desires to sell abroad."

SUPREME COURT CURBS CIGARETTE TESTIMONIALS

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—There will be no gilded poor farms for writers of cigarette testimonials who have cracked under the strain, for the supreme court has denied incorporation to the Tobacco Society for Voice Culture which had this worthy aim as one of its several objects.

"Too frivolous," said Supreme Court Justice Alfred Frankenstein, brushing aside today the application for incorporation submitted by Henry Epstein, founder and president of the society.

Among the other boons to humanity which the society has pledged itself to accomplish are rewards to those possessing the smoothest and mellowest voices, cultivated and developed by smooth cigarettes; voice culture through cigarette smoking; establishment of the cigarette as a medicine and not a pleasure; and the "improvement of cigarette advertising so that the same shall be directed toward the health and comfort of the public."

ANOTHER TRAIN HELD-UP BY MEXICAN BANDITS

NOGALES, Ariz., Sept. 1—(AP)—A dispatch to the Nogales Herald today said one person was reported killed in an attack by bandits on a Southern Pacific of Mexico passenger train yesterday near Acaponeta, Narat, near the place where Miss Florence Anderson, Los Angeles school teacher, was fatally wounded. Railroad officials here declined to comment and said that a 12 hour delay in the train's arrival here was due to a landslide.

Other dispatches reported that bandits looted the Ahualuco station of the Mexican railways near Guadalajara on Monday. The station agent and several women were reported to have been taken prisoners.

MRS. LOIS K. DODGE WEDS LIEUT. B. F. MANNING

HONOLULU, Sept. 1—(AP)—Mrs. Lois Knowlton Dodge, divorced wife of Horace Dodge, of the Detroit automobile manufacturing family was married today to Lieut. Benjamin Franklin Manning, U. S. A.

The wedding took place at the home of Kenneth Harlan, a motion picture actor, the ceremony being that of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Manning's wife was killed in an automobile accident, last New Year's eve. Mrs. Dodge came to Honolulu recently after her divorce in Detroit.

Manning is a first lieutenant of coast artillery and is stationed at Fort Ruger, near this city.

NORTHERN CHINESE FORCES HAVE EVACUATED PUKOW

SHANGHAI, Sept. 1—(AP)—Nationalist headquarters assert that the northern forces have evacuated Pukow, opposite Nanking. The nationalists add that the evacuation was made necessary by the arrival of nationalist reinforcements from Hankow which threatened to cut off General Sun Chuan-Fang, northern commander, from his allies by severing the Tientsin-Pukow railway at Pengpo.

At the same time foreign reports state that the northerners gradually are working their way across the Yangtze.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS TO KEEP SCHOOLS CLOSED

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 1—(AP)—Dr. Charles H. Voorhies, city health officer, said today that no educational institutions in Lexington, including the University of Kentucky, will be permitted to open until the infantile paralysis situation has been demonstrated to be under control. Tentatively the date for lifting the ban against schools has been set for Sept. 20, provided no new cases develop in this county.

EXTRADITION PAPERS FOR PLANTSVILLE BANK ROBBER

HARTFORD, Sept. 1—(AP)—Necessary details in the drawing up of papers requesting the extradition of William Kappella, alleged Plantsville bank robber, who is being held in Chicago, following his apprehension by State Policeman Paul Lavin, were being completed today by the state police department. It was expected that the papers would be ready to be presented to Lieut. Governor Brainard tomorrow for his signature.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 1—(AP)—W. F. Carver, 87, Indian scout, plainsman, Civil War veteran and associate of the late "Buffalo Bill" Cody, is dead here. At one time Carver was recognized as the world's champion rifle and pistol shot. Carver and "Buffalo Bill" organized a "Wild West" show following the passing of the frontier days.

Interment will be at Winslow, Ill., his native town.

STATE OF TEXAS WINS 250 ACRES OF OIL LANDS

AUSTIN, TEX., Sept. 1—(AP)—The State of Texas was given judgment for undetermined millions of dollars in district court here today when Judge George C. Calhoun awarded it title to 265 acres of Harris County oil land involved in the famous R. L. Blaffer suit in which there were more than 50 litigants, including several big oil companies.

Theatrical Strike Threatens to Spread

Operators at Minneapolis, Musicians at Richmond and Employes at Los Angeles Threaten Walk Outs.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Several other cities today reported threatened ruptures of relations between movie theatre owners and their employes as stage hands and operators here agreed to stand together on their demands that have closed virtually all of the city's movie and vaudeville houses.

Operators at Minneapolis, musicians at Richmond Va., employes at Los Angeles, all threatened walkouts over contracts.

Operators and musicians of three Detroit theatre houses quit last night when they failed to effect new contracts.

The Chicago Federation of Labor and the Theatre Janitors' union today extended their moral support to the stage hands, musicians and operators thrown out of work by the controversy which began as a strike and developed into a lockout.

While the stage hands, who called a strike last night, after representatives failed to make a new contract, and operators were pledging allegiance, theatre owners again declared their intention to hold out "at all costs." The costs so far in the three days that the playhouses have been closed are estimated by them as almost $750,000 in lost revenue.

AMELIA BINGHAM, ACTRESS, DIED OF HEART TROUBLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—Amelia Bingham, one of the stars of the American stage at the turn of the century, died today at her home on Riverside Drive at the age of 58. Heart trouble, combined with a slight attack of pneumonia was the cause of death.

For eight months she had been an invalid and during the last week she remained inside her apartment though not confined to bed. This morning she went to her window to watch the rain. The effort of getting to the window was too much for her and she was taken to bed.

"I am afraid we are nearing the end," she said, and a few minutes later she died, her sister, Mrs. Mino Leslie, at her bedside.

The veteran actress was an earnest believer in spiritualism and for some time was convinced she might obtain help in her illness from her dead husband, Lloyd Bingham, with whom, she told friends, she had been in communication to through a medium to those nearest her she confided that he had recently sent a message saying, "Don't think so much about death, Amelia. write the book."

This was in reference to her memoirs, on which she had been at work for a long time.

Mrs. Bingham was one of the first of the stars of the legitimate stage to go into vaudeville. During the war she toured the country in that medium and devoted much time to speeches in behalf of the liberty loan. She made her last appearance on the stage last season in the "Pearl of Great Price."

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO MEXICAN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—(AP)—Devoting a portion of his message to the Mexican congress to relations with the United States, President Calles, according to a translation made public by the Mexican embassy here, said that they "unfortunately present a character of incidents which frequently resolves itself in disagreement and even culminates in polemics between the governments."

Specific reference was made to the controverted article 27 of the Mexican constitution, President Calles declaring that up to now "there has not been presented to the government of Mexico concrete actions that evidently constitute aggressions of rejections to foreign capital invested in the oil industry." On the other hand, he continued, foreign capital has shown "activities the contumacy and disrespect of which no independent country can admit."

However, President Calles said that the Mexican government "trusts that the spirit of good will and cordial understanding of our problems may inspire the acrid discussion still latent between the two countries for the final settlement of these affairs so transcendental."

FARMERS ENCOURAGED BY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

NEWELL, S. D., Sept. 1—(AP)—Words of encouragement were spoken to farmers of the Bellefourche irrigation project by President Coolidge today after he had toured the government experimental farm.

The president had left his automobile for the first time during the trip about the farm to receive a miniature "irrigation shovel" from W. C. Bucholz, secretary to the station. Several hundred farmers and their wives gathered about the car.

"I have been very interested in viewing the progress of this irrigation project," Mr. Coolidge said.

"We were not certain that it would be a success but more recent experiments have demonstrated that it is a success.

"I believe that it will contribute to the welfare of this section, that it will sustain an increasing population and that it will contribute to the productivity of the soil in this region."

Mr. Coolidge smiled broadly when he was invited to make his home in the irrigation project when he leaves the white house.

Six Linemen Were Killed by 33,000 Volts

They Came Into Contact With a High Tension Electric Wire Near Timplin, Pa.

TIMBLIN, Pa., Sept. 1—(AP)—Six men were electrocuted near here this afternoon when they came into contact with a high tension wire carrying 33,000 volts. The victims were linemen employed by the Penn Public Service corporation.

The crew of eight men left Punxsutawney earlier in the day to erect a new private telephone line for the Penn Public Service corporation over is high tension course in western Jefferson county. They had been at work several hours when the accident occurred.

All of the victims, with the exception of Smith, were dragging the wire over the insulators of the telephone pole line. Grube and MacMillan were working ahead when Grube looked back and saw the other five prone on the ground. Joined by Smith, who had been atop a pole, Grube and McMillan hurried to their aid. Smith in his efforts to free his comrades from the deadly wire, received the full charge himself and was knocked unconscious.

Physicians and nurses were summoned from nearby towns by McMillan and Grube, who telephoned the Timblin power towns to shutoff the current. The five men apparently were dead when help arrived but Smith was still alive. First aid crews worked over them for three hours in an effort to resuciatate them.

Smith died a short time before ambulances arrived from Punxsutawney. Then physicians gave up hope of reviving anw of them and the six bodies were removed to their homes.

MAN DROWNED WAS IN PLOT TO COLLECT $140,000 INSURANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—Young Benjamin Goldstein, who was thrown into the waters of Gravesend bay to drown last week, thought he was a conspirator rather than a victim in a plot to collect $140,000 insurance on his life, the police asserted today.

When he set out from Coney Island in a rowboat with his two companions, who police say have confessed to his murder, he thought he was taking part in a plot to circulate a report of his death while he went into hiding; he did not know the report would be true. Detectives said they learned this from members of the young man's family.

A middle-aged man, described by the police as the puppet-master who worked the wires in the tragedy of death in which three weak young men were the actors, was grilled all day at police headquarters, but confessed nothing, and arraigned on a charge of murder, pleaded not guilty.

Harry Greenberg, 17, and Irving Rubinzahl, 22, both of whom have ambitions as pugilists, told the police they were the hirlings of Joseph Lefkowitz, 42, the beneficiary of the insurance policies, when they left their companion to drown. But each insisted the other actually pushed Goldstein from the boat. Both were arraigned for murder and pleaded not guilty.

Lefkowitz, a broad-shouldered, muscular man with active dark eyes, was calm throughout hours of questioning. He frankly declared he had talked with Greenberg and Rubinzahl the night before the drowning, that he had taken the insurance policies to the home of his sister-in-law the day the young man's body was found, but he asserted he knew nothing of any plot to drown him.

WRECKED PLANE WAS FOUND ON A GLACIER

VIENNA, Sept. 1—(AP)—A strange aviation accident has been disclosed through the finding of the wreckage of a Jugoslave military airplane on a glacier in the Voralberg sector, just below Isabella peak, with her pilot still alive, although injured and her observer frozen to death.

The machine was one of a group of thirteen which left Belgrade for Prague Saturday. This one alone failed to reach its destination. It was found near the Reutlinger shelter by Alpine guides who were sent out to search for it.

The pilot, a Jugoslav subaltern, was found hear the machine still alive but with both legs broken. The body of the observer, Colonel Petrovich, was found frozen some distance from the plane. The colonel evidently had gone in search of assistance and had wandered and lost his way. He collapsed a few hundred yards from salvation.

GIN SHIPMENT BETRAYED BY A BROKEN BOTTLE

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 1—(AP)—One broken bottle betrayed a whole shipment of gin bound from New York city to Nantucket today.

Five big black trunks, all identical, consigned collect to "A Munger, 25 Pleasant street, Nantucket," were stacked on the New Bedford, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket Steamboat company's dock awaiting shipment on the late afternoon boat for the island. An odor of alcohol about one of them attracted dock workers suspicions and police were called. Their investigation disclosed that the trunk contained three cases of alleged gin carefully packed in excelsior. Three others contained a similar amount and the fifth had only two cases.

The entire shipment was seized. It was accepted at the Grand Central terminal, New York, August 31, according to express tags on the trunks. The destination address was written on Pennsylvania hotel tags.

FIRST AIR SERVICE CARRYING MAIL, EXPRESS MATTER AND PASSENGERS

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—(AP)—An epoch in transportation was recorded here today when the first air express and regular passenger service planes of the National Air Transport, Inc., soared from the Maywood air mail field, carrying mail, express matter and passengers.

The first passenger and express left Chicago for Dallas at 6.50 a. m., central standard time, carrying two passengers, 20 shipments of express and eight pouches of air mail.

At 8.25 a. m., the second air express took the air this time for New York city, carrying 2234 pounds of express and 562 pounds of air mail.

Dr. A. W. Grouws, of Dallas, Texas, and L. G. Strength, of Chicago were the first persons to pay their fares and ride as passengers in the Dallas-bound travel-air-cabin monoplane. The fair from Chicago to Dallas is $100.20.

CONN EXPENDITURES AND RECEIPTS ABOVE $30,000,000

HARTFORD, Sept. 1—(AP)—Receipts and expenditures of the state of Connecticut rose above $30,000,000 for the first time in the state's history during the fiscal year, which ended June 30, according to an abstract from the 1927 report of State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers, made public today.

Excess expenditures by a substantial amount for the sixth consecutive year, receipts were $32,209,602.77, the report shows. Payments from the state treasury totaled $30,620,561.68, or $1,589,042.09 less than receipts. Cash on hand at the close of the fiscal year amounted to $5,089,169.07. The figures do not include money in trust funds.

Expenses during the year increased at a slightly greater rate than receipts, both being more than $2,500,000 greater than during the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1926. The past fiscal year's receipts were $2,598,926.63 greater than the $29,610,677.14 taken into the treasury the year before while expenditures were $2,646,098.53 larger than the $27,974,463.15 of the year ended June 30, 1926.

The amount of money collected and spent by the state annually has more than doubled in the past ten years, comparative figures given in the report show. In 1918, when the fiscal year ended on September 30, the receipts for 12 months were $15,189,326.87 and the payments $12,403,034.22.

A report of the state debt and sinking fund shows that the funded debt on June 30 remained at $26,257,100, the same as in the past five years, while cash and investments in the sinking fund amounted to $13,014,973.18. The amount yet to be accumulated to meet the debt, most of which consists of bonds due to be retired in 1936, is $3,276,126.82.

513 AUTO ACCIDENTS IN THE STATE LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Sept. 1—(AP)—The accident report issued today by the department of motor vehicles for the week ending August 27 was practically be same as that for the corresponding week of 1927. It showed that 513 accidents occurred during the week, of which 290 were in the 14 cities for which detailed reports are given, as compared with 596 a year ago, of which 290 were in the cities.

Eight fatal accidents took a toll of nine lives while last year 14 persons were killed in 10 fatal accidents.

Hartford reported the greatest number of accidents, having 34 or four more than Bridgeport. Waterbury had an unusually bad week, reporting 45 accidents, two more than in New Haven. Totals for the other cities were: New Britain, 17; Greenwich, 14; Meriden, 14; Norwalk, 14; Norwich, 10; Danbury, 9; New London, 9; Stamford, 9; Middletown, 3; Winsted 2.

Places where the fatal accidents occurred and those who were killed follows: Norfolk, Louis Roller; Hampton, Lionel Blain; Bridgeport, Augustine Damore; Hartford, Thomas C. Clark; South Norwalk, Alfred Paulus; New Haven, John Hogan; Meriden, Paul Peugot, and William Tabok; New London, Carmallo Langello.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL FOR IRWIN KIRKWOOD

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 1—(AP)—Kansas City paused for a moment this afternoon to pay its last respects to Irwin Kirkwood, late editor of the Kansas City Star, and the last member of the William Rockhill Nelson family that for nearly a half century has controlled the Star and had a dominant influence in the upbuilding of the city.

After an impressive ceremony the body was laid to rest beside Mrs. Kirkwood, who died in February 1926, and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson. Mrs. Kirkwood was the Nelson's only child.

The passing of Mr. Kirkwood leaves the Star in the control of employes of the paper, several of whom had been associated with Mr. Nelson since he founded the paper in 1880.

Following the death of Mrs. Kirkwood last year, Mr. Kirkwood and Star employes purchased the paper. The by-laws of the corporation provided that in event of the death of a stockholder or his leaving the Star's employ, his stock was made available by purchase to the remaining stockholders. Associates have arranged to absorb Mr. Kirkwood's stock.

BURGLARS STEAL SAFE BUT GET NO MONEY

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 1—A second attempt to make a haul from the safe at the office of the Texas Oil company plant on Columbia avenue proved futile when tried late Wednesday night or early this morning when no money was found in the safe. The disappointment must have been a keen one to the thieves who had gone to the trouble of lugging the 500 pound steel box a distance of over 200 yards from the office to the rear of a pile of railroad ties near Mulligan's sandbank. As on previous occasion the burglars had to get over a tall wire enclosure which protects the oil company yard from intruders. A window in the small office building was smashed open and then in order to get the safe out the door was torn from its hinges. The big safe was then hauled along the office platform, down five steps to the yard and across this a distance of 200 feet to the west gate of the enclosure This gate was forced open and the safe rolled to the sand pit some 100 feet from the Hartford-Willimantic highway. The safe door was then demolished. The combination dial and knob had been chiselled off and the rod controlling the tumblers of the lock had been hammered through the door into the interior to allow the opening of the door. A composition of clay found near the wrecked safe first led to the belief that nitroglycerine had been used and the clay plastered over the explosive to deaden the sound but this theory was practically discredited. It is the belief of some that the composition is used as a packing inside of the safe

Agent Joseph Florentine said that since the last break at the plant he had not allowed a penny to remain overnight in the safe. All that the burglars found after their arduous task were several handfuls of receipts and waybills and the like, which were found strewn about the ground and nearly all of which were accounted for a few hours after the discovery of the break. The Mulligan brothers who went to the sand pit about 6 o'clock this morning saw the yard gate open and the office window broken. About this time Agent Florentine came to take up his duties for the day. The police were notified and Chief of Police Thomas P. Grady assigned Grant Bombria to the case The oil company office was broken into on the night of July 3 or the morning of the 4th. On that occasion the burglars had filed to "jimmy" the safe door open. They would have been in better luck than last night for the safe contained several hundred dollars at the time. The police believe that the two breaks at the oil plant and the one committed at the Jordan Auto company garage two weeks ago when about $750 was taken from the safe, are the work of the same parties. The method of getting the safe doors open at both places are practically identical. Although working on slim clues the police are pushing their investigation into the breaks.

CHAFFEE CO. IS SOLD TO TROY CONCERN

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 1—Colonel Joseph Dwight Chaffee, president of the Chaffee Manufacturing company, manufacturers of silk braid and fish lines, announced today that the firm had disposed of the machinery and business to Charles H. Weare of Troy, N. Y., the transfer of ownership being effective today. Mr. Weare will make several changes in the plant and in adding several pieces of machinery hopes to soon have the plant in operation with a good sized force of operatives. The building is of brick, three stories in height and about 12,000 square feet of floor space. The structure remains the property of Colonel Chaffee.

Colonel Chaffee's retirement from business marks the passing into private life of one of the pioneer silk manufacturers of the country. For 63 years he has been connected with the industry, either as owner or in a managerial capacity. He has conducted the business disposed of today for 45 years, being assisted for many years by his two sons, Arthur D. Chaffee, now of Higganum and C. Howard Chaffee of this city.

Colonel Chaffee was born August 9, 1846 in Mansfield, the son of O. S. Chaffee, also a silk manufacturer. He went "on his own" at the age of 18 when he joined with Newton Morton and went into the silk manufacturing business in a frame building now the site of the G. J. Kirby company plant in Mansfield Hollow. One year later he returned to his father's silk plant in Chaffeeville, Mansfield. Nearly half a century ago he purchased the brick building at the corner of Valley and Church streets the purchasing including the business conducted by the Paisley Silk company also manufacturers of thread The building was purchased from O. L. Smith. With Colonel Chaffee as president, the Natchaug Silk company was formed in 1886 and for a time occupied the building now occupied by the Willimantic Printing company. Soon more room was needed and it was provided when the late W. G. and A. R. Morrison built the three-story brick structure on North and Valley streets now occupied by the Windham Silk company. Colonel Chaffee disposed of his silk braid and fish line business to the Natchaug Silk company at this time. In 1895 the company ran into reverses and after closing for a time gradually dissolved. The L. D. Brown Silk company of Middletown bought the weaving looms and operated part of the plant for a time. Colonel Chaffee took over the silk braid machinery from the Natchaug Silk company about 1897 and began the business which he has just disposed of. The L. D. Brown company removed their machinery to their Middletown plant in 1899 and a year later the Windham Silk company was organized. The Max Pollock Thread company conducted a plant on the top floor of the Windham Silk building for about a year and then moved to Conantville. The Chaffee block on Church street was built in 1860 by Warren Atwood as a flour mill.

Up to some years ago Colonel Chaffee held a position of prominence in this part of Connecticut. He represented Mansfield in the general assembly in the session of 1871-72. He was state senator from the 24th district in the session of 1885-86 and a member of the staff to overnor Phineas G. Lounsbury in 1887-89. Colonel Chaffee holds the distinction of having been the first person in this section to have a telephone installed by the Southern New England Telephone company 43 years ago. A canvass was made for ten telephones in order to introduce the new instrument in the city. Colonel Chaffee signed up for three of the "phones" having one installed in his plant, one at his home and one at the plant in Chaffeeville, Mansfield. Others who subscribed to the telephones at the time included C. J. Fox, Dr. Morton T. Hills and H. E. Remington, all since deceased.

State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald met some 50 selectmen representing 12 of the 15 towns of Windham county at the town hall here this afternoon to explain the administration of the state aid road fund under the revised laws. The roll call by W. E. Hulse of Hartford, state aid supervisor of the highway department, showed the following towns represented: Canterbury, Eastford, Hampton, Killingly, Plainfield, Pomfret, Putnam, Scotland, Sterling, Thompson, Windham and Woodstock. The three not represented were Ashford, Brooklyn and Chaplin. Selectmen Ernest P. Chesebro, Jeremiah C. Healy and C. Arthur Keeney represented Windham.

The talk by Commissioner Macdonald was along lines similar to addresses given before similar meetings in New London, Norwich and in various cities taking in the eight counties. An address was given in Rockville in the morning. The majority of the towns are taking advantage of the state aid fund, according to Commissioner Macdonald, although a definite checkup will not be made until the time for taking this opportunity for road building closes on October 15. Asked what there was of particular interest to this section forthcoming from the highway department the commissioner pointed out that Windham county has the biggest contract in the state due to the construction of the new highway from Mansfield Four Corners, through Ashford to Phoenixville, for a more direct route from Hartford to Putnam.

Mrs. Malvina Cote Roberge, 60, wife of Arthur Roberge of 112 Ives street died at a New Britain hospital Wednesday. She was born in Buckland, Canada, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs Xavier Nadeau Cote. Residents of upper Jackson street were seeking a dog today in an endeavor to replace a tail which had apparently been cut off in some manner and which was found on the road. The tail, a fluffy, bushy one, was said by children to have been somewhat bloody when found but later it was practically established that it may have been a fox tail taken from a fur neck piece. All dogs in the neighborhood were forced to answer roll call during the day to determine if they were carrying their tails.

GOOD CROWD AT ELKS FAIR DESPITE THE RAIN

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 1—Despite a drizzling rain which continued well into the evening gate receipts were not lacking at the grand opening of the annual Elks country fair at Elks park on Pleasant street here tonight. In the presence of a fair sized audience the opening was officially announced by Ernest L. Averill of Branford, deputy attorney general of Connecticut. In the party with Attorney Averill were Raymond F. Gates, head of the state aid, agencies and Attorney Raymond Johnson of Manchester, Sheriff Charles A. Gates of this city and Harold C. Lincoln, chairman of the general fair committee. The official party were escorted into the park by the B. P. O. E. band which rendered concert music during the evening and will continue to do so during the run of the fair under the direction of Band Master C. N. C. Wheeler. J. Francis Keon, chairman of the entertainment committee, had arrangements completed for all of the various features, such as the style show, doll carriage parade, dog show and bathing beauty contest to be held on schedule. For those who braved the slight rain found the park unusually attractive with all the booths well filled the long sheds brimming with exhibits of many varieties and the whole scene brightly illuminated by an improvised lighting system. The dance hall where music was furnished by the Peerless orchestra proved a popular place tonight.

at Hyannis, Mass. He said he wanted to buy some brick-making machinery to add to his collection at Wayside Inn. Mr. Arden took Mr. Ford outside to show him what he had. Mr. Ford was satisfied and inquired for the price, and was told there was no price because the machinery was useless to the owner and was just lying around. It was more than the manufacturer of automobiles could understand, and he went back to his car actually scratching his head. A few days later a new oneton truck was driven up to Mr. Arden's door, and with it came a receipted bill of sale.—Boston Globe.

I've found a new soap that soaks out stains

I NEVER saw clothes get clean so easily—and so safely!

I just soak my week's wash in the rich, mild Rinso suds. Rinso soaks out the dirt and stains. They float right off by themselves, and I haven't a bit of hard rubbing to do.

Rinso is a different kind of laundry soap—granulated. It's so economical. It's all I need on washday. No bar soaps, chips or powders. Rinso alone makes our water wonderfully sudsy.

It's so easy on my hands, too. They don't get red now, as they did with old-fashioned soaps and powders.

My friend tells me Rinso is great in her washer. The makers of 30 leading machines endorse it.

DANIELSON

LOCAL SUBSCRIBERS RECEIVE NOTICE OF NEW PHONE RATES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Sept. 1—Something they have been anticipating for some time came to subscribers in the Danielson division of the Southern New England Telephone company this morning—notices of advances in rates. The rental rates apply only to certain classes of service and are not generally regarded as excessive, though, naturally, they cause some grumbling.

On residence telephones the proposed rate is $2.75 monthly as against $2.50 at the present time. On party line service there is no change from the present rate of $2.00 monthly.

On business telephones the rate is stepped up from $4.00 monthly for an individual line to $4.25. Auxiliary lines are advanced from $3.00 to $4.25. There is no change from the business party line rate of $3.00 a month at present in force. What are known as professional party lines are to be advanced from $2.50 to $3.00. Individual professional lines are to be advanced from $3.25 to $4.25.

All of the above quoted prices are on what are known as base rates. Similar increases are to be made to subscribers outside the base rate area.

With the notice of the proposed new rates the telephone company has sent to each subscriber in the Danielson division a statement of the situation which necessitates an increase for various classes of service in certain Connecticut exchanges.

As a booster for the plan to give Danielson an airport, a flying circus is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday of next week, as it happens at the Kimball farm in the town of Brooklyn, across the river from Goodyear. The Kimball farm has been selected because it includes a large field that is splendid for landing and taking off planes.

On both days of the circus there is to be straight and stunt flying, parachute drops and demonstrations of the advancement of aeronautics to the point where flying fields or airports are needed in centrally located communities, of which Danielson happens to be one.

Borough officials and former borough officials maintain a live interest in the plan to give Danielson an airport. There is a practical certainty that planes will be very numerous within the next five years and the towns that have airports will benefit materially in business and in publicity.

It is hoped to have several thousand people from this territory go to the Kimball farm, on Sept. 10 and 11, watch the planes, inspect them and get a more intimate idea of the flying business. And the free show will be well worth while. A plane owned by Alanson Colvin of Danielson is to be flown by a Hartford pilot and another Hartford pilot and machine will constitute the aerial circus.

It would appear today that the plan to have Killingly use voting machines in its elections is far from dead, though it received a definite check and set back at last evening's special town meeting. Here's a proposal that seems destined to bob up again and again, much as did the matter of buying the present town hall building.

Only 129 votes out of nearly 2,750 in the town were registered in the special town meeting voting on the matter. Those favoring the purchase of the machines feel that a more general expression of opinion on the matter might produce a result entirely different from that of Wednesday evening.

Also, it was pointed out today, there was very general opposition to the introduction of the machines by residents of the second and third voting districts and voters of these districts predominated at the special town meeting. It is also true that some first district (Danielson) electors voted against the voting machine proposition and equally true that some second and third district electors voted favorable to it.

While impunging no one's motives in voting as they happen to see fit, there were sharp critics of Former Selectman Patrick Riley of Dayville today as to his motion to lay the matter on the table. The criticisms are based on the fact that the motion cut off explanation or debate relative to the machines and prevented numbers of open-minded people at the meeting learning something about a subject with which they admit they are not all familiar, but would like to be. Considerable of the criticism of Mr. Riley came from members of his own political party—the democrats.

Debate or explanation might not have made any great difference in the outcome, it was admitted by the critics, but it would have been constructive and informative.

Next Sunday, it was mentioned by E. C. Rapp, World war and Spanish war veteran, today, members of the 18th Coast Artillery that saw hard active service overseas during the World war are to assemble at Fort H. G. Wright on Fishers Island for the unveiling of a memorial tablet to members of the corps who died in service or who have passed on since the close of the great conflict. The tablet bears the names of those honored dead.

Danielson has a particular interest in this solemn event for from this community an entire company of artillerymen of this unit went out to the World war. The men put in a long period of training at Fort Wright before going overseas, and it is anticipated that as many of them as possible will arrange to be at Fort Wright on Sunday, to do honor to their comrades in arms who have passed on and to renew old friendships and talk over the experiences of the hectic months they spent together in the battle areas of France. Plans for the trip were being discussed today by groups of the former coast artillerymen.

Perusal of a yellowed and crumbling copy of the New England Arena, the property of W. Clarence Bacon, today conjured up pictures of West Killingly back in 1847, the time when the paper was issued here. West Killingly, be it known, was then what is Danielson of today.

Of special interest now is that the old paper contains advertisements of two concerns that are still actively engaged in trade in Danielson. One of these advertisements is by Wm. C. Bacon and Co. The offerings included chairs, coffins, clothes pounders, beatives and many household articles. W. Clarence Bacon, grandson of William C., is continuing this business, as his father, Charles H. Bacon, still connected actively with the store, did before him. This firm was established in 1820.

Another advertisement was by Amasa Dowe, great-grandfather of John M. Dowe, now proprietor of the business that has come down to him through three generations of his ancestors.

Many are the quaint advertisements and announcements in the paper, which Mr. Bacon prizes highly and which he is to take means to preserve indefinitely.

Danielson business men split today on whether this first day of September was a Thursday half-holiday or not, numbers of the stores closing at noon, others remaining open.

With a northeaster in perfect working order and rain falling steadily, this afternoon did not offer either an attractive holiday or shopping temptation.

Party caucuses at which candidates for town offices will be named are to be held within a few days. The annual town election will be on the first Monday in October.

Numbers from this territory who had planned to attend the fair at Oxford today had to cancel their plans because of the bad weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Nicholson of Dayville have been entertaining relatives from New York.

South Killingly residents who have been visiting with relatives on Long Island are B. E. Terwilliger, Arthur Terwilliger and the Misses Margaret and Louise Terwilliger.

This afternoon the body of John Regan, who died as the result of injuries received when he was struck by a locomotive at Wauregan Tuesday morning was removed from the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy here to the home of Jeremiah Doyle, a relative, at Wauregan.

This is the final week of the season for some of the cottagers at Alexander's lake and Old Killingly pond, but others of the summer colonists will remain through September.

A holiday schedule of hours will be force at the postoffice on Monday—Labor day—with the usual holiday restrictions in service.

William A. Frenette of New Bedford is spending the holiday period with friends in Danielson.

Painting has been under way at the School street school this week as a part of the work of making the building ready for the opening of the new school year next Tuesday morning.

A canvass of voters is already under way in Killingly in the interest of democratic candidates who wish nominations for the office of selectmen, and the caucus promises to be an unusually interesting one.

It has been remarked many times since the trolley tracks were removed from the center of a part of Main street that the thoroughfare appears wider.

The body of Miss Gertrude Martin, 28, who died at a hospital in Norwich yesterday afternoon, was brought to the home on Dyer street in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Miss Martin had been in impaired health for a number of years.

PUTNAM

SEVERAL CHANGES IN SCHOOL TEACHING STAFF

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 1—The public schools of the town of Putnam will open for the fall term on Wednesday, September 7, at 9 o'clock, daylight saving time.

The corps of teachers will be the same as that of last year with the following exceptions: Miss Sara C. Barber will take the place of Miss Prudence Paine as assistant in English in the Putnam high school; Lewis F. Battey succeeds J. Vey Merrill as principal of the Israel Putnam school; Miss Helen Feen follows Mrs. J. V. Merrill as teacher in the seventh grade at the Israel Putnam school and Miss Ruth Fallon takes the place of Mrs. Everett D. Packard as teacher of the intermediate room at the Smith Street school.

In several of the schools extensive repairs have been made and all of the school buildings are in readiness for the opening. The new tennis courts at the high school are completed and new sidewalks have been laid between the high school and the State Trade school. Two additional rooms are now available for high school purposes at the high school building. The eighth grade will occupy two rooms instead of one as heretofore. The high school basement and gymnasium have been painted, the teachers' room has been redecorated and several classrooms have been also redecorated. The Sawyer school has been painted inside and out.

A general teachers' meeting for all teachers has been called for Tuesday, September 6, at 1:30 p. m., to be held in the high school building. All teachers should bring their certificates to this meeting for validation. The meeting will be addressed by Frederick S. Camp, supervisor of elementary education, state board of education.

Pupils will be brought from the outside districts to Putnam by five transportation routes. Elementary school pupils from the Little River road to Israel Putnam school, elementary and high school pupils from Putnam Heights to Israel Putnam and high schools, elementary and high school pupils from East Putnam to high school and Israel Putnam schools.

Lunches will be served at cost to Putnam high school pupils and Israel Putnam schools.

All pupils must be vaccinated in order to enter the Putnam schools.

Toxin, anti-toxin innoculation against diphtheria is advised, though not compulsory.

Lieutenant Charles G. Woodward gave the members of the Headquarters company, forty-third division, instructions in signalling, visual and telegraphic after a short drill at the armory this week. The company has now room for fifteen or twenty more enlisted men in the company before it reaches its maximum strength and efforts are being made to fill the roster.

Lawrence Phaneuf of Wilkinson street has returned from a trip beginning at Putnam and going to San Francisco and Los Angeles and then back to Putnam. With a companion from Boston the young man left here six weeks ago on a "hitch-hiking" or "bumming" trip. Following a central route across the continent, it took just three weeks to make the journey to the west coast and then after a short stay there the return trip was also made in the same manner in about the same time.

The Misses Lorena and Elsie Gallant of Church street have returned from their two months' trip aboard. During their tour they visited France, Italy and Switzerland. They found Paris the most interesting city and spent a month there. In Italy they visited many of the famous ruins and other points of interest and in Switzerland, they climbed almost to the top of the Jungfrau. They will remain with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Gallant for a visit and then Miss Lorena will resume her duties as nurse at the American Thread mills in Willimantic and Miss Elsie will take up her studies of law in Hartford.

A number of Putnam sportsmen are planning to attend the second annual outing and field day of Connecticut sportsmen which is to be held at Lake Compounce on Saturday.

Funeral services for Miss Ellen Hazzard were held this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Law on Grove street and were conducted by Revs. Henry E. Hodge pastor of the Baptist church of this city. Burial was in Grove street cemetery.

Miss Hazzard was an aunt of Mrs. Law and had made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Law for many years. She is the last member of a family that at one time was very prominent in this section. Her brother, Horace N. Hazzard, who died three weeks ago, was a contractor, a member of the firm of Kelly and Hazzard and built many of the business blocks in this city.

Mrs. Paul Mondor of Ballouville is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital as the result of an unusual accident. While carrying a basket of clothes down stairs to hang them out to dry, she tripped in some way and fell with her burden down the stairs, landing at the bottom of them. She suffered a fracture of the right knee cap and was brought to the hospital for treatment.

The community was greatly shocked over the sudden death of Charles Miron, news of which was in The Bulletin this morning. He was about sixty years of age and was well preserved and looked ten years younger than his age.

Mrs. Miron had been at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keach at North Ashford, both of whom are ill and she had not heard from her husband since Monday night.

Beside Attorney Irving H. Miron, who is also town tax collector he leaves one other son, Charles E. Miron of West Glocester, R. I.

Miss Edith Child of South Main street has returned from a visit of a month with friends in Philadelphia. Miss Child will enter on her junior year at Simmons college in Boston this month.

Miss Mary Merriam of South Main street is spending a vacation at Plum beach, Saunderstown, R. I.

Principal of the high school and Mrs. E. L. Robinson and their sons, Raymond and Albert and daughter, Miss Irene, have returned to their home on Church street from their cottage on Webster lake. Mr. Robinson is getting affairs ready for the opening of school next Wednesday morning.

Henry W. Bishop of South Woodstock, Conn., has been appointed administrator of the intestate estate of Salona A. Redhead, late of Woodstock, by Robert E. Harris, judge of probate.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram Dykers of Gilman street and Mrs. Lilicia Duffy of Main street left today for a motor trip to Canada.

John Lynch and Richard Whalen were at Barnstable, Mass., yesterday attending the races.

ROAD SOCIETY

Seth N. Williams and family were at Grove Beach Wednesday, calling on friends from the South who are there for the season.

A two-story brick building in Kansas City used as a telephone exchange was recently moved fifteen feet to permit of the widening of the street, ephone service. By means of flexible connections installed for the purpose, not only the hundreds of telephone lines but the gas, water and sewer service in the building served without interruption while the structure was being moved to its new location, without any interference with the tel-

JEWETT CITY

NORWICH CATHOLIC SOCIETY BEFRIENDS DUPED N. Y. GIRLS

(Special to The Bulletin).

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 1—The case of Manager Barber arrested Wednesday afternoon while preparing to leave town without reimbursing the Eagle restaurant for meals, or paying the Jewett City hotel board bill was tried in Judge Barry's town court this morning. Barber was fined five dollars and costs, which was paid by a sister in Providence, who wired the money to Norwich. Through the instrumentality of Rev. J. J. McCabe, the three girls fares were paid to New York, a Catholic Council Welfare worker from Norwich coming here and taking charge of them to New London, there putting them aboard the New York train. It is said that they belong to a New York company, and that Manager Barber represented to this company that he had engagements to be filled, and these girls were sent to take the places, in all good faith. They had not a cent, and it was fortunate for them that the proprietor of the Eagle restaurant had the man arrested.

Advices received by the local Red Cross chapter gives interesting information to its members here. In addition to its Mississippi valley flood operations, the American Red Cross is now administering relief as a result of four other disasters. More than 7,000 persons left in need of assistance by severe floods in eastern Kentucky recently necessitated relief operations in that state, while a storm in Oklahoma, a cloudburst at Peoria, Ill., and a flood in Hocking county, Ohio, have called the organization into action, within the last few months. In all of these places its representatives are carrying on relief work.

In the Mississippi valley, the organization is still engaged in what is probably the most extensive reconstruction program ever attempted in this country, following a disaster. 607,000 persons received assistance from the Red Cross during the rescue and emergency relief work, many of whom are being given further assistance in reestablishing themselves, as the water subsides and they return to their homes. Refugee camps operated in the Mississippi valley by the American Red Cross are sheltering today fully 2,000 persons whose homes are still inundated. A total of 129,491 persons are being cared for outside of camps.

All but four of the 138 camps which were being maintained at the peak of the flood have been closed and the program of emergency nursing has been completed in all states but Louisiana. Three hundred and twenty-nine nurses have served during the flood and fifty-four are still on duty in Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas where they are continuing the supervision of health work.

Flood waters still cover 169,550 acres of agricultural lands as follows: Arkansas, 10,000 acres; Illinois, 3,450; Louisiana, 130,100 and Mississippi, 21,000. To date 2,170,075 acres have been replanted.

Finn's tonight, Lewis Stone and Barbara Bedford in Notorious Lady.—Adv.

The What Do You Know About Eastern Connecticut questions which began Thursday in The Bulletin will be of interest locally, when those concerning Griswold, Lisbon and Voluntown are asked. One hundred questions and answers have been prepared by the local correspondents, a great deal of the information being given by Daniel L. Phillips, who has spent much time in research for the material for his history of Griswold.

Jennie Eno, two months' old daughter of Edward and Susie Molbram Eno of Glasgo was burned Thursday. Rev. John D. Carey, reading the burial service at the house. Hourigan Bros. were in charge of the arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Finn have been entertaining Col. and Mrs. John D. Wessel of Groton Heights, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wessel of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Mrs. Elizabeth Sleeper and son Harold, of Groton.

Rev. J. W. Carter has a garden of five hundred gladioli, of over fifty varieties.

Rev. and Mrs. G. F. Goodenough and family attended the annual meeting of the Bill Library association, and the annual Bill dinner at Ledyard Wednesday. Mr. Goodenough is one of the trustees of the Library association.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Robinson and son Earl returned Thursday from a trip through the White and Green Mountains visiting in Kenduskeag, Me., and spending a few days at a fishing camp in Jackman, Me.

GALES FERRY

CARL W. BROWN PURCHASES FORMER FRED SMITH COTTAGE

Carl W. Brown of Norwich and Brown's Crossing, it is stated, has purchased the cottage belonging formerly to the New Haven railroad in this place, and occupied for some years, by the late Fred Smith. He will have it moved to a location on the Brown property.

A large assemblage at the Country club house Monday evening greeted the motion pictures given under the auspices of the Men's class of the M. E. church. The first reel shown was Dinner Time in Zooland, followed by Out of the Ink Well, Bubbles. The recent community picnic was shown as a whole in three parts. The major picture of the evening was His Last Race, in five parts. In conclusion Nelson Parker, chairman, expressed thanks to Henry J. McCleer, of New York, a summer resident, who played the piano, for the evening.

A surprise miscellaneous shower was given Tuesday evening for Mr. and Mrs. C. Alton Chapman at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Solon F. Chapman in the Lester district, where Mr. and Mrs. Chapman have resided since their marriage. A new house is nearing completion, not far from the family homestead, which they will soon occupy. Guests were present from Groton, Poquetanuck, Pequonoc Bridge, Ledyard and Gales Ferry. The many gifts included rugs, table linen, pictures, pyrex ware, kitchen utensils, a sewing cabinet, etc. Games were played on the lighted lawn, and the opening of the gifts by Mr. and Mrs. Chapman followed. Sandwiches, cake, cookies and lemonade were served.

District Superintendent Rev. Myron E. Genter of Norwich, presiding, the second quarterly conference was held in the M. E. vestry, Tuesday evening. Mrs. George H. Wright, newly elected president of the Woman's Home Missionary society, was confirmed as a member of the quarterly conference. Matters in the interest of the new parsonage construction were discussed and such action taken as was deemed necessary for the furtherance of the work.

Among those attended the annual Bill dinner at Ledyard Center Wednesday, motoring there were Mr. and Mrs. Alton Stoddard, Mrs. Delphine Fish and Mrs. Gertrude B. Latimer. They were guests of Mrs. Fish's daughter, Mrs. William H. Brooks of Hartford, who also had Miss Jane Hamlin of New Britain as a member of her party, Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Sears had as guests Mrs. Dana Sears, of Hyde Park, Mass., and Mrs. Burwell Hunt and daughter Miss Ruth Hunt, of Bridgewater, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Greenman and daughters, Agnes and Mary, of Norwich, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Noyes and attended the motion pictures at the Country club house, Monday evening.

Station Agent A. O. Faford and Mrs. Faford moved Monday from the cottage of Miss Laura A. Perkins to their new bungalow, recently completed on Allyn road, just north of the Country club house.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester D. Bonestell who have spent the summer in Europe, returned Monday to the home of Mrs. Bonestell's mother, Mrs. Frank A. Aplin, where they joined their young son, Chester D. Jr. They will leave today (Friday) for their home in Los Angeles, California.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Jones of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and son Vincent Jones of New Haven, who were at their summer home on the Bluff here, motored to Cape Cod, last week and spent four days.

Miss Harriet Bishop Brown, of Hartford, a teacher in the Nort West school and a former resident of this place, was the guest over Tuesday night of Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins and a caller on friends here, Wednesday, en route to Groton and Westerly.

Rev. George H. Wright conducted service Sunday morning at the Norwich State hospital.

Friends of James A. Stoddard, who is ill at his home at Long Cove, are encouraged to hear that his condition is somewhat improved.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Pitcher and family with Mrs. Herbert Lawrence, all of Norwich, who have spent the season on the Bluff at the Pitcher cottage are returning to their respective homes Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Clark and children Walter T. Jr., and Malcolm Whiting Clark leave Friday, motoring to Granby, Mass., for a visit over Labor day, with the former's [illegible] and Mrs. Charles R. Clark. They will stop en route that morning at Middletown, where Mrs. Clark will act as judge on art work at the 4-H club fair, of Middlesex county.

BAD HEADLIGHTS

There's bound to be a lot of sympathy with the statement of the judge of a New York police court when he says: "Many a man and woman has lost his life through the use of glaring headlights and the practice is one of the cruelest and meanest that I know of."

States where autos must be equipped with legal lenses and where the glaring headlight is prohibited experience a decided relief from the improved conditions, but it is nevertheless found that there is plenty of opportunity for eliminating this headlight danger by having the headlights properly focused.

Much truth rests in the statement relative to the danger of the bad headlights. It denies the driver going in the opposite direction a fair show by so blinding him that he cannot tell whether he is sticking to his side of the road or really going into the ditch. His vision is shut off until the point is reached where the offending light has passed and by that time all may be well or all wrong.

The practice of driving with dimmed lights is frowned upon. There is no need of it if the headlights are so focused that the rays are thrown downward to the surface of the road instead of being shot straight out or up into the air. This failure at focusing is the chief cause for complaint at the present time in Connecticut.

There are those drivers who are so unfortunate as to have a headlight go bad with no bulb to replace it. When they proceed carefully to a garage, or even home, there isn't much chance of an accident but when they are driven as fast with one light as they would be with two there is an invitation for a collision which is grossly unfair to the other fellow.

The strong headlight makes it possible for much more speed at night than would otherwise be the case. Good views are obtained of the roadway ahead and the character of the road at the sides is revealed, but there is no justification for the glaring headlights and the only way in which they will be kept in place is through constant efforts in that direction by the authorities.

A TAX TO REPEAL

How large a section of the country is interested in having congress abolish the federal estate tax is indicated by the fact that there will be petitions from 22 states placed before the ways and means committee of the house when the 70th congress convenes asking for the repeal of that law.

Here is an instance where the government went into taxation because of war conditions. In view of such an emergency there could be no great opposition to it. It was regarded as a resort to special legislation to meet the situation. The country needed the revenue and it had to get it.

But the war is over, the revenue under other methods of taxation is sufficient to pile up a considerable surplus and states are chafing under the fact that the federal government is invading a field of taxation which it is believed should be left strictly to them, barring times of an emergency.

Whether the new congress will be impressed by the strong arguments in behalf of repeal remains to be seen. In the last congress there was a compromise as the result of repeal efforts which gave the states credit for a certain percentage of the tax collected, but that failed to satisfy states which have been outspoken in their efforts to end this double taxation and whose attitude has caused nearly one half of the states to take action through their legislatures in petitioning for a change. The influence of such action upon their representatives in congress cannot fail to be felt when the time comes for action, and none should understand it better than the ways and means committee.

FIREARMS CONTROL

In session at Buffalo, the National Association of Attorneys General has had the proposition of federal control of firearms placed before it by the attorney general of New York state. He would have the president call a conference of governors for the purpose of formulating a uniform system of firearm regulation.

It is perfectly evident that there are states which have laws dealing with this matter already, and it is known that congress has declared that firearms cannot be sent through the mail except under strict regulation, but it is evident that because all states have not seen fit to legislate alike in respect to the sale of firearms that it is possible for those who have use for small arms to make their purchases almost at will, whether their purpose in getting firearms is good or bad.

If all states had the same laws regarding firearms enforcement would be much simplified. As it is those in New York state who need a gun and are willing to take the risk of being caught with it can go into another state and have their wants filled and only a short time ago all that was necessary for them to do was to order by mail and the weapons would be delivered at their doors. The express companies still provide an avenue for accomplishing the same thing.

Uniform control of firearms is regarded as desirable because of the effect which it is believed it will have upon decreasing crime. Freedom in obtaining guns and ammunition offers no hindrance to the criminally inclined, who might resort to some other method of accomplishing their ends but would be considerably handicapped without the assistance of a gun to frighten their victims in the first place and cripple them if necessary.

Whether such uniformity in state law would actually accomplish what is desired, or whether federal legislation for the prohibition of such traffic would be preferable is a matter which will doubtless get consideration later. However, if uniformity in state legislation concerning firearms gets no greater or more favorable attention than has resulted from similar efforts concerning other matters it need not be expected to become effective for some time to come.

THE FRENCH BONDS

Ever since it became apparent that France was balking at signing the Berenger-Mellon agreement for the settlement of the war debt, new French financing in this country has been discouraged. The attitude has been that if France was not disposed to pay its debts this country was not desirous of aiding it in matters financial.

In 1920 and since France obtained public loans in this country and paid a good rate of interest on its bonds. This was because of the conditions at the time the money was raised. Conditions have changed since then and it is possible to get money at a more favorable rate, which has not been overlooked by the French authorities who are considering the issuance of new bonds at a lower rate and call in those issues carrying high rates.

Such is of course a good business view. This would not mean the borrowing of additional funds in this country, but simply exchanging one bond for another under such rights as France reserved when it issued the bonds. The saving by such an exchange would be considerable and France has good use for all it can save as well as all it can get.

If France decides to carry out the exchange it would not be surprising if it had the approval of this country so far as the past attitude toward new loans is concerned. It will not increase the amount of United States money in France. It will be of assistance to France, but unless it is possible to make the exchange here there's the probability that it will be accomplished through loans in other countries. Thus such sanction as may be given to French plans means dealing with a new situation as it arises and it is no timprobable that the condition of the money market in this country would likewise have its bearing upon such modification as may be made.

We have no desire to force France to pay high interest rates any longer than it is necessary concerning existing loans. If it involved a new loan the situation would be different.

OIL CONTROL

Much has been said about the waste of oil and the need of checking it. This does not refer to the large amounts that are slopped over each day, the running of engines when unnecessary and similar wastes which go hand in hand with plentiful conditions. Reference has been chiefly made of late to the waste that is taking place in the oil industry because of the methods that are followed and the situation has got to the point where government regulation is being talked of to accomplish the desired result.

It has been the recent stated belief of Secretary Work of the interior department that the time has come for the federal government to put a check upon oil production and by such a method accomplish the elimination of waste. The idea of federal control has not been well received in the past and it is not now. The fact is however that it would not be advanced now had the oil producers been disposed to recognize the handwriting on the wall and act accordingly. It is because there has been no advance made by the industry itself in the ending of this waste that the demand for federal control has developed.

Nothing could be expected to bring the matter to a showdown like overproduction and that is just what has resulted. Failure to husband the natural resources and striving to increase rather than curtail the flow of the wells to meet requirements have served to strengthen the demand for the government to step in and do what the industry has failed to do. The need of looking ahead beyond present day requirements cannot be ignored entirely.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now the call for the oysters will be heard throughout the land.

Thoroughly discouraged some have put their straw hats away in mothballs until next May.

Summer may go, but no one has predicted that this would be a year without an Indian summer.

There's much talk about the reduction of the automobile mortality rate but it doesn't show up prominently in the figures.

What those who have been obliged to get along without a summer would like to know is whether the winter is going to be tempered to their liking.

The man on the corner says: September's opening number wasn't such as to create great confidence in its ability to throw off the August influence.

With the bureau of standards investigating wind pressure and wind phenomena, it must be getting ready for the opennig of congress and the legislature.

THE YELLOW CAR

Little Prentice closed the door of the little white school and turning the key in the lock hurried down the path to where it joined the main highway at the foot of the hill. Libbie had taught for three years in that little schoolhouse and so far as she knew she would go on teaching there for another three years, provided, of course, she could keep on the right side of the school board and the parents of her pupils. Today had been a particularly trying one for both teacher and pupil.

The school board had decided that it was time to introduce a new method of writing and Libbie had tried patiently to undo all she had tried to teach and stimulate an interest in the newer way of handling pen and pencil. But the children had not taken readily to the lesson and Libbie felt that her effort had been wasted. Tomorrow would be no better, and the day after—but why go on? Libbie was only undergoing an experience all to common in the life of a person who is trying to instruct youngsters who have no desire to receive instruction.

Gaining the highway, Libbie walked rapidly toward the village. According to her usual routine she would go first to the postoffice to see if she had any mail and then to her boarding house, where she would spend the time until dinner looking over school papers. This task always left her depressed, because it was the barometer by which she knew just how much of her carefully given instruction had sunk in, and all too often she would find very little, indeed, had taken root.

The blowing of a motor horn caused her to step quickly to one side of the road just in time to avoid a big yellow car. Glancing up, she caught a fleeting glimpse of a child's face looking out of the window of the car and the impression was left with Libbie that never before had she seen such a distressed little face.

Libbie kept on her way and on arriving at the village went to the post office. As she reached the building the big yellow car drew up and a man in livery stepped out, entered the postoffice and went up to the window, and as Libbie entered she heard him questioning the postmaster about directions and nearby towns. Evidently the answers did not please, for he frowned and went back to the car. Soon he came back and asked if there was a good place in the town where they could put up for the night, and upon receiving an answer again left the building and drove away in the yellow car.

"What was the trouble, Mr. Curtis?" Libbie asked the good-natured postmaster.

"Well," said Mr. Curtis, "that fellow said he was taking a party to Keysville and the child got sick and the woman doesn't dare go any further. I sent the man over to Mrs. Winn's—why that's where you board, isn't it, Miss Prentice? Well, no doubt you will see 'em there."

Arriving at Mrs. Winn's, who had a big, roomy house and besides her regular boarders often accomodated tourists, Libbie went straight up to her room and started at once on her task of correcting school papers. She had only nicely settled down to work when her attention was called to the fact that there was a child in the next room and it was sobbing. Children were rather unusual in Mrs. Winn's select boarding house and Libbie hoped the little thing would not cry at night, because the walls were thin and sounds carried easily.

At the dinner table that night only the usual boarders appeared with the exception of the man Libbie had seen driving the yellow car, but as he did not seem inclined to talk she learned nothing concerning the child she had seen in the passing car.

At midnight Libbie was awakened from a deep sleep by the sharp, piercing cries of the child, who occupied the room next to her own. The cries continued a few moments and then a woman's voice harshly commanded silence. The child cried on and soon there was another sound which fairly brought Libbie to her feet. It was as if the woman had given the little one a sharp slap. This of course only made him cry the harder and the woman continued to slap and admonish him to keep quiet. "Surely," thought Libbie, "that woman must know that a child that cries like that is ill or in pain at least." So hastily donning a kimono and slippers, she slipped out of her room and a moment later knocked at the adjoining door. Failing to get an answer she turned the knob of the door and entered.

Sitting bolt upright in the middle of the big bed was the most pathetic little figure Libbie had ever seen in all her life. It was a boy of perhaps 7 years of age. He had a mass of yellow, curly hair which was rumpled in a tangle, and even though he had cried until his little face was fairly purple one could see that he was ill. His little body was racked with sobs and he was fairly smothered in his attempt to suppress his tears.

"Whatever is the matter?" demanded Libbie of the woman who was bending over the bed and talking in a high, excited voice to the little fellow.

"I don't know, miss. I only know he has cried until I am distracted and I think I shall go wild," and the woman wrung her hands in despair. "Stop! Bobby, stop. I say! Here is a lady come to see you." But Bobby cried on.

"Then, Bobby, as you call him, isn't your child?" queried Libbie.

"Oh, no, Miss, I am only his nurse. Mr. and Mrs. Graham, Bobby's father and mother, have been away months for the madam's health, Bobby and his teacher, Miss French—he has a tutor, you know—and I have been at the Grahams' camp, but Miss French was taken ill and had to go to the hospital. Bobby has missed her so much and as it is about time for his parents to return I was taking him back to town. The Grahams are very rich people and have a big house in town. Master Bobby is a very fortunate boy, but quite spoiled, miss."

All the time the woman had been talking Libbie had been looking at the child and finally going up to the bedside she lifted the little fellow up in her arms and cuddled his head against her shoulder. He snuggled gratefully up in her arms and put his little head down in her neck and as his face touched her cheek Libbie found that he was literally burning up with fever.

"I am afraid Bobby is really ill," she said gently to the woman, who still stood wringing her hands, "and if you will go down to the foot of the front stairs you will find a telephone. Please call 52. I am sure a doctor is needed at once."

The woman left the room and soon a doctor came and it was true, Bobby was very ill. The doctor pronounced it scarlet fever, and that complicated matters as far as Libbie was concerned, because she could not go on with her teaching and as a nurse was not to be had for love of money in that small town she was obliged to help take care of Bobby. By the time Bobby was well enough to be removed to his own home he had become so attached to Libbie that he refused to be separated from her.

When Bobby's parents came to take the little fellow home they were quite as much taken with Libbie as Bobby had been and offered her the position of tutor to their son. And as another teacher had been secured to teach in Libbie's place as she was only too glad to accept, especially as the salary was nearly double what she had been receiving, and anyway she really loved little Bobby so dearly she was glad that she did not have to lose sight of him.—Detroit News.

Not an Issue

Mr. Editor: Despatches in your paper show that Connecticut democrats in New Haven have been quaffing at the bubble-fountain of donkey-land, the pretended issue of Governor Alfred E. Smith, of the state of New York, as a possible candidate for the presidency of the United States of America in the year of Our Lord, 1928. Some of these 'froth-blowers" are undoubtedly deeply sincere in their aspirations to help place Mr. Smith in the white house. Quite as likely many of them know beyond all doubt that Mr. Smith is not an issue at all for 1928, just as well as they knew he was no issue in 1924. Mr. Smith is not an issue; he has never been an issue; his proclaimed candidacy is simply a pretense, that's all it ever was. Disturbed republicans and panting democrats both can well occupy their Thursday afternoons studying the matter out, while those citizens who insist upon clinging to the Smith bugaboo will be about as prosperously occupied as a hen brooding one chicken in November.

YOUR HEALTH

THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST PREVENTABLE DISEASES.

By A. J. Crowell, M. D., Charlotte, N. C. Member Gorgas Memorial.

Seven hundred and fifty thousand lives are lost annually in the United States alone and $4,500,000 is the financial loss in sick bill, reduced earning power and premature death from preventable disease, to say nothing about the suffering caused! We stand appalled at these staggering figures!

In the presence of such statistics, to have an intensive campaign instituted by the Gorgas Memorial against the known preventable diseases, dentists and laymen of national reputation is therefore logical. Such men are always alert for opportunities to invest life and means where they will bring greatest returns. They have made it possible to carry on experimental work which has practically obliterated many of the dreaded and dangerous diseases and rendered insignificant others which were once fatal.

It is the family doctor who is first called upon to alleviate suffering and stay the ravages of disease. It is he who appreciates most the results of the man who delves into the unfathomed mysteries of disease until the cause, prevention, and cure are discovered. He may have no laboratories, equipment or time for research work himself but acts as a channel through which the blessings of the investigator flows to suffering humanity.

He stands today with outstretched hands to the scientist for a healing balm for tuberculosis, cancer, high blood pressure, and many other maladies before which he is utterly helpless in his efforts to stay their ravages. Shall we not come to his rescue and place at his command a remedial agent for every known disease?

There is a cause for every disease, and to prevent its occurrence its cause must first be ascertained, then its development and means of spread. We have discovered the cause of typhoid fever through laboratory investigation and also a means for preventing its spread but, so far, no specific remedial agent to perfect a cure after the disease has been contracted. On the other hand we have not only discovered the cause of diphtheria, but a specific antidote for the disease.

The cause of tuberculosis has been ascertained but, unlike diphtheria, no specific cure has been found. It is unlike diphtheria and typhoid fever in that a means of inoculation has not been discovered to render one immune to its destructive action. Many such problems are yet unsolved and the great leaders of medical thought are turning their attention to and investing their means in an endeavor to solve these problems.

The movement on the part of the Gorgas Memorial to establish in Panama a memorial to the late Major General William Crawford Gorgas is both timely and fitting; timely, because of the urgent need of more medical research institutions, equipment, and workers to solve the great medical problems now confronting the profession. Such a memorial is fitting and its location ideal, in that it was there this grea scientist and executor utilized knowledge obtained in such institutions and stamped out yellow fever, making possible the construction of the Panama canal, one of the world's greatest industrial accomplishments. This alone would entitle him to such recognition, but this is insignificant as compared with what was accomplished in obliterating this dreaded disease from Cuba and Pahama and, in fact, made it possible to prevent its occurrence anywhere in the world.

Stories That Recall Others

Cruel Thrust

A gardener was entertaining his brother-in-law over the week end. The gardener had a large supply of cucumbers that had turned yellow before he could dispose of them, and had cut them from the vines and set them aside as a total loss. The brother-in-law had been told about them but did not seem disposed to offer sympathy over the loss. Later he went to the telephone, called the gardener and in a polite voice said:

"Have you any yellow cucumbers?"

"Yes, why, yes," stammered the gardener.

"Would you have as many as two bushels?" asked the voice, "and how much do you ask for them?"

The inquirer could almost see his brother-in-law's eye bulge out at the thought of selling the cucumbers and being unable to constrain his laughter, he heard the air reek with high explosives, and at once there was static on the line as the gardener recognized the voice of the would be purchaser.

No Good Woman

"Have you a good woman?"

"I think not, I'm sorry. At least, I haven't seen one this morning."

A bewildered patron at the library who overheard the above conversation between another patron and a librarian felt both relieved and ignorant when she heard the librarian say, "Oh, yes, I have! Here is one!" and saw her give the patron the book, "A Good Woman," by Louis Bromfield.

Map for the Blind

It is reported from the British capital that the most remarkable map of London yet conceived is now contemplated for the use of the blind. It is a map that will convey to the blind, through the sensitive tips of their fingers, a true mental impression of the position of the main thoroughfares, the principal places of interest along those thoroughfares, and the means of access to them. This may will be "drawn" in relief and will consist of a combination of dots, and dashes, a medium that has already provided for the sightless what had before been denied to them.

Already the blind of London are in possession of the complete series of plans of London's underground railways that are available for public use. They are able, by the aid of 11 embossed charts, to study in detail the routes of each tube system, the Metropolitan and the district railways, and can follow without any possibility of error the complete inner circle or the whole network of underground services. There are even diagrams demonstrating the tubes, and the fact, not always realized by normally sighted passengers, that a tube station is itself a tube, only of much greater diameter than that provided for the passage of the cars between the stations.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The announcement of Premier Ferguson of Ontario that he does not "choose" to become a candidate for the leadership of the conservative party in Canada has narrowed the field from which the party convention at Winnipeg next month will make its choice of a leader to succeed Hugh Guthrie, who is temporarily filling the position. Among those most prominent mentioned is Sir Henry L. Brayton, a brilliant lawyer with a splendid record of public service. As chief of the board of railway commissioners of the Dominion of Canada, as controller of the production and distribution of electrical energy in the Province of Ontario, and in various other positions which he has filled Sir Henry has displayed administrative abilities. He was born in Kingston, Ont., in 1869, received his education in Canada and in England, and began his career as a lawyer in Ontario.

MYSTERY BUILDING HOUSES STRANGE, HOODED FIGURES

LONDON, Sept. 1—(AP)—London has its "mystery house," little more than a mile from Piccadilly, out towards the open country. After nightfall, mysterious veiled figures may be seen issuing from the house and wandering about the neighboring parks.

These figures are not ghosts. The house is the headquarters of a famous beauty specialist. While women patients are in course of having their faces altered, they do not permit themselves to be seen abroad in daylight. Fresh air, however, is necessary, and at night they stroll about he purlieus of the private hospital, hooded and mysterious.

WOULD TAX AMERICANS FOR PARIS DIVORCES

PARIS, Sept. 1—(AP)—Secret divorces seem to be so highly prized by newspapers suggest that a number of French newspaper suggest that a heavy tax on them would be a good source of income.

There is no reliable estimate of how many Americans have their family ties broken over here, since the records are supposed to be highly confidential. The number of American lawyers prospering in Paris would seem to indicate a high rate of family bankruptcy among the tourists.

It is quite seriously contended that American divorce cases clog the courts and cause much expense. It is suggested the tax might be very high because American divorces are reported to bring lawyers here fees as high as $10,000, which to the French is a quarter of a million francs.

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Mich.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."—MRS. E. F. BASSETT, 216 South Hayford Avenue, Lansing, Michigan.

Do not continue to feel all run-down and half sick when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is sold by druggists everywhere.

HOPPY, THE LINKMAN, STILL CARRIES CANDLE

LONDON, Sept. 1—(AP)—A familiar person in attendance at all the big parties and other evening functions of the social season is "Hoppy" the linkman.

This top-hatted figure, with gleaming silk wig and red waistcoat, carries a square lantern with a lighted candle in it. His duty is to open the doors of arriving automobiles and usher guests to the door of the mansion they are visiting.

The real name of this old time lantern bearer, who might be a figure straight out of a Dicken's novel, is Richard Treblicock, but to many people, including the Prince of Wales, he is familiarly known as "Hoppy."

His candle lantern is a direct link with days when London was ill-lighted and when guests, making their way to and from receptions, were accompanied by boys with torches.

"Hoppy" today is the best known and most eargerly sought after linkman in London. His father was a linkman before him. Not until he has seen the last guests into their automobiles is "Hoppy's" task ended.

FUNERALS

Mrs. E. Josephine Warner

Funeral services for Mrs. E. Josephine Warner were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Eliza Huntington Memorial home, Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church officiating. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends from Boston, Newton Falls, West Newton and Norwich and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

Following the services in this city the Henry Allen & Son Co., conveyed the body to Worcester, Mass., where burial took place in the Rural cemetery. The committal service was conducted by Rev. Nelison Pos Cary of Beverly Farms, Mass., formerly pastor of Christ Episcopal church of Norwich.

Mrs. Eliza Jane Weaver.

Funeral services for Miss Eliza Jane Weaver were held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the parlors of Church and Allen, 15 Main street, many relatives and friends attending. The service was conducted by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church. Many beautiful floral tributes were received.

Burial was in the Weaver cemetery in Montville where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Pitt. The bearers were Joseph P. Holloway, James M. Young, Charles R. Gallup and Gilbert S. Raymond.

Mrs. Weaver died Monday at her home at Trading Cove, following an illness of eleven weeks duration. She was born in New London in 1841 the daughter of Capt. John and Eliza J. Fereue. She received her education in the schools of Norwich and had been a resident of the town of Montville for a number of years. She was a devout member of the Central Baptist church always taking interest in church affairs and praying for their prosperity. She was a patient sufferer and appreciated every kindness. Mrs. Weaver is survived by two children Frank L. Weaver and Mrs. William Sandberg of Montville, two grandchildren, Silas N., and Joseph W. Sandberg, and two great-grandchildren. She leaves three brothers, Capt. John Pereue of Maryland, Capt. Joseph Pereue of Michigan and Chas. A. Pereue of Montville. There are also several nieces and nephews.

MANY NEW SUITS IN SUPERIOR COURT

A number of new suits were filed Thursday with the clerk of the superior court in this city.

Damages of $10,000 are asked by Matthew R. Malinkowsky of New Britain in a suit which he has brought against Marion E. Sinclair of New London. This action is the result of the recent liquor scandal which caused the arrest of several people who posed as government agents. The plaintiff alleges that on June 25, last, he and his wife, then in New London, at the request of the defendant, and her husband, Clifton W. Sinclair, attended a dinner party, in company with others at Reynold's restaurant in Waterford. Thereafter as the result of certain alleged conduct on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair, they were arrested on a charge of conspiracy and extortion in that on June 25th they had conspired with one Garvin to extort $50 from Roland V. Brantner, connected with the Reynolds' restaurant, by representing to Brantner that said Garvin and Sinclair were federal prohibition officers and that they would protect said Brantner from prosecution for an alleged violation of the liquor laws, upon the payment to Sinclair of fifty dollars.

On July 13, 1927, while said cases were pending, and while the defendant was in custody, in speaking in reference to the circumstances at Reynold's restaurant, that brought about the said prosecution, the defendant spoke in the presence of Thomas F. Morton, a newspaper reporter and Frank Howard, a police officer of New London, the following words concerning the plaintiff "That I, (Mrs. Sinclair), was induced by Matthew R. Malinkowsky to act as a stool pigeon; that Malinkowsky was with me when Charles Garvin collected $50 from Brantner at Reynolds' restaurant on June 25, 1927, and that $50 was given to me by Garvin in the presence of Malinkowsky." The defendant further said, "That she saw Garvin and Malinkowsky purchase three bottles of Scotch whiskey and that the two men took the three bottles with them."

Said words were false and malicious.

The said words spoken by the plaintiff were meant, understood, and published as meaning that the plaintiff was engaged as a party to the acts of conspiracy and extortion alleged against Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair. For more than 25 years the plaintiff has been engaged in investigating crime in Connecticut from time to time as a confidential investigator and interpreter for the state attorneys of the various counties. In said capacity by long and faithful service, the plaintiff has built up a reputation as an investigator, of character, integrity and ability.

On grounds of cruelty Antonnia Mozor of New London has brought suit for divorce from Loren Mozor of Lyme. The couple were married January 8, 1903 and there are three children. Plaintiff asks a divorce, alimony and custody of the children.

Ruth Robinson Bishop of New London has brought suit for divorce from William G. Bishop, formerly of Waterford, now of parts unknown, on the grounds of desertion. They were married November 1, 1923. The plaintiff asks custody of Kenneth Bishop, aged 3 years. Desertion since July 1, 1924, is alleged.

George J. Kiley of New London has brought suit against Nellie C. Kiley, also of New London, asking damages of $2,500. Plaintiff sues to collect a loan of $1,427.65, which has not been paid, as agreed, he alleges.

Visited Ocean Beach

Mrs. Calla Neff Whittemore, Miss Lillian Giles of Putnam, Mrs. Carrie Barber of Bridgeport, Mrs. Eva Neff Brown and granddaughter, Rheba Shelbern, of Quaker Hill, and Mrs. H. U. Neff, of No. 475 Main street, Norwich spent the day Tuesday at Ocean beach.

CITY PROPS POLES AS G. E PITCHER THREATENS TO CUT GUY WIRES, SHUTTING OFF ELECTRIC POWER

Threats said to have been made Thursday to the gas and electrical department of the city and Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., by George E. Pitcher, agent for Howell S. Bailey of New York city, after Judge Charles E. Waller of the court of common pleas had given the city of Norwich a continuance of one week of the time allotted for the removal of guy wires and a wooden pole in front of the Bailey property on Burnham square, caused drastic action to be taken Thursday night. This action led to the breaking up of two sections of the newly laid asphalt pavement in front of the Bailey property and the placing of two large guy poles against the wooden and the iron poles which carry the main electric feed wires for the city, to protect them from falling if the guy wires were cut. The reason for this action, which caused much comment on the streets Thursday by those not familiar with the cause which led to the breaking up of the new asphalt street goes back nearly a year from the present date.

In November 1926, action against the city of Norwich was brought by Howell S. Bailey of New York city, claiming an injunction and $2,000 damages. In the court of common pleas on February 12, 1927 it was adjudged that Bailey recover of the city of Norwich the sum of $620 damages and that the city or its agents remove the guy wires and a pole, over and in front of the Bailey property on or before September 1, 1927.

Thursday marked the final day for the removal of the guy wires, which, since the action was first brought, had been increased from three to six wires over the Bailey building. Mr. Pitcher, acting as agent for Mr. Bailey is said to have notified the city that he would expect them to carry out the court order before midnight and remove all guy wires and the pole.

City Gets Time Extension

Realizing that this action would be impossible Corporation Counsel William H. Shields petitioned Judge Waller of the court of common pleas for an extension of the time for removal until December 1, 1927. Judge Waller extended the time for the city to remove the guy wires and pole for one week from Sept. 1st, during which time it is alleged that he will probably call both parties together and possibly arrange for a continuance until December 1st as sought by the city.

This action by Judge Waller, giving the city an additional week in which to remove the guy wires and pole evidently failed to meet the approval of Mr. Pitcher, who notified the electrical department and Corporation Counsel Shields that unless the guy wires and pole were removed by midnight Thursday he would have the guy wires cut down. A conference of city officials, including Mayor Milo R. Waters, was held and it was decided that should Mr. Pitcher carry out his alleged threat serious damage would result to the city. Main street be blockaded and practically the entire city cut off from electricity either for power or for lighting purposes. It was then ordered that to fully protect the city and its inhabitants against any such calamity the Gas & Electrical department place heavy guy poles against the old wooden and the new iron pole in front of the Bailey property. This necessitated the digging up of two places in the newly laid asphalt Main street, the placing of heavy guy poles into holes in the street and the constructing of a fence to protect traffic against accident and from noon Thursday until late into the evening a large crew was engaged at this work, which, when completed, was believed to be of sufficient strength to prevent the main feed line poles from falling to the ground should Mr. Pitcher carry out his alleged threat.

Thursday evening Corporation Counsel Shields stated that the city of Norwich claimed no rights for the wires over the Bailey property but as they have been there for many years, with the acquiescence of H. S. Bailey and former owners, it was felt that the city should be allowed a reasonable time in which to remove them. Action by the gas and electrical department in digging up Main street and blocking about ten feet of the street at Burnham square, he said, was made necessary because of the alleged threat made by Mr. Pitcher that guy wires would be cut at midnight.

To Run Wires Across River

Relative to action taken by the city of Norwich, through its electrical department, to meet the court order of February 1927, officials of the gas and electrical department and Corporation Counsel Shields stated Thursday night that arrangements have been made to carry the high voltage wires from the plant on North Main street, across the Shetucket river to Talman street at the foot of Rock street, thence to Preston bridge and into Main street, throwing the guy wires to the opposite side of Main street and away from the Bailey property.

The wires would be carried across the river, a 400 foot span, some 50 feet high, by means of towers to be erected on either side of the stream. A government permit to carry the lines across the river has already been secured but the towers, ordered several months ago, have not yet arrived. This, it is stated, is the reason why the guy wires remain over the Bailey property.

As to the wooden pole remaining, it was stated that in order to shift all the main wires to the new iron pole, the city would have to go without power or lights for a considerable space of time. The wires are thereforo being shifted to the iron pole slowly, thus giving the city almost continuous service.

The cost of the new electrical construction work is to be over $10,000 and when completed will remove practically all of the high tension wires from North Main street. In time it is planned to feed Laurel Hill across the river thus removing high tension wires overhead through Main street and the business district. All these changes, it was stated, were planned before this suit was brought and the Bailey suit simply hastened matters.

The Court Petition

The petition to Judge Waller of the court of common pleas by which the continuance of one week was obtained is as follows:

To the honorable court of common pleas in and for the county of New London in the state of Connecticut: The application and motion of the city of Norwich, a municipal corporation under the laws of the state of Connecticut and located in said New London county respectfully represents to said court:

1. That on the 12th day of February, 1927 the court of common pleas for New London county in the state of Connecticut gave judgment for an injunction and damages against said the city of Norwich in the case of Howell S. Bailey vs. the city of Norwich, in favor of the said Howell S. Bailey, the plaintiff herein, who is a resident of the city and state of New York, which judgment was as follows:

Howell S. Bailey of New York city, New York, vs. the city of Norwich, a municipality under the laws of the state of Connecticut. Judgment: This action by complaint claiming an injunction and two thousand dollars damages, came to this court on the first Tuesday of November, 1926, and thence to the present time when the parties appeared and were at issue to the court, and filed a stipulation, as on file. Said stipulation was accepted by said court.

Whereupon it is adjudged that the plaintiff recover of the defendant the sum of six hundred and twenty (620) dollars damages and his costs taxed at eighteen (18) dollars and fifty-two (52) cents, and it is urged that the defendant, its servants and agents, by and they are hereby commanded to remove from over the plaintiff's property the guy wires mentioned in paragraph 3 of the plaintiff's complaint, and the pole from in front of the plaintiff's property as alleged in paragraph 1 of the third count of the plaintiff's complaint. Said guy wires and said pole to be removed on or before September 1, 1927, the said defendant and each of its servants and agents under such penalties prescribed by said court for failure to comply therewith.

By the Court.
LEWIS CRANDALL, Clerk.

2. That the city of Norwich has used all due diligence and efforts to comply with the terms of said judgment of injunction on or before September 1st, 1927 but will be unable to do so without causing very great inconvenience to the public and very great damage to itself due to the fact that said judgment cannot be complied with on or before the first day of September 1927 without the erection of structures in Main street, the most important street of the city, which would greatly interfere with vehicular traffic and also with the access to the said Bailey's property from said street, or as an alternative, without the discontinuance of the transmission of electricity to the greater part of the city's consumers of electricity.

3. That the city of Norwich with due diligence after the said judgment prepared plans and is now engaged in an expensive change of its wiring system for the transmission of its electricity to its consumers, which when completed will enable it to comply with said injunction without any inconvenience to its consumers of electricity or to the public in the use of the highway, Main street, which changes due to causes beyond said city's control have not been and cannot be completed on or before September 1st, 1927.

4. That said changes have cost large sums of money and will, before finished cost said city over $10,000, all of which cost will fall upon said city due to said judgment and that said changes cannot be completed by said city until about December 1st, 1927.

5. That the damages and inconvenience that will be suffered by said Howell S. Bailey in the use and enjoyment of his real estate from which by said judgment the city of Norwich was enjoined to remove certain guy wires and from in front of which by said judgment the city of Norwich was enjoined to remove a certain pole, all on or before September 1st, 1927, by a modification of said injunction so that such removals of the guy wires and pole shall be commanded to be done on or before December 1st, 1927, will be very small as compared with the damages and inconveniences that will be caused to either the public in the use of Main street or the consumers of electricity furnished by the city, by a compliance by the city of Norwich with said judgment of injunction on or before September 1st, 1927.

6. That a compliance with said injunction by the city of Norwich on or before September 1st, 1927, unless it be by means which would interfere with the use of said Main street by the public and the access of said Bailey to his real estate, would cause a great loss of money to the city of Norwich.

7. That the city of Norwich by the maintenance of said guy wires and pole is not claiming to gain any rights whatsoever in any real estate of the said Howell S. Bailey either by prescription, adverse possession or in any other manner.

8. That the address of the said Howell S. Bailey in the state of New York is unknown to the said the city of Norwich but it believes that he is employed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company at New York city in the state of New York.

9. That the real estate of said Bailey from which said guy wires were enjoined to be removed and from in front of which said pole was enjoined to be removed by said judgment is located in the town and city of Norwich in said New London county and the person in charge of said real estate as agent for said Bailey is George E. Pitcher of the town of Norwich in said New London county.

10. That equity under all the circumstances requires that said judgment be modified so that the acts therein commanded to be done by the said the city of Norwich shall be commanded to be done on or before December 1st, 1927, instead of on or before September 1st, 1927.

The applicant, the city of Norwich, therefore moves and prays this court:

1. That a date within a reasonable period of time may be fixed by the court for a hearing upon this application and motion.

2. That notice of the pendency hereof and of the date for a hearing so fixed be ordered given the said Howell S. Bailey, respondent, and that said Howell S. Bailey be summoned by the court to appear before said court at the time and place so fixed for a hearing hereon, all by an order of notice.

3. That at said hearing, at the time and place mentioned in said order of notice, an order, judgment or decree be made and passed by the court modifying the judgment heretofore made by the court on the 12th day of February, A. D. 1927 in said action of Howell S. Bailey vs. the city of Norwich so that the acts and things in said judgment commanded to be done by said the city of Norwich on or before September 1st, 1927 shall be commanded to be done by said the city of Norwich on or before December 1st, 1927.

Dated at Norwich, Connecticut, this 1st day of September, A. D. 1927.

The City of Norwich,
By WILLIAM H. SHIELDS, Jr.
Its Attorney.

Mr. Pitcher Not Reached

Mr. Pitcher could not be reached on Thursday evening to confirm or deny the report that he would have the guy wires cut down or what legal action he next contemplated against the city for its failure to remove the obstructions.

It is understood, however, that several suits may be brought against the city. It is also alleged that due to the failure of the city to remove the guy wires and pole he was unable to lease the property on Thursday to a business (alleged to be the Standard Oil company), which, it is believed, contemplated building a new structure on the site of the present one, this of course being impossible with the guy wires remaining only a few feet above the roof of the barns.

Attorney Morris B. Lubchansky of New London was reached shortly before midnight Thursday and stated that there would be no action brought against the city other than that the court of common pleas would be asked to fix the penalty against the city of Norwich for failure to carry out the terms of the court order of February 12, 1927. This hearing, he stated, would probably be held within a few days in Norwich.

INCREASE IN RATES FOR PROFESSIONAL PHONES

Norwich telephone subscribers received letters Thursday from the Southern New England Telephone Co., notifying them of an increase in rates for certain business phones. Rates for residence phones remain unchanged. The rate charges affect only auxiliary business lines and professional lines. With each letter there was inclosed a 12-page booklet explaining the necessity for increasing the company revenues. The letter says:

To our Norwich Exchange Subscribers:

The enclosed pamphlet has been prepared to show the necessity for increasing the company's revenues at this time through a revision of its rates for local exchange service. In the interest of complete understanding and in order that your judgment of the propriety of our action may be based on a knowledge of the facts, we earnestly ask that you read it carefully.

The changes in rates become effective next month and are shown in the table of rates in this letter. Whether or not your rate is affected is disclosed in this table.

The changes in rates become effective next month and are shown in the table of rates in this letter. Whether or not your rate is affected is disclosed in this table.

A letter similar to this is being sent to all of our subscribers so that each may know just what is being done and what rates the revised schedule contains. If any point in which you are interested is not perfectly clear or in case you desire further information regarding a possible change to some other class of service, your exchange manager will gladly respond to any inquiries.

*Auxiliary lines, which heretofore have been furnished at a special rate, will now take the same rate as that for the initial or main line. This odd rate treatment with respect to auxiliary lines was introduced years ago, when but few subscribers had more than one line, on the theory that relatively little use would be made of the second one. Conditions are quite different today, however. With a greatly increased use of the service generally has come a large increase in the number of subscribers requiring auxiliary lines, and traffic records show that the actual use per line is greater on the average with subscribers having two or more lines than is the case with subscribers having but one. In point of fact the use per line tends to increase with the number of lines, so that the reason for applying a rate at least as high as the rate for an individual line is manifest.

The professional rate is another inconsistency that is being corrected at this time. It is a special rate applying to the office service of doctors, dentists, osteopaths, chiropractors, etc., and whatever its justification may have been in the early days of the business, certainly there is no sound reason for not now applying regular business rates to this class of service.

Message rate service has heretofore been furnished at varying monthly rates for varying message allowances, settlements for excess messages being made on an annual basis. Beginning next month all message rate service will be billed at the uniform rate per line shown in the table of rates and thereafter excess messages also will be billed monthly in accordance with the plan shown in the table.

The following letter has ben mailed to subscribers in the following exchanges:

Canaan, Cheshire, Clinton, Colchester, Cornwall, Deep River, East Hampton, Glastonbury, Guilford, Jewett City, Kent, Lakeville, Lebanon, Lyme, Madison, Moodus, Moosup, Newtown, Niantic, Norfolk, Orange, Redding, Stafford, Thomaston, Trumbull, Washington, Wilton.

The enclosed pamphlet has been prepared to show the necessity for increasing the company's revenues at this time through a revision of its rates for local exchange service. In the interest of complete understanding with our customers a copy is being sent to all subscribers in the state whether their rates are affected or not.

In the pamphlet reference is made to the correction of two discriminatory rates in all exchanges and to the fact that in many exchanges no other changes are being made. These latter exchanges, of which yours is one, are listed above and the only changes planned in any of them are explained in the paragraphs that follow:

Where a business subscriber has more than one line at a given location all but the first have heretofore been furnished at a rate lower than the rate for the initial or main line. This special rate is now being discontinued and hereafter auxiliary lines will take the same rate as the first. When it is realized that according to traffic records the actual use per line is greater on the average with subscribers having two or more lines than is the case with subscribers having but one and further that the use per line tends to increase with the number of lines, the propriety of applying a rate at least as high as the rate for an individual line is manifest.

The so-called professional rate is another inconsistency that is being corrected at this time. It is a special rate applying to the office service of doctors, dentists, osteopaths, chiropractors, etc., and whatever its justification may have been in the early days of the business, certainly there is no sound reason for not now applying regular business rates to this class of service.

GOES TO JAIL FOR TAMPERING WITH MACHINE

Found guilty of tampering with an automobile, Harry P. Walker, 16, U. S. S. Chewink, was fined $10 and costs in the city court Thursday morning. Unable to pay his fine, he went to jail to work it out. Walker was arrested in a local lunch cart Wednesday night after a complaint had been made to Officer Peter Driscoll that he had been tampering with Treat's ice cream truck, near Treat's drug store on Franklin street.

Officer Driscoll made the arrest after informing police headquarters of the complaint made to him. Walker was seen tampering with the truck by one of Mr. Treat's employes. When he was told to get out of the truck, it is said, he took the auto key with him. Searched at police headquarters the key was found on him.

Walker, during the evening, had been at a rooming house at No. 70 Main street and at the time of his arrest had several toilet articles with him, which he is alleged to have purloined from one of the rooms at the rooming house.

After the fine was imposed on him, Walker made efforts to have officers at the submarine base, Navy Yard, advance the money to pay his bill. This, it is said, the sub base officials declined to do, with the result that Walker went to jail.

DELIGHTFUL SHOWER FOR MISS EVA HYDE

On Thursday afternoon in the reception room of the J. B. Martin company plant on Franklin street, the girls in the finishing department of the company tendered a delightful shower to Miss Eva Hyde, in honor of her approaching marriage to William O. Sargent of New London. The reception room was prettily decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being in pink and blue. About fifty girls attended the shower.

Miss Hyde was the recipient of a beautiful parchment lamp and several other useful gifts. Games and music were enjoyed, after which the party disbanded, all wishing Miss Hyde happiness and prosperity.

COLCHESTER TOWN MEETING VOTES TO MOVE SCHOOLHOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Sept. 1—At a special town meeting held here this afternoon it was voted that the Scott Hill school building be moved to another site to be decided upon by the town school board, at an expense not to exceed $1,500. The reason given for the removal of the school building is that it is not needed at its present location.

The attachment resulted from a suit rooms be added to the North Westchester school building to relieve the crowded conditions at that building. The extra rooms are to be constructed at a cost not to exceed $2,000. Charles F. Brown was moderator at the meeting and the clerk was John Condren.

DRIVERS PAY LITTLE HEED TO SIGNS

A person whose curiosity led to a checkup of automobiles parked on the southern side of Main street Thursday night—that portion of the street now undergoing repairs and posted by numerous "no parking" signs, counted no less than 15 machines parked. Ten of them were between Ferry street and the railroad station entrance and the other five from that point to Park street.

PLEASANT SOCIAL GATHERING FOR CHARITABLE CIRCLE

Seventeen members of Charitable circle, King's Daughters, were royally entertained Thursday by Mrs. Daniel Gore and Mrs. John Trankla, at the former's home at No. 354 Hamilton avenue. At noon a delicious luncheon was served and in the evening supper was enjoyed. The afternoon was spent in a social time and hearts were played. Cards were also enjoyed in the evening. The members made the trip in taxis.

OBITUARY.

Daniel Francis Brennan.

Following an illness of some duration Daniel Francis Brennan, formerly of Norwich, died at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening at his home in Baltic, where he has resided since his removal from Norwich about 14 years ago. He was born in Perryville, Mass., Nov. 7, 1870, the son of Daniel and Elizabeth Cooper Brennan and besides his wife, who was Miss Catherine Riordan, he is survived by a daughter, Miss Elinor Brennan and a sister, Mrs. Mary Lyons of Hamden, Mass. At the time of his death Mr. Brennan was employed as a textile worker. He was a member of St. Mary's church, Baltic.

Mrs. William Sibley

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 1—Mrs. Lillian Sibley, aged 56 years, of Rockville, Conn., died in Springfield hospital Tuesday night. She was the widow of William Sibley and was born in Willimantic, Conn. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. Alice Cranshaw of this city and one brother, Charles Profitt of Willimantic.

RAT CATCHERS REPORT FINANCIAL SUCCESS

LONDON, Sept. 1—(AP)—Rat catching has become a profession in London. A number of firms are making money at it, according to the annual report of the medical officer for the city of London. One firm of professional rat catchers caught 26,718 rats last year.

"Rat catchers and poisoners," the medical officer states, "are engaged on contract in many of the city's teashops, restaurants, hotels and business premises. I think it can be safely said that the number of rats in the city is being kept down, but the old English black rat seems to outnumber the so-called sewer rat by at least three to one. Old city men have said that 30 or 40 years ago they were unable to enter their offices in the morning until the rats were cleared out. We hear of nothing so alarming nowadays."

That London is still living up to its reputation for soot is shown in a statement that 74 tons of dirt, washed down by rain, fell last year in the square mile which constitutes the area of the City of London.

GUESSWORK WINS $10,000 FEATURE RACE AT SYRACUSE TRACK

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 1—(AP)—Guesswork and Sam Williams shared chief honors of the Grand Circuit program at the New York State fair today. Guesswork won the $10,000 Chamber of Commerce pacing purse in straight heats and Sam Williams duplicated the feat in the $10,000 Empire State Trotting stake.

Guesswork set a new record for herself, tied the record for the event and turned in the fastest pair of miles ever recorded in the big pace stake. She wheeled the first heat in 2:02 1-2 and the second in 2:02 1-4, but each time had to fight off the challenges of four rivals in the stretch. Many of the spectators thought Hollywood Volo won the second heat, nipping Guesswork by a head in the last few strides but the judges ruled for Will Fleming's mare which is owned by William Mahoney of Hyde park, Boston.

The fastest half mile of the meeting was turned in by Walter Cox's Hazleton in winning the second heat of the 2:09 trot. Hazleton was clocked in 59 1-4 for the second half. Cox's gelding also took the third heat and the race.

Hazel McKyle, from the Stanford stables of Springfield, Mass., won the 2:12 pace with Martin up, taking the first two heats. Tommy Murphy made short work of the Governor's stake for 2:14 trotters, winning in straight heats. Gov. Al Smith was an interested spectator.

Rain tonight assured heavy going for tomorrow. Fair officials announced that regardless of the weather, the Hambletonian stake for $54,000 and the Wet Weather Track stake for $2,000 will be raced tomorrow. Tommy Murphy's Kashmir is a 2 to 5 favorite in the Hambletonian with Holwood High Boy second choice at 4 to 1. Spencer is a strong favorite in the Wet Weather although horsemen from Northern Scotland will offer a contender if he doesn't break.

FLOWERS WINS VERDICT OVER JOE ANDERSON

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—Tiger Flowers of Atlanta, Ga., former middleweight champion of the world, won a decision over 22 year old Anderson of Covington, Ky., in a scheduled 10 round bout at the Queensboro Stadium here tonight.

Flowers, fighting back gamely all the way, battered the husky southern youngster about with the busily pounding Tiger. Experience scored for the Georgian.

Anderson, who made his home in Toledo, Ohio, was never able to get around the dusky dealer of leather for a knockout and had the crowd in an uproar in obvious distress. Flowers, blindly and always staggering toward the Kentucky boy warded off the rushes that threatened him several times in the course of the battle.

Anderson, a game young stalwart of the football build, took plenty of punishment and showed it. Banging away with his left, Flowers opened cuts above and below his opponent's eyes and partly blinded him in the last round.

There were no actual knockdowns but Anderson went down for an instance in the tenth through the force of his own wild lunging after his agile foe. In the fourth Flowers seemed to be taken momentarily as Joe's swings caught him off balance.

In perfect condition, the veteran outweighed the youngster, shooting both arms into dodging under the wild swings. Flowers had a slight advantage in reach and weight. The decision was based 10-9 and Anderson's stamina.

Twenty-six hundred persons saw the event.

The Preliminaries

Hugh Clark, S. D., won a decision over Georgie (Kid) Lee, of Worcester, Mass., in a ten round bout. Weights 145 1-2, Lee 149 1-2.

Two strenuous four round bouts at Polo Grounds, Coney Island, N. J., 125, defeated Tommy Goodman, Richmond, 127, 1-2, and Joey Eulo, Long Island, 127 1-2, won on a foul from Jack Gaudel, Norway, 115, in the first round.

Jimmy Joe Cooper of Terre Haute, Ind., won a decision over Jack Ryan, 145, Phoenix, Ariz.

FARLAN TO FIGHT WALLACE AT NEW HAVEN

Chicago, Sept. 1—(AP)—Louis Farlan, former featherweight champion and Billy Wallace, his kayo conqueror of last December, have agreed to fight for a 12 round return match at the Nutmeg stadium, New Haven, on September 29, it was learned here tonight.

Where contracts have not been signed, it was learned that both men will mail their signatures within the next few days.

Farlan's knockout by Wallace, in a Chicago ring last December 2, was one of the most surprising upsets of recent years. Kaplan had dethroned the featherweight throne in Paris and was making his third start in defense of his title. Wallace, the lightweight championship contender, floored Kaplan three times before the end came in the fifth round.

Kaplan, in a remarkable comeback, won three decisions since his surprising setback by Wallace, his victories being a point triumph over Lew Paduano at New York two months ago. Kaplan is signed to meet Chicky Clark, of Holyoke, at the New Haven arena September 8.

VELVETMEN TO PLAY RICHMONDS TONIGHT

J. R. Martin, the Richmond Radiators soft conqueror in the Industrial league, meets the leading Ironmen this (Friday) evening at the Academy campus, starting promptly at 6:15 o'clock. Inasmuch as Thursday night's Richmond-Wermans clash was rained out, tonight's tilt takes on much of importance. The Wermans-Richmond game has been postponed four times.

The Ironmen need two victories from any other club but the Wermans and just have to defeat the Wermans to clinch the pennant, that is, they have to gain a full game on the Wermans to make sure of the bunting and, consequently, they will strive hard tonight for one of those wins.

Lefty Lucier, who turned the trick before will again try to defeat the Radiators while Lloyd Jarvis will pitch for the league leaders.

HORNSBY TALKS ABOUT BASEBALL IN GENERAL

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby "expects to be around" for the world's series. In other words, the taciturn Texan wouldn't be at all surprised to see the New York Giants emerge at the top of the National league's four-cornered pennant scramble.

Hornsby sat in the clubhouse, looking out on what appeared more like a lake, surrounded by a grandstand, than a ball field, as he discussed one of the stormiest races the senior circuit has had in years.

The rajah knows what it is to be in a tight race. He came out victorious last year in one that was almost as hectic when he led the Cardinals to a world's championship. He's right at home in this season's battle.

"Our club has found itself in the last few weeks after a shaky start," said the rajah. "We missed Travis Jackson a lot at the start and our catching and outfielding wasn't up to its usual standard for a while. But the whole team has improved and is pulling together 100 per cent. We're within striking distance of the top."

It appeals to Hornsby's ideas of the dramatic to have his old club, the Cardinals, in the thick of the pennant campaign and it isn't any secret that he regards the "Red Birds" as an outfit the Giants may find the hardest to overcome.

Hornsby sees the Cardinal pitching staff headed by Alexander, Rhem, Haines and Sherdel, as a possible deciding factor, but he isn't overlooking the strength of the Chicago Cub pitching staff or the Pirates' attack either.

"Would you rather be setting the pace or on the heels of the leaders, as the Giants are, at this stage of the race?" Rogers was asked.

"Leading, of course," he shot back. "I'd rather be out in front any time. That's always an advantage. They may say the strain is too much and perhaps the Cubs are finding it so but I think the strain of doing the chasing is just as great, if not greater.

"If you are on top, you can afford to lose a game or two but if you are trailing, every game is vital."

"Has the lay-off of the Giants, due to schedule breaks and rain, been a handicap?"

"In some ways perhaps, but it also has been a help. At least we haven't lost any ground while idle as some of our rivals have been skidding a bit."

The talk drifted to pitchers.

"Who has the fastest ball in the league?"

"Dazzy Vance," Hornsby replied without hesitation, thereby putting himself in accord with most of the other sluggers who have batted against the famous Brooklyn righthander.

"Who has the most stuff?"

"Alexander," Rogers answered. "He has a great arm, a great head and control. Its a tough combination to beat."

The Yankees will agree with Mr. Hornsby here.

THE ROSSIANS TO PLAY TWO GAMES OVER THE WEEK END

The Rossie Velvet A. A. baseball club will play two games over the week end. The first, on Sunday when they will travel to New London to play the Fort Trumbull Stars of that place, and the other on Labor day when they will play the Newport Torpedo Station.

The Torpedo Station is one of the best clubs that has ever been seen on Rossie park. In their last appearance they were beaten by the Rossie team by the score of 3 to 2 in twelve innings. They showed such a good brand of ball that they deserved to be rebooked. Another reason why the management rebooked this team is to give the large number of fans who missed the last game a chance to see this team in action. Com. Davis of the Newport team promises to bring even a faster aggregation than he had last time.

Manager Balestracci will again pin his hopes on the same lineup that has played such wonderful ball for the past weeks, the men whose fielding and batting showed up so well against the Socony team, which they completely shut out by the score of 8 to 0 last Sunday. Another thing of great interest to the fans is that Joe Walsh, the old standby, will again be in the lineup for these two games.

The Rossie lineup for the two games is as follows:

Rossie A. A.—Debroski 2b; Brewer ss; Schiller cf; Gregory 3b; Barraclough lf; Wilson, Capt. 1b; Santin or Ellis rf; Kellers c; Maine or Walsh p; Todford, L. Brewer, Perry, utility.

GOODMAN AND McCARTHY IN CADDIE GOLF TOURNEY FINALS

Rate Goodman and Francis McCarthy will meet this morning in the finals after a close match with Cy Jadkowski. Goodman winning one up on the 19th. With the match all even at the seventeenth Jadkowski got off a long drive that carried him to easy pitching distance of the green. Goodman was short and in the gully but his second shot [illegible] even with Jadkowski. Jadkowski dubbed his pitch but was on the green in three. Goodman pitched on in three also. Jadkowski overshot the cup on his putt and missed a short putt for a half while Goodman holed out in two putts.

McCarthy had little difficulty in disposing of Myer Brauman beating him six and five. In the second sixteen Stan Gulomb went to the finals by handing Benski an 8 and 7 drubbing. Gulomb clashes with W. Valiquette who won by default from Finnegin.

JOHNNY SILL HAS LOW GROSS AT SHUTTLE MEADOW

NEW BRITAIN, Sept. 1—(AP)—In a driving rain which turned fairways and greens into miniature lakes, 85 Connecticut golfers slipped and slashed their way about the Shuttle Meadow Country club's course today in a one-day tournament. To Johnny Sill, of Wethersfield went first prize for low gross 36 holes. He turned in a score of 152. H. M. Burwell, of Hartford, with 157 for 36 holes won first prize for low net score.

The other winners were F. Ross, Sequin, low gross 18 with a 75; C. C. Dursee, Waterbury, low net 18 with a 66; R. K. English, Wethersfield, second low gross 36 with a 156; A. C. Merriman, Racebrook, second low net 36 with a 138; George Smart, Wethersfield, second low gross 18 holes with 78.

For second net 18, J. R. Cummings, of Meadow Brook and J. B. Lazine, of Sequin, tied with 68 and Cummings won the toss.

Third low gross 36 went to F. C. Libby, of Hartford, who had 162 and third low net 36 to T. S. Harte, of New Britain with 140.

NEHF IS SIGNED BY CHICAGO CUBS

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1—(AP)—Art Nehf, veteran southpaw pitcher who was unconditionally released by the Cincinnati Reds a few days ago, was signed today by the Chicago Cubs. He appeared in uniform at the Chicago-Pittsburgh game today.

Nehf broke into the majors in 1915 with the Boston Nationals and was sold to the Giants in 1919 for a reported price of $35,000. After seven years with the Giants he was sold to Cincinnati, May 11, 1926.

PIRATES DISPLACE CUBS AS NATIONAL LEADERS

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates went into first place in the tight National league race today by defeating the Chicago Cubs 4 to 3.

Joe Harris was the individual batting star, the Pirate first baseman figuring in all of Pittsburgh's runs, including a long home run drive to the center field fence.

Lee Meadows had the better of Hal Carlson on the mound. The Chicago hurler was hit freely in the first four innings and was lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

The Cubs scored twice in the fifth on an error by Grantham and singles by Grimm and Carlson. Chicago threatened again in the ninth but with one run over and runners on first and third Meadows retired two pinch hitters. The score:

SECOND GAME PLAYGROUNDS SERIES THIS MORNING

Thamesville and Jail Hill meet this morning at the Academy campus, starting promptly at 9 o'clock in the second game of the playground "world series." Another fast tilt similar to the 7 to 2 victory for Jail Hill in the opening game of the series looms.

Should Thamesville win this morning then the deciding tilt will come this afternoon at 2 o'clock but should rain, wet grounds, etc. cause this morning's game to be called off then the one game played will have to decide the baseball championship of the playgrounds as the season ends today.

EASTERN CONN. TENNIS TOURNEY OPENS AT GOLF CLUB THIS AFTERNOON

Tennis players from the eastern part of Connecticut as well as from Hartford, Providence and Washington, D. C., will start the first round of the fourth annual Eastern Connecticut tennis tournament at the Norwich Golf club courts this afternoon. Twenty-one players have entered the tournament and entries will be received today for play in both the singles and doubles. The play in the singles is for the Willowbrook cup, on which appear the names of Ralph Powers who won it the first year, A. Partridge, winner in 1925 and Alex Persons who won it in 1926. Persons will not defend his title this year.

The play today will only be in the singles, the doubles to be started on Saturday. It was planned to start the singles this morning but the rain of Thursday practically flooded the courts and it is hoped they will dry out before the afternoon. Included in the entries for this years tournament are a number of familiar players who have competed for the cup in past tournaments. Percy Harwood, local boy, has been runner up in the past two tournaments and he is picked to be a finalist this year. A new comer to the tournament is J. W. Thurston of Hartford who from his record in state and Hartford tournaments is expected to be the favorite. Others who will play are: G. C. Foster, Providence, R. I., F. W. Cole, Hartford, William Werth, Norwich, Stevens Wright, New London, Earl Andrew, Providence, Cassidy Driscoll, Norwich, Don Dumont, Gales Ferry, Paul Kaufman, Washington, D. C., Ben Palmer, Norwich, H. B. Weaver, Providence, Edward Henkie, New London, Reginald Ashbey, Providence, William Wemple, New London, W. L. Chaffin, Norwich, James Roantree, Norwich, Arthur Wright, Hartford, Ralph Powers, Montville, J. Angeles, New London, Welles Lyman, Montville.

The pairings as announced Thursday evening are: Thurston vs. Foster; Cole vs. Werth; Andrew vs. Wemple; S. Wright vs. Chaffin; Ashbey vs. Dumont; Kaufman vs. Henkie; Driscoll vs. Weaver; Roantree vs. Palmer. Those drawing byes in the first round were: Percy Harwood, Arthur Wright, Ralph Powers, J. Angeles, Welles Lyman.

Both courts at the club will be used and the first matches of the day will bring together S. Wright and Warren Chaffin and Cassidy Driscoll and H. B. Weaver who will play at 1:30. At three o'clock W. Wemple will meet Earl Andrew and Paul Kaufman will face Ed Henkie across the net.

The play in the first round and quarter finals will be two in three sets while the semi-finals and finals will be 3 in 5. It is hoped to finish the first and quarter finals by Sunday night so that the semi-finals can be played Labor day morning and the finals in the afternoon.

NEW FIELDING RULES IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—Baseball fielders "cannot jump over any fence, railing or rope marking the limits of the playing field in order to catch the ball," according to new rules constructions issued by John A. Heydler, president of the National league, to his umpires and made public today.

Governing rule 48, which limits a home run to any fair hit going into stands at least 250 feet from home plate, President Heydler rules that the fielder may "(1) reach over such fence, railing or rope to make a catch; (2) jump on top of a railing marking the boundary of the field and catch the ball."

Where ground rules are in effect, with part of the crowd roped off, "that rope becomes the boundary line of the playing field," the chief executive points out, adding:

"In general, a ball hit into a crowd beyond the rope becomes automatically a two base or three base hit, as may be determined by the special ground rules made prior to the game."

"In all cases where a fielder reaches over a fence, railing or rope, he does so at his own risk and no interference should be called," Mr. Heydler rules. "Should a spectator, however, reach out of the playing field and plainly prevent the fielder from catching the ball, then the batsman should be called out for the spectator's interference. In all cases where a spectator goes on the playing field, picks up a fair hit ball and retains possession of it, two bases will be allowed."

PIRATES LEAD CUBS BY SINGLE PERCENTAGE POINT

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—One of the tightest pennant races in baseball history grew even tighter today as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Chicago Cubs and won the lead by .001 of a percentage point. Although idle, the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Giants, the other leading contenders, saw themselves gain in the chase through defeat of the Cubs and decrease in the percentage that tops the league.

Only .016 points now separate the Giants who are fourth from the Pirates, who are first. The Pirates have won .590 of their games, the Cubs .589, Cardinals .580 and Giants .574.

ROBERTSON'S ALL STARS AT TAFTVILLE ON SATURDAY

George Robertson's All Stars of Jewett City will clash with the Taftville A. A. of Taftville on Saturday afternoon. Robertson is bringing down a [illegible] which will be comprised of [illegible] baseball talent in the up-[illegible]. In former years a Jewett City-Taftville game was a feature and there is of the keen rivalry betwen the two villages remains and will be evident in Saturday's encounter. Robertson will use Pepin, former J. E. Martin pitcher against the Taftville team while Troland will send in Lefty Smith.

On Sunday the Taftville team clashes with the Elm City Giants.

THREE GAMES THIS WEEK FOR RIVERVIEW

The Riverview baseball club will have three games over the Labor day week end and all are tough battles. On Saturday they clash with Dan Costigan's Manton, R. I., Town Team, a team that is reputed to be one of the fastest clubs in Rhode Island. Costigan earlier in the season managed the Valley Falls club. Sunday will be the Moosup-Riverview game at Moosup in which Andy Gray will again work. Fans were impressed by Gray's work on last Sunday and the odds favor the local club. For the Labor day attraction the fast Meriden Insilcos will be at the State Hospital diamond. The Insilcos have a very good record this season and will put up a strong bid for the game. Tony West will work against the Meriden club.

West Ends vs. Co. C.

The West Ends of Willimantic are playing the Co. C team of the National Guard unit of this city a series of games to decide the baseball championship of Willimantic. The first game will be played Sunday at Recreation park and the second game of the series will be played Monday, Labor day afternoon at the same place. Both games are scheduled to start promptly at 3:15 daylight time.

JACKSON-WINSLOW RACE ON LABOR DAY A FEATURE

Three different teams of Duwell athletes will get into action at the meet over at the Fairgrounds Monday, previous to the pageant. The track team consisting of Joe Jackson, Gordon Winslow, Walter Murphy, Eddie Sullivan, Irving Merrill, Earl Gavitt and Joseph Najewski will contest the field events, the distance team, consisting of Johnny Keeley, Austin Keeley, Eddie

JOE JACKSON

Kowelenka, William Maggs, and Irving Dobson will run the three mile race, and five of the Duwell boxers, "Al" Koziol, Young Besade, and three more to be named later will fight in the bouts against a team to be imported from Westerly.

The meet will get under way at 10 o'clock in the morning when the various play grounds about the city, begin their battle to decide the championships of the city. Following the playground events will come the closed industrial and military events, then the open A. A. U. events, and finally the boxing. The athletes competing in the closed contests may enter in the open events, the reason for holding them off to the latter part of the program.

The boxing bouts, exactly the same as those seen at the Duwell field during the past few weeks, will be of three 3 minute rounds apiece, unless hard rights or lefts stretches out some of the principals before schedule.

All entries, either for the track events, distance run or boxing are requested to register at the Duwell club before Saturday night.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

College golf has had a highly successful season in the south this year.

The annual tennis tournament for the girls' national hard court championships will open at Berkeley, Calif., September 3.

Eddie Menser, a member of the Spokane Northwestern league team, fielded in 114 games during the season of 1916, and handled 239 chances without an error.

The international challenge trophy for which the American and English polo teams will compete in September is a cup offered by the Westchester Polo club in 1886 and won in that year by the famous Hurlingham team of England.

Though berthed at the bottom of the column the Boston Braves nevertheless are cutting quite a figure in the National League race. The straight victories over the Cubs show Bancraft's band still strong in their old role as wreckers of pennant hopes.

From time immemorial all arrows used in archery competition have been made of wood, but at this year's tournament of the National Archery association in Cambridge, Mass., the North Carolina archers introduced an innovation by using tubular metal arrows.

Six shutout games were played in the Western association in one week recently. Two were chalked up to the credit of Pitcher Johnson of Fort Smith, while McNally of Okmulgee, McClung of Joplin, Ketchum of Springfield, and Jennings of Muskogee had one each.

New York, under the auspices of the Manhattan Chess club, will contest in early November a six-board chess match by cable with London, under the auspices of the London Chess league, for the Robert Insull trophy which the English city won some time ago from Chicago.

In the straight win record of the major leagues the season of 1916 has had no parallel. Starting as a tail-end club with a percentage of .143 the Giants won 26 games in a row and every game was won on alien sod. During the same season the St. Louis Americans, while deep in the mire of seventh place won 14 consecutive victories.

STATE'S ATTORNEY IN LIQUOR CONSPIRACY CHARGE

CHICAGO, Sept. 1—(AP)—A liquor conspiracy with Alfred S. Pouse, missing 37 year old state's attorney, as its chief figure existed in McHenry county, George E. O. Johnson, federal district attorney, charged in a complaint submitted to a United States commissioner today.

Associated with Pouse in the alleged plot by which saloon and resort keepers claimed to have paid "protection fees" of $10 for each barrel of beer received were N. F. Stellen, former postmaster of Wodostock and Lester Eddinger, former sheriff. Warrants for the arrest of the three on charges of conspiracy and bribery were obtained.

The disappearance of Pouse yesterday and his declaration that he was "leaving for parts unknown" hurried federal action. He is thought to have gone to Canada.

75-YEAR-OLD WOMAN DIED IN GRAND CENTRAL TERMINAL

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—Mrs. Julia Jenkins, 75 years old, of 619 Plainfield avenue, Springfield, Mass., collapsed today and died a few minutes later in the Emergency hospital of the terminal.

Mrs. Jenkins, accompanied by Mrs. Ravin Perry and Mrs. Elsie Leon, both of 76 North street, Stamford, Conn., had entered the terminal from a subway station and was awaiting a train for Stamford when she was stricken.

TROUBLES OF PASSENGER TO BOARD HIS STEAMER

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—A pair of shoes, a straw hat, a taxicab and a horse-drawn delivery wagon conspired today to throw a bit of business in the way of a tug master.

W. F. Berggren, official of a paper company, who was sailing on the Grace Line steamer Santa Ana, for South America, remembered just before sailing time that he had forgotten to get a new pair of shoes and a straw hat. He hastened to a Brooklyn haberdashery and made his purchases.

With barely time to make the boat, Berggren hailed a tax which ran a few blocks and stalled. The resourceful paper man then commandeered a passing delivery wagon which set his down at the pier as the Santa Ana pulled into mid-stream. Chartering a tug, Berggren pursued and boarded the Santa Ana.

It was not until he was aboard safely that he recalled that he had left the hat and shoes in the stalled taxi.

straw hat. He hastened to a Brooklyn haberdashery and made his purchases.

With barely time to make the boat, Berggren hailed a tax which ran a few blocks and stalled. The resourceful paper man then commandeered a passing delivery wagon which set his down at the pier as the Santa Ana pulled into mid-stream. Chartering a tug, Berggren pursued and boarded the Santa Ana.

It was not until he was aboard safely that he recalled that he had left the hat and shoes in the stalled taxi.

WESTERLY

BOUGHT FORT MANSFIELD, NOW MUST SECURE $250,000

Napatree corporation, consisting of a syndicate of Watch Hill summer residents who a year ago this summer purchased from the War Department the Fort Mansfield reservation at Napatree Point, Watch Hill, is experiencing trouble in financing the proposed development, for keeping the valuable tract of land out of the hands of so-called "undesirables." The syndicate's aggregate bids for the various parcels of land comprising the Fort Mansfield tract amounted to $365,200. Unless some plan is immediately adopted to put the Napatree corporation in funds to meet its obligation of $55,000 to the Washington Trust company, and to finance the payments which must be made to the government by the terms of the contract of purchase, the corporation will be faced with the necessity of defaulting under this contract, the probable result of which would be that the government would again come into possession of the property, and the $171,150 already subscribed would be lost by the corporation members. While title to the land has not passed to become a matter of record clear from all incumbrances, that amount of taxable property is now lost by the Town of Westerly.

It is the intention of the syndicate members to secure $250,000 immediately. Half of this amount, according to a plan outlined in the letter to subscribers, is to be borrowed from the Washington Trust company and secured by a first mortgage on the entire property. The other $125,000 is to be borrowed from the Rhode Island Hospital Trust company, the loan to be guaranteed in varying amounts aggregating that sum by members of the Watch Hill summer coloney.

AIR EXPRESS SERVICE ASSURED FOR WESTERLY

Agent Henry G. Cottrell of the American Railway express is in receipt of information from the district superintendent, H. A. Hanson, of the Cape Cod-R. I. division through Providence General Agent W. S. Ryan, that this town is one of the larger agencies to benfit by the Air Express service just begun by the company. The other agencies of the division to receive the service are Taunton, Whitinsville, Webster, Mass., Woonsocket, R. I., and Willimantic. The service covers Boston to New York by way of Hartford, daily each evening, thence to Chicago, Ill., Dallas Texas, Salt Lake City Utah, Los Angeles and San Francisco, Cal. The express shipments from Westerly are to be given special attention to reach Boston not later than 5:00 p. m. D. S. T., and telephone and telegrams will notify the Westerly agent from Hartford and Boston that inbound shipments have arrived for Westerly consignees and will have immediate delivery.

The public schools of Westerly will begin the school year Wednesday, Sept. 7th. The School committee, Thomas Perry, Daniel F. Larkin and Mrs. Walter S. Price, under whom Superintendent Willard H. Bacon conducts school matters, have engaged a force of 78 teachers.

High School teachers—Charles E. Mason, principal; Laura E. McIntire, vice principal, history and mathematics; Kathryn M. Sturtevant, French and Spanish; Ethel F. Roche, mathematics; Mary S. Endicott, commercial subjects; Mary E. Donovan, commercial English; Margaret E. McWeeney, Latin; Alexander E. Paterson, commercial subjects; Dorothy Hanson, English; James L. Marston, science; Joel P. Sherman, science; Elizabeth Ring, history and civics; Gertrude E. Sampson, English and French; Anna McGovern, history and English; Leonard B. Holder, chemistry and mathematics; Lillian C. Fallon, commercial subjects; Florence A. Hope, domestic science.

Mr. Marston succeeds Harold S. Rice as teacher of science, and Miss Sampson succeeds Miss Ethel M. Simmons as teacher of English and French. Mr. Holder and Miss Fallon are additional teachers engaged to meet the requirements of a groing student body.

The various grammar, grade and industrial schools will have the following teachers:

Elm Street—Herman F. Driggs, principal; Annie M. McNelly, Katharine V. Nestor, Beatrice I. Gavitt, Charlotte S. Larkin, Elsie Larkin, M. Grace Zerbarini, Bertha P. Madsen, Elizabeth W. Damerel, Marguerite B. Farren, Eliza H. Syme, Zella E. Shea, Maud Ennis, Gertrude C. Keleher, Raymond Dowd.

Pleasant Street—Margaret S. Oatley, principal; Ethel M. Daley, Helen M. McCarthy, Dorothy B. Havens, Clara Hoxie, Caroline H. Degan, Vera L. Hooper.

Bradford—Ella C. Elderkin, principal; Maud E. True, Bertha Holloway, Charlotte Percy, Augusta Kenyon, Helen G. Marshall, Mary H. Hoxie.

Park Avenue—Mary L. Keleher, principal, Mary E. McAvoy, Ruth Rockwell, Kathryn Wilbur.

High Street—Pauline W. Stahle, principal, Zilla E. Moore, Geraldine B. Bindloss, Gertrude Kenyon, Mary E. Ellis, Mary D. Champlin, Sara R. Read, Joan McDonald, Bessie West, Glenna E. Suddarth, Grace Hilton, Elizabeth Marr.

Chestnut Street—Jeanne K. Dey, principal, Jennie B. Montague.

Quarry Hill—Jessie S. Berry, principal and state critic, Marion A. Westenbeurg.

White Rock—Lillian Thomas, principal, Hazel A. Brown.

Dunn's Corners—Lillian K. Greene.

Beach Street—Beatrice W. Madison, principal, Gladys M. Stott.

Industrial school—Samuel W. Slooum, LaVerne D. Langworthy, Charles C. Marsh.

Special Subjects—Robert Valentine, music; Harriet M. Hood, writing and drawing; Jennie B. Stanton, oral English; Amy Eaton, violin.

Industrial classes will be started later in September, according to Superintendent Willard H. Bacon. Repair work on the old school building, which was badly damaged in the fire of April 30, will be rushed. It is expected that the roof will be on and the windows placed by the end of next week.

Whether or not the school board will accept the offer of a site for a junior high school from Mrs. Hannah B. Groton continues uncertain. Securing of a right of way to the property is holding up action and may result in further delay in the erection of the proposed school.

Phebe Greer Ward chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, the regent, Mrs. Carrie Savage, presiding, held its September meeting Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Courtland P. Chapman, at Avondale.

In carrying out the program of National Defense, begun by the chapter, the regent read the speech on National Defense given by Capt. George L. Darte, Military Reserves, at the last Continental congress held in Washington, D. C. A similar talk was given by the captain at the last session of the Rhode Island State D. A. R. convention held in Providence when he accompanied the president-general of the Daughters to the Rhode Island meeting.

Following the program there was a social hour and refreshments were served. The hostesses were Miss Bessie M. Cross, Mrs. Asa Hoxie, Mrs. Joseph Hoxie, Mrs. Edmund P. Hyde, Miss Jennie B. Miner, Mrs. John Burdick, Mrs. Albert T. Kenneth and Mrs. John T. Maxwell, of Champaign, Ill., recently married granddaughter of the hostess of the afternoon.

Contractor Bonvenuti has begun operations on the new layout of the Connecticut state highway between Westerly and Stonington. On the north side of the present highway at the Crowley farm where the straightened section begins to leave the present roadway much progress has been made in drilling with pneumatic drills a granite ledge which must be blown out. On the farm of Harry Mitchell where mowing lots on the south side of the highway are to be crossed, there has been piled fencing material and across the way is located a large steam shovel. Near Venture Rock Spring ledge has been located a wooden shed for storage of materials and tools to be used by the contractor. At the west end of present operations a large wooded sign-board has been erected with the legal warning that the road is undergoing repairs.

Deputy Judge Billings B. Fairbrother, 27, of Stonington Town court, in the absence in New York of Judge William Avery Wilcox of Pawcatuck, occupied the bench in the Stonington Town court session in Borough hall Thursday morning. The court considered the automobile speeding case on the Stonington road by John Panin of New York several weeks ago. Prosecuting Officer George R. McKenna of Pawcatuck informed the court that in the case Attorney Benjamin H. Hewitt of Mystic had asked for a week's continuance, the officer recommending that the cast go over two weeks, as it was reported that a civil suit for damages was pending.

Judge Fairbrother ordered the case continued to Sept. 15th, the cash bond of $500 to remain the same. Friends of the judge, presiding for his first time, were present in the courtroom.

John Conway of Baltic was a business caller in Westerly Wednesday.

Rev. Luther G. Coburn, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Westerly, returned home from attendance at Willimantic Camp meeting.

The annual clambake and outing of the Westerly Masonic club, which was to have been held at Wequetquock Casino grounds Labor day, has been postponed by reason of the illness of the caterer.

Farquhar Smith was in Newport to attend the Flower show.

Vaudeville attractions coming to Westerly theaters now travel to a considerable extent in motor busses. Barely a week passes that more or less elaborately painted and lettered busses in that service are not seen on the streets of the town.

No change was reported Thursday in the condition of John T. Parker, at one time a pawcatuck patrolman, who is critically ill with heart trouble at his home, 46 School street, Westerly.

Judge Oliver H. Williams left Thursday morning for Providence and Newport.

Patrolman C. Wilson Brown returned to his police duties on the West Side Thursday morning succeeding Supernumerary Patrolman Simeon Shortman. Most of Officer Brown's two weeks' vacation has been passed at his summer home at Lord's Point.

Mrs. Edward Murphy left Wednesday morning on a trip to Boston.

Miss Catherine Wheeler left Thursday morning on the Federal express for a visit in Boston.

J. Howard Alger, of Pittsburgh, Pa. Jarvis iger and son, L. Ward Alger, Albert Kenyon and Wayland Lanphear, all of Westerly, were members of a motor party to Newport, R. I., Wednesday when they visited the Newport Historical Society building.

Rev. Orlo M. Brees, pastor of Niantic Baptist church, Bradford, has returned from Block Island. He attended the annual meeting of the Narragansett Baptist association, of which Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, pastor of the First Baptist church of Westerly, acted as the moderator.

The funeral services for William Edgar Morgan were held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock from the funeral home on Granite street, conducted by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church. Mrs. C. A. Burdick sang "Abide With Me." Burial was in the First Hopkinton cemetery, the bearers being David Stillman, George Stillman, and A. F. Kinear.

The funeral of Etta Bell Bridgeman, wife of Horace Nelder of Newton avenue was conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the funeral home on Granite street. Rev. Byhon U. Hatfield, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted the services, also read the committal service at the grave in River Bend cemetery.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Norwich items of 75 years ago as taken from the files of the Norwich Courier of 1852 are in part as follows.

Tuesday, Aug. 24, 1852—The following recommendation by an authority on steamships, concerning the Norwich steamers, is well worth reprinting. "I commend to the traveling public the Norwich route between New York and Boston. Since the sad affair of the Henry Clay, on the Hudson, is well to be informed of such boats as have every arrangement for the safety as well as the comfort of passengers. The boats running between Norwich and New York have independent steam pumps, a large quantity of buckets, always filled with water, and large life boats so conveniently located that they can be launched in a few seconds. These are not recent arrangements—adopted since the burning of the Henry Clay. They have existed for a long time."

Another terrible steamship disaster has occurred recently causing the death of between 200 and 300 passengers. We refer to the loss of the Atlantic on Lake Erie. Details of the accident are lacking; but it is believed that carelessness caused the collision.

Thursday, Aug. 26, 1852—Mr. Bradford, the newly appointed judge of the supreme court of the United States, is a New England man less than 40 years of age and one of the ablest of the very able bar of Louisiana. Mr. Bradford is said to be a native of Plainfield, Conn.

It is said that the owner of the Henry Clay refused to pay for the services of those engaged in grappling for the dead bodies.

Among eastern Connecticut young man taking part in the exercises of the graduating class of the Theological Institute of Connecticut at East Windsor are: J. M. Francis of Canterbury, William R. Palmer of Lisbon, and George I. Stearns of West Killingly.

A number of Norwich people intending to be in New York on Sept. 1, when the $950,000 Metropolitan hotel is opened for the first time.

Saturday, Aug. 28, 1852—The rain, which has fallen so copiously and refreshingly upon the baked and dusty earth in this part of the earth appears to have extended over a large region of country, descending, in some instances, in overwhelming torrents, and doing serious damage. With us, a quantity of water which fell is probably not much less than six inches, yet the parched and thirsty earth drank it nearly all in, nor would have objected to more, if more had been offered.

Among the Norwich delegates attending the whig state convention are William E. Park, James D. Morey, Wilcott Huntington and William C. Osgood.

The Lily line has now cut the price of the seashore run to 12 1-2 cents. The fare from Norwich to Stonington or to any intermediate landing is also reduced to 12 1-2 cents as is the fare from Westerly to Norwich or any of the intermediate landings. Fare from Norwich to Watch Hill remains at 25 cents. The competing line, steamers Chicopee and Mystic, has cut the fare from Norwich through to any of the different landings to Stonington to 10 cents.

NOANK

LOCAL BOY GETS TO CHINA BUT DOES NOT GET RICH

George McDonald left a year ago to see the world after just becoming 21. He started with only $25 in his pocket. The first stop was New York. He had read a lot about the Golden State, California, and China. Young McDonald is a great man on the water for he put in two years in the coast guard service. Getting a job as seaman on a big steamer for California he set out to see the world, waving New York goodbye. He met two young men from Rochester, N. Y., on the steamer working their way to China so they became pals. A bad storm was struck half way across and for two days the ship was making only 5 knots an hour against wind and rain. Everybody had on a life belt. Reaching the golden state the steamer was overdue two days. The young men went ashore on a 48-hour pass to see the different towns, but when he returned to the dock a little late, the steamer had sailed back to New York. But they did not give up hope. They shipped aboard another steamer for China, the land of rice, where the Chinamen were fighting and killing everybody. The young men got scared and were ready to fight if Uncle Sam wanted them, staying there for two months. But back to California the roamers came. McDonald's two pals left him; he was broke and knew no one. But he is clever with cards, did some tricks before a small crowd in San Pedro and got $7 in the hat. When he hit St. Louis he had nothing to eat for two days, but he met a farmer on the outskirts of the city and got a job as a helper on the farm, staying with him for six weeks. However he wanted to get back home again, so got lifts in automobiles some times, but the rest was the shoe leather express. He arrived in New York Aug. 27, getting a train out at night and was back in Noank Sunday morning, Aug. 28. He said to his father "Back home and broke—but happy!" And it was some trip!

The school bell will ring Wednesday morning next week to call back the pupils from their vacation. The school building has been painted inside and a new room added with new seats and desks. Miss Williams will teach in the new room No. 5. The school expects to have the largest enrollment in years. The flagpole has been painted and the weathervane fixed. Three new teachers have been added to the list, the following teachers having been engaged: Miss Bentley sub-primary, Miss Knght grade 1; Miss Watson grade 2; Mrs. Fish, grade 3; Mrs. La Roue, grade 4; Miss Williams, grade 5; Mrs. Slater, grade 6; Miss Whiting, grade 7; and grade 8, Miss Ross, principal. The janitor is L. L. Smith. The school committee is John Daboll.

The roads and sidewalks around the village are being repaired by the town of Groton men. Holes along the sides of the hills are being filled. On account of the heavy rains this summer it took a truckload of clay to fill two places. The gutters were cleaned out also.

Mrs. Maude Clark motored to Taunton, Mass., Wednesday to spend the day.

The schooner Reliance, Capt. Grover Eldreigh, with a crew of 6 came from Georges Banks after two weeks' fishing trip. The boat landed at Fulton market, New York, with a catch of 19,000 pounds of cod. The fish was sold there. Then with a fair wind and tide the Reliance soon tied up at the town dock; ten ton of ice was put on board, with supplies, also gas for another trip down to the Banks. Capt. Eldreigh said the fog was bad and they could not fish for several days or do anything but listen to the fog siren. The cod seem plenty if the boats get the weather to fish. The schooner will leave at the end of the week.

Angus Jersome was a recent caller.

The Baptist church was crowded Wednesday evening, with people standing out to the door. About 40 from Mystic and Stonington came to hear Gypsy Smith speak. Rev. E. Weise opened the meeting with prayer. Rev. Mr. Smith's subject was Triumph of the Cross. He told about the time he was in the World war as a fighting evangelist and how much good the war did to the American soldiers. He said that every young man in the war was not sorry he went over to see and learn for himself. It was the last chance to hear him while in the village, for this week he is going to sail back to England to retire. Special music was provided.

CANTERBURY GREEN

THE LATE THAD. L. WILSON NOTED CIVIL ENGINEER

(Contributed)

Thadeus L. Wilson of Canterbury Green, who died suddenly at his home Thursday last was a comparatively new comer to Canterbury. A civil engineer of ability and attainment, he had taken an active part in public work in New York state and city before coming to Connecticut, a little over ten years ago.

He was a big-hearted, kindly man, a lover of nature, interested in history and affairs.

He was born April 24, 1860 in De Peyster, N. Y., where also his children were born. He was early directed toward the ministry by his father Jesse B. Wilson, who was a very devout man and for over forty years deacon of the church. At the age of twelve Mr. Wilson was a student at Potsdam Normal school and was only fifteen when he entered Oberlin college at Oberlin, Ohio. He was an indefatigable worker, painstaking and accurate in detail. He kept a diary from his eighth year.

In early manhood he was known as a lecturer. For three years he had ridden the plains, road building in the west. He helped to put through the road from the South Platte to the North Platte river.

Much of his public work as an engineer for the state of New York was in the highway division of the public service commission where as assistant engineer he superintended the construction of over 3000 miles of road leading to the city of Buffalo. When working for the state he had a hand in the construction of two concrete bridges at Niagara Falls. Mrs. Wilson was the first woman to walk across the bridge to Goat Island.

After leaving the public service commission his most important work was the laying out of two townships and the construction of two concrete bridges in the Adirondack region. This work was for the International Paper Co., and was performed under most difficult conditions. It is considered one of his highest accomplishments.

In 1900, he entered the Rapid Transit and Railway commission of New York city as assistant engineer. He had charge of most difficult work in the subway and sewer department. He supervised the construction of the Oliver street sewer, the 39th street sewer and the 110th street siphon sewer. He was the principal assistant engineer when he retired in 1916.

Pierre Pullis of the New York Rapid Transit company who worked with Mr. Wilson in the subway department for over fifteen years says of Mr. Wilson: "He knew how to handle men. His men loved him. He never sent a man ahead into danger. He himself went first. Many groups of men worked under him at a time. He knew how to manage them. Always careful. He never had a cave-in. He was never late. When working until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning, he was on hand at 8 a. m."

One of his strongest characteristics was his hatred of notoriety. Time and again he turned away reported bent on writing him up.

Mr. Wilson was buried with Masonic honors in Carey cemetery, Canterbury. The funeral service in the Congregational church was led by Rev. Walter Stone. A choir of male voices assisted, Mr. Hart Goff, Mr. Arthur Tracq, Mr. Herbert Tracy.

Mr. Wilson was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers both New York and Connecticut divisions of the New York State Society of Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors; of Canterbury grange and De Peyster lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, also Ogdensburg chapter, R. A. M., No. 64.

Besides his wife Jennie Jackson Wilson, Mr. Wilson leaves two daughters, Mrs. Leila Reed, wife of Dr. Ralph L. Reed of Central Islip, L. I., and Mrs. Herbert Tracy of Plainfield, Conn. A son Walter was one of the first volunteers in the Canadian expeditionary corps and fought and died in France in the first year of the World war.

Mrs. J. Howard Dalzell of Ogdensburg, N. Y., who was brought up from childhood by Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, attended his funeral.

The largest German shipbuilding yards, at Hamburg, where famous ships such as the Vaterland and Bismarck were constructed, has just celebrated the 50th anniversary of their founding.

BLOOD POISONING PREVENTED BY PROMPT ACTION

Mother tells of soothing ointment that should be in every home

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 15:—"My baby's arm was burned very badly and a neighbor advised me to apply Resinol Ointment. I did and the arm healed in no time and I had no trouble with it. Now I always use Resinol at once when the children are cut or scratched or burned or hurt in any way that might cause blood poisoning, as I find that it stops the hurting and heals so quickly. I really think it is the best on the market and I absolutely would not be without it in my home."—(Signed) Mrs. Frank Haberman, 611 Kelton Ave.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Hunger Wins

Too oft the stomach rules the brain
And much is lost for little gain.
—Old Mother Nature.

Little Bears are very like little boys. The stomachs of little Bears get empty, just as do the stomachs of little boys. It doesn't take them a great while to get empty. It was just that way with Cubby, Buster Bear's woebegone little cub up in a tree in Farmer Brown's dooryard. It was some time since he had had anything to eat. You see, he hadn't had a chance to get anything to eat before he got into trouble there in the pantry of Mother Brown. So, after a while, Cubby was doubly uncomfortable. The paste with which his coat was covered made him uncomfortable and emptiness of his stomach made him uncomfortable.

He got to thinking about food. The more he thought about something to eat, the more it seemed to him that he just must have something to eat. So when Farmer Brown's Boy came out with a plate full of food and held it up so that Cubby could see it, he just had to dig his claws into that tree to hold on and keep himself up there.

Farmer Brown's Boy talked to him. "Come down, you rascal," said he. "I'm not going to hurt you. Come on down and let me see what I can do with that paste. My, such a sight as you are! I don't know how we'll ever get you clean again. Now come down and get something to eat and then we'll take a bath."

But Cubby wouldn't come down. He

Cubby looked down, his mouth began to water still had that sense of having been in mischief and he was afraid to come down. Finally, Farmer Brown's Boy went off and left the plate of food at the foot of the tree. He took Bowser the Hound with him. Otherwise, Bowser might have eaten up all that food. Cubby looked down. His mouth began to water. "I won't go down. I won't, I won't," said Cubby over and over to himself, and each time he said it he moved down a foot or two. So he kept talking to himself and saying over and over that he wouldn't go down, and all the time he was going down.

By and by he got down to the lowest branch. From this he could lean down and look straight into that plate of food. He could even smell it. He prepared to back down the trunk of the tree, but before he did it he glanced over at the house. He saw Farmer Brown's Boy peeping around the corner. Instantly he scrambled up again. He scrambled halfway up the tree. "He won't catch me," muttered Cubby. "No, sir, he won't catch me. I don't care if I do have to go hungry." Five minutes later he was down to that lower branch once once.

This time he sat there for quite a while, looking first at the house and then at the food; then at the house again. All the time his little stomach fairly ached with longing. Finally he could stand it no longer. He turned and scrambled backward down the trunk of that tree and buried his nose in that dinner that was awaiting him there. Hunger had won. He hadn't wanted to come down out of that tree, but for his stomach's sake he was down. Farmer Brown's Boy cautiously stepped out from behind the corner of the house. Cubby went right on eating, but he kept one eye on Farmer Brown's Boy. Farmer Brown's Boy took a few steps toward him. Cubby started to shin the tree. Farmer Brown's Boy stood still. Cubby waited. Farmer Brown's Boy didn't move. Cubby once more dropped to the ground and began eating greedily.

Where Lies the Land?

Where lies the land to which the ship would go?
Far, far ahead, is all her seamen know.
And where the land she travels from? Away,
Far, far behind, is all that they can say.

On sunny noons upon the deck's smooth face,
Linked arm in arm, how pleasant here to pace;
Or, o'er the stern reclining, watch below
The foaming wake far widening as we go.

On stormy nights when wild northwesters rave,
How proud a thing to fight with wind and wave!
The dripping sailor on the reeling mast
Exults to bear, and scorns to wish it past.

Where lies the land to which the ship would go?
Far, far ahead, is all her seamen know.
And where the land she travels from? Away,
Far, far behind, is all that they can say

—Arthur Hugh Clough.

MEETING THE FARM PROBLEM

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Why isn't farming as prosperous, today, as it used to be?

You'd think, from the number of editorials and pamphlets and books written and the volume of speeches made about it, that there was something mysterious and puzzling about the question.

There isn't.

It is just as simple and easy as A, B, C.

(A) He doesn't, as a rule, get fair prices for his product or his labor.

(B) He is charged more than fair prices for such things as he can't produce but has to purchase.

(C) He demands, as daily necessities, things which his grand-dad never even dreamed of as attainable luxuries.

And, also as a general rule, he tries to do business "on a shoe string," knowing all the time that in an emergency he will need a three-inch cable, double-twisted and hard stranded, to hold to anything solid.

Take (A) to begin with. A solitary example will suffice to illustrate the fact. Twenty-five years ago we chicken-growers of this secluded valley could buy chicken food for about a dollar a 100 pounds. Some cost a little more some a little less. We could sell our fresh eggs for 25 cents a dozen. Today our chicken food costs us from $2.50 to $3 a 100 pounds.—and the egg-buyers who scour the rooral deestricts for eggs offer us 35 cents a dozen. You note the discrepancy? We pay from two-and-a-half to three times more for egg-making food but get only about a third more for the eggs. And, if we try to reduce the cost of our chicken-feed by raising it for ourselves on our own farms, we speedily discover that the cost of the seed and fertilizer and hired help necessary to produce it is likely to be greater than what we can buy it for at the feed-store.

To make things even reasonably fair, we should get from 70 to 75 cents a dozen for our eggs. A few, who have selected customers in the moneyed class and deliver the eggs daily or bidaily, may get such prices. They are not for the most of us. We pay three times more to produce the eggs, and then get only one-third more for them.

If it were only eggs which were in this dilema, we could solve it by stopping all attempt to produce eggs. But when we look over the fields of opportunity open to us in other farm directions we find about the same condition prevailing in all of them. I used to hire a man and team to do my haying for $4 a full day, and could sell the dried hay for $20 a ton. Now I have to pay a lazier and less efficient man $10 for an eight-hour "day," and the latest hay I've heard of being sold brought the farmer $10 a ton.

Once in a dog's age, a combination of backward season and widespread rot boosts the price of potatoes, so that the lucky few who have any left to sell get adequate prices. Whereupon the entire consuming community stands up on its hind-legs and brays "Shark!" at them with 40,000,000 jackass power of lung.

The farmer who could be assured of 75 cents a dozen for his eggs, and $1.50 a pound for his butter, and $4 a bushel for his potatoes and onions, and $40 a ton for his hay, and $50 a ton for his cabbages, and so on through the list, might break even, at least. Even at such prices he'd be in no imminent danger of getting rich overnight.

Do you know of any body who's getting 'em?

Consider the clause (B). Some years ago I used, when I found a suitable length of hickory in my wood, to take it to a neighboring carpenter who shaped it into ax-helves on a 50-50 basis. That is he kept half and gave me half. The other day, I asked the same carpenter, now grown pretty old, if he still felt able to turn out ax-helves. "Oh, yes," he answered: "If you've got a good bit of hickory, bring it up and I'll give you one helve out of every five."

About 1910 I had one of the two big chimneys in the old farmhouse rebuilt from the roof up, using the old bricks over again. The mason furnished his own cement, built his own scaffolding, and charged me $5 for the job. The other day, I asked another mason what he would charge to do an exactly similar job on the other chimney of the same size. He walked around the house two or three times, figured a bit on an old envelope, and then said he "guessed" he could do it for $20. —if I would furnish the cement.

I have still,—and occasionally wear, —a pair of fine dress shoes which I gave E. G. Bidwell $5.50 for. You can guess how old they must be and of what good stuff they must have been made, if you'll look it up and see how long it is since E G. Bidwell was running a shoe-shore on Main street. I can't buy a pair of shoes today that look as well as those did when they were new regardless of their unknown wearing quality for less than $18.

I recently heard of a watermelon grower in Georgia who is getting a trifle over six cents apiece for his melons, big and little, delivered at the railroad. Yesterday, I passed a street stand in a neighboring city where such melons were on sale at 65 cents for the smaller and 95 for the larger.

My old scythe-snath is getting wobbly. I paid 50 cents for it, a good many years ago. Thinking it might be cheaper to buy a new one than try to coddle up the old one for another struggle with the fence corner, I asked the dealer the price of one which seemed to fit my style of mowing. It was $2.35. I'm going to use the old one till it breaks in two, and then swear off for good!

The last coal I bought—and that was before the big strike which Roosevelt finally settled,—cost me $9.50 for two tons. I've burned wood ever since and find it cheaper and more satisfactory, having my own mountain to draw on. But those of my neighbors who still lay in anthracite pay from $14 to $15 a single ton for it, now.

So on, through practically the whole list of things we can't produce but must buy if we use. While the supplies the farmer has to sell have risen from a quarter to a half in price, the supplies he has to buy have gone up from two to four times. Is it any wonder he has a struggle to make both ends meet?

At the same time, under the clause (C), the farmer's demands for what were once considered luxuries have increased greatly. In common with all other men he has come to consider many of them necessities. Talking with an old farmer, recently, he remarked: "When I was a small boy, I got just one orange a year, at Christmas, as a special treat, and, once in a while, father brought me from the store a stick of red-and-white striped candy which cost him a penny. Now, my son wants his grapefruit for breakfast, and his bananas for between-times, and his soda every time he goes to the drug-store, and my girl thinks nothing of making away with a 50 or 75 cent box of chocolates every week or less."

Also, we want finer furniture, and china instead of stone-ware, and silk stockings instead of woolen hose, and telephones and radios and electric lights and automobiles, and 'steen other comfortable and comforting contrivances which our dads and grandmothers never even imagined possible for millionaires.

There is no more reason why we shouldn't have all these things than why other workingmen shouldn't have them.—if they and we can afford them. But it is still true that he who calls the dance must pay the piper.

Oh, it's easy enough to tell why farmers are no longer so prosperous as they want to be or as they should be or as they used to be. There's no sense in making a mystery of it and calling on highbrowed professors and economically expert detectives to find out for us. We know well enough, if we only use our own brains.

But when it comes to finding a remedy,—ah, that's quite another horse of an entirely different color! The disease is easy enough to diagnose, but that doesn't tell us where to look for the cure.

I understand that Messrs. McNary and Haugen thought they had a bill before congress which would do the trick. And Mr. Lowden has another plan. And Secretary Jardine still another. And 40-11 self-appointed doctors think they have an equal number of panaceas.

It may have been true in Solomon's time that "in the multitude of counsellors there is safety." But it isn't so in these latter days. A truer statement would be that in the multitude of counsellors here is confusion.

Seems to me one trouble is that all these people are assuming that there's just one universal farm problem, and are trying to compound a dose to hit it when, as a matter of fact, there are just about 10,000,000 individual and distinct farm problems, each one confronting a single farmer. There is something absurd in the idea that the same treatment which would help Hank Henderson out in Iowa would be equally good for John Smith in Maine and Tom Jones in Windam county. It is only the quack who claims that his medicine is a cure for grippe and cancer and blind staggers, as sure for one as for the other. The competent physician recognizes that what may cure the measles isn't entirely suitable for a case of arthritis.

Things being as they are and folks being what they are and "the spirit of the times" being such as it is it looks to one interested but not all-wise looker-on as if the best thing to do under the circumstances would be for each individual farmer to find out what his own particular and peculiar problem is: what he can't do about it, and what he can do about it.

Then go and do what he can with all his might; using his brains and his hands and his muscles and all the daylight God gives him.

That's better than starving to death, —or than spending all his life grumbling.

A STATEMENT BY PRESIDENT JAMES T. MORAN OF THE SITUATION WHICH NECESSITATES AN INCREASE IN TELEPHONE RATES

As indicated in recent newspaper advertisements, this Company is about to make various changes, effective next month, in its rates for telephone service in certain exchanges.

We cannot expect that those of our customers who are affected will be pleased at this news. We do entertain the hope, however, that with due knowledge and understanding of the conditions underlying the changes, they will accept our action as essential and of good faith.

The purpose of this statement is to set forth certain significant facts and to express our readiness to furnish any further information to those who may desire it.

The Fundamental Question

OUR business is being conducted to-day at an actual though small margin above requirements for expenses, taxes, interest, and dividends. Moreover, the number of customers grows larger each year. The natural question, therefore, is: If the Telephone Company is now earning even a slight margin of profit per customer, why does not this growth tend toward a larger aggregate margin instead of introducing a financial problem?

The starting point of the answer to this vital question is found in the fact that telephone service is the only utility or commodity in the world which depends for its value to the user upon the extent to which it is purchased by others. Every other item of home or business equipment is selected for the value that it holds in itself. But a single telephone is of no value in itself; it acquires the minimum value when it can be connected with one and only one other telephone; and this value becomes gradually enhanced as connections to other telephones are made possible. The telephone customer, seeking the full value of his service, very properly expects provision for potential connection between his own telephone and that of any other customer, near or far.

As applied to exchange service, this provision for complete inter-connection can readily be understood by first visualizing the initial telephone exchange as a single unit of equipment with one operator in attendance, and by then taking note of what must be accomplished as the exchange grows. In the course of time a second unit and a second operator become necessary. Naturally, the customers connected into the second unit wish to be able to talk with those connected into the first unit and vice versa. Each unit must, therefore, be so equipped that either operator may connect any two of the total number of customers. Similarly, when a third unit becomes necessary, each of the three operators must have the same connecting facilities as the other two — and so on as units are added to the switchboard from time to time.

This inter-connection of the several units of a complete switchboard is accomplished by duplicating the switchboard terminals of all customers' lines again and again throughout the switchboard at such intervals that the entire range is within reach of each operator. It is clear, therefore, that as the original one-position unit grows into a switchboard of many units, the amount of central office equipment per customer is unavoidably increased through the many and costly duplications of line terminals which are required to provide for complete inter-connection.

But this is not all. In the larger exchanges, the time comes when all units of a complete switchboard will no longer suffice for the telephone growth. A second central office, and later a third, fourth, etc., similar to the first, must be established. According to the varying possibilities of economical arrangements with respect to buildings and outside plant, these additional offices are housed sometimes in the same building and sometimes in separate buildings designed and constructed for the purpose. In either case, additional space must be provided for them; prompt, complete inter-connection between any two customers of whatever units must be made possible; inter-office cables must be installed to connect the various switchboards together; each central office must be equipped not only with its regular switchboard but also with a supplementary board where calls from the other offices are received and completed; and additional operators must of course be employed to handle these trunked calls. These requirements have even a more marked effect upon the cost of central office equipment per customer than has the expansion of a single switchboard, yet they are absolutely essential to the provision for complete interconnection which the customer fairly expects.

While much of detailed explanation could be added, we believe that enough has been stated to demonstrate that the telephone business differs from general business in the economic relation between expansion and financial results under constant prices; or, in other words, that the telephone business is unique because the addition of each new customer builds up the multiplicity of connections that must be available to all, and thus tends to increase the cost of plant and operation per telephone.

This adverse tendency, however, does not necessarily imply that repeated rate advances will be required through the indefinite future. In considerable measure we have been able to offset this tendency by developments in the art and by improved methods and practices in the conduct of the business. In fact, for many years prior to the World War we were able to do even more, and our rate history of those years is one of voluntary reductions. The present exigency results not alone from the tendency inherent in the business but in large part from another factor which is discussed under the following caption.

The Effect of Increasing Costs

AT the beginning of the World War the Company had been in business for thirty-five years, and had gradually installed a substantial amount of plant and equipment at the relatively low costs which prevailed during that period. At the close of 1916 the plant investment was $121.65 per telephone. Since that time the higher post-war prices have necessarily been paid not only for all new plant required for growth but for the replacements of the old low-priced plant worn out and removed from time to time. As a result, the plant investment per telephone was $167.61 at the close of 1926, and according to our five-year forecast will approximate $203.00 in 1931.

It is pertinent that while the increase in plant investment per station for the ten-year period between 1916 and 1927 was 37.8%, the increase in telephone rates for the same period was on the average only 19.3%.

Growth in Plant: Past, Present, and Predicted

A DOZEN or more years ago we considered that a budget of $2,000,000 for gross plant additions constituted a substantial program for a single year. For the last five years the average expenditure for such additions slightly exceeded $5,000,000 per year. According to the general forecast that we regularly maintain for five years ahead, the aggregate required during that period to provide for an expected growth of 85,000 telephones will be $42,600,000, or nearly as much as the total plant investment of the Company at the close of 1926 after forty-four years of operation. In the larger exchanges, old buildings are enlarged and new buildings are constructed to house the various central offices of the area; many of the smaller exchanges, for which a single room and the simplest of equipment once sufficed, come to require separate fireproof buildings and all the equipment attributes of city exchanges; experience demonstrates the merit of dial service for certain types of exchanges; cable replaces open wire not only in the local plant but in much of the toll plant; in short, the provision of facilities for expanding and improving telephone service is constantly going forward in every direction.

All this is as it should be; yet it is significant not only of the greater public acceptance of and dependence upon the telephone as a vitally essential utility, but also of the responsibility which attaches to us to plan and build accordingly. Our desire and obligation to keep all rates as low as sound business prudence will permit cannot be divorced from the primary obligation to provide ample facilities and adequate service.

IMPORTANT FACTS

Increased rates will become effective next month.

Not all exchanges in Connecticut will be affected by these rate increases.

Not all classes of service will be affected in all exchanges in which rates will be increased.

Increases will be made in rates for local exchange service only. Rates for toll service will not be affected.

Every telephone subscriber, whether to business or residence service or both, will be notified by mail during the present week whether or not his or her rate is to be increased, and if so, to what extent.

Financial Results: Past, Present, and Predicted

FOR many years, under act of Congress, the accounts of the Company have been kept according to the system prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission; and for no year during that period have the net earnings been as high as 6.5% upon the actual investment in telephone plant. For 1925 the return was at the rate of 6.37%; for 1926 it was at the rate of 6.21%; for the first six months of 1927 it was at the rate of 5.97%; and under the general forecast for the next five years it continues to average less than 6% even after giving effect to the impending rate changes.

The Southern New England Telephone Company has operated the telephone service for Connecticut continuously since 1882. During that entire period of forty-four years it has accumulated a surplus of $2,000,155, or an average of $45,458 per year. In terms of property investment, the Company stands to-day as a $50,000,000 institution, doing an annual business in excess of $14,000,000. Yet in no year of its existence has it earned in Undivided Profits an amount exceeding $410,000, and its annual return to stockholders has averaged almost exactly 6%. So much in answer to the possible and natural question as to whether the earnings of the Company reflect unfair exactions upon its customers.

Some Comparisons

SINCE 1914, certain telephone rates have been advanced, certain have remained unchanged, and certain have been reduced. The average of all these changes discloses an advance of approximately 19%. During the same period, according to the figures of the National Industrial Conference Board as this is written, the cost of living has advanced 65%.

By resolving each of these advances into the relative worth of the present dollar as compared with that of 1914, it becomes evident that the present dollar will buy 84 cents' worth of telephone service but only 61 cents' worth of those things which comprise the cost of living.

Stated in another way, the rates for telephone service, measured in terms of wages or of prices of materials or of the cost of living, are actually lower to-day than in 1914.

Surely this comparison evidences that we have sought no undue margin of profit and that the conduct of the business has been economically progressive

The Increased Value of Telephone Service

THE foregoing has dealt mainly with the problems and performance of the Company under service expansion. It now may not be amiss to comment briefly upon the development of service value to the customer.

After giving effect to the proposed changes, our rates will differ but little from those of 1902 — twenty-five years ago. At the close of that year the Company was providing service to 20,760 telephones in Connecticut; to-day the same company is providing service to 280,000 telephones within the same area. The quality of service, while never as good as we strive to make it, is undoubtedly superior to that of twenty-five years ago. We leave with you, therefore, the answer as to whether or not the service developments of this period have brought to our customers an enhanced value unreflected in telephone rates.

How the Rates Will be Changed

ALTHOUGH each subscriber is being advised directly as to such rate changes as are being made in the exchange with which he is connected, it may be appropriate to state here the general character of the proposed revision. Except for the correction of two rates which are clearly discriminatory and which apply to a relatively small number of customers, the substance of the revision is a re-grouping of exchanges by rates in accordance with present and probable variations in size. Basically, the present classification, consisting of six rate groups, has remained practically unchanged for more than twenty-five years. During that period the number of subscribers in each exchange has, of course, increased greatly; but the rates of growth have differed widely. As a consequence, certain exchanges which now bear little relationship to one another in the number of telephones or in the cost of rendering service are still grouped together. It is obviously unfair to continue to apply the same service rates to two exchanges, for example, which at one time had approximately the same number of telephones, when to-day one connects twice or three times as many customers as the other. To correct this condition, we are re-classifying the 71 exchanges of Connecticut into 11 rate groups. Under this re-classification the rates will be changed in varying degree in 38 exchanges. In 33 exchanges no changes are being made except to correct the two discriminatory rates referred to above. No changes are being made in toll rates.

A Summary

THERE is no magical resource in the conduct of the telephone business. Labor and materials must be obtained at current prices. Public recognition of the increasing value of telephone service is responsible for the great growth of the business. To meet this demand, we must construct more and more telephone plant, for which new capital is constantly required. Capital in turn must be secured from the investing public. In return for this capital, investors are entitled to fair wages in the form of interest and dividends. To pay fair wages for capital we must have adequate earnings. We cannot have adequate earnings without adequate rates for service. Therefore, we must ask the public to pay rates for service which will enable us to earn a reasonable return upon our property. The re-classification of exchanges for rate purposes, with an increased rate in certain of these exchanges, stands as the fairest and most logical resource for the additional revenue required at this time.

In our last annual report to stockholders, we stated:

> "In this matter of rates the concern of the patron is that of obtaining the best and the most service for the least payment that can consistently be required. The concern of the Company is that of obtaining through fairly apportioned charges an aggregate revenue sufficient to provide for adequate service and to maintain the business in a sound and healthy financial condition. Both of these requisites are entirely justifiable and our rate policy is based upon full acceptance of them."

We have only to add that no ultimate good can come from rates that are unfairly high or unfairly low. In the changes that we are about to make, we seek nothing beyond a proper balance of rates between exchanges of varying size, and an aggregate revenue sufficient to maintain the modest margin of the past few years, with such freedom of action as will enable us to go forward with projects and developments that will bring the best and the most of telephone service value.

To Our Customers

To us you stand as our only resource for patronage and good will. Of all our business problems, the most distasteful and disheartening are those which involve controversy with our patrons. We have written the foregoing as evidence of good faith in the step which we are about to take. If you find it obscure or unconvincing, we earnestly urge that you give us the opportunity for further explanation, to the end that the business relations between us may be maintained with mutual friendliness and confidence.

CANDIDATES FOR ELECTION BUSY IN SEEKING VOTES AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 1—All the nine candidates for office of member of council are working hard among their acquaintances in an endeavor to secure their respective elections at the polls a week from next Monday, when the first of two elections to select citizens who will guide the destiny of the city another year, will be held. The candidates are making a canvass of the city and some of them are using their fraternal connections in a further effort to bring about their success. There are three members of the board of school visitors to be elected and as there are only that number of candidates, all of the nominees are sure of being elected. Ballots will not be used at the elections for they have been supplanted by the voting machines. One machine has been in the main lobby of the municipal building two weeks while voters have been instructed in manipulation of the machine.

Nora C. Smith has sold a house and lot on Fourth street to Zachary Baranoff.

Miss Emily G. Knott, 25, daughter of Mrs. Abbie T. and the late Alvin Nott of 13 Amity street, died last night at the state institution at Mansfield, where she had been a patient for a long time. The body will be forwarded to Groveland, Mass., for burial.

Miss F. Mabel Brown, 49, daughter of John E. and Eva B. Brown, 30 Morgan street, died early this morning. Miss Brown had been an invalid for about ten years. She is survived, besides her parents, by a half sister, Mrs. Henry Mosher of New Haven. She leaves three cousins, Mrs. C. Harrison Whittemore, Mrs. Effie Chapman and Harold Brand, this city and an uncle, William Brown of Waterford. Miss Brown was born in Ledyard, but had resided in Waterford practically her entire life, moving to that town when a young girl, but taking up her residence in New London about four years ago.

Josiah M. Boyles was arrested on North Bank street last night by Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin on a charge of intoxication. He was also booked at police headquarters on a safe-keeping charge. Boyles, however, was not presented in the police court today, being discharged before the hour for holding court arrived. As a result of Boyles' discharge there was no session of court today.

John Coniten, 23, of Boston, who was arrested yesterday by Patrolman William Graham when found acting queerly on Main street, was detained at police headquarters over night. It was believed that Coniton's father, who resides in Arlington, R. I., would make arrangements for the return of his son. The father, when communicated with, failed to act in the interest of his son and this morning Coniton was provided with transportation to Providence by the charity department. He was taken to the union station and sent to that city on the train leaving New London at 11:25.

Henry Vincent is, perhaps, wiser by hours tonight, but tomorrow he may be still wiser, for he risked in an act recently that brought about his arrest tonight on a charge of perjury. Vincent is the driver of an automobile and has a license authorizing him to drive autos. He decided that his brother should also have a license, but not according to the rules of the motor vehicle department that compel the applicant to show his competency to drive and to pay a fee. Vincent went to the motor vehicle department, Bank street and said he was his brother, also stating that he had never been issued a license. Another officer from the state police barracks, examined Vincent and he proved his fitness to be given a license, besides answering under oath several questions which answers were false. He was given a license, but in his brother's name. These acts became known to the state police today and Officer Arthur Johnson was assigned to arrest Vincent. The officer came to New London and after a brief search for Vincent, located the offender and brought him to police headquarters where he was locked up. Later Louis Eifenbein qualified as surety on Vincent's bond of $200 and he was released pending the convening of court tomorrow.

STRUCK DOCTOR AND NURSE AS WELL AS POLICEMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 1—MacGregor Davidson, sailor at the United States Coast Guard academy evidently could not withstand the temptation of celebrating pay day tonight for he became drunk, was sent to a hospital to be treated for injuries sustained in a fight, only to be returned to a cell at police headquarters. He is being held for trial in the police court tomorrow on charges of intoxication and striking a police officer. That other charges are not imposed against Davidson tomorrow will be surprising for he attacked and struck a police officer and a nurse and physician. Davidson was on Green street about 6.30 o'clock and in a drunken condition he engaged in a verbal row with another sailor. The war of words was ended when Davidson was attacked and administered a severe beating, being knocked out. He fell to the gutter and there remained until a telephone message to police headquarters resulted in Patrolmen George Labous and Frank Linehan responding. When the officers reached Green street, Davidson was bleeding freely from head and face wounds and he was placed in the police auto and taken to Lawrence hospital. Enroute, Davidson attacked Officer Linehan, striking him a blow on the left side of the face that inflicted a severe bruise. When Davidson was taken to the hospital surgery, and while Dr. George P. Cheney was in the act of dressing the sailor's wounds, Davidson struck the physician a blow on the face and then hit the attending nurse a blow on the chest. Davidson was not handled mildly and after his wounds had been dressed he was landed in a cell to await punishment. When the police court gets through with Davidson he will have a trial for misconduct at the coast guard academy.

Mrs. Charles Dipillina, 35 Shaw St., reported to the police this afternoon that she had been robbed of a sum of money and jewelry. Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case and going to the Dipillina residence, Mrs. Dipillina informed him that at first she believed that she had been robbed of both money and jewels, but since making the report she had found the jewelry, but the money, about $23 was missing. She was positive that some one had entered the house during her absence, but there was not the slightest evidence of entrance having been forced, for windows and doors were intact.

Frank Shea, 55 West Coit street, was struck by an automobile, this evening. Shea was at the corner of State and Main street and at a time when traffic was heavy. A signal had been given pedestrians to stop, while another was given automobiles to proceed. Shea didn't want to wait to cross the street, so he started to run and in doing so he ran in front of an auto driven by Alvin F. Serensen, sailor, stationed at the submarine base. The auto struck Shea and knocked him to the pavements. He picked himself up and went to the sidewalk where it was revealed that he had sustained injuries no more serious than bumps and bruises. He did not go to the office of a physician, but went to his abode.

A sailor fight occurred tonight at the Salvation Army hotel, corner of State and Atlantic streets and for a few minutes it appeared as though a typical "gang" fight would result. A telephone message was sent to police headquarters asking for officers, but in the meantime the coast guard patrol arrived on the scene and ended what appeared to be a serious battle.

Harry W. Peck, son of Mrs. Josephine Peck of Portsmouth, Va., and Miss Ruth H. Lewis, daughter of Benjamin F. Lewis, Longmeadow, Mass., were married at noon today at the residence of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burdick, 213 Hempstead street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge and was witnessed by relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Peck will make their home in Norfolk, Va.

FLOAT FOR NORWICH FAIR MAY FEATURE "MISS N. LONDON"

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 1—The nature of the float that will be used to represent New London at the New London County Agricultural fair at Norwich this month, has not been decided upon. Councilor James A. May, chairman of the public welfare committee of the council, has proposed that New London's prettiest girl occupy a space on the float and to determine who the miss will be he has requested City Manager Holt to conduct some form of a beauty contest that the prettiest girl here may be selected. City Manager Holt is at a loss just how to conduct such a contest, but if the pretty girl idea is carried out, she will be selected next week. New London will have a float, that is sure, but just the character of the float is yet to be decided upon. It will, however, represent some form of history, depicting a part that this city portrayed in one of the wars.

FOAM FIGHTING FIRE HAS SPEEDY RESULT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 1—The demonstration of foamite by the New London fire department last night at Caulkins park was very successful and was witnessed by a score or more citizens and a representation of members of the Groton and Mystic fire departments. The demonstration was given to show the great extinguishing power of this form of fighting fires, where highly inflammable liquids are the cause or furnish the fuel for the blaze. The demonstration was conducted by Chief Thomas Shipman and Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds, with several hosemen from the various companies. An excavation had been made in the park and into it was pouring 550 gallons of kerosene. This was ignited and naturally, produced an immense volume of fire. After the oil had burned two minutes and while the flames were leaping high in the air, foamite was distributed upon the big mass of fire, causing it to be subdued in a minute and a half after the foamite had been played upon the burning liquid. The fire-fighting preparation was pumped from a hopper and through an ordinary line of regulation fire hose, being forced through the hose by water from a hydrant and in exactly the same manner as though water was being used to extinguish the fire. When the foamite left the nozzle and being mixed with water, it became a mass of foam and being played upon the burning oil quickly smothered what had been a roaring furnace.

Over a score of patients were discharged at Lawrence-Memorial hospital today. They were Frank B. Walker, manager of the Hotel Mohican; Mrs. Douglas McGrath and infant daughter, 715 Ocean avenue; Virginia Momm, 563 Ocean avenue; Clifford Vienette, 208 Crystal avenue; Mrs. Arthur Bougie and infant son, Golden Spur, East Lyme; Mrs. Dayton Atwood, Hotel Mohican; Thomas Doherty, 19 Tenth street; John Purcell, United States Coast Guard destroyer, Wilkes; Dudley Weaver, Blackhall; Betty Fraser, Blackhall; LeRoy Weaver, Blackhall; Jane Fraser, Blackhall; Miss Edna Brown, Mystic; Roger Keefe, 16 Hillside road; Mrs. James Marquardt, West Hartford; Herbert Laurel, 18 Robinson street; Miss Lydie Hopper, Lyme; Miss Madeline Laurel, 18 Robinson street; Donald Sinclair, Fishers Island; Mrs. Joseph Niel and infant son, 11 Pearl street; William Halliday, West Mystic and Miss Betty Woodworth, 26 Sanders street.

W. O. Bick, of Mystic; Master Samuel Eisenberg, 36 Boardwalk, Ocean beach; John Pilot, 11 Tenth street and Mrs. Marie Cimilucci, 36 Nameaug street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Leo Monroe, 20, of 50 Hempstead street, who disappeared mysteriously from his home last Tuesday and for whom the police were requested to aid in a search, returned to his home late yesterday. Monroe would not reveal where he went to, but his relatives are inclined to believe that he went to New Haven. Monroe suffered an injury to his head 10 years ago, which affected his brain and because of his mental deficiency, it was feared that harm might befall the young man.

Walter E. Mitchell, of Mystic, was arrested yesterday by State Police Officer Bernard Kennerson, Groton barracks, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle laws in failing to grant right of way. Mitchell will be in the Groton town court the 13th inst. Mitchell was arrested after Officer Kennerson had investigated a collision between automobiles driven by Mitchell and Edgar Richards, also of Mystic, on Willow street, Mystic. None of the occupants of the automobile were injured.

Mrs. Frederick C. Burrows, 17 Darrow street, is confined to her home suffering from injuries sustained Tuesday. Mrs. Burrows was walking along Truman street when she slipped into a small depression which danger spot has been reported by the police. Mrs. Burrows was thrown in such a manner as to wrench her foot and sprain her ankle.

Commander G. E. Wilcox, aide to Capt. H. G. Hamlet, commandant at the United States Coast Guard section base, 4, state pier, has returned to New London after spending two weeks at his home, in Baltimore.

FRED BURDICK INJURED—TAKEN TO BACKUS HOSPITAL

Fred Burdick was seriously injured Thursday morning while cleaning the windows in the Lawton mills. His clothing caught and he was carried around the shafting. He was taken to the Backus hospital. The extent of his injuries is not known.

John and Denny Sullivan and Mr. Fontaine were injured when the gasoline speeder on which they were riding left the rails.

Mr. and Mrs. Vaillant gave a party Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Murray of Worcester. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Gail B. Shamback of Willimantic and Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Mattison.

Bridge was played. Refreshments with punch and candy were served by the hostess.

Mrs. James Royle spent Wednesday in Providence.

Mrs. J. Sweeney is visiting in Providence.

DOG SAVES BABY FROM FALL DOWN STEEP BANK

In response to the fearful cries of Saul Silvers, three-year old son of Jack Silvers of Flanders road, Niantic, Tex, a large dog owned by the family, forced open a barn door, in front of which a large box had been placed, rushed across the yard and rescued the child, who was hanging over the edge of a steep bank, in front of the Silvers home Monday.

Mr. Silvers had been working in one of the chicken coops. The child was riding on a kiddie car. Suddenly the little boy, nearing the edge of the bank, fell from the car and went sliding to the bank's edge, crying out in fear as he realized his danger.

Mr. Silvers heard the cries, but before he could leave the hen coop, the dog, which had been in the barn, forced the door. As the boy's father left the coop, he saw the animal arrive at the place where the boy was in danger. When Mr. Silvers arrived he found his little boy suspended over the bank, while a sturdy dog, stood with braced feet, its teeth clenched on the boy's overalls.

After Mr. Silvers had pulled the boy back to safety, there was much noise. The boy cried and the dog did likewise. Mr. Silvers said that he had difficulty in keeping Tex quiet.

Tex is a hero now. He is a large dog, half German police and half hound. According to Mr. Silvers, he is strong as a bull and money cannot buy him. Two chickens were cooked by Mr. Silvers. Along with a quart of milk, they were given to Tex as a reward for his work.

Check for Firemen's Fund

Mrs. Carrie L. Pierson of West Main street has sent a check for $30 to Chief Howard L. Stanton, the money to be added to the firemens' pension fund. The check was sent in appreciation of the work done by the department at the recent fire on property belonging to the estate of Elmer R. Pierson and located at East Great Plain. The check was turned over to City Treasurer Harold S. Burt.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

Amid scenes of rare beauty among the fantastic formations of the canyons of the Mojave, Fox Films feature Desert Valley, starring Buck Jones, opens at the Breed theater today for two days only.

Comedy, thrills and suspense abound in this fine picture whose story deals with the feud of cattlemen over water rights.

Buck plays the part of an irrepressible cowboy, who has a knack for getting into trouble over other people's troubles. Virginia Brown Faire is the girl in the case and Malcolm Waite the ruthless owner of the water rights.

Hard riding, spectacular fighting and comedy of a rare order make this one of the best westerns seen locally in some time. This is a clean wholesome picture which the entire family will enjoy.

Scott R. Dunlap directed the production which is based on the widely read novel by Jackson Gregory.

Broadway Theater

One more day before the opening bered. All of the leading people of so- 7:30 p. m. and will be one of the big things of Norwich ever to be remem- of the Broadway theater. Saturday, cial and business life of New London will be on hand so come early and secure good seats. The box office is open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Don't wait until the last, the second balcony seats will be sold Saturday night at 7:30.

Naturally, folks have been greatly interested in the name of the opening attraction. Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in Fireman Save My Child, has been secured and every person who has seen these comedians in their previous successes will look forward with delight to seeing their latest. This picture will run until Wednesday, Sept. 7th, in order that as many patrons as possible can see it. The surrounding program is made up of the choicest short subjects available. The Elegy, one of the prize featurettes of the season has been booked. This picture is based upon the famous musical composition and will long be remembered as one of the "sweetest stories" ever told. "Robert Colberg, the violin leader of the new Broadway orchestra will play the solo parts for this picture and at a rehearsal a few days ago he won the applause of all his listeners.

A two reel comedy Short Socks with Bobby Vernon will make you start the laughs that will reach their height when the big feature is flashed upon the screen. The new Paramount News has been booked for the Broadway, and everybody knows that the Paramount goes about their feature production in a big scale. You will truly have the world before your eyes when you see this news.

The Broadway management will publish a weekly news magazine for their program which in addition to containing the current and coming attractions will carry items of interest about the theater and its activities. This little booklet will be mailed free to all patrons leaving their names and addresses at the theater. Requests for this weekly should be sent to the manager or any one of the attendants at the Broadway.

Palace Theater

Shows may come and shows may go, but it will be hard to beat the one now playing at the Palace for the last times today and tomorrow. Five great acts of vaudeville were presented and it would be hard to judge which one was better than the other. Truly a very good bill and we advise all to see it. The big act consisting of six people is a beautifully set song and dance revue that is different. Gordon and Gates in their comedy offering, We're All Crazy Now, was a howl. McCarthy and steward, The Wets and the Drys, is a comedy farce on both, and was accorded a tremendous hand. Vic Laurie a clever juvenile entertained with some songs and is a very bright musician. Dillon and Margaret, the musical aerialists opened the show with a unique musical act in the air. The feature screen attraction, Pola Negri in Barbed Wire, with Clive Brook and Einar Hanson.

Miss Negri in the role of Mona, a Normandy farm girl who is irresistibly attracted to and forced in spite of all instinctive hatreds to love a wartime German prisoner, reaches the sublime heights of her dramatic art. The opening scenes in their sheer beauty are reminiscent of Corot. The Normandy countryside bathed in so

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks strong; railroads start brisk buying movement.

Bonds firm; Erie "D" is rise with stock.

Foreign exchanges easy; Norwegian krone at new 1927 high.

Cotton firm; bullish crop estimates.

Sugar higher; firm spot market.

Coffee lower; weak Rio reports.

Chicago

Wheat firm; reduced crop estimates.

Corn steady; predictions cooler weather.

Cattle; steady tos trong

Hogs; higher.

MARKET WAS STRONG.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.(AP)—Speculative interest in today's markets was divided between the sharp recovery in stock prices and the rally of more than $5 a bale in cotton futures. Wheat also advanced about a cent a bushel, but the other commodities showed little change.

Banks called about $10,000,000 in loans around mid-day but plenty of call money was available at the renewal figure of 3 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady. The New York Federal Reserve bank announced no change in the 3 1-2 per cent. rediscount rate. Distribution of about $250,000,000 in dividend payments today was regarded as a bull factor on the theory that a good part of the funds would find its way back into the securities markets.

Price cuts on certain models of Chevrolet and Hupp cars was believed to anticipate competition with the new Ford models, but they failed to cause any unsettlement in the motor division. Pierce-Arrow preferred on which the recent omission of dividends was attributed to the low margin of profits following recent price cuts sank to another new low level. General Motors (old stock) touched 20 3-4, or within a point of the record high, and then slipped back to 249 1-2, after having sold as low as 245 1-2 earlier. Nash touched a new record top at 89 3-4.

Pool activities accounted for a number of new high records. The list included Allied Chemical, Commonwealth Power, Great Northern Ore, New York Dock, Kelly-Springfield, Mullins Body, General Electric, American Machine & Foundry nad Warren Bros., Booth Fisheries first preferred and Panhandle Producers & Refiners sank to new lows.

In the rail group, Atchison advanced more than a point, despite the pessimistic forecast of earnings by President Storey. Special buying of Western Maryland common sent that stock up more than 5 points to 62 3-8 while the second preferred moved up nearly as much to 62 1-4. "Nickel Plate," Reading, Wabash and Chesapeake & Ohio also made good gains despite the disappointing nature of current earnings and traffic statements.

The rise in cotton was influenced largely by the publication of private estimates indicating a yield of less than 13,000,000 bales. Bullish crop estimates also were behind the rally in wheat. Coffee closed 4 to 20 oinpts net lower but raw sugar futures were firm.

A further rise of 5 points in Norwegian kroner, which carried them to 26.19 cents, the highest level since the post-war depression, and a slump in sterling exchange, with demand bilsdown to $485 5-8 were the contrasting features of the foreign exchange market. Other changes were narrow and irregular.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. J. Odilon Dugas have sold their property on Shetucket street, Norwich, and have moved into one of the apartments of one of their houses on Merchants avenue.

The Wequonnoc school is to reopen for the fall term next Tuesday.

Leon Bessette of Norwich avenue has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the local mills.

The members of Castle Perilous, No. 3747, Knights of King Arthur, held a meeting Wednesday evening.

Robert Winchester, Carl Krauss and Lawrence Krauss of Blissville returned early in the week from Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Twarog of Norwich avenue are having a new residence erected on the road from the Blissville schoolhouse to Bundy hill.

The old board fence which for many years has done duty enclosing the school yard at the Wequonnoc school has been torn down and in its place is being erected a modern steel wire fence.

Among the advertised letters this week at the local postoffice is a letter for Ronald J. Reed, unknown to the postmaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Ovila Paul are soon to occupy the house on South B street vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Victor Gauvin and family who have moved to a house on South Third avenue.

Work on laying the new water pipes on Providence street has been held up because of the rainy weather. The diggers have now reached the top of Post Office hill.

Lester Pingree of North C street has returned from Groton Long Point where he has been spending a week.

Several of the private residences on Merchants avenue are undergoing improvements which is adding greatly to the appearance of the street.

Council Gagnon, No. 208, Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique held its regular monthly business meeting Monday evening at Parish hall.

Because of the regular meeting night falling on Labor day, the business meeting of the Taftville Social and Football club is to be held on September 12th.

Minor burglaries are being committed in the Merchants avenue-Hunters avenue section. People who have their refrigerators on their porches have lost everything edible on two occasions this week.

OLD 56TH REGIMENT TO UNVEIL MEMORIAL AT FISHERS ISLAND

World war veterans of the 56th regiment are to hold a reunion Sunday at Fort Wright, Fisher's Island and each member is contributing $5 to be used for the memorial to be unveiled there. Fort Wright is the old headquarters of the 56th regiment and it was there that the Third and Fifth companies, C. N. G., of Norwich, were mustered into the service shortly afterwards going to France where a number paid the supreme sacrifice. The veterans are scheduled to leave New London for the fort at 9 and 11 o'clock.

At 12 noon a business meeting is to be held and the unveiling of the memorial will take place at 1 o'clock. Dinner will be served at 2 o'clock and music for the occasion is to be furnished by the Fort Wright Military band.

Civilian boats are to be run to the island at various intervals during the day and it is expected that many people other than members of the 56th regiment will attend the unveiling ceremonies.

FORMER PUPILS AND TEACHER HELD REUNION

Many friends and twenty one former pupils of the Howard valley school in Hampton assembled at the old school house recently for a reunion with their teacher, Mrs. Ethel Riley O'Neil of Providence.

The event was in every way a success.

The old school bell called the "school in" and after the opening songs all joined in the Lord's prayer. A delightful hour was spent in recalling the happy school days of old. Some of the "boys and girls" present had received all their grammar school education with Mrs. O'Neil (Miss Riley) their teacher, she having taught the school for 10 years, leaving in 1913. She has since taught in Rhode Island. She is at present a teacher in First Hill school, North Providence.

A fine letter of greeting was read by Miss Dorothy Burnham. It was written by J. W. Dow, Hampton's first supervisor. He said in part: "Your letter of welcome to the Howard valley school reunion came today. Pleasant memories of the days in the school in Hampton come flooding back.

"Back in the days when we collected samples of our work for the exhibition at the capitol, the Howard valley school sent some of the best charts exhibited. The supervisor was very proud of his schools then and approvingly noted the favorable attention our work received.

"We remember the fine road maps of Hampton town before the days of automobile road maps and ours were even better than theirs because we made the largest ever. I had hoped to send some of our work to the reunion, but it is in storage in New Haven and the time is too brief.

"We can not think of a school without teacher and pupils all becoming one together. The valley school reserved to itself one of the best teachers a rural school ever had in Miss Ethel Riley."

Former scholars present were: Miss Dorothy Burnham, Bridgeport; Miss Beatrice Burnham Foster, East Hartford; Mrs. Marjory Burnham Ayers, North Franklin; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hackinson, Gales Ferry; Otis Whipple, Andover; Mrs. Mae Congdon Woodward, Wapping; Miss Josephine Congdon, Hartford; Andrew Kemp, Hampton; Mr. and Mrs. James Green of Hampton.

H. Quinton Howe, Windsor; Mrs. Thera Howe, Ellsworth, Burnside; Mrs. Rhena Howe Angell, Pomfret Center; Kermit Howe, Abington; Gordon Humes, Windham; Mrs. Elizabeth Humes Sebastian, Norwich; Miss Edith Burnham, Dorchester, Mass.; Mrs. Amy Burnham Hibbard, Windsor; Mrs. Ethel Burnham Green, Union; Mr. and Mrs. James McLaughlin, Hampton; Harry Mathews, Windham.

Friends from out of town were: Joseph Simpson of Willimantic; Mr. and Mrs. T. M. McLaughlin, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Griggs, Abington; Miss Ruth E. Howe, Abington; Mrs. Harry Mathews and daughter, Windham; R. E. Angell and children, Pomfret Center; Mr. H. S. Ellsworth and children of Burnside; Mrs. H. L. Howe and children of Windsor; Fred Foster and little daughter, East Hartford; Valentine Sebastian, Norwich; Tom O'Neil, Providence; Archie Green and daughters of Union.

All are grateful to Miss Dorothy Burnham for her effort to bring about this very pleasant reunion, also to Mrs. Fred Burnham for the fine clam chowder served, as well as ice cream and soda. Old time school games were played by the boys and girls of yesterday.

TELLS LOCAL LIONS OF NEW POWER LINE

President William R. Frisbie presided at the meeting of the Norwich Lions club, held Thursday at the Wauregan hotel, Dr. Kopland K. Markoff acting as song leader. The address during the meeting was by Joseph A. French, who spoke on the construction of a new power line from Montville to Meriden. The estimated cost of this work, he said, is about $500,000 and it is now about half completed. The purpose is to connect the steam power plant of the Eastern Connecticut Power company at Montville with the Connecticut Light and Power company at Meriden, the 45 mile line to handle 50,000 horse power on a 110,000 volt design.

Mr. French was applauded for his instructive talk and the meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

HELD SHOWER FOR RECENTLY MARRIED COUPLE

Monday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Walter Phillips, on Laurel Hill avenue, a shower was given in honor of the marriage of Dr. and Mrs. Roy C. Phillips, which occurred July 29th, at the "Little Church Around the Corner", New York city. The party was composed of relatives and intimate friends. The bride and groom were the recipients of many charming and useful gifts. Dr. Phillips rendered a much appreciated musical program on both the piano and violin, being accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Louis B. Allen. The past year Dr. and Mrs. Phillips taught in Roanoke College, Salem, Va.

PARTY FOR THEIR DAUGHTER'S 10TH BIRTHDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Lillie entertained on Tuesday afternoon in honor of the tenth birthday for their daughter, Phyllis. Games were enjoyed, after which the little folks gathered around the table which was decorated in pink with pink baskets and favors at each place. Sandwiches, cake and ice cream were served. Those present were: Misses Phyllis Bennett, Dorothy, Eleanor and Arline Beebe, Mildred McNeeley, Jean Wigley, Doris and Pauline Donohue, Arline, Phyllis and Elva Lillie and Kathrine Simcox; Richard and Buddy Leonard, William Lillie, Edward and Harold Manning. She received many presents. Mrs. Lillie was assisted by Mrs. Leroy Leonard and Mrs. Vera Manning.

Picnic lunch on hill behind the church.

Separate meetings will be held for the children, 6-17, for Friday afternoon and Saturday morning, ending at the church in time for the closing exercises, Miss Elizabeth B. Huntington, chairman.

TO RAISE $5,000 HERE FOR YESHIVA COLLEGE

George Greenberger and Michael Levine, prominent leaders of the Jewish community of this city, were asked to serve on the committee which is to launch a campaign here for the Yeshiva college of America, a National Jewish institution for higher learning in New York city, it was learned Thursday.

The Yeshiva college which is now being constructed in New York city to house the Yeshiva, the recognized Jewish institution for higher learning which trains rabbis and teachers, will be erected at a cost of $5,000,000. Leading American universities, including Columbia, City College of New York, Yale university, John Hopkins university, Harvard and many others, have expressed their endorsement of the program and plan of the Yeshiva college at the cornerstone laying exercises held recently in New York city.

President Coolidge on that occasion in a letter addressed to Dr. Bernard Revel, president of the faculty of the institution, stated that the Yeshiva movement is of importance not only to Jews but to America as a whole.

The amount of $2,500,000 has already been raised in New Kork city towards the amount necessary for the completion of the series of buildings. The other $2,500,000 is being sought now in a nation-wide campaign throughout the Jewish communities in the land. Norwich has been alloted a quota of $5,000.

RAINFALL FOR AUGUST WAS NEARLY SEVEN INCHES

With Stony Brook reservoir down 1 foot 10 inches from old full pond and Fairview reservoir down 55 inches from full pond on Tuesday, the rain of Thursday is expected to send both reservoirs nearly to full pond. Superintendant William H. Callahan stated Thursday that with both reservoirs in good condition there would be no occasion this year for using the pump at Stony Brook, as was done last year.

The rainfall for August this year totalled 6.82 inches and this being well above the average for the month, the 1926 rainfall during August totaling 3.89 inches. In 1926 Fairview was but 28 inches down from full pond at the end of August, while Stony Brook was down 9 feet 3 inches. This was due to the fact that Stony Brook was used extensively in order to provide pressure for the higher places in the city. This year both reservoirs have been drawn from about equally, and the heavy rainfall this past month has kept them well above average level for the month.

ANOTHER CONTRIBUTION TO ENVELOPE INDUSTRY

In the August issue of The Envelope Industry appeared the following paragraphs concerning The Lester & Wasley company of this city and one of the new machines it is producing in addition to envelope machines:

We had the privilege a short time ago when visiting the plant of The Lester & Wasley Co., at Norwich, Conn., to see one of the first of their Leader Deckling machines in operation. This machine put a deckle edge on a sheet of paper that would puzzle even an experienced paper man in telling from a natural water deckle produced on a paper making machine. Another interesting feature of this machine was the effect produced on inlaid pasted bristol. On stock of this kind with a colored center the deckling removed the top layer along the edge deckled thus exposing the colored filler giving the card a beautiful bordered effect. It is expected that this will be a large feature in the new line of greeting and announcement cards; one mill is already making this inlaid pasted bristol a stock item.

While at The Lester & Wasley plant the building just across the street was pointed out to us as where the self-gumming envelope machine industry had its infancy more than fifty years ago. After watching this new deckling machine we could not but feel that Norwich, Conn., had made still another notable contribution to the envelope industry.

GAVE SHOWER FOR MISS EVA PLANTE

Tuesday evening Mrs. Henry Plante of Palmer street gave a miscellaneous shower for Miss Eva Plante in honor of her approaching marriage to Robert Woodmansee. The bride-to-be received many and useful gifts. Those present were the Misses Anna and Alice Plante, Julia Welton, Loretta Lanoie, Edna Herbert, Mildred Dunn, Mena Krouse and Mrs. Joseph Plante, Mrs. Sam Hussey, Mrs. Leroy Leonard, Mrs. Everett Hiscox and Mrs. John McGrath. A buffet lunch was served by the hostess assisted by the Misses Alice and Anna Plante.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs. Albert Lewis has returned from Boston after a visit of a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus H. Vaughn of Williams street were entertained for ten days recently by friends in Assonet, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund A. Prentice, who have been in Mystic for several week have returned to their home on Cliff street.

During Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley of Slater avenue left for a motor trip of two or three weeks in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Charles W. Prentice of Washington street has had as her guests Mrs. Stanley Husted and Miss Gladys Husted of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Following a visit of two weeks with relatives in Sussex and Newark, N. J., Mrs. James Lewis Smith and Miss Carrie E. Rogers arrived home Thursday evening.

TRUCK ATTACHED HERE FOR CREDIT CORP.

Shortly before midnight Thursday Constable Meyer Blumenthal of this city, acting for Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Bilsh of Willimantic placed an attachment for $800 against the Reo truck owned by Louis Dupris of the town of Windham. The truck was located at the Commercial garage here. The atachment resulted from a suit for damages of about $400 brought against Dupris by the Commercial Credit corporation, a New York concern.

WITH PLANE ST. RAPHAEL STILL MISSING REVULSION ARISES TO OCEAN FLIGHTS

Report of a White Light, Probably Belonging to an Airplane, Sighted 280 Miles E. S. E. of New York, Gives Slight Hope of the St. Raphael and Its Passengers—Hope is Expressed That Legislation Might Be Enacted to Halt The Mounting Loss of Life—Thick Weather Prevents Two Projected Trans-Atlantic Flights.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—Strong revulsion against the false importance being given long distance flights, especially trans-oceanic, was manifested in three leading aviation countries today as fear for the lives of the St. Raphael's crew became sad certainty.

At Buffalo, N. Y., the committee of air laws of the American Bar association expressed hope that legislation might be enacted to halt the mounting loss of life. The Stinson Aircraft corporation of Detroit declared no orders will be accepted hereafter for planes intended for solo oceanic hops. From Washington, navy hydrographers called attention to the strikingly adverse conditions faced by the St. Raphael and declared these conditions might be expected to operate against other "immediate" eastward flights reported in prospect.

Characterizing the ocean flights as "a gambler's hazard," influential German dailies decried the importance being attached to them and urged that the men, machines and money be better spent in other lines of development.

In London, the government weather bureau arrived at the same conclusion that odds lie heavily against successful ocean flights at this stage of aviation. Not only in the present season, the analysis held, but for 365 days in any year, nature opposes the attempts with her twin weapons of fog and wind.

Despite the long list of missing, however, Capt. F. T. Courtney was at Plymouth, Eng., tonight ready to take off in his big air cruiser, "Whale," at dawn.

Some slight hope for the St. Raphael and its passengers, the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Captain Hamilton and Colonel Minchin, was revived in the report that a white light, probably belonging to an airplane was sighted by the Dutch steamer Blijdendijk at sea about 280 miles east southeast of New York.

The light was traveling in an easterly direction, however, and if it was the St. Raphael the plane was far off its course and going in the wrong direction.

Thick weather held two more planes, the Sir John Carling, flying from London, Ont., to London, Eng., and the Royal Windsor, enroute from Windsor, Ont., to Windsor, Eng., to the ground. They were forced down by fog, one near Montreal and the other near Caribou, Me.

Charles A. Levine is grooming his plane, the Columbia, for a take-off from Cranwell field, near London, with Capt. Hinchcliffe as pilot.

The Pride of Detroit flew from Constantinople to Bagdad, on the seventh day of its flight around the world and has now gone 5,025 miles.

SEARCH IS HANDICAPPED BY LACK OF INFORMATION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2—(AP)—Lack of information as to the likely whereabouts of the descent of the missing St. Raphael plane renders it virtually impossible for the American navy to engage in a search for the fliers, Acting Secretary Warner of the navy said today.

The situation is very similar to that created by the disappearance of Nungesser and Coli and Redfern, he declared and the area to be searched would be far too long for even the whole of the American navy to undertake.

The secretary indicated, however, that if either British or Canadian authorities should request assistance the navy would lend a hand.

FEELING IN GERMANY AGAINST OCEAN FLIGHTS

BERLIN, Sept. 2—(AP)—The uncertain fate of the St. Raphael coupled with the unsuccessful starts of the French Bluebird and Canadian planes Sir John Carling and Royal Windsor, coming on top of the failure of the Bremen and Europa to cross the Atlantic, has produced something of a revulsion of feeling in Germany against further trans-oceanic attempts, at least for this year.

Professor Hugo Junkers' message to the members of the crew of the Bremen pointing out the uncertainty of the trans-oceanic effort so late in the year has provoked wide comment and leaves newspapers to the regretful conclusion that with the advanced season risks have become too great for the undertaking.

WIND IN THE ATLANTIC PERPETUALLY WESTERLY

LONDON, Sept. 2—(AP)—Using twin weapons, wind and fog, nature opposes air flights from Europe to America, an expert of the British meteorological office told the Associated Press today.

"It is a fact well known to the world's meteorologists that the wind in the Atlantic is perpetually westerly. It is variable, its currents veering from southwest to direct west then northwestward, but all the year round fliers from Europe will encounter this wind. Its velocity varies, of course, with the months, but it is rarely less than 15 miles an hour, and frequently touches 55.

"A second factor which prejudices such flights is the fog bank which perpetually exists in either aggravated or slight condition off Newfoundland. At no time in the year is this fog bank entirely clear."

PRIDE OF DETROIT HAS ARRIVED AT BAGDAD

BAGDAD, Sept. 3—(AP)—The Pride of Detroit, round-the-world plane, arrived at Bagdad at 9.30 p. m.

Log of the Pride of Detroit

Sept. 2 (seventh day) Constantinople to Bagdad—a distance of 1,075 miles, making a total of 5,025, more than one-fifth circumference of globe. [illegible] of world record, 28 1-2 days, traversed western Europe on the seventh day.

Aug. 27-28—Harbor Grace, N. F., to Croydon, Eng., 2350 miles.

Aug. 29—Croydon to Munich, Germany, 600 miles.

Aug. 30—Munich to Belgrade, Jugoslavia, 500 miles.

Aug. 31—Belgrade to Constantinople 500 miles.

Sept. 1—Delayed at Constantinople by Turkish authorities.

ROYAL WINDSOR IN FIELD TOO ROUGH FOR TAKE-OFF

ST. JOHNS, Que., Sept. 2—(AP)—The monoplane Royal Windsor, forced by fog to interrupt its flight last night from Windsor, Ont., to Windsor, England, will not resume its journey before daybreak tomorrow. This was decided by the crew late today.

Repairs made necessary by their forced landing in a hayfield at St. Gregoire, six miles from St. Johns', were completed this afternoon, but the fliers found that the field was too rought for a take off. A gang of men worked for several hours scraping the field and levelling it.

CARLING PLANE IS FOGBOUND AT CARIBOU, ME.

CARIBOU, Me., Sept. 2—(AP)—With fog as well as rain prevailing here and fog reported at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, the next scheduled stopping place, late today, the prospects that the monoplane Sir John Carling would resume its interrupted flight from London, Ontario, to London, England, tomorrow were considered dubious.

COURTNEY READY FOR OCEAN FLIGHT TODAY

PLYMOUTH, England, Sept. 2—(AP)—Captain F. T. Courtney aboard the Whale landed here at 5 p. m. to take on a fresh load of petrol and start his trans-Atlantic flight at dawn Saturday if the weather remains favorable.

WINDS ARE AGAINST AIR TRIP TO ROME

ROOSEVELT FIELD, Sept. 2—(AP)—A persistent cross wind blowing directly from the southwest over the runway, late today gave J. D. Hill and Lloyd Bertaud pilots of the monoplane Old Glory, little hope of making a start on their proposed non-stop flight to Rome, which had been anticipated this morning.

FRENCH AIRMEN TO TAKE DAY OFF TODAY

LE BOURGET, Sept. 2—(AP)—French transatlantic fliers are taking a day off tomorrow. Announcement that there would be no flights attempted Saturday morning came somewhat as a disappointment to boulevardiers.

The Bluebird after a flight that failed today will need retouching in its stabilization and heavy load lifting equipment. Farman brothers, builders of the plane and their technical men had a long conference with Pilots Leon Givon and Pierre Corbu, who were forged back by fog after starting for America today. It was decided to make necessary changes Saturday and it was expected that the plane would be ready to try again Sunday.

Dieudonne Coster and his Breguet plane remain at Villa Coublay, the weather an reporting that deep sheets of fog enveloping the entire French coast from Dunkirk to Bordeaux.

SENATOR BINGHAM TO VISIT SUMMER WHITE HOUSE TODAY

RAPID CITY, S. D., Sept. 2—(AP)—Convening of a special session of the senate this fall to give it an opportunity to consider contested election cases will be considered by President Coolidge in conferences with senate leaders upon his return to Washington. It was stated today at the executive offices that Mr. Coolidge is not aware of the exact standing of the contested cases but he thinks it might be helpful to take these up ahead of the regular meeting time in December.

Two contests are pending—for the seats of Senator Smith, of Illinois, and Senator Vare of Pennsylvania, both republicans. Some senate leaders have predicted that a long time will be required to dispose of the contests which were started by the campaign funds committee headed by Senator Reed, demovrat, of Missour. This committee charged excessive expenditures by the two senators in their primary campaigns.

Senator Bingham, republican of Connecticut who has been in China, will call tomorrow night.

PROFESSOR FORGOT WHAT QUESTION HE HAD ASKED

LEEDS, England, Sept. 2—(AP)—Jokes about the "absent minded professor" are common enough in humorous paragraphs in newspapers but Leeds this week is experiencing the real thing, with the annual meeting of the British Association for the advancement of Science.

While there have been several reported instances of professional absent mindedness, the palm thus far must be awarded to one scientist, who after having put a question to a clerk in the reception department at the town hall and received a satisfactory answer, returned shortly afterward and wanted to know what was the question he had asked.

Another professor, while on route from London to Leeds, lost his luggage and also his entire collection of lantern slides illustrating a lecture. At Leicester he left the train to send a telegram and forgot about the train until it had pulled out.

Cholera Adds Horror to Chinese Warfare

Bodies Piled High on River Banks and Hundreds Floating in the River.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 2—(AP)—Cholera is reported to have joined the forces of the nationalist troops in pushing General Sun Chuan-Fang's northern army back from the Yangtse, where, according to nationalist accounts, the general lost 20,000 men in combat during the heavy fighting of the past week. Foreign dispatches from Nanking state that a cholera epidemic is taking a heavy toll among the soldiers in that district.

"Bodies are piled high on the river banks," say the vernacular papers here, "and hundreds are floating in the river. It is impossible to bury the dead. The medical aid is most inadequate."

General Sun Chuan-Fang's rapid and spectacular drive to the Yangtse from Shantung during recent weeks, in which he forced back the nationalists to the south of that great waterway, would appear from dispatches received here to have collapsed completely. The northerners are said to be retreating along the Tientsin-Pukow railway, having reached Chuchow, leaving Pukow in the hands of the nationalists.

The nationalists announce that the way to Peking is once more open. General Sun Chuan-Fang's reported sudden retreat northward is explained in dispatches as being mainly due to the fact that the Hankow forces, previously announced as planning to join the Nanking moderate nationalists, are said to be taking an active part in the renewed nationalist drive. The Hankow contingent is said to be pushing through Anhwei province toward Uengpu.

During the past week the heaviest fighting has occurred on both banks of the Yangtse, from Nanking 50 miles downward.

The nationalists are said to have defeated the strenuous attempt of the northerners to establish strongholds on the south banks of the river, the northerners finally crumbling because of lack of reserves and ammunition.

Auto Crashed Rail of Niagara Gorge

Plunged Down 100 Feet to a Ledge—Man and Woman Instantly Killed.

NIAGARA FALLS, Sept. 2—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Desmond Huxley of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, were instantly killed and their seven-year-old daughter was fatally hurt this afternoon when their automobile crashed through a guard rail at the edge of Niagara gorge and plunged down 100 feet to a ledge of rock. The man and woman were killed instantly. The child died at a hospital two hours later. The accident occurred at the foot of Ellis street, mid-way between the upper and lower steel arch bridges.

It was said by spectators that the Huxley car was crowded off the pavement by a southbound automobile.

The machine swerved sharply off the roadway, ran over the unpaved space occupied by the tracks of the scenic railway route and plunged through the iron guard rail. Over the edge of the cliff at this point there is a sheer drop of about 100 feet.

The automobile grazed the side of a tree on the top of the cliff and with no other obstruction to stop it, plunged down to a rock ledge, mid-way between the upper and the lower river banks.

All three occupants were thrown out of the automobile as it struck the ledge at the foot of the vertical face of the bank, the machine bursting into flames and rolling still further down a gradual slope to within a few feet of the water.

The King's Signet

In the old days the bearer of the king's signet was a person of the first importance. There are hundreds of trade-marks today which mean as much in the realm of commerce as the king's signet once meant in the realm of government.

To the buying public they represent honest manufacture, sound value, fair pricing. They are recognized everywhere as the passports to public preference. Yet this confidence was not won in a day. It was built up slowly, conscientiously, on the solid foundation of quality and straight dealing. Above all, it required systematic and truthful advertising.

Advertisements are messengers sent by dealers of established reputation to tell where you can buy economically and to best advantage. They bear the badge of authority, the stamp of reliability, the king's signet of honest worth. They are worth your confidence and respect.

TWO EAST PROVIDENCE MEN HELD FOR ROBBERY

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 2—(AP)—Raymond Morgan, 38, and St. George Livingston, 20, both of East Providence, described in court as "men wanted all over the United States," were held in $7,500 each in court here today on the charge of robbing the home of Wells Woodman at Falmouth Foreside of goods valued at $100.

George Lambert, 11, of Niagara Falls, New York, who admitted being with the men for the last month, was not arrested.

Officials declared one of the arrested pair admitted they had committed robberies in Vermont, New Hampshire and Ohio. A bundle of pawn tickets indicated they had left gold pins and unset diamonds in pawn shops at Rochester, N. Y., Toledo, New Haven and St. Paul.

HEADS OF THEATRE TICKET AGENCIES ARE INDICTED

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—The heads of two theatre ticket agencies were indicted by the federal grand jury today as a further step in the recently concluded federal investigation into alleged "ticket gouging."

The federal body's indictments charged the Pathe Ticket Service Corporation and Russell M. Unruh, said to be its head; also Henry Alpert of the Ideal Theatre Ticket Service, with having violated the federal law in making false tax returns of receipts from the sale of theatre tickets.

BRIDGEPORT, Sept. 2—(AP)—Bayard Veiller of Darien, a writer has failed to supply it with a story titled "Wet or Dry," according to an action filed in the superior court here today by the Universal Pictures corporation of New York city. The plaintiff claims that the defendant agreed to furnish the story and accepted a $1,000 payment in advance. Now the motion picture corporation seeks to recover that $1,000 as damages.

CAPT. JOHN W. SINGER, ARMY AVIATOR BURNED TO DEATH

HONOLULU, Sept. 2—(AP)—Captain John W. Signer, an army aviator, was burned to death today when an airplane he was piloting struck high power wires near Schofield barracks. Private Riley, who was flying with Signer, was slightly injured.

After striking the wires the plane flew 150 yards before crashing to earth and catching fire.

Capt. Signer was born in Minnesota in 1889.

ON 2,222 MILE FLIGHT FROM MEXICO CITY TO JUAREZ

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 2—(AP)—Lieut. Carranza of the Mexican federal army took off from Mexico City at at 4 o'clock this morning on a solo non-stop flight to Juarez, a distance of 2,222 miles, it was announced here.

The flight is considered exceedingly hazardous owing to the vast stretches of mountain and desert country where a forced landing would make it impossible for him to communicate with the outside world for weeks.

PLANE AVERAGED ABOUT 100 MILES HOUR FOR 1,222 MILES

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 2—(AP)—Piloted by L. Emilio Carranza, a plane which hopped off this morning from Mexico City landed at a Fort Bliss near here about 4 p. m. today. The flying time was 11 hours and 28 minutes. The plane averaged about 100 miles an hour over the distance of 1,222 miles.

HAS MACNIDER RESIGNED AS ASS'T SECRETARY OF WAR?

Army and Navy Journal is Authority for the Statement That MacNider Has Resigned, Effective December 1—The Journal Will Also State That MacNider Has Been Dissatisfied With the Way the Budget Bureau Has Been Treating War Department Estimates—Unqualified Denial Made by MacNider.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2—(AP)—The Army and Naval Journal in its issue tomorrow will say that Hanford MacNider has resigned as assistant secretary of war, effective December 1.

MacNider, who has been with the war department a little more than two years, could not be reached late today.

The Army and Navy Journal will say that it has not been disclosed what is responsible for MacNider's resignation, although, its article will say he has been dissatisfied with the way the budget bureau has been treating war department estimates.

There have been persistent reports that MacNider might see the republic an senatorial nomination in Iowa, his home state, but no confirmation of such rumors have come from the assistant secretary.

MacNider, accompanied by his wife, went to Philadelphia yesterday and from there started on a motor trip which they expected would take them into New England. Ataches of his office here said they did not know exactly where to locate him, and did not expect him to return before Tuesday. They all denied knowledge of any intention on the part of the assistant secretary to resign.

Secretary Davis of the war department as well as Assistant Secretary Davison were both out of Washington tonight.

HANFORD MacNIDER DENIES TENDERING RESIGNATION

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—The New York Herald-Tribune will say tomorrow that Hanford MacNider when seen at the Hotel Vanderbilt tonight denied that he had tendered his resignation as assistant secretary of war.

"It's all news to me," Mr. MacNider said when shown a Washington dispatch quoting the Army and Navy Journal as saying that he had resigned effemtive Dec. 1.

"This is the second time this has been reported," he added. "A month ago another service journal had both Secretary of War Davis and myself resigning, and running for senatorship in our respective states."

"As far as I am concerned," Colonel MacNider continued, "I have no intention of resigning and none whatsoever of running for any public office. I have never run for public office and I have no expectation of doing so.

"When I resign—or when I am fired—there will probably be no secrecy about it. There is no immediate prospects of anything of the sort."

$50,000,000 BENEFITS DERIVED UNDER GROUP INSURANCE

HARTFORD, Sept. 2—(AP)—Families of nearly 27,000 American workmen will receive $50,000,000 this year in benefits derived under group insurance; it was estimated by the Travelers Insurance company today. The 1926 group insurance disbursements totaled $37,081,002.

At the end of 1926, fifteen years after this type of insurance originated in its modern form, seven leading companies had in force group insurance of five and a quarter billion dollars, covering the families of approximately five million workers, it was said.

Few employes carry insurance other than a small burial benefit and for various reasons 30 per cent. could not get insurance if they wanted it, insurance officials declared.

Disbursements this year, estimated on the basis of those made in 1926, it was announced, will include payment of $38,500,000 on account of death by disease of 18,800 employes; $4,990,000 as a result of death by accident of 2,700 wage earners; $5,374,000 because of permanent total disability to 2,900; and $4,286,000 as a result of miscellaneous causes involving 2,300 employes.

15 DAMAGE ACTIONS FROM AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

BRIDGEPORT, Sept. 2—(AP)—Fifteen damage actions arising out of automobile accidents and in which a total of $126,500 is sought were filed today in the superior court. Among the suits filed are the following:

Magdalena Spetpan, Greenwich, asks the largest amount, $50,000 for deafness she alleges was caused by injuries she received in the accident December 21, 1926, in Stamford when she was struck by a car owned by Samuel D. Cushing of Stamford and operated by his son, John D. Cushing. The plaintiff brings her action against the Cushing car.

Damages of $10,000 are asked of Ray Utaloski, Stamford and the Stamford Transit company, in an action brought by Anna K. Fitzmaurice of Stamford, administratrix of the estate of William D. Kingsley, also of Stamford. On February 3, 1927 in Stamford, Kingsley was struck by a taxi owned by the defendant company and operated by Utaloski. In a subsequent finding, Coroner John J. Phelan held Utaloski criminally responsible for the death. The action against him is pending in the criminal superior court.

AUTO RAN INTO AN ONCOMING TROLLEY CAR

WATERBURY, Sept. 2—(AP)—Two men are believed dying of injuries received when the touring car in which they were riding went off the road and crashed into an oncoming trolley car near the Platts Mills road on the Naugatuck-Waterbury road here tonight.

Both men are unconscious in the hospital and authorities there have not yet completed identification. One had a letter in his pocket bearing the name Charles Gerber, Union City, of Spring street. The other had no clues to his identity on his person. The car is registered in the name of John Pokes, R. F. D. number one, Naugatuck.

A witness to the accident stated that the car seemed to skid off the road, just as the trolley was approaching. The trolley stopped as the car struck it. Both men, the only occupants of the car were thrown to the trolley tracks unconscious.

13-YEAR OLD TWIN SISTERS SWIMMING ENGLISH CHANNEL

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, Sept. 2—(AP)—The 13-year old twin sisters, Phyllis and Bernice Zittenfeld of New York, started at 11.43 o'clock tonight in an attempt to swim the English channel.

They were followed by Miss Lorna Marriot, the British swimmer, who was forced to abandon an attempt yesterday. She entered the water at 11.50.

A light northeasterly breeze was blowing. An enthusiastic crowd cheered them on their way.

LINDBERGH HAS LANDED AT CHEYENNE AIRPORT

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Sept. 2—(AP)—After circling Cheyenne and Fort D. A. Russell several times, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed safely at the airport here at 1.57 p. m. (mountain time) after a trip from Pierre, S. D.

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF A GAME WARDEN

PRESQUE ISLE, Maine, Sept. 2—(AP)—The municipal court hearing in the case of Harry Wood of Westfield, charged with the murder of Lee Parker, a game warden, who was shot and killed in that town early today, was adjourned late today until next Wednesday. Wood and Garfield Cray, his companion at the time of the shooting, were arrested at their homes in Westfield an hour later.

Parker with George L. Hodgkins of Mapleton, another game warden, stopped an automobile in which Wood, Cray and their wives were riding, and sought to question the occupants as suspected deer poachers.

Hodgkins told the authorities that Wood pointed a gun at Parker, and ignoring the warden's protest, pulled the trigger. Parker was instantly killed. Wood then ran down the road. Hodgkins said, and disappeared in the darkness. Hodgkins fired several shots in a vain effort to stop the man.

Cray, who had been riding in the front seat of the car beside Wood, moved over to the driver's seat and drove away rapidly. Parker's body lay in the wodos for some time until Dr. S. W. Boone, medical examiner, arrived in response to Hodgkins' summons. An autopsy disclosed that the bullet had entered the warden's left cheek and passed through the head.

Parker was 40 years old and the father of five children. He had formerly served as deputy sheriff of Aroostook county under two sheriffs.

HOW FOUR MASKED MEN BRUTALLY FLOGGED FAMILY

TYLER, Tex., Sept. 2—(AP)—How a family was routed from their home at night, marched away into the woods and flogged by four masked men carrying guns, was told today by one of the victoms, J. R. Richardson, a cotton picker, in district court where one of the alleged floggers is on trial.

Cain Anderson, the defendant, is a wealthy farmer and dairyman and the Richardson family was a tenant on his property. He is specifically charged under the state anti-masking law, with being a member of the band which on the night of June 8, flogged Richardson, his wife, and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. W. A. Straps.

Richardson, on the stand, described the attack, declar he had recognized the planter as one of the assailants.

"My wife, who was il in bed and I were marched from the house to a nearby wood," Richardson testified. "I was caught by my hand and jerked to the ground on my side and whipped with a rope.

"Dewitt Osborne finally took the rope and tried to break every bone in my body." (Osborne also is under indictment and awaiting trial).

"They jerked my wife down and whipped her."

Richardson said she asked "What was that for?" and one of the men replied: "Because you won't work."

The witness asserted the party escorted them back to the Richardson home and instructed them to leave the country within a few days.

SEVEN PERSONS INJURED WHEN TRUCK HIT SEDAN

WESTFIELD, Mass., Sept. 2—(AP)—Seven persons, four members of a Watertown, N. Y., family, were injured today in Southwick, near here, when a sedan was struck by a milk truck. The Watertown car was driven by George Baldwin of 811 Sherman street, who was slightly injured. Baldwin's wife suffered leg injuries, his mother sustained a fractured left leg, and his daughter, Mary, 6, was cut on the head.

Wallace S. Hastings of Southwick, driver of the truck, was arrested on charges of driving so as to endanger lives, and operating without a license of registration. Riding with Hastings were Mrs. Raymond Carr and two infant children, 19 months and six months of age. Both children suffered minor injuries.

MACHINE TO PICK, STRIP AND CLEAN COTTON BOLLS

CHICAGO, Sept. 2—(AP)—The machine age has contrived an apparatus that promises to replace the picturesque plodding cotton picker of Dixie with machines that pick, strip and clean the bolls.

The International Harvester company stated today that after many years of experimentation it has built three machines; a picker of a spindle type for use in the old south; a stripper for use in the southwest, and a cleaner for general use.

JURYMEN FOR CLINE TRIAL WILL BE NAMED TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 2—Judge Edward M. Yeomans who will preside at the criminal session of the Tolland superior court opening in Rockville next week, has ordered Clerk Willis Reed to start at once the selection of a panel of one hundred veniremen for the trial of Leonard Cline, author, charged with the murder of Wilfred P. Irwin of Lexington, Va. The clerk expected to have the list of names of jurors in the hands of Sheriff Fred O. Vinton by Saturday. There is to be a fair division of the panel which will hear the Cline evidence. Vernon, the largest of the 13 towns of Tolland will supply 13 of the viniremen. There is expected to be but limited accommodation for the scores of interested and curious who will flock to the Rockville court chambers for the trial. There are already 23 applications from different newspapers or news agencies for seats at the press table in the court room, leaving limited space for spectators. Direct wire service to the outside world is planned.

LARGE CROWD AT ELKS FAIR FRIDAY NIGHT

WILLIMANTIC Sept. 2—With the retirement, at least temporarily, of Old King Pluvius, attendance at the Elks' Country fair took a leap from hundreds to thousands tonight and activities at the grounds hummed along at a merry tune throughout the evening. The popularity of this annual event cannot be underestimated when gate receipts show that despite a consistent rain nearly one thousand patrons entered the gates for the opening Thursday night. As if making up for lost time things moved at a rapid rate tonight. While crowds filed in a continuous line through the interesting exhibition buildings and the dance hall business was booming the attractive array of booths on the midway held their patrons in good sized groups. The big feature of the evening was the style and fashion show offered by Butleman's. Beautiful live models from New York participated in a colorful promenade of the most fashionable attire obtainable from the leading style houses of the metropolis. The style show considered the headline event, especially by the women, was not, however, the only stage attraction. Six high class vaudeville acts met with spontaneous approval.

The operation of crooks in this city has not been entirely confined to breaks and thefts previously reported it was uncovered today when it became known that gasoline station and refreshment stand conducted by Mr. and Mrs. William O. Knight just over Natchaug bridge on the North Windham road had been burglarized during the week. The break was made sometime after one o'clock Thursday morning by smashing a padlock with an iron bar. From the manner in which the place was rampaged it is evident that the crooks were looking for money, but finding none they made their get-away with several boxes of newly received candy and a numbr of automobile tools used in tire repairs. Mrs. Knight estimated that the goods taken would entail a loss of about $35. The place had been turned topsy-turvy and considering this condition and the loss of the candy, Mrs. Knight said today that she does not contemplate opening the establishment again this season. The intruders had made themselves to home, having taken time to lunch on crackers and soda. The break was reported to the police but as the place is just outside of the city line the case was turned over to State Policeman Starkell of the Stafford Springs barracks who was in this city Thursday to examine driving applicants.

Another continuance, to Saturday, September 24, has been granted in the case of Henry Simpson of Fall River, Mass., charged with reckless driving, driving while under the influence of liquor and evading responsibility. The case was to have been heard in police court today (Saturday), the continuance being announced today by Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher. Simpson is held as the driver of a sedan which caused a triple collision of automobiles on Columbia venue a few weeks ago. Simpson got out and attempted to arrange for settlements but failed and when the police arrived he had driven off but not before the registration number of his car had been taken by occupants of the three machines involved in the accident.

Dr. Alwin M. Pappenheimer of New York city, a summer resident in Scotland has arranged a musical program to be given Labor Day night by several musical artists who have been his guests for the enjoyment of the residents of the town. Dr. Pappenheimer had guests two years ago who gave Scotland a rare musical treat and there is much interest in the forthcoming event.

Cuticura Heals Severe Itching Burning Eczema

"My boy was three years old when eczema broke out on his face. It first started with a redness of the skin and then broke out in blisters. The itching and burning were so severe that the child scratched and caused eruptions. He was very fretful and cried nights. It got so bad that we had to hold him in our arms at night to keep him from scratching.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some, and after using five cakes of Cuticura Soap and four boxes of Cuticura Ointment he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Myron D. Rogers. Pawlet, Vt., April 9, 1927.

Use Cuticura Soap daily for the toilet, assisted by Cuticura Ointment when required, and have a clear, fresh complexion, free from pimples and blackheads.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. X, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

DANIELSON

SO. KILLINGLY OLD HOME CELEBRATION STARTS SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 2—A feature of the Old Home celebration at South Killingly will be the service of worship in the church at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. At this service, which will be conducted by J. Wayne Haskell and Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, the sermon will be preached by Rev. William S. Beard, who is now associated with the Laymen's Advisory committee. Mr. Beard is a South Killingly boy and has many friends in this community. His father, whose long pastorate of the South Killingly church established an important place for him in the life of the people, is remembered with affection by many who knew him. The church has extended a cordial invitation to all to the service on Sunday afternoon.

On Labor day the Old Home celebration will be held at South Killingly, at the church. The reunion features are ever an appearing feature of this Old Home day. There is to be a clambake with King George presiding. In the afternoon at 3:30 a meeting will be held at which the principal address will be delivered by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord. A report covering the work of the past year and outlining the plans for the coming year will be made by J. Wayne Haskell, associated to the pastor, Rev. Mr. Gaylord. Those scheduled for talks are Rev. William S. Beard, Rev. Edward P. Ayer of Branford, Morris Beard of Flushing, N. Y., and Rev. Sherrod Soule, D. D., of Hartford.

The special program of music will be under the direction of Miss Edith L. Fuller and the soloists are to be Mrs. Minnie Hedley Vaughn, Miss Elsa Nisbet and Frank Hoffman of Providence.

This morning the funeral of John Regan was held from the home of Jeremiah Doyle in Wauregan with services at the Sacred Heart church in that place at 9 o'clock, Rev. J. H. Quinn, the pastor, being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Relatives and many friends attended the services. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were James Ward, William Riley, Daniel O'Leary, William Egan, Dennis Mahoney and James Noon. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Looming ahead is a pretty scramble for nominations as candidates for selectmen in the democratic caucus, which is still a week away. Observers of things political see it coming. The forecast is that the democratic caucus will attract an unusually large attendance this year, and that East Killingly, in the third district, and Dayville, in the second district, will be heavily represented in that assemblage. Forecasting the outcome appears at this particular period to be nothing less than a futile effort. A. E. Hall of South Killingly, present democratic member of the board of selectmen, is likely to receive one of the two nominations that likely will be made, though the party has been known in the past to nominate only one candidate, thereby insuring his election in advance. Such a program will meet with real live opposition this year, however, if Danielson democrats have their way—and in the interest of party harmony, very likely they will.

William Sangster, manager of the Danielson division of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, said this afternoon that users of the company's electric service will have double insurance in the near future against any liability of failure of the service to function—through winter storms or by reason of other untoward circumstances of any nature.

This additional insurance of steady and uninterrupted service is being brought about three the construction of a new high tension line, to carry 66,000 volts between Montville and Meriden, where it will be tied in with the Connecticut Light and Power company's lines. At the present time the local lines are tied in with the New England Power company's 66,000 high tension line that runs down through this section from Millbury, Mass. The new line to Meriden will be ready early in the fall. Thereafter if the power from Millbury fails temporarily, for any reason, a change can immediately be made to the new Meriden-Montville line, running across another part of the state.

This is of special interest to the large number of manufacturing concerns now using electricity for power in Killingly and nearby towns as well as to the individual who buys electric service for any purpose. The arrangement is practically a guarantee of uninterrupted electric service throughout the entire year.

At the Westfield Congregational church, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock the service of worship will be conducted by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, and he will preach on Growing Up. Rev. William S. Beard of New York, who was invited to deliver the sermon at this service, has sent word that he will not be able to reach Danielson in time to do so.

Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock on Davis park St. James' band will play the concert so generously provided by Mrs. Marinda G. Butler Robinson, who has been spending the summer in Boston and who for years was a resident here and much interested in providing concerts for the public. The lighting of the band stand for the occasion has been generously guaranteed by the Eastern Connecticut Power company, which will make no charge for its service.

The community field day for all the children of the village will feature Saturday of this week at Gopdyear.

A meeting of the Woman's Prayer league is to be held with Mrs. Frank T. Preston of Broad street next Tuesday afternoon.

When the Connecticut Aggies varsity team begins practice Thursday of next week Arthur Williams of this town, fullback of last year's team, will get into action to prepare for the season's playing.

A meeting of McGregor, Woman's Relief corps, is scheduled for Wednesday evening of next week.

Extra sections of the Bar Harbor and State of Maine expresses are being run southward during the early hours of each morning this week end to care for the homebound rush of travels from New England summer resorts.

The rainfall of August, as recorded by Judge James N. Tucker at East Killingly was in excess of 7 inches, whereas the normal August rainfall is between four and five inches. To this amount slightly more than an inch of rain came in the northeast storm of September 1.

To break a triple tie for first place in Danielson's Twilight league the P. and A., the Buddies and the Kilowatts will play a special series of nine inning Sunday games. Another feature of the closing season will be a series between a team representing the local Twilight league and a team representing the Wauregan Twilight league.

Thomas J. Aylward, who has been a resident here for many years, is to remove to Putnam, where he owns a home on Pleasant street.

Miss Ruth Pepler and Miss Gertrude and Evelyn Hellsten, the latter of Brooklyn, are enrolled as students at Bay Path institute in Springfield.

Religion and the Working Man will be Rev. Harding W. Gaylord's sermon at a Labor day sermon to be preached at the union service in the Baptist church Sunday evening.

Mrs. W. A. Stanton of Broad street was one of those attending the reunion of the Plainfield Academy Alumni association.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department said this morning that not one alarm for fire came in during the entire month of August, the first time this has happened since the month of July, 1923.

PUTNAM HIGH SCHOOL WILL OPEN WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 2—The Putnam high school will open for the fall term on Wednesday morning, September 7, at eight o'clock, standard time. Principal E. L. Robinson requests that any pupil wishing to take the examinations report promptly at eight o'clock on Tuesday morning, September 6, at the high school. Pupils who have been tutoring for an examination are required to bring with them a signed statement from their tutors to the effect that they have devoted the required amount of time in preparation for these examinations.

Miss Esther Rouse, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rouse of School street and William E. Bawden of Missoula, Montana, were married at the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday by the Rev. Henry E. Hodge, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city, the double ring ceremony being used.

Miss Celeste Reaves of Putnam was bridesmaid and Kenneth Jack of Springfield Mass., was best man. Mrs. Elnora Fisher Spencer of Boston, a class mate of the bride at the Putnam high school and a well known pianist played the wedding march. The bride wore white georgette over white silk with a tulle veil and a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bridal bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was gown in pale yellow georgette and carried Ophelia roses.

Following the reception after the ceremony the young couple left immediately for Poplar, Montana where they are both to teach during the coming year.

The bride is a graduate of the Putnam high school and of Aurora college and of Columbia College of Music at Aurora, Ill. She is a well known violinist and prior to going to Poplar, Montana, was instructor of music in the Woodstock schools, and is well known in the community because of her unusual musical ability and has been frequently in demand here.

Mr. Bawden is the son of Mrs. W. S. Bawden of Missoula, Montana. Is a graduate of the Butte Business college and of the Montana State college where he received his B. S. degree. He has been a teacher in mathematics and physics and director of athletics at the Poplar high school.

The troop of the Putnam Boy Scouts is to leave for its final encampment of the season on Saturday, September 3. The Scouts will leave the Scout club rooms about noon, Scoutmaster John F. Simonzi will be in charge of the troop while it is in camp.

The troop will camp at Webster lake. All the phases of Scouting will be put into practice. Tests will be given and the boys will have a very good chance to improve in their rank while they are on this trip. Tents will be used and a number of scouts have been chosen as cooks and the food will be taken care of by mess scout, M. Tourtelotte.

The Putnam troop will not go this year to camp with the Danielson boys as they did last year.

The home economics committee in charge of the program to be given at the next regular meeting of Senexet grange to be held on September 7. The topic for discussion will be Foods and Dietories. STREET SIGNS

Boston has probably good reason for being elated over the announcement that its new street signs are ready and the work of installing 1800 will be started next week though it has about 5000 to be erected eventually. Boston is one of those cities where visitors have experienced no end of trouble in finding their way about, and in these days of so many automobile travelers it is important in the interest of traffic that adequate street signs be erected.

This is an improvement which cannot fail to interest Norwich and every other city where streets are marked in a hit or miss manner or not at all. When a motorist strikes a city with which he is not familiar he is inclined to ask his way, whether he is looking for a store, the home of a friend or the way out of the community to the destination for which he is headed. If streets are not marked it is folly to mention the streets he should take, but if there are conspicuous street markers it is an easy matter to direct him by streets and send him on his way without further trouble.

There are cities where excellent street marking systems are in use, one system not only carries the name of the main streets at each block but in smaller letters directly over it is the name of the cross street, the cross street being marked in the same way with its own name in large letters and the main street in small. This permits a person to know just what his location is and eliminates that uncomfortable uncertainty when street signs are missing or are so inconspicuous that it is next to impossible to find them.

Strangers would have a hard time finding their way about Norwich today from the street signs displayed, and this is especially true if they are endeavoring to keep their place in the traffic. Boston has experienced this trouble until it has been moved to end it and so name its streets that anyone except a blind man will be able to find his way about without stopping to ask the name of streets.

USING FLOOD WATERS

Many are the suggestions that have been offered for the solution of the Mississippi valley flood problem, and it can be expected that the number will increase as consideration of matter progresses.

From Senator Nye of North Dakota comes the idea of using the waters of the Missouri river for the purpose of refilling Devil's lake in his state. This is not so different from the idea of establishing large reservoirs at points along the Mississippi and its tributaries, except that Devil's lake could probably not be drawn upon as a reservoir might. It nevertheless means the employment of river water which would find its way into the Mississippi when conditions justified it and while giving a benefit to a part of the country which needs it it would also be reducing the amount the big river and the levee systems would have to stand.

Devil's lake is located in a large basin and a score of years ago was a body of water 40 miles across. Because of inadequate supplies it has been steadily drying up until it is not more than four miles across and it has turned from a fresh water to a salt water lake. Turning the water from the Missouri into this basin would provide a huge supply for irrigation purposes in that region and furnish water for other needs. It is not a scheme that could be carried out at slight expense, else it would probably have been undertaken before this time. A canal would have to be constructed for a distance of about 20 miles after which for several times that distance the water would find a natural channel to the lake, a matter of about 100 miles.

Estimates have been obtained which show that at least $20,000,000 would be required to put through this plan. This indicates some idea of the expense that it may be expected will be involved in controlling the Mississippi. Whether the amount of water that could be diverted in time of need to this lake would be sufficient to warrant the expense is a question for the engineers to decide.

TIME TO STOP

Because of the success attained by Lindbergh and Chamberlain in their flights across the Atlantic it was natural that the impression should be gained that if they were successful others could do as well. The result has been long distance flights over water in all directions with painfully disastrous results. Haste to get away, concentration of more thought upon a prize than upon safety and a successful trip and the disposition to take chances have made it evident that although some have succeeded the peril of such flights has not been eliminated.

The loss of the fliers in the Pacific was sufficient to prompt the demand for the discouraging of any more prize undertakings of that character, but that has been quickly followed by the disappearance of Aviator Redfern in his flight from Georgia to Brazil and now no trace of the British fliers Hamilton and Minchin has been gained since they felt the Irish coast. Their disappearance is as complete as was that of the French fliers. In neither instance is there any evidence of how far they got, where they fell or what forced them down.

Each and everyone has a right to take such chances if they wish, but with so many lives lost it is inevitable that efforts should be made to discourage such throwing away of life, and this is particularly true since in most instances they are really making no contribution ot aviation but are engaged in stunt flying for publicity purposes.

Aviators who have crossed the Atlantic in the air have felt that it would be a matter of ten years before regular transatlantic transportation by air would come. Whatever can be done in the way of demonstrating the skill of an aviator or the power of an engine that will advance aviation is to be encouraged. When the situation resolves itself into no more than a race to see who will get the prize the element of danger is still such that it deserves and bids fair to get every possible discouragement.

TELEPHONE SERVICE

In a clear and comprehensive statement President Moran of the Southern New England Telephone company has laid before the subscribers to the service of that company the reasons for making the changes in rates which become effective next month.

Adjustments such as are being made in connection with the rate change are inevitable where new service and expansion are constantly being sought and provided. The telephone company has good reason for feeling that the service it is providing is superior to a quarter of a century ago and those who use it know that they are able to reach far greater numbers in surprisingly short time each year. This means new and larger outlays and it means that revenue must be kept up to the point where the expenses can be met and a proper return allowed the company.

When President Moran shows that in no year of its existence has it earned in undivided profits more than $410,000 with an average yearly return to the stockholders of almost exactly 6 per cent. it makes it evident that big dividends are not the aim of the rate increase. This is particularly true when he states that "under the general forecast for the next five years it (the dividend rate) continues to average less than 6 per cent. even after giving effect to the impending rate changes."

The reclassifications and the readjustments are only what every enterprise is obliged to face in keeping up with present day conditions and requirements.

NEW YORK TICKETS

For a long time, a matter of years, New York has desired reformation in connection with its theatre ticket selling arrangement. The public when willing has been gouged right and left but little attention was paid to the protests because there were enough ready to stand the scalping they got for the scalpers to dispose of the tickets. Even legislation was found to be unconstitutional. When the government stepped in and started an investigation over the question of taxation as such business it gave a different phase to the matter.

The effort which has been underway to bring about an agreement between the theatres and brokers whereby tickets would be apportioned among the brokers to be sold at no more than an advance of 50 cents over boxoffice prices has failed. They couldn't get together on the plan because of an apparent distrust prevailing on each side. It was maintained that it would not work, and while the theatres and the brokers would probably like to throw up the efforts to devise some plan they are prevented from doing so by public demands

There is recognition on the part of the public that there is convenience in being able to get tickets at an agency, but it is not felt that that convenience is such as to justify the extortion which is practiced in some instances. There would be no objection to paying a slight advance in recognition of the accommodation provided, but when it comes to resorting to hold-up practices it is time for strenuous objection. Just because the knotty problem hasn't been solved at the first try does not mean that it should be so quickly abandoned.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Levine seems to be able to start a fight much easier than he does a flight.

The inauspicious opening of September gives hope that it will mean a wonderful finish.

Col. Lindbergh has been invited to tour China by air. It might be done that way more safely than any other.

The man on the corner says: The home run race is getting attention away from the pennant contest.

The only vacationers who ever despair are those whose happy vacations are over, or nearly so.

Senator Couzens who claims congressmen are underworked and overpaid can sympathize with Vice President Dawes who says he has no work to do.

What assurance has the British aviator that he will be allowed to guide Levine's plane back to America and not be forced to relinquish control in midocean?

A 14 year old imitator of the "human fly" has fallen and received what is believed fatal injuries. Happy must be the official who granted a permit for such an exhibition.

It is quite the same in the baseball standing this year as in the past, there are teams all the way from the top to the bottom of the list. The only difference is the order may be changed.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There are very few words we utter that have a larger and deeper meaning than the words "friend" and "friendship." They certainly cover as large a field of what is rich and desirable as any others. Whatever may be a man's station in life, his intellectual ability, his social standing or his worldly possessions, there is nothing that contributes more to his happiness than the friends he has made. Even the rough edges of poverty are toned down by the thought that he is living in sympathetic relations with others. I believe that many human beings have been kept from the awful crime of suicide by the consciousness that their misery brings tears to others who would willingly take some of their troubles to themselves if they could. But there are some things that a human being must carry alone; others cannot possibly do it. We make no mistake, however, in saying that friendship is one of the great forces that keeps this moral world of God from utter collapse.

The world is full of the beautiful stories of friendship. History, poetry, legend and even philosophy have made their notable contributions to it. It would be easy to refer to the sayings of our Lord, either direct or implied, on the subject of friendship. But nothing has been written in ancient or modern times more beautiful than the celebrated friendship that existed between Jonathan and David. The main emphasis is here put on the mental attitude of Jonathan. Think for a moment what renunciation he seems to have for his friend! Now there is nothing that is more expressive of worldly fame and glory than the kingship. Jonathan was heir apparent to the throne, and his accession to it seemed very near until David came, then he went into the shadow and David into the limelight. Was not this enough to blight any ordinary friendship.

It was, however, at this point that the unusual, if not the extraordinary, happened. Even though the glitter of the throne must have appealed very strongly to the young, and vigorous Jonathan, there is no evidence that he skulked, or even turned a cold shoulder on this young companion. Under the circumstances would it have not been perfectly natural for Jonathan was human. Furthermore he had done nothing to disqualify himself from the accession. His powerful espousal of David's cause for awhile pacified the insane and jealous rage of Saul and evidently saved the life of his friend whose soul was knit to his. In an age when the very atmosphere reeked with bloodshed and murder this friendship seemed like solar light at midnight. If it were not for this spirit, and what this spirit stands for, the orderly process of civilization would soon revert into the original primitive darkness.

The statement has been made that friends are not being made as readily today as formerly. This is not intended to imply that the world, taken as a whole, is growing worse. The weight of evidence is decidedly in favor of a better world. And still there are reasons for believing that the statement is correct in regard to making friends. It is not because we underrate the value of friends or would turn our friends down. The reason is that we do not take time to make friends. We are living in a rushing age that is marked by the hectic flush and is bringing on histerio in about everything. We are so occupied with business with money-making, with pleasure that we do not find time for cultivating friendship. In the economic field it is the age of mass production; in the social world it is also the collective rather than the individual. As there is no such thing as mass friendships perhaps this will account for the falling off of contact of soul with soul.

The vacation period, which for most people has now come to an end, has been (in many respects peculiar. Whether one's sojourn has been to the mountains or the seashore he can certainly appreciate the words of the Apostle Paul in the Acts, "and when neither sun nor stars in many days appeared, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope that we should be saved was taken away." While our experiences did not have such a gloomy ending we can appreciate his longing for sun, moon and stars. From all accounts the Maine woods this year have not been a reminder of the Garden of Eden. The seashore has been a paradise for mosquitoes and not for those human beings who unfortunately happened to be clothed with flesh and blood. It has given a practical lesson of purgatory to that portion of the present generation whose attire consists largely of a pocket handkerchief. For months to come the doctors will have to deal with patients for loss of blood.

There have been those this last summer who have been wise enough to get back as far as civilization would allow to primitive life. Like Abraham they have been sojourning in tents. There are many good things to be said about tents. In the first place one does not have to get up in the middle of the night to open a window because the air is close. In the second place one is never awakened about four o'clock in the morning by the rattling and screeching of a trolley car. In the third and most important place it has it put all over the mansion on Fifth avenue or the castle up in the mountains in that there is no skeleton in the closet. We have all seen some very funny things in a tent, but as far we can remember we have never seen a skeleton in the closet. There are many people, we surmise, who would willingly exchange the voiceless horror of the closet for the growling of the bear outside.

In his delightful book on nature and natural sports entitled, Little Rivers, Dr. Henry Van Dyke in speaking of the importance of finding a smooth place for putting up a tent says this: "Above all it must be free from big stones and serpentine roots of trees. A root that looks no bigger than an inch-worm in the daytime assumes the proportions of a boa-constrictor at midnight—when you find it under your hip bone." Is it not strange how very little it takes to make one uncomfortable! A little gnat no bigger than a pin-head in the palm of your hand means nothing, but when it gets into your eye it make you miserable till it gets out. There is neither reason nor religion in making one's self uncomfortable, and nothing whatever is gained by needless suffering. On the other hand we can make ourselves unfit for the hard duties of life by allowing ourselves to be pampered. Both the Indian and the Spartan can teach us some lessons.

In the same book in describing some of his experiences in climbing the mountains of central Europe, Dr. Van Dyke gives us this thought: "It is possible, in this world, to climb too high for pleasure. "This thought is suggested by the fact that the splendors of the view from the summit of the Groner Grat are far more charming than what one gets from the top of Monte Rosa, a much loftier peak. Locality has fully as much to do with scenery as altitude. Has not this thought a wide application? Does the unfortunate little lad in the royal palace at Bucharest, wearing the crown and wielding the scepter get as much out of life as the little urchin in slums making mud balls? Does any man whose head most of the time is above the clouds really see as much as the man whose feet are always on the ground? Let us get over the notion that it is only the one who stands on the top of Mont Blanc or Ranier who gets the vision.

WHEN BYRD GOES TO SOUTH POLE

The National Geographic society has announced that it has extended its co-operation to the antarctic expedition of Commander Richard E. Byrd, which co-operation will include the sending of scientific observers, and the contribution of $25,000 from the society's exploration funds toward the scientific equipment of the expedition.

A thorough exploration of antarctic regions offers a rich field for collection of scientific data, the society's trustees believe, though the phenomena to be observed in the south polar regions are in marked contrast to those of the arctic.

First Far Northern Flights

It was recalled that Commander Byrd gained his first far northern flying experience when, in 1926, he was assigned by the U. S. navy to accompany the MacMillan Arctic expedition which was sponsored by the National Geographic society, and to command the three airplanes and the navy personnel of that expedition.

Commander Byrd already is the holder of the Hubbard gold medal, the society's highest award, held by only eight men, which was presented to him in behalf of the society by President Coolidge after he returned from his history making flight over the North Pole.

Far North and Far South Contrasts

In regard to the scientific aspects of antarctic exploration a statement from the society says:

"Conditions in striking contrast to those in the arctic will be encountered by the Byrd expedition in the antarctic. Instead of a vast expanse of sea and relatively low land, there is a high continent, larger than Australia or the United States. In the valleys of the far north the summer sun brings moss, grass, and flowers. But in contrast the bleak plateaus and mountains of the antarctic harbor practically no living things because much of their area is perpetually blanketed by snow and ice.

"Birds frequent the edge of the ice barrier where they can exist upon the creatures of the sea but inland no life has been found because there is no vegetation. The bears, wolves, foxes, rabbits, musk oxen, and caribou of the far north have not a single representative in the far south known to man.

Great Ice Barrier

"Commander Byrd's expedition will doubtless be able to augment the information contained upon the now meager maps of the antartic continent. Explorers cannot sail along the coasts of this continent as they can along those of Australia or Africa. The great ice barrier and pack ice keep ships at a distance, sometimes of several hundred miles. Only in a few isolated places has this barrier been penetrated and the actual land reached.

"This condition is in contrast to that of Greenland where the ice cap extends to the coast in only a few places. It is known that practically all of Greenland is a high plateau; but the topography of the antarctic continent is practically unknown except for small areas traversed by explorers.

Continent's Map Mostly Blank

"The present map of the Antarctic regions, therefore, is mostly blank, with a few patches of known territory along the coast, and one or two narrow paths penetrating inland. The best known region is the land directly south of New Zealand traversed by Shackleton, Scott, and Amundsen. The world is still hazy in regard to the high mountain ranges which exist near this most used highway to the south pole; and little is known of the land lying relatively near the pole and between it and Africa, South America, the south Pacific, and the southern Indian Ocean. Observation from the air should make it possible to fill in much of this data.

Some Important Problems

"Among the important problems to be worked out by Commander Byrd are those relating to the meteorology of the southern continent and its effect on world weather, especially that of the southern hemisphere. Observations have been taken on the ground along the Shackleton, Scott, and Amundsen routes, but nothing is known of conditions on the other side fo the pole or in the air above the continent. It is believed that the barometric and temperature changes and the air currents originating over this great land mass strikingly influence the weather to the north, and that the gathering of data over regions now unknown will aid weather forecasting.

"Although the field for zoological research in the antarctic is narrow the party will be on the lookout for any specimens that may be encountered in the regions hitherto unvisited by man. Any rock specimens that give promise of adding to the geological knowledge of the unexplored continent will also be collected."

YOUR HEALTH

WHAT FLORIDA AND THE SOUTH OWE GORGAS

By George E. W. Hardy, M. D., Tampa, Fla.
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

We Americans are quick to forget the great deeds of our ancestors. We laud the hero of the moment, but he quickly passes from the scene. At this season of the year, when malaria is liable to stalk through the land, how many of us think of the great work of Gorgas in eradicating yellow fever and malaria from Cuba and the Canal zone, and the relation this work bears to the present healthy condition of the south in general, and, in particular to the old, yet great new state of Florida.

Contrast the present condition of Florida with its condition in 1900, when Gorgas was beginning his work in Cuba. Jacksonville was the only city of any size in the state. The population was small, living conditions were bad, and malaria was prevalent.

People in the south considered Florida unhealthy and refused to go there. It was known that a few yellow fever cases were present. Today, Florida is healthy. There is no yellow fever; malaria is infrequent and summer and winter visitors come and go without hesitation.

Yellow fever has been eradicated in Florida, and malaria greatly reduced by the two methods employed by Gorgas in Cuba—killing the mosquito as far as possible, and keeping the mosquito from biting the patient. There are many hundreds of species of mosquitoes but only two that interest the sanitarian—the stegomyia which transmits yellow fever, and the anopheles which transmits malaria.

The female mosquito lays her eggs on the surface of stagnant water. They hatch out larvae which lie under the water, but come to the surface for air. If the surface of the water is covered with oil, the larvae are killed. By prohibiting the collecting of stagnant water, and spraying pools with oil, the mosquitoes are prevented from multiplying, and this aids in decreasing the malarial rate. Where the cost is not prohibitive, mosquito elimination by draining off the stagnant water, or by filling the depression, is the method preferred, because the work is permanent.

The other important principal that Gorgas enunciated is the complete screening of all houses, and the isolation of malarial patients from any mosquitoes. This is the important thing in Florida, because with the many miles of seacoast, and the numerous lakes and ponds, it would be a gigantic task to kill all the mosquitoes. But every resident of the state can have his home properly screened, and he can also eliminate breeding around his own premises. Once a person has contracted malaria, that person must be doubly safeguarded against mosquitoes so that the mosquitoes cannot absorb the malaria parasite from his blood and carry it to someone else.

Every citizen of the United States owes General Gorgas a debt of gratitude for what he accomplished in Cuba and the Panama Canal zone, but of all the states, Florida should revere his name, for without following the Gorgas plan of mosquito control, Florida could never have attained her present prominence and worth.

Stories That Recall Others

A Wise Youth.

A small boy had just been vaccinated and the doctor prepared to bandage the sore arm when the youngster said: "Put it on the other arm, doctor."

"Why, no," said the physician, "I want to put the bandage on your sore arm so the boys at school won't hit you on it."

"Then put it on the other arm, please. You don't know the fellows in our school."

Long Enough.

The young man's patience was worn nearly to a frazzle. For nearly an hour he had stood on the corner waiting for her. Finally she came up.

"Oh, John," she began, "I'm sorry I'm late but do you mind waiting just a minute more until I can run in the store here?"

For a minute the faithful John only looked at her.

"Why you don't really mind, do you, John?" the girl asked in surprise.

"No, I suppose not," he answered. "But I've been standing on this corner so long already, people think I'm a recruiting officer."

Tape-Measure Light

There is in use an extension electric light device constructed very much upon the principle of the carpenter's tape-line. A cord 15 feet long is contained in the case, having a mechanism for rewinding on one side and an incandescent lamp socket on the other. When light is desired at ture, a plub on the end of the cord is screwed into the regular socket and the cord drawn out to the required distance. A catch holds the cord from rewinding at any desired point, so that the lamp may be suspended a few inches below the fixture if one so desires. It is also connected with a leather strap, whereby it may be hung up.

Many uses for such an extension light are easily found. If carried as a part of the traveling equipment, it is not necessary to carry a lamp, as the socket and plug are of standard size and will fit any fixture in common use.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Bit of Maple Sugar

With sweets the tempter doth beguile,
And speaks in honeyed tones the while.
—Mother West Wind.

Farmer Brown's Boy was beginning to wonder how he should be able to catch Cubby, the little Bear who had created so much trouble in his mother's pantry. It was quite clear that Cubby didn't intend to be caught. Food had brought him down to the foot of the tree in which he had sought safely, but at the least move towards him, Cubby would start up the tree.

"I've got to get something that he wants so badly that he will forget all about that tree," thought Farmer Brown's Boy. "I've got to get him to come to me, instead of my trying to go to him. Every time I move towards him he heads for that tree. I suppose a little sugar would do it. I have it! I wonder I didn't think of it before."

Farmer Brown's Boy went whistling into the house. In a few minutes he was out again. The moment he moved towards him, Cubby, as usual, started to climb the tree. Farmer Brown's Boy stopped and tossed something over to the plate where Cubby had been feeding. In a moment or two Cubby returned to finish his dinner. His keen little nose smelled something wonderfully good. With that same keen little nose he sought for it. He found it. It was a little piece of maple sugar. You should have seen Cubby gobble that down and then heard him smack his lips! This was even better than Mother Brown's famous cookies. Yes, sir, it was so! He looked toward Farmer Brown's Boy. Farmer Brown's Boy tossed him another little piece. It was just big enough to be a provocation. Cubby smacked his lips as before and sat up.

Such a funny looking scamp as he was when he sat up! He didn't look like a bear at all. In fact, he didn't look like anything that Farmer Brown's Boy had ever seen. But in spite of the paste that covered his face, there was a pathetic look of longing which was irresistible. Cubby tossed him another bit, but tossed it a little bit short, so that Cubby had to come forward to get it. He came, but he didn't come any nearer than he had to. He reached out with one paw and pulled that little bit of sugar to him. Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled and tossed another little piece.

So it went on. Each time, in order to get his little piece of sugar, Cubby had to go a little nearer to Farmer Brown's Boy. Finally Farmer Brown's Boy held several pieces in his hand where Cubby could see them. "Come on, you rascal!" coaxed Farmer Brown's Boy. "You know you want it. You know you've just got to have it. I'm not going to throw it to you. No, sir. I'm not! If you want it, you've got to come and get it."

He walked in a complete circle arc. Farmer Brown's Boy

Now that was very tantalizing. You see, Cubby could smell that sugar and it seemed to him that never in all his life had he wanted anything as he wanted that sugar. Yet he hesitated. He would start to go forward and then retreat. He walked in a complete circle around Farmer Brown's Boy, and all the time he whimpered and whined and teased and begged as no one but a little Bear could.

But Farmer Brown's Boy wouldn't give him a crumb. He must take it from that extended hand, or go without. He couldn't go without. He knew it and Farmer Brown's Boy knew it. So after a while Cubby came near enough to put his little nose in Farmer Brown's Boy's hand and with that long tongue of his licked one of those pieces of sugar into his mouth. It was a bigger piece than any he had had before. One minute later he was standing up, holding onto Farmer Brown's Boy's arm with both little paws and greedily licking up the last crumbs of sugar from the hand extended to him.

Curious Animal Traps

In the east the native professional animal-takers sometimes catch leopards in nooses. The leopard, like the tiger and the panther, has the feline's habit of sharpening its claws on tree trunks. The natives aver that the big cats will preferably use for this purpose a tree that bears claw marks previously made. Accordingly, the animal hunters select such a tree and round and bout the trunk set their strong gut snares.

A cheetah secured for hunting must be caught when full grown, and accomplished in his knack of pulling down game. Otherwise, no matter to what extent it were trained, it would never acquire the quickness and perception as in the wild state, when it has to obtain for itself each and every meal.

In India these cheetahs may be seen tied to bedsteads and holding a place of their own among their keepers' families. The latter seem not in the least to fear the beasts. The cheetahs are carted to the scene of action with hoods on, and these are removed when the animal is shown the quarry.

Monkeys are sometimes secured in India by the simple method of putting some grain in a heavy, but small-moutbed chatty or gharrah. As soon as the monkey learns what is inside he thrusts in his fist and fills it full. The object is to have the opening too small to allow his doubled-up fist to be withdrawn. He has be the sense that is generally attributed to him, for it evidently never occurs to him in this instance to empty his hand of grain and so set it free.

Imports from Colombia

NEW YORK—A significant feature of the 1926 import trade of the United States with Latin-America is the rise of Colombia from fourth place among South American countries to a position second only to Brazil.

Import trade with Columbia in 1926 amounted to $90,200,000, an increase of 43.4 per cent over 1925 imports of $63,400,000, according to department of commerce figures. Coffee continued to be the principal commodity in the trade, and coffee imports were about one-third larger than in 1925, reaching a total value of $74,300,000. Imports of crude petroleum, which were practically negligible in earlier years, rose to a value of $7,264,000 in 1926.

In 1926 imports from Brazil increased 6.3 per cent over 1925 to $235,300,000 and Argentina 9.9 per cent to $88,100,000, but imports from Chile decreased 8.7 per cent to $81,400,000.

The fact that Colombian oil production for 1927 is estimated at 15,000,000 barrels, as against the 4,000,000 barrel production of 1926, indicates that Columbia will experience little difficulty in retaining its position as an important factor in Latin-American trade.

Choices in Chess

In the number of possible moves, chess stands alone among games, and not only is it safe to say that no living being has ever made, but it is highly improbably that in all the centuries of the history of the game has every possible move been made.

The different ways of playing the first four moves on each side are so numerous that if every man, woman and child in a city of 500,000 population were to set to work playing them at the rate of four moves a minute, night and day, it would be more than a year before any one would would be able to leave the chessboard.

HUNTINGTON FAMILY A'SSN OPENS FIFTH REUNION AT NORWICH TOWN

At noon Friday, the fifth reunion of the Huntington family opened its sessions at the First church, Norwich Town. This family came from Norwich, England, and gave the old name to Norwich, Connecticut in 1659.

Among the distinguished members of the family hereabout in colonial days were Governor Samuel Huntington, president of the Continental Congress and signer of the Declaration of Independence, five other members of Congress, six judges, six or seven colonels and generals in the revolution and many clergymen.

The founders of Windham, Lebanon, Newark and many western settlements were Huntingtons who went forth as pioneers.

Their descendants have returned to visit today the homes of their ancestors, coming from California, the West Indies, Spain, Constantinople, China and other countries.

Mrs. Lois Huntington Whaley of New York, accompanied by Mr. H. L. Yerrington of Norwich Town, opened the program in the First Congregational church with music. The Huntington hymn, sung first at the family reunion at Norwich in 1857, was sung.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey read from the 103rd Psalm and led in prayer.

President W. E. Huntington, D. D., of Newton Center, in his address of welcome, pointed out the characteristics of the Huntingtons and showed how such qualities are needed in the Republic today.

At the picturesque old Colonial home of General Jabez Huntington, recently restored with historical accuracy by Mrs. Edith Huntington Wilson, she received the entire family for luncheon. Under the wide elms old friendships were renewed. There was music on the lawn. The guests were then shown through the mansion, noting the great chimneys, curious old iron hinges and latches, slave quarters and ancient well.

Dr. James Lincoln Huntington of Boston, secretary of the Huntington Family association, and the historian, Miss Frances Isabel Huntington, of Michigan, gave interesting reports.

Messages from absent cousins were brought from all parts of the world.

In the evening the family dined together at the Wauregan hotel, Mr. Dwight Huntington Day, of New York, acting as toastmaster. A reception preceded for the 150 Huntingtons present.

The menu was as follows: Little Necks, celery, queen olives, salted nuts, clam chowder, broiled fish, Parisienne potatoes, roast capon, cranberry sauce, potatoes, corn on the cob, lettuce and tomato salad, Neapolitan ice cream, petits fours, friandises, demi tasse.

H. C. CHRISTMAN ISSUES BOOK OF POEMS

H. Clinton Christman, formerly an active musician of Norwich has published, after a four years' devotion to the study and writing of poetry, a book of verse entitled "Offerings."

Ten years ago Mr. Christman left Norwich to continue his musical career in New London. Later he joined Bernard Levitow, musical director of the Commodore hotel, New York, for a three years' engagement, during which time he became an ardent aspirant to literary recognition.

To be free to devote his entire time to his new studies, he severed connections a year ago last December with Mr. Levitow, and located in Spring Hill, Alabama, where he has since been in seclusion.

Through the suggestions of many friends and acquaintances of Mobile and Spring Hill, Mr. Christman was prompted to make a selection of some of his best poems and have them published in volume form.

Mr. Christman has devoted his book to his mother, Mrs. C. O. Christman of this city, and it contains pleasing evidences of his ability to present interesting, thoughtful and fanciful word pictures in measured lines. The author may well be proud of his first volume with each of its 40 pages containing a gem, and his many friends will hope for more to come.

FRANKLIN GIRL GIVEN A FAREWELL PARTY

A farewell surprise party in honor of Miss Eleanor Armstrong of Franklin was given at Franklin town hall, Thursday evening. A delightful evening was spent in playing games and dancing. Ice cream and cake were served. Miss Armstrong received several gifts from friends and the 4-H club of which she is a member. She is to enroll as a student nurse at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, New London this fall. Her friends wished her much success. Out of town guests present included Charlotte Babbit of Hanover; Myrtice Coman, Rose Norcross, Catherine Lewis and Dorothy Bandro, all of Norwich, E. Muriel Smith, of South Windham and Frances McIntosh, of Norwich.

DRIVER ARRESTED AFTER MACHINE HIT GIRL

Shortly before 8 o'clock Friday night, Agnes Gronski, 12, was hit and knocked down on North Main street, near Third street by an automobile driven by Colin E. Turner of Preston City. It is said that the child was dragged about 100 feet before the machine stopped. She was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital and an X-ray of her injuries will be taken this (Saturday) morning. Turner, after the accident, was arrested by Sergt. Matthew Delaney and Officer Peter Sullivan on a charge of reckless driving. He was released on bonds of $200 for his appearance in the city court.

CITY PLAYGROUNDS CLOSE MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON

The fifth season of the municipal-controlled playgrounds closed Friday after a ten week's session during which Superintendent of Recreation Earle E. Brigham and his corps of 18 men and women brought about the most successful effort since the day in 1922 when the recreation commission assumed the responsibilities of sponsoring this work. The season was by far the best that has been enjoyed in the Rose of New England with all kinds of records being made, leaving marks that will not be surpassed for some time.

The daily average attendance at the centers was 1,504 children, 933 girls and 571 boys. Although the exact figures are not known at present, it is safe to say that this surpasses all other marks made in previous years.

Sessions in the smaller playgrounds, Laurel Hill, Falls, Thamesville, East Side and Hobart avenue were held from 9 to 11.30 a. m., and from 1 to 5 p. m., while in the larger grounds of Elizabeth street, Lake street, Greeneville and Jail Hill, sessions were from 1 to 5 and 6.30 to 8.30 p. m. The Academy campus was in use every afternoon with ball games, field hockey, dodge and stride ball contests starting at 2 p. m., while in the evening the Norwich industrial league, also sponsored by the recreation commission, played games starting at 6.30 and now at 6.15.

A weekly programme was mapped out by each instructor and submitted to Supt. Bingham. It was noted that these were followed with great consistency at all grounds.

An added feature of the playgrounds was the industrial work. Miss Bessie Bruckner had charge of this work and made weekly visits to each play center. The result of her work, the many articles displayed at the Boston store last week, drew favorable comment from hundreds of people.

While there were all sorts of amusement devises at the grounds for the younger children, including chutes, see-saws, slides, sand boxes, etc., three were laso the various games for the older children. Field hockey, stride and dodge ball made up the girls' athletic programme, while two strong baseball leagues, the National with the larger grounds and the American with the smaller centers, furnished lively competition among the boys.

Midget baseball was had for the smaller boys. Horseshoe pitching also came in for a share of the spotlight with the youngsters. For all ages track and field and swimming and diving provided much entertainment.

A review of the season shows the following as champions in their respective groups:

Baseball, city and national league, Jail Hill. American league, Thamesville. Jail Hill receives the Thomas E. Wilson trophy, while Thamesville is awarded the Alling Rubber trophy. Track-field, Elizabeth street, Jack's Sport Shop trophy. Girl's field hockey, Elizabeth street, William J. Fitzgerald trophy. Swimming-diving, Greeneville, Mayor Milo R. Waters' trophy. Volley ball, Greeneville, John M. Lee trophy. Industrial league title has not been settled as yet, but the Richmond Radiator team is now well ahead of the other seven teams. The award here is the Thos. E. Wilson trophy.

GERTRUDE B. BROWNE'S BOOK A VIGOROUS INDIAN STORY

As a graceful climax to the preparations being made to do honor to the Mohegan tribe of Indians on Labor day, Gertrude Bell Browne, (Mrs. William Tyler Browne) of Norwich, has written a fascinating tale of the life of the aborigines "Hot Suns and the Great Whiteness." On the cover page is the head of the proud Sachem, Uncas.

While her story is primarily meant to entertain, Mrs. Browne aims to depict the finer customs and ceremonials of the Indians. She gives evidence of wide reading, also careful study of the theme; for while she expresses obligation to Miss Alice C. Fletcher, Dr. Frank G. Speck, Winthrop's Journal, DeForests's History of the Indians of Connecticut and Miss Caulkins' History of Norwich, she has cleverly made the facts her own, narrating the chronicle of the Mohegan Tantaquidgeon with originality and interest.

The thirty-five chapters of her story deal with such characteristic Indian topes as moon of the corn, planting, driving the fish, feast of the strawberries, the thunder moon, hunting the deer, trapping the beaver, moon of the snowshoes, the maple sugar dance. Uncas keeps the treaty, Miantonomo sent on the long trail, etc. Mrs. Browne depicts the ideals and customs of the Red Men from their point of view rather than from the stern judgments of the Puritan settlers.

NEW HAVEN HARRIERS TO SEND TEAM HERE LABOR DAY

A complete team of athletes representing the New Haven Harriers will be among the large field of starters at the fair grounds, Labor Day, for the field day meet. Word was received by the committee in charge of the events Friday that the Elm city organization is coming to Norwich strong, and intends to walk off with the largest part of the prizes.

It is expected that probably a team representing the Waterbury Boys' club will be entered and that the open events will be entered by at least seven full teams. In the closed military events squads representing the Coast Guard, Sub Base, Fort Wright, and Connecticut National Guard have entered and will work out on the fairgrounds Sunday.

The five boxing bouts have all been lined up, with boys from Norwich, Westerly and Jewett City as the contestants. The bouts will be fought under A. A. U. rules, with prizes for both the winners and losers.

The final and big event of the program will be the three mile road race open to everyone, in which it is expected that there will be at least 15 entries. The program will begin at 10 a. m. and wind up at 3 o'clock. All athletes either runners or boxers are requested to enter before Sunday night.

JURORS SELECTED FOR TRIAL OF LEONARD CLINE

ROCKVILLE, Conn., Sept. 2—(AP)—The list of jurors for the trial of Leonard Cline which starts in the superior court here September 7 was drawn today. Cline is charged with slaying of Wilfred Irwin on May 16.

About 100 veniremen were empanelled. Five each were selected from Andover and Bolton; six from Tolland and Hebron; seven each from Coventry and Somers; nine each from Ellington and Mansfield; twelve from Stafford; eighteen from Vernon and four from Union.

Sheriff Frederick O. Vinton made the drawings with Judge Edwin M. Yeomans presiding. State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone who will prosecute the case and William A. King of Willimantic, former attorney general, who is chief defense counsel, observed the proceedings.

Cline, a novelist and playwright, was indicted by the grand jury and changed his selection of trial by judges to trial by jury. He has been confined in the Tolland county jail at Tolland.

MEX. BANDITS LIBERATE AN AMERICAN RANCHER

NOGALES, Ariz., Sept. 2—(AP)—Dispatches to the Herald from Tepic, Nayarit, today report that Ired Quimby, an American rancher of Tecomote, in the state of Nayarit, has been liberated after being held for ransom by bandits since Monday. Quimby's release was obtained by friends who paid a total of 5,000 pesos ransom.

Quimby's ranch is a few miles from Acaponeta, scene of two recent bandit attacks upon passenger trains of the Southern Pacafic of Mexico Railway. The dispatches estimate fifty men were in the band.

Mexican military officers declared 4,000 federal army men were to be moved immediately from Sonora to Nayarit for action in the heart of the bandit-infested country.

NEW YORK'S MAYOR THE WONDER OF VENETIANS

VENICE, Sept. 2—(AP)—The youthful appearance of "Jimmy" Walker excited the wonder of Venetians on the arrival of the mayor of New York at Venice today.

"Isn't he young?" they exclaimed. "Why he's just a boy—a nice looking boy." Still he's mayor of a city containing over five times as many Italians as Venice. He's just the kind desired by the fascist government, young, alert and quick."

When Count Pietro Orsi introduced a representative of the fascist party to Mayor Walker, with other officials at the railroad station, the visiting mayor said, "Im something of a fascista." The admiration of the Venetians found expression in cheers and handclaps as he made his way from the station.

The Grange auxiliary met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Higgins for an all day picnic. There were 17 present. At noon chowder was served and after the business meeting in the afternoon cake and coffee were served.

May Become Head Of U. S. Steel Corporation

HENRY MILLER, WASH. D. C.

Nathan L. Miller, former governor of New York and general counsel for the U. S. Steel Corporation, who it is reported will succeed the late Elbert H. Gary as chairman of the board of directors of the U. S. Steel Corporation.

HINDENBURG'S PICTURE ON POSTAGE STAMPS

BERLIN, Sept. 2—(AP)—President Hindenburg will soon see his picture on millions of postage stamps. He will be the first German thus to be honored during his lifetime. Even William II was not depicted on postage stamps.

The Hendenburg stamps are to appear in connection with the festivities planned for the celebration of the soldier-president's 80th birthday, Oct. 2. They will be issued in denominations of 5, 10, and 20 pfennigs but will be sold at double the face value, the difference to be turned over to charitable purposes.

Thus far the only portraits on German stamps have been those of Heinrich von Stephan, Germany's first postmaster-general, who in 1857 organized the world postal union, and political and cultural leaders of the 16th and 17th centuries—Goethe, Schiller, Frederick the Great, Kant, Beethoven, Lessing, Leibnitz, Bach, and Durer.

BERLIN FIREMEN CALLER TO CAPTURE SNAKE

BERLIN, Sept. 2—(AP)—A harmless ring snake caused a near-panic here and mobilized the fire department for its capture.

Pedestrians on a busy street saw a snake, crawling along the roof of a house. The tenants, alarmed, anxiously watched its progress, and closed the windows with panicky haste. But nobody dared climb on the roof to catch it.

Someone thought the fire department would be a help. An alarm was turned in. The fire fighters bravely entered the skirmish, and after reaching the roof with the aid of a fire ladder, persuaded the snake to wind itself around a long pole. As the firemen were carrying it down the snake slipped off the stick and dropped some 50 feet onto the pavement and was killed by the fall. It was then found that the whole battle had been waged against a harmless ring snake.

MISTAKES DIPLOMATS' WIVES FOR FILM "SUPERS"

BERLIN, Sept. 2—(AP)—Ladies of the diplomatic corps are much better disciplined than film "supers" in the opinion of Dr. Fritz Wendhausen, stage director for the Ufa Film corporation.

The Ufa recently invited the diplomatic corps to visit its outdoor studios at Neubabelsberg near Potsdam. Several scenes were "shot" for the special benefit of the diplomats among them a mass scene.

Wendhausen was directing this scene. Finding a number of women standing in the way of the camera and thinking them to be "supes" who as usual had failed to heed his instructions, he "bawled them out." Timid and abashed, the ladies thus accosted meekly took the places Wendhausen assigned them.

Up rushed the publicity director. "For Heaven's sake," he whispered to Wendhausen, "what are you doing, using such rough language to these women? Don't you realize that they are the wives of diplomats?"

Wendhausen was flabbergasted for a moment, then observed calmly:

"I just felt something was wrong. I never saw 'supes' mind so quickly. Our regular 'supers' are not nearly as well disciplined as these diplomatists' wives."

BERLIN RESTAURANT SERVES MORE MILK

BERLIN, Sept. 2—(AP)—The consumption of milk in the restaurant of the German reichstag has increased 60 to 70 per cent, according to Wilhelm Sollmann, socialist deputy and former minister of the interior. Herr Sollmann, leader in the German "dry" movement, points to these figures as hopeful signs that the use of intoxicating liquors, even by legislators, is on the wane in Germany.

Restaurant keepers in Berlin say that there is not as much drinking as formerly, especially during luncheon hours. While before the war a "kellner" took it almost as a personal insult if a guest did not order wine or beer, many proprietors now instruct their waiters not to suggest drinks unless the patron asks for them.

Leaves for Norwich

Miss Frances Adkins of Los Angeles who was graduated from Mount St Joseph's academy, Hartford, in June, has left New London for Norwich, after having spent the past few days as the guest of Miss Helen Edwards.

MANY BASEBALL ATTRACTIONS SLATED FOR THE HOLIDAY WEEKEND

Several fast baseball attractions are billed for the Labor Day week end, chief among them the second game of the Moosup Town Talks-Riverview series at Moosup on Sunday and the Taftville A. A.-Elm City Giants at the J. B. Martin grounds. Riverview has a stiff holiday schedule playing three games over the week end, while Taftville will play two games one today and the other Sunday. The Industrial league will play a doubleheader today at the Academy campus.

At Taftville

At the Providence street grounds this afternoon Taftville will clash with the Jewett City All Stars under the management of George Robertson. Robertson's club includes a number of the best known ball players in Jewett City who have always been able to furnish plenty of opposition for a Taftville team. Robertson's team will lineup as follows: Robertson c; Pepin p; Martin p; Leftie 1b; Leo Jarvis 2b; Magrey 3b; Guillet ss; Strike cf; Gaudette lf; Spike Liberty rf.

Manager Troland realizing that this team is a worthy opponent is to pitch Lefty Smith, Providence college hurler against them. He will use his regular team which will be Eccleston c; Murphy 1b; Kendricks 2b; Yerrington 3b; Krauss ss; Gley lf; Lloyd Jarvis cf; Fisher rf.

Sunday's Game

On Sunday at the J. B. Martin grounds the Taftville club will endeavor to even the series with the Elm City Giants who have beaten them once this year. The Giants are rated as one of the fastest colored ball clubs in New England. There is no need to go into detail about the Elm City team as they have played here several times and always have put up a nice exhibition of the national game. There is Cannonball Smith, a son of the veteran Cannonball who cut quite a figure many years ago when he played at Lebanon. The remainder of the Giants' lineup will be: Tirrell rf; MacLane ss; J. Lane cf; Jordon 3b; West 2b; Simons 1b; Brady lf and Moore c.

Russ Fisher will be the choice of Manager Troland in Sunday's game and his lineup will be the same with the exception that Rabbit Gauthier will play second base and Kendricks will go to right field.

At the State Hospital

Dan Costigan's Manton Town team of Rhode Island will be the opponents of the state champions at the State Hospital diamond this afternoon. Costigan who does a little scouting for the Red Sox in his spare time has never produced an inferior ball club and his new Manton club is no exception. Costigan knows a ball player when he sees one and if his players do not produce their places are soon filled. The personnel of the Manton team is not known but Costigan assures Manager Hamel that he will have a ball club that will give the Riverview club a busy afternoon.

Hamel will start either Tony West or Lefty Dugas in today's game, saving West as a relief pitcher for Andy Gray in the game against Moosup on Sunday. West will probably pitch Monday's game against the Meriden Insilco club.

Riverview Vs. Moosup

Moosup and Riverview clash in the second game of the series billed as the New England semi-pro title play on Sunday at Moosup. Riverview took the first game last Sunday 7 to 1 in a game in which Moosup looked anything but title contenders. However, reports coming from Moosup during the past week have it that the Moosup team has undergone a big shake-up. Several players who did not look so good last week have been given the gate and some real ball players have been signed. Just who will pitch for Moosup is not known other than that their hurler will be a player who is well up in baseball's hall of fame.

Riverview is not strengthening to any great extent for this game. Tommy Sipples will be in the outfield to take the place of Harry Mills who is laid up with a sprained ankle. Christy will play first for the remainder of the season and Andy Gray will be on the mound once again.

At the Campus

Another double header of Industrial league ball comes this (Saturday) afternoon at the Academy campus with the Corticelli Silks figuring in both tilts. The Insilcos are their opponents in the first game starting promptly at 2 o'clock while the Thermos forms the opposition in the second game. This last game is the playoff of the game that caused the Silk's suspension from the league a few weeks back.

Bob Shaw will pitch for the Corticellis against Johnny Greene in the opener while Pete Labenski will work for the Silks against Dudek or Mullins in the second game.

FRENCH TEAMS ELIMINATED IN NATIONAL DOUBLES

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 2—(AP)—The defeat of the two French teams and the brilliance of the playing which eliminated the tri-color from further participation in the national doubles championship tournament at the Longwood Cricket club here, stimulated unusual speculation as to the outcome of the semi-finals tomorrow.

The French doubles champions, Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, seeded first among the foreign entries, lost a closely contested match with America's young alternates of the Davis cup squad, John Doeg, Santa Monica, California, and George M. Lott, Jr., Chicago. The match went five hard sets before Doeg and Lott could master their opponents to win 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 2-6, 9-7.

Within the next two hours Jean Borotra and Rene LaCoste of the French Davis cup team were decisively beaten in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4, by the United States clay court title holders, John Hennessey, Indianapolis, and Lucien Williams, Chicago.

Tomorrow Hennessey and Williams will meet William T. Tilden II and Francis T. Hunter, New Rochelle, N. Y., Wimbledon winners, for the right to enter the finals. Today Tilden and Hunter easily eliminated Nathaniel W. Niles, Boston, and Watson M. Washburn, New York, Yankee veterans, 8-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Lott and Doeg went into the semi-finals against their seniors on the American Davis cup team, Richard N. Williams, Philadelphia, and his new partner William "Little Bill" Johnston of San Francisco. Williams and Johnston had a comparatively simple task today in defeating the Pacific coast champions, James Davies and Gerald Stratford, both of San Francisco, who lost 6-3, 6-2, 6-1.

JAIL HILL WINS PLAYGROUND TITLE

Jail Hill won the playground baseball title Friday morning at the Academy campus by setting down Thamesville 2 to 1 and thereby making a clean sweep of the world series. The Hillers won the opening game Wednesday, 7 to 2.

Yesterday's tilt was full of thrills from the start to the final out with some mighty fine baseball for playground youngsters coming in.

This was the first year of Jail Hill coached by Les Carroll, winning either the National league title and city title while Thamesville, coached by Art McGowan won the American league championship.

JARVIS PITCHES NO-HIT GAME BUT IS BEATEN

J. B. Martin downed the league leading Richmond Radiators for the second time Friday evening in the Industrial league at the Academy campus in the most exciting tilt that the Industrial league has known. The score was 1 to 0 and it came in the last inning when Red Smith slid safely across the plate after a sensational dash down the home stretch to elude a throw but Jarvis to catch him off third. Blinderman dropped the ball so that as Smith got up and brushed himself off things had become a little closer in the Dusty league race. The Ironmen now lead Wermans by two games.

Lloyd Jarvis turned in the second no-hit game of the league but those three errors behind him together with three passes and a hit batsman was a little too much. Jarvis fanned six while his less experienced opponent Lefty Lucier, pitching a nice game, allowed four hits and fanned six besides passing two.

Both teams had chances to score before the final inning but the final punch was not there. In the sixth, with two out, Red Smith grounded down to Bargnesi who threw the pill past Burke and the Martin second sacker continued to second. Labenski hit to Bargnesi who instead of tagging the runner, evidently that there was a force play around and tagged the base instead. Smith was then caught off third and made his successful dash for the plate after Jarvis threw to Bargnesi. Score:

PIRATES STRENGTHEN LEAD BY BEATING CARDINALS

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 3—(AP)—Pittsburgh took a firmer hold on the National league lead by defeating St. Louis today, 5 to 3. Kremer outpitched the veteran Alexander, who was hit hard. The Waner brothers starred for the Pirates, collecting seven hits between them.

Rabbitt Maranville was at shortstop for St. Louis. He registered one hit and had nine chances in the field.

The game was tight until the eighth inning, when Pittsburgh staged a batting rally for three runs. The Cardinals sought to come from behind in the ninth when Kremer weakened, but the effort brought only two runs. The score:

RUTH AND GEHRIG HIT HOMERS AND YANKS WIN

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2—(AP)—Making 20 hits, including two home runs by Lou Gehrig and one by Babe Ruth, the New York Yankees blasted out a 12 to 2 victory over the Athletics here today. Ruth made his 44th homer of the season in the first and Gehrig, next at bat, made his 42nd, adding No. 43 in the second frame. Gehrig totalled four hits as did Combs and Koenig.

Rube Walberg withstood the Yankee battering for two innings, then gave way to Sam Gray. Waite Hoyt held the home team to six hits and was robbed of a shutout in the ninth when two runs were scored on two singles, a boot and two sacrifices. Zach Wheat was struck under the heart by a ball thrown by Lazzeri in the seventh inning and had to leave the game. The score:

FRANCIS M'CARTHY IS NORWICH CHAMPION CADDIE

Francis McCarthy is the champion golfer among the caddies at the Norwich Golf club. Mcarthy captured the title from Rufe Goodman on the 19th hole in the finals played on Friday morning. The match was a close one and not more than one hole separated the two at any time during the game. Not only was the match play close but the medal scores were almost even, McCarthy taking an 82 while Goodman turned in an 83, the best scores of the tournament.

In the second flight Stanley Gulomb was the winner beating W. Valiquette 4 and 3.

BRAVES EDGE DODGERS OUT OF SIXTH PLACE

BOSTON, Sept. 3—(AP)—The Boston Braves edged the Brooklyn Robins out of sixth place in the National league today by winning the series opener 3 to 2. Eddie Farrell, former Giant played an important part in the victory, making three hits, scoring a run and driving in the other two with well placed drives, at crucial moments.

Although the hitting was free the game was a pitchers' battle with Bobby Smith having slightly the better of the argument with Douglas McWeeny, keeping the hits more scattered.

Ed Brown, Boston left fielder, celebrated his 542nd successive game by making a fine running catch and in the ninth hitting a triple and scoring on Farrell's single. The score:

JAKIE MAY PROVES TOO PUZZLING TO THE CUBS

CINCINNATI, Sept. 3—(AP)—Jakie May held the Chicago Cubs at his mercy today when he allowed them only three paltry bingles and struck out seven of their batsmen while the Cincinnati Reds took a 5 to 0 victory from Jones and Brillheart.

A disastrous fourth inning in which Jones walked three men and his teammates made two fumbles behind two singles gave the Reds a 4 to 0 lead.

The Reds' fifth run was made off Brillheart. Hargrave, the first batter to face him after he relieved Jones singled. A sacrifice fly and a passed ball advanced him to third and he scored on Dressen's sacrifice.

The Reds hit Jones for seven hits and Brillheart for one. The score:

The doubles matches will start this morning at 10:30 with Disco and Tirrell meeting Andrews and Driscoll. Other doubles matches are: Kelly and Bonney vs Brewer and Peterson; Foster and Weaver vs. Birs and Beckwith; Kaufman and Powers vs. Roantree and Palmer. The team of Thurston and Hapgood drew a bye in the first round as did Harwood and Angeles.

WHITE SOX RALLY IN 9TH FALLS ONE SHORT

CHICAGO, Sept. 2—(AP)—Chicago's ninth inning rally fell short by one run of tieing Cleveland today, and the Indians took the second game of the series 7 to 6. Blankenship's error and a base on balls, the only one the Indians received, proved the undoing of the Chicago pitcher. Chicago used 19 men in an atempt to overcome the Indians. Johnny Mostil entered his first game of the season for the Sox when he ran for Crouse in the seventh inning. He was given a big hand when he appeared at first base. The score:

MACFARLANE WINS ONE DAY TOURNEY AT STOCKBRIDGE

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 2—(AP)—Willie MacFarlane, Oak Ridge Tucker club, New York, former national open golf champion, today won the Stockbridge Country club's one day tournament by playing 36 holes in 133 strokes, seven under par. A 66 for the morning round and a 67 this afternoon gave him the first prize of $400. The second prize of $200, was awarded Billy Burke of the Blind Brook Country club, Greenwich, whose score was 64-70—134.

Joe Turness, Elmsford Country club, Elmsford, N. Y., last year's winner, finished third with 68-69—137. Tommy Armour, Hudson Country club, tied Leo Diegel of White Plains, N. Y., for fourth with 141. No amateur finished among the first dozen.

Others who divided the $1,000 prize money were Willie Ogg, Worcester, Mass., 144; J. J. O'Connor, unattached, 145; E. C. Schultz, Cohoes, N. Y., 146; George Karcher, Rye, N. Y., 147; J. D. Young, Hadley Falls, 148.

TUNNEY WELCOMED TO THE WINDY CITY

CHICAGO, Sept. 2—(AP)—Gene Tunney must be convinced by this time that he is a popular champion, at least in Chicago where he will fight his first battle in defense of his title thtee weeks hence. Not since war days has such a throng turned out to greet a popular figure.

Crowds, which swallowed up the reception committee, bands, guards and all, almost overwhelmed the champion from the time he alighted from the Twentieth Century, until he disappeared in the suburbs en route to his camp at the Cedar Crest Country club.

As official host, not only to the fight itself but to the champion, George F. Getz introduced Tunney to Mayor Thompson and the aldermen in the city hall council chamber and assured Gene trat 'today's reception is only a foretaste of what you can expect of Chicago."

Through the din of cheers Tunney made an effort to correct an impression about the "fight" at Soldiers' field September 22.

"I am not going to take part in any fight," Tunney said. "I am going to engage in a boxing match and I like them. And I promise you that I shall box to the best of my ability on the evening of the 22nd."

CARD FOR BASS-CHAPMAN BOUT IS ANNOUNCED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2—(AP)—With Benny Bass, Philadelphia and Red Chapman, Boston, working out at their training camps for their featherweight championship fight here September 12, promoters of the bout tonight completed the card that will precede the title event.

Lew Tendler, Philadelphia southpaw, and Sailor Darden of New York, will meet in the semi-windup in a 10-round tussle. Lefty Lew, formerly a lightweight, is trying a comeback as a welterweight.

Other bouts announced are Emory Cabana, Philadelphia, and Mickey Doyle, Pittston, featherweights, and Joey Hatfield Conshohocken, and Buck Boyle, Allentown, also featherweights.

Reports from the training camps of the two championship conteiders were that both had put in a strenuous day and that each is down to within three pounds of the featherweight limit.

TRACK RECORDS FALL AT SYRACUSE FAIR

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 2—(AP)—Track records were broken in three races of the getway program of the Grand Circuit meeting at the New York state fair today.

The cinder course mark for two year olds was bettered twice by Scotland, Tommy Murphy's big black colt, in winning the $18,000 wet weather track stake. Scotland did the first heat in 2:07 and the second in 2:06.

Murphy smashed another record in the free for all trot when he drove Etta Druien, the first heat in 2:03, thus bettering the mark of 2:04 3-4.

Climaxing the day of record shattering, Sir Roch, holder of the packing mark for the cinders, bettered his record by more than four seconds in the third heat of the free for all pace.

GASTON'S SINGLE IN 9TH WINS GAME FOR BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns rallied in the ninth inning for two runs and won from the Detroit Tigers today, 3 to 2. Pitcher Milton Gaston's single brought in the winning run after Williams had tripled and O'Neill had doubled in the final frame. Gaston allowed six hits, the same number allowed by the two Tiger pitchers, Carroll and Stoner. The score:

PIRATES HOLD SAFER LEAD IN NATIONAL RACE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—Pittsburgh gained a safer lead in the National league pennant chase today as Chicago and St. Louis lost. New York was idle. Instead of the precarious single point on which the Pirates' leadership rested yesterday, their margin today is nine points over the late leaders, the Cubs. By losing to the Buccaneers the Cardinals sank to within one point of the rising Giants. The standing of the four chief contenders:

QUARREL OVER HEIRLOOMS AIRED IN DISTRICT COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 2—Not until afternoon today did Judge Oliver H. Williams adjourn the regular Friday morning session of the Third District court.

The civil case first tried, that of Carolyn B. Pickering vs. Harold Q. Moore, was a replevin case. Plaintiff resided at Avondale at India Point, which property was sold July 12th, 1926 to Harold Q. Moore. Mrs. Pickering presented a copy of a letter in which personal property, consisting of an old fashioned mahogany bookcase, piano and couch were to be left in the house until she could remove them. Other property was stored in the garage. The property was family heirlooms. For Mr. Moore, Attorney George J. West drew attention to the deed passed in which it was stated that all personal property was included. Mrs. Pickering testified to the sale of the property for $27,500 and said that her son Lieut. Commander Nelson W. Pickering, naval aide on Governor Trumbull's staff, had taken the piano and couch to his home in Ansonia. She said that a servant denied her agent an opportunity to enter the house and take the bookcase. Sheriff Mitchell accompanied her to the premises when the bookcase was replevined.

Judge Williams took the papers and reserved decision.

In the case of State, James E. Norman, state police vs. Alonzo D. Lenyon, 28, now of Middle Haddam, in the employ of Miss Simpson there, with his wife, a charge of theft of a diamond ring to the value of $1,00 was preferred. The theft was claimed on July 6, 1927, from Isabelle H. Dauchy of Charlestown, R. I., where up to that time the accused was employed with his wife.

He pleaded not guilty. Fourth Assistant Attorney-General Sigmund W. Fischer, Jr., of Providence, placed on the stand a Providence pawnbroker, Charles Colitz. Colitz testified that he identified at first sight in Providence Lenyon, who, he said, under the name of "George Wilson," had pledged the ring with him for $50.

This claim was denied by Lenyon who told the court that Herbert B. Cartrey, superintendent of the Rhode Island Bureau of Criminal Identification had caused Colitz in a back room conversation to declare Lenyon the man. Claiming that charges made cast aspersion upon the character of a high Rhode Island police authority, Attorney Fischer asked that the case be continued to next Friday when the state superintendent could be present in court and the case was set down for a further hearing. In default of $2,000 bail Lenyon was returned to Washington county jail.

Other court business was disposed of as follows: Criminal docket—State Police vs. Alonzo D. Lenyon. Continued one week. Civil docket—Charles H. Gavitt vs. Joseph Guarino. Continued one week. Samuel Clark vs. Jed. Cousins. Continued nisi. Carolyn B. Pickering vs. Harold Q. Moore Marked ready Square Deal Miller Co. vs. A. L. Castritius Continued two weeks. Trial calendar—Thomas E. Brown vs. Harry Stewart. Ready for trial.

The following transfers have been recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk: Aug. 31. Albert Langworthy to James E. and Martha M. Dower, land on the easterly side of the highway leading from Dunn's Corners to Weekapaug, known as Langworthy road.

Sept. 1. Ernest Champlin to Everett M. McQuade, land on the north side of the Boston Post road, bounded easterly by land of Philip H. Gavitt and northerly by land of the heirs of John G. Wilcox.

Mary Alice Creed Thwaites, of Bristol, Mass., to Rose C. Delany of Worcester, Mass., land at Pleasant View, on the south side of Atlantic avenue, bounded easterly by land of Mary O. Clark, westerly partly by land of Betsey A. Maine and Elizabeth A. Bicknell.

"Dead Man's Curve," Westerly and of the Rhode Island state Noose Neck Hill road, junction of high and Pleasant street, had another notch cut, about 6:30 Friday morning when Cadillac touring car, 32,406 Conn., of H. O. Doll of Byrom Shore, Port Chester, N. Y., operated by Patrick Flanigan, opr. 11,939 Conn., went over the curved stone wall by the property of Miss Hannah Crandall, blowing three tires. The occupants escaped injury. Members of the party included Mrs. H. O. Doll, Miss P. Doll and Miss B. Boulacher of Port Chester, on their way from Boston. The front bumper of the auto was broken, the two front and a rear tire split. Chief Thomas E. Brown investigated the accident.

Miss Jeannie N. Smith of Westerly is a passenger on the Anchor line steamship Caledonia, sailing from Glasgow, Scotland, Saturday, Aug. 27th and due to dock in New York.

At Watch Hill a party was given Friday at Sunshine cottage, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, Pa., in honor of their daughter, Miss Sarah C. Mellon, whose engagement was announced to Alan B. Scaife of Pittsburgh. Messrs Vanderbilt, L. H. Love and Herbert L. May, arrived Friday morning on the New England express and proceeded to Watch Hill as guests of the Mellon family.

A man said to be Eugene Marceau, 40, or Eugene Marcie of Westerly, died at the Memorial hospital Thursday night, where he had been rushed after he was struck by an automobile on Central avenue, Pawtucket. Harvey E. Clap of Attleboro, was driving the car, police say. Clap said that the man walked from the front of a trolley car into the path of the machine. Efforts to learn the dead man's Westerly address proved futile.

John Thomas Parker, 52, died Thursday night at his home 8 Summer street, following an illnes of a little over a week. His death was due to a complication of pneumonia and heart disease, the former developing soon after he was confined to his home.

Mr. Parker was a native of Cornwall, England, and as a boy came to Westerly with his parents. He was for a time employed as an agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. Later he became the first night patrolman in Pawcatuck. In recent years he had been proprietor of the grocery store on School street which his father, John Parker, formerly operated. He was a member of Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, F. & A. M.; Westerly Forest, No. 107, Tall Cedars of Lebanon; the Westerly Masonic club, the Westerly Cycle club and Grace Methodist Episcopal church. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Jennie Simmons Parker; a son, Frank; a brother, Edwin K., and six sisters, Mrs. Katherine P. Scott and Mrs. Albert Spargo of Westerly; Mrs. Joseph Cooper of South Manchester, Conn.; Mrs. Philip Burns of Stony Creek, Conn.; Mrs. R. H. Moyle of Holowell, Me. and Mrs. Nathan Kendell of Bangor, Me.

At the public hearing by the Westerly town council on the changing of the Westerly zoning ordinance Thursday in the council chambers, the request of a change f rom residential area to a business section at the land on both sides of Breen road, property of Thomas and John L. Breen, on the Westerly road entrance to Watch Hill was denied by the council. This meeting, following several postponements, was held on request of the Westerly zoning board. A number of interested parties were present. John L. Breen and Thomas Breen stated that they were of the mind that they had been on their previous appearances before the council and zoning board to have their property in a business area.

Dr. John Champlin, Westerly and J. Irving Romer, New York, while desiring to have the property remain a residential one, gave notice that they would ask to have their property also made a business one. Mrs. Elizabeth T. Russell, owner of property in the vicinity to the establishment of a business district there. She also spoke in behalf of her sister, Dorothy J. Gutterson.

Louis J. Powers, strongly opposed the change from a residential to a business district, and a telegram was received from Edwin C. Goye, protesting the change.

Arthur L. Perry, chairman of the zoning board, stated that board felt that the matter was entirely up to the Watch Hill people. After the hearing, the council retired to executive session and voted to keep the territory as is owing to the opposition to the change.

William D. Cameron of Stamford is the week end guest of his sister, Mrs. Edward W. Pitcher, in Westerly. He stopped off in Westerly while on an automobile tour to return with his son, William, Jr., who has been a visitor here for several weeks.

Abraham J. Leon, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Leon, left Thursday evening for New York on a three weeks' appointment to the Lying in Hospital there.

Miss Ruth V. Davis left Friday morning for Boston and a short visit to Bangor, Me., before returning home with Miss Elizabeth Ring, history and civics teacher in Westerly high scholo.

Miss Esther Patton, daughter of Samuel Patton, left this week end for Boston to enroll as a student nurse at New England Baptist hospital.

Miss Mary Cluett from Boston was a Westerly visitor Friday.

John F. Nye, son of Dr. and Mrs. Fremont Nye, motored this week end to Westerly to join his wife, for a week's vacation from his duties with the Oneata, N. Y., Associated Gas and Electric company.

NOANK

SKUNK SAT AT FRONT DOOR AND BACK HOLDS UP DANCER

Skunks are coming around the village streets each night. William Franklin was coming home from a dance at Deep River and got in front of his house. A black and white skunk was sitting on the doorstep and it held him up. He went around to the back door and saw another one, the same color, on the step. So Mr. Franklin did not want to pass. He did not want to wake up his folks. By good luck a window was unfastened so he clombed in. In the meanwhile his brother thought a second story man was after his watch and money, but found it was Billie getting away from the white and black skunks, which soon left for another part of the village. In the morning Mrs. Franklin went out to feed the chickens and found three of her fowls dead. She blamed the white and black kittens that had been sitting on the doorstep the night before. The prize birds of her flock of 50 chickens were killed.

The boat Lightning came from off the shores of Block Island and tied up at the packing house dock Friday morning, after battling with heavy wind and rough water. Mate George Moore was seasick for the first time. Captain Rollin Rathbun was in charge of the craft. They were fishing for a few days and Mate Moore told the fishing men about a battle they had with a hammer-nose shark that attacked the boat. The shark weighed 800 pounds and was mad, making after the fish that came in close to the boat. Capt. Rathbun's steady aim with the iron made a pretty shot into the huge shark. It took two hours before it was on the deck of the boat. With a catch of 20 barrels of flat fish the shark was forwarded to New York by truck, to market, to see how much it is worth. It is the first time a shark has been around so late in the season, to put after a boat.

The guests were scout troop No. 15. 12 scouts in khaki uniforms and red handkerchiefs, in charge of Bill Holiday as scoutmaster. The meeting opened with Commander Billie Noyes calling the assemblage to order. Chaplain Ted Anderson read a prayer. The scouts were looking to see the way the ex-service men did it. Ted Anderson told about the convention in Danbury where he could not get a room in the city. The post won a prize for getting the most members during 1926. The trophy was on exhibition during the meeting. Two new members were taken in. After the meeting the table was set for 35 and Steward Frankis made a Poquonoc clam chowder and his aides helped pass it, later serving cookies, white lemonade. The scouts sang several songs. Wilfred Lamphere gave them a thrill when he gave a hand saw solo. Lester Smith played the piano, Ted Anderson did a tight rope act and his buddies cheered him for the good work.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Rain varying from five inches to eight inches in volume fell in Norwich and vicinity 50 years ago this week. The rainfall came in about four hours and caused property damage, accidents on the railroad, one fatality in Preston, and swept out nearly 10 bridges or dams, causing a loss to mill property of over $100,000 around Montville alone.

Items of 1877 as taken in part from the Norwich Bulletin of that year are as follows:

Monday, August 27, 1877—Saturday witnessed the most violent rainstorm in many respects, that ever visited this section. The rain fell gently during the latter part of the afternoon but later it began to rain hard and from 7 to 10 o'clock the fall was unparalleled. For four hours the rain came down, flooding streets and cellars, tearing out embankments, washing out bridges and causing at least one fatal accident. Conductor Cody's passenger train from New London, due here at 9 o'clock, met with an accident near Mohegan station and the residence of William Church. A culvert at this point, 20 feet long and 10 feet high had been washed out by the tearing waters although the track remained in place. Quick as a flash the engine and tender were hurled into the ravine, iron rails piercing the engine boiler. The breaking of the flues released the steam pressure and filled the cab. The engineer and fireman jumped into the swollen stream. The baggage car at the rear was telescoped by the tender and one passenger in the coach was shocked badly. Engineer William B. Ricker of Norwich was badly scalded and several of the train crew were injured badly.

A relief train with doctors left Norwich for the scene of the wreck but at Collin's mills found other washouts and they were forced to walk four miles to reach the wreck. Another train, coming from New London, reached the wreck and after treatment the injured were taken to that city.

Reports continued to come in all along the line, it being estimated that there were over 50 washouts along the line from New London to Willimantic.

All mill property along Oxoboxo brook reported damage by flooding waters Saturday night. Two dams at Schofield's mills were swept away, the Rockland Paper mill lost the banks of its canals and the Montville Paper mill dam was carried away. Palmer Brothers yarn mill suffered the same fate and the highway bridge from Uncasville to Palmertown also went out. Directly below this bridge was the stone arch bridge, this suffering a like fate. Thus five dams on this brook were swept away, two damaged, and two bridges swept away. At the saw mills of W. G. Johnson on a nearby stream a bridge was carried out but the dam stood.

A sad casualty was the result of the flood in Preston when the Chelsea Paper company dam went out. Here the small pond overflowed down the ravine entering the basement of the house owned by R. S. Harvey. Henry Tossett and family lived here and when the waters swept through the windows the family was carried out into the stream. The little girl of the family was soon out of reach and perished but another child was saved. The body was finally recovered at Montville.

Soon the water reached the turnpike road and cut a path through this 15 feet deep, but hard rock was struck and diverted the waters, thus saving the house from being swept into the river.

All about town sidewalks were washed out and on Forest street residents packed rags at the doors to keep out the mounting waters.

Horse cars could not run owing to the severity of the storm and the depth of the water in the streets. Norwich found itself isolated from Montville Sunday, deep washouts making the road unsafe for travel. The peculiar thing about the storm is that only as far off as Greeneville and Bean Hill there was no damage from rainfall.

Tuesday, August 28, 1877—The violence of the rainstorm Saturday is indicated by measurements at the reservoir and at various places about the city and surrounding towns. During the 4 hours of the storm 5 inches fell at the reservour, 5 inches on Broad street, 7.13 inches on the West Side and 8 inches at Uncasville. August rainfall averages but little over one inch per year, last year being but .55 of an inch. Damage occasioned by the storm in Norwich has not been estimated, but mill owners along the Oxoboxo brook, after taking stock Monday, place their combined loss at not less than $100,000.

The city reservoir yesterday morning had risen nine inches due to the swelling of feeding streams, putting the water but six feet below the estate pipes.

One of the Springfield brick yards has an order for 200,000 of brick for a mill in Jewett City.

Wednesday, August 29, 1877—The engine Henry P. Haven, with the tender and baggage car that went into the culvert Saturday night are in the repair shop at New London and the Chicopee is now on the line. The damage to the three cars is estimated at $1,500.

The storm made a cross cut on the track at the fairground over 15 feet deep and workmen are now engaged in filling it in so that the track will be ready for the fair.

Watch Hill is now swamped with bathers, the Sunday swarm reaching over 8,000. It seems as though everyone wants to swim these days and that Watch Hill is the place they have picked out

Thursday, August 30, 1877—That new building of Doyle's on Main street is doing a good thing for the health of the community. Scarcely a person passes by without craning a neck to look at the top of the building and this causes expansion of the lungs, a thing doctors say is a good cure for consumption.

A mad dog has added to the troubles in Norwich and although the animal was killed he had first bitten a small girl on High street

The turnpike road to New London by way of Uncasville is being repaired but it will be some time before the bridges can be replaced.

A Montville youth exhibited about town last evening a muskmelon he had grown and which weighed 19 pounds.

Friday, August 31, 1877—A Preston resident, George Hilderbrand, was severely beaten last evening by two men who were engaged in robbing his garden. Mr. Hilderbrand suffered a broken shoulder blade and numerous cuts and bruises. The villains escaped.

Freight rates on barrels are cheaper than on crates, 25 cents a barrel to 35 cents for a crate. Therefore all peaches are now arriving in Norwich in barrels.

The Chelsea Paper company have contracted for the filling in of the cut on the Preston turnpike caused by the storm of Saturday night and have made a present to the family that was left destitute by the flood.

The street commissioner now has 75 men at work. The greatest task is at Munson's hill where a culvert 20 feet deep was filled full with earth.

What the country needs is not so much a good five cent cigar, but a bathing suit that will not rip just as you take a dive.

Saturday, September 1, 1877—By the will of Henry Farnam a fund of $5,000 the interest of which is to be used to aid widows in the limits of Norwich, has been provided. Heirs are claiming that the fund should go to them but the town fathers of Norwich intend to fight for the fund.

David A. Wells, president of the American Social Science association delivers an address at this year's meeting at Saratoga next Tuesday.

The Ella daily brings back Norwich people who have been spending the summer months at Block Island.

Oysters R good today, it being the first of September.

Two bears being led about town are affording the children plenty of enjoyment. The king bear climbs a tree for 25 cents—the money of course going to his owner.

JEWETT CITY

WM. E. MORGAN, OF WESTERLY, A NATIVE OF BOROUGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 2—Thomas McBroome, was in Westerly this week to attend the funeral of William E. Morgan, a native of Jewett City. Will Morgan and his brother Stephen were born in Griswold, the latter being killed by the cars some years ago. Both boys grew up here to young manhood, and in William, Burgess McBroome at one time became much interested. Many of the older residents will recall pleasantly the late George Morgan, father of the two boys.

Fifty years and more ago, the elder Morgan took over the teaming for the Briggs Manufacturing company of Voluntown.

In those times it was some considerable contract to haul, seven miles over a rough hilly road, not of state construction and care as it is today, all the fuel, cotton, finished produce and accessories to a thriving business. Mr. Morgan, seeing team after team of four heavy horses, slowly but surely give way to the strain of the long daily haul, sought other means of draft power. The auto truck was not yet dreamed of, but being a man of resource, he hit upon the plan of utilizing mules. A four team hitch of sturdy Jacks, right from the mountain districts of Tennesee, with a spare one to provide a layoff of one animal each day, did the trick where northern bred horses failed. He further benefited by carrying on much of his teaming during the summer season in the cooler hours, between sunset and sunrise, thus gaining for himself the title of Night Hawk. A jovial, kind-hearted man he was, and later when he ran a tin-cart, one of the last ever to have a regular route through this village, many of the housewives of that time used to enjoy gathering at the back of his cart, hear his funny tales and have their baskets of rags weighed up with his long steel-yards and exchanged for a wash board and broom, or may be a few pails and pans of shining tin.

THOMAS BURKE'S CAREER OF REMARKABLE SUCCESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 2—Daniel F. Finn, Miss Margaret Wallace, Michael McCarthy and his sister, Miss Jennie McCarthy and Mrs. William Cantwell of Plainfield, formerly Miss Johanna Scully of Jewett City, were in Norwich Thursday to attend the funeral of Thomas Burke. Other residents recall the family as one to be included in the last of the substantial Irish-American families that made their first new homes in Griswold.

A family of nine children, five boys and four girls were born in Jewett City, and lived to make the higher grades in many lines of business. Thomas went to school here and later learned the butcher's trade of the late R. M. Brown. As years passed, Mr. Burke became one of the leading buyers and beef experts for the Armour Co. During the war he travelled the world over in the interest of scientific beef production, with unlimited purchasing power, left to his sole personal judgment. One day in San Francisco, while passing through one of the big parks of the Pacific metropolic, he noticed a man sitting on a bench beneath a tree near a small lake, watching two boys with a toy boat.

Stopping, Mr. Burke addressed the man: "Say, if I were in Jewett City I should say you were Mr. Brown, that taught me how to sell round steak." "By Hokey," said Russ, "that's me." And both lived to tell in their native town of the great "Old Home" time they had at the Golden Gate.

The public schools of Griswold open Tuesday next, Sept. 6th.

All children entering school for the first time must produce written evidence of the date of their birth. This may either be a certificate from the town clerk or a baptismal certificate.

Passengers on the bus lines that operate to the north and state road auto parties were remarking Friday on the improved appearance of the Tadpole pond, view, where the body of water is skirted by the state highway. The heavy growth of underbrush and vines has been cut out and removed leaving a stand of the best trees all along the pond shore. Now the hundreds who pass that way every day, may, in pond lily time, enjoy the view of tens of thousands of lilies in bloom. Tadpole is no second rating locality anyhow as many claims for it can be substantiated. No form of fresh water marine growth was ever discovered that may not be found in Tadpole pond, and too, not many of the known species of aquatic insect and reptile life would find themselves away from home, if set down within its depths.

Many are noting the long strings of Pullman sleeping cars daily routed over the local iron, bound for Maine. The tide of summer outing. Bar Harbor and State of Maine express traffic is now setting strongly to the west.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. French, Rev. and Mrs. G. F. Goodenough, Mrs. M. E. Shea, Mr. and Mrs. George Ross and family attended Plainfield academy meeting Thursday. Mr. French is the president of the alumni.

At the First Congregational church, Pachaug, the pastor, Rev. N. W. Whitman, is ill and Rev. E. P. Ayer, the blind preacher will supply.

At the Second Congregational church in Jewett City, Rev. G. F. Goodenough will occupy his pulpit and at the Methodist church, Rev. J. W. Carter will preach.

Mrs. Mary Hussaker of Pineville, Oregon, has been the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Ella Geer.

The first shipments to be sent by the air express which begins operation Sept. 1, will include womens stockings, breakfast food, electrical products, half-tone cuts for advertisements, radio parts, motion picture films and "dummy" packages sent by collectors who want the new air express labels.

POETRY

Strawberry bank Harbor

What do I see from my hammock, swung
From gnarled old bough of the apple tree?
A Jersey cow, in the clover deep,
Chewing her cud complacently.
Rows of lettuce and tasseled corn;
Hens and chickens shielded from harm
An old grey goose by the garden wall;
Are what I see on my acre farm.

And what do I see when I turn my head
The great wide sweep of the harbor blue,
Where ships are lying from overseas,
And noisy tugs have their work to do;
A coastwise steamer; a pleasure yacht;
Colliers waiting their "right-of-way,"
A barge of bricks and a lighthouse boat,
Anchored at peace in the quiet bay.

What circles above my cottage roof?
A seaplane laden with human freight
Risen from ocean she flies through space
Droning and humming yet obdurate,
While gulls speed by on crest of wave,
Uttering their plaintive cry of fear,
Grackle and kingfisher poise in flight,
As the bird-like structure hovers near.

What do I see from my rockbound home,
When the bugle sound its sweet "Good night"
And a dozen ships ring out "two bells"
And each mast glows with a gleaming light?
The beacon red from the lighthouse tower;
The searchlight skimming the deep black sea,
And the path of gold, which the moonlight sends
Across the shimmering sands to me.

The Little Road

I know a little road that runs
Between gay lands or bare.
A road that Love keeps smoothly swept,
Where many pilgrims fare.

Through sun or stress or windy hours
Along its way they sing,
Their toil-stained arms unconscious of
What heavy load they bring.

And some are young, and some are old,
But all have joy to bless
This little shining love-kept road
Whose name is Happiness.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Ted—Come on, lend me $10. One friend always helps another.

Fred—Yes, but you always want to be the other.—Detroit News.

Waiter, I'd like a good, rare steak. Good steaks are always rare here, sir.—Boston Transcript.

Get out.

I will not.

Get out, I tell you!

I will not! And as I am not in the habit of taking orders, I will leave you.—L'Intransigeant.

The grocer stood beaming at his new cashier, who was busily taking in the money.

"Ah, what change one little woman can make in a store," he murmured.—The Progressive Grocer.

"From these bumps," said the phrenologist, "I can see that you are touchy and quarrelsome."

"Me touchy and quarrelsome? Say that again and I'll wring your neck!"—Pathfinder.

The hour was late. All was hushed and dark. Suddenly the stillness was broken by a crash from upstairs.

"G-g-g-good Heavens, what was that d-d-darling?" exclaimed the timid young man.

"Merely father dropping a hint," replied the girl, quite unalarmed.—Tit-Bits, London.

"Why dont you give us one of those orations such as Daniel Webster used to make?"

"If I could make such a speech," answered Sen. Sorghum, "I'd lose a lot of friends. A man can't open his mouth now without being suspected of propaganda."—Washington Star.

Phillida had gone to an exhibition of pictures. Not that she knew anything about art, but it was the thing to do.

"Hullo, Miss Phillida," said a clever young artist, as she stood gazing at an oil painting. "I see you are interested in art."

Phillida turned her lovely, vacant eyes on the speaker.

"Me," she said, "Art who?"—Los Angeles Times.

Desperate after three years of fruitless effort to win recognition of his improved method of cardboard manufacture, Gregory Serebrovski in Moscow bludgeoned his way to recognition recently with a roll of his own product. As a last resort Serebrovski went to a professor of the scientific department of the supreme council of public economy. He asked for aid, but was told to get out. The infuriated inventor seized a roll of his samples and struck the professor in the face. Two months later he received a subsidy of $1,000 for further experiments, less a fine of $12 for damage to the professorial nose.

Corpse smuggling at the frontiers of Iraq keeps European health officials busy enforcing quarantine rules, according to reports received by the editors of the London medical journal, Lancet. The desire of all devout Mohammedans to make pilgrimages to the cities visited by the prophet, as well as the blessings that accrue to the faithful when they make one of the holy cities their final resting place makes plenty of work for the quarantine officers. New laws have been put into effect calling for the examination of all local corpses as well as those in transit from other countries. Now no corpse can be buried in one of the holy places without a pass. Examinations and health permits are also issued to the thousands of pilgrims that throng into Arabia from the east, thus enabling health officers to check up on one of the most fruitful sources of the spread of epidemics in the orient.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

Nothing Suited Him

He sat at the dinner- table there,
With discontented frown;
The potatoes and steak were underdone
And the bread was baked too brown.

The pie too sour, the pudding too sweet,
And the mince-meat much too fat;
The soup was greasy, too, and salt—
'Twas hardly fit for a cat.

"I wish you could taste the bread and pies
I have seen my mother make;
They were something like, and 'twould do you good
Just to look at a slice of her cake."

Said the smiling wife: "I'll improve with age,
Just now I'm but a beginner;
But your mother called to see me today,
And I got her to cook this dinner."

If Men Were Wise

What might be done if men were wise,
What glorious deeds, my suffering brother,
Would they unite
In love and right,
And cease their scorn of one another?
Oppression's heart might be imbued
With kindling drops of loving-kindness,
And knowledge pour
From shore to shore
Light on the eyes of mental blindness.
All slavery, warfare, lies, and wrongs,
All vice and crime might die together;
And meat and corn,
To each man born,
Be free as warmth in summer weather.
The meanest wretch that ever trod,
The deepest sunk in guilt and sorrow,
Might stand erect
In self-respect,
And share the teeming world tomorrow.
What might be done? This might be done,
And more than this, my suffering brother;
More than the tongue
E're said or sung,
If men were wise and loved each ether.

A Brother

A brother has gone to his Father's home,
His life, all brave and kind,
Was molded in noble pattern,
After the Master's mind.

A brother in word and in action,
A brother in joy and in need,
Brother! Sweet word of deep meaning,
Here, you have meaning indeed.

Ye angels, come thronging to meet him.
Sing softly some tender refrain,
Sing softly, lest his heart, unaccustomed,
Should break at the tender refrain.

But, afar in your halls of glory,
O publish his noble life,
Tell of his ministering kindness,
Tell of his courage in strife.

Shout joyful praise to the Lord of Life
For the race so nobly run,
Hail him in Heaven, a victor,
Earth's judgment, all undone.

Hail him a brother to all mankind,
Wishing the world's best good!
Hail him a brother, loving and true,
To those he owned by blood!

Brotherly hands, in your heavenly place!
Reach out the new comer to greet,
O brother hearts, now knowing and known,
Give him communion sweet.

Think not on the body, all worn and weak,
Low-lying now under the clod.
Think of this faithful soul, gone home,
This brother gone home to God.

HOW ROSY POSY MAKES CREAM SODA

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: It is a long time since I have written for the Corner, but I read all of your good letters, and think of all the sisters I know and hope to meet more.

Black Eye Susie: I have been out of the mill since spring but I have not been able to go to any picnics because I am taking care of a small baby. But I do want to go next time Club No. 1 has a meeting.

Lonesome: I have not seen you this summer. Is your car put up for repairs?

Gipsy Wanda: I see you have not gone out south.

Twice Twenty: I hope you and your hubby are well. I hope I will be able to see you next meeting.

Here is a good recipe for making cream soda. 1-3 pounds of granulated sugar, 1 pint of hot water, 1 ounce of tartaris acid. Put all together, let stand five hours, stir a few times. Then take whites of two eggs, whipped and add to the rest with extract to taste. To make a glass, put about half an inch in glass, fill to 3-4 with cold water, add cooking soda the size of a bean and stir briskly. This is very good. I have made four different flavors. It makes a nice drink. After it is made I put it in a bottle and it is ready to use.

I hope the sisters will try this and have good luck.

Best wishes to all the sisters and editor.

ROSY POSY.

FLOWERS

Dear Editor and Everybody: This is another of our beautiful rainy days, so thought I'd spend my useless time writing for the Corner page. I have been thinking what a dreary, desolate place would this world be without a flower. It would be a face without a smile, a feast without a welcome. One cannot look clearly at the structure of a flower without loving it. The delicate arrangement of the petals and sepals are all emblems of God's love to the creation and they are all the means and ministrations of man's love to his fellow creatures, for they first awaken in his mind a sense of the beautiful and the good. They lead us to thoughts of generosity and moral beauty, superior to selfishness, so that they are pretty lessons in Nature's book of instructions.

Milton says they are, "A wilderness of sweets." "Flowers have an expression of countenance, as much as men or animals," says Henry Ward Beecher. Some seem to smile, some have a sad expression, some are pensive and diffident, others are plain, honest and upright like the broad faced sunflower and the hollyhocks.

Flowers—of all created things—are the most simple and innocent, and most superbly complex, playthings for children, and ornaments for the grave. Flowers, beloved by the wandering idiot and studied by the deep thinking man of science. Flowers, that unceasingly expand to heaven their grateful and to man their cheery looks partners of human joy, smoothers of human sorrow; fit emblems of the victor's triumphs—welcome to crowded halls, and graceful upon solitary graves!

"Not a flower of all earth's beauties
Bears a lesson more sublime
Than the humble wayside flower
Blooming in late autumn time."

ANN TENNA.

PERFUMES AND SMOCKING

Dear Editor and Sisters, also Readers of the Social Corner: Did you ever imagine, there were many methods of extracting perfumes from the highly scented flowers? That of distillation is undoubtedly the simplest. Eau de cologne is perhaps the most simple and useful of all mixed waters, and the following is an excellent recipe. Half a drachm of attar of rosemary and 20 drops of the attar of each of the following orange peel, lemon peel and bergamont peel to one pint of alcohol.

But there is the process of absorption. It is a more complicated process certainly but when very delicately scented flowers like violets, jasamine, tuberoses, etc., are to be robbed of their perfume, it is well worth the additional trouble it necessitates. Take two soup plates, cover them with a thin layer of melted suet and when this has hardened, heap up the petals of some flower into one plate and place the other on it upside down. If there is a plentiful supply of flowers, the heap can be renewed every 24 hours. It is advisable not to remove suet for several days as each day will add strength to the perfume it will absorb, but when the supply fails off the suet must be peeled off the plates and broken up, and placed in a bottle of alcohol. At the end of about a fortnight, if this bottle has been kept air tight and shaken gently once every day, the perfume will have left the suet and transferred itself to the alcohol which may be poured off through a strainer and bottled up for immediate use

Perfume always seems to me like music grown still. There is something vitally wrong with the temperament of a man or woman who dislikes music or perfume.

Did you ever think how much of the charm of life would be missing if that least respected of the five senses, the sense of smell, were lost? Never to be able to enjoy the breath of roses on a June day, the salt smell of the sea at low tide in August, the odors of the pine woods in early autumn and never to experience that emotional rush of the tides of memory which certain perfumes produce. The whiff from a lady's lace handkerchief can for a moment restore lost youth and bring back dead faces in life and beauty for the passerby.

Perfumes always have and always will play a large part in the romance of life of temperamental people of refinement.

The word perfume is derived from the Latin word "per" which means "by" or "through" and "fumes," meaning "smoke" refering to incense which was the first form of perfume used in religious ceremonies. History is not old enough to give the birth of man's love for perfume. Old Egyptian Papyri mention them with respect and a Turkish proverb says, "There are two things which cannot be bad; mush and love. There is an original word "Kief" which signifies a condition of langorous pleasure produced by a fragrant plant. In proverbs we read that Ointment and perfume rejoice the heart. Sir John Mandeville describes, in his travels and adventures, the Isle of Ryan where the people lived by the smell of wild apples. If they lost the savories of wild apples they died.

I have heard it said when the wild elephants smell the satfari (men) they stampede with fright, it is scent of man their enemy.

Scientists claim that the power of smell is most acute among ants, of all created things, when two strange ants meet they know by the odor if they belong to the same family. If they come from different groups they proceed to do battle, and the devil take the hindmost.

I see smocking is to the fore again. This decoration is simple and is so effective.

If the garment is to be smocked it must be cut exactly as full as if it was to be shirred. Then it must be marked off in spaces 3-4 of an inch apart, taking great care to have the spaces even. Then catch corresponding markings in first and second rows together lengthwise with 2 or 3 small stitches, using only a single thread. Do not break thread between smocking but ass it invisibly underneath. Connect second and third row as described above, catching the center of each space in the second row. Connect third and fourth row same as first and second and proceed in this manner until the smocking is finished. The spaces for the smocking can be easily marked off with chalk or lines of thread on the material can even be creased in lines and then the dots made on the lines, three quarters of an inch apart to show where the fabric is to be caught together to give the honeycomb effect.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

ARIES: Many thanks. Letter forwarded as requested.

MOTHER SHOULDN'T WAIT ON TABLE

Dear Friends: I want to talk to the younger people of the Corner. Don't let mother wait on the table. I do not approve of the too prevalent custom of mother waiting on the table. If Johnny wants a drink, mother gets it; if Nellie wants iced tea instead of milk, mother gets it. If the bread is out, mother gets it. I know many a woman who must serve in addition to the weariness of preparing the meal, and in many homes where every one helps himself, "mother" never thinks of sitting down to the table with the rest of the family. She pours coffee, milk, and water, brings on and replenishes the dishes and after an hour's work of this sort she sinks in her chair exhausted, with only scraps left to revive her strength. This is all wrong. If anyone waits, it should not be the mother. Her life is valuable. Besides the injustice to herself, it teaches selfishness to her family. I have always noticed drudge mothers are not the ones who have the greatest influence upon their children. I believe in the wife and mother sitting at her own table giving that poise and dignity which she alone can give to the family meal. A regular waiter can be dispensed with. Have a china rest for the coffe pot and bring the pot to the table. Put the water pitcher near papa and let him serve that and the milk. If something has to be procured, let some one else get it occasionally. It is no more for Johnny or Nellie, or even august papa himself, to get up for some necessary errand for the table than for mother to feel that whatever the call, she must jump to answer it.

Plan and cook the meal carefully, so that it can all be brought to the table except desert, then coax, implore, insist that the good man carve and serve the plates. This gives grace and elegance to the simplest meal. Then eat with the rest of the family, and as good as they eat. If there is a daughter, teach her early to deftly and quietly remove the dishes and bring on the dessert.

A unique and practical gift for a friend is a hat bag of linen. The bag should be large enough to hold the hat without crushing—22 by 26 I think is the best. You can put an embroidered monogram in the center of the bag. A drawing string is inserted in the top.

A pretty and convenient also useful present is a combing towel. This is made with a straight piece of linen toweling one and one quarter yards long 20 inches wide, folded in such a manner that the front is two inches shorter than the back. The front is cut up through the center to the fold where it is rounded out a trifle for the neck, which is bound with a soft piece of muslin, and you can edge it with a tiny flower motif in lavender chambray. These motif patterns are laid on the colored material when the article is ready for decoration. The edge is marked around carefully with a pencil and each design cut out and basted on position on the foundation.

A pretty table cover is made of heavy green linen appliqued with white daisies. They are pretty. It has a three inch hem with wide hemstitching, the daisies having white for the petals and a golden brown for the center.

A night dress case is a very acceptable gift. I made mine of oyster white linen decorated with orange and green motifs buttoned holed on with the same kind of art thread.

The case is 12 inches deep and 18 inches wide, the body part joining the pocket into which you put the night dress.

I have made so many pretty and desirable puzzles for the children. Cut out pretty pictures from magazines, then paste them on cardboard, let dry and then mark the back, 1-2-3-4-5 and so on until you get them marked in a way you will understand putting them together, then cut them apart.

I you keep a small bottle of gin under your pillow and when you have cramps in your muscles, that will give you instant relief.

SOME GOOD RECIPES

Dear Sisters: These recipes I hope will be of interest to some members of the Corner.

Blueberry Muffins: 2 eggs beaten lightly, 1-3 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 cup milk, 2 cups flour, 1 cup berries, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Bake in moderate oven, 25 minutes.

Blueberry Pies: Make a rich pie paste and bake in shell. Before serving fill the shell with blueberries, to which is added a little confectioner's sugar. Cover top with whipped cream flavored with vanilla and put a few berries on the top of that.

Gingered Pears: Take any hard pears, chop rather coarse, add a pound of sugar to a pound of pears. To six pounds of mixture add 1-4 pound of preserved ginger. Let stand one night. In the morning cook until clear and a dark amber color. When nearly done add the juice and grated rind of three lemons. Put up in tumblers like jelly.

Currant Jelly Made Without Cooking: Wash and squeeze currants. Place juice in a stone crock or large earthen bowl and set in a cool place. In 24 hours a froth will cover the surface. Remove this and strain the juice again through a cloth. To juice add the same amount of powdered sugar. Stir until thoroughly dissolved. Then put in jars tightly tied and set away. In 24 hours you will have transparent jell which will keep just as well as if it had been cooked.

Raspberry Jam: To each pound of ripe red raspberries put one pound of loaf sugar, stir it frequently and stew until it is thick like jelly.

To Pickle Nasturtiums: Gather these when full grown, but young, put them in a pot, pour boiling salted water on, and let them stand three or four days. Then drain off the water, and cover them with cold vinegar, a few blades of mace and whole grains of black pepper.

IDEAS ABOUT CHILDREN

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: How I wish I could meet every one of you and talk over a few ideas concerning children and their home kindergarten.

To begin every mother of small children should memorize a few of the songs and finger plays and study the explanation, mottoes and pictures in Froebels mother play. A book which can be obtained at any good library, so that she may begin to use them in her home long before the kindgergarten age. I have used them and find they teach the virtues which later is so hard to instill, for as Froebel says, "Mother, you can now do with a touch so light as a feather what you cannot later accomplish with a pressure of a hundred weight." I have also found that the songs and plays fill the child's heart with joy and contentment, entertain him immensely and supply his imagination with wholesome food. If the mother has memorized some of the songs she can sing or croon them while busy about her household duties, and in this way can often direct her child thoughts and play with definite aims in view. Her walks or rides with the children may be also made occasions for such play. To illustrate how Froebel's philosophy helps the mother to train her child, let us consider the "pat-a-cake." You smile and say why all mothers play pat-a-cake with their babies, that's nothing new." Yes mothers have played pat-a-cake, for ages and ages, but if they want to know why they play it let them turn to Froebel, who points out the reason the little game is so widely known, is because, "simple mother will never fail to link the initial activities of the child with the every day life about him." He also says, "The bread or better still the little cake which the little child likes so well, he receives from his mother; the mother in turn receives it from the baker. So far, so good we have found two links to the great chain of life service." Let us beware however of making the child think these links complete the chain. The baker can bake no cake unless the miller grinds the meal; the miller grinds no meal if the farmer doesn't bring him the grain, the farmer cannot bring the grain if his field doesn't yield the crop; the field can yield no crop if the forces of nature fail to work together to produce it; the forces of nature could not conspire together were it not for the all wise and beneficient Power who incites them to their predetermined ends." It is because we mothers have felt, perhaps dimly and unconsciously, the lesson which the pat-a-cake play teach of dependence on one another and the gratitude, each owes to all, we have played this little game from ancient times. I started to play pat-a-cake with my baby boy over 40 years ago when he was six months old. It afforded him great satisfaction to exercise his arms and direct his movements so that both little dimpled hands met together. When he was about 18 months or two years old I began to show him a picture of a "pat-a-cake" found in the book referred to and through this means I gradually and easily led him to see that for his bread he owes thanks not only to his mother, to the baker, to the miller, the farmer, but also and most of all to his heavenly father through the instrumentalities of dew and rain, sunshine and darkness winter and summer caused the earth to bring forth the grain. It is only after having studied the picture thoroughly and read the chapter on "Pat-a-cake" in the mottoes and commentaries and committee to memory the verse and the tune in the song and music of Mother Play, that I was ready to teach pat-a-cake to my baby. And as I have shown I did not teach it all at once but refer to it again and again perhaps when we were out working in the garden on a sunny day or when we were in the house watching the rain. When he was old enough we went into the baker shop and to the astonishment of the baker asked if we might see his ovens. We used to pass the New London mill and I would tell him that is the place where the farmer brings his grain. Thus the lesson of pat-a-cakes goes on for a long time after it is first played in babyhood. It teaches us to be ever thankful and your baby learns to say, "Thank you, dear mamma, thank you dear baker, thank you, dear God." There are many other songs and games I gave my boys long before kindergarten age. In all of them they took the greatest delight. I began early to sing the songs and play the finger games which nourish the instinct of love for the members of the family and affections for animals.

REVIEWING OLD SCENES

Dear Editor and Friends: It does seem good to see the sun even if it is playing hide and go seek among the clouds. It makes me think of an afternoon some time ago. Kansas Lily and I were asked to go for a ride, so we went up to an old farm house where I once lived. It was so nice up there. We went out to the berry field but Kansas Lily and I got tired so we went up to the house. There was no one at home so we sat on the veranda. It was nice and cool, the air was fresh and sweet and there was no smoke or gas in it. Sitting there we could look to the west across the valley to the wooded hills beyond. A little below we could look down into the quiet valley and father down we could see a quiet farm house here and there and yet father south we could see the old church spire on the hill. In the past my ancestors owned the whole plantation for a yoke of oxen. His name was Gurden and as settlers came he sold farms to them but kept the old hill for himself for years. He bought it from an Indian chief named Starling. He then called the hill Jurdin hill, but later sold it to a man by the name of Sterling. That is where it got the name of Sterling. As I sat and looked I thought what a picture to be put on canvas. It can not be beaten anywhere. I never wished so much to be an artist as I did that afternoon. I am a lover of natural scenery anyway. I love the woodland with its sweet scents and cool shades and the quiet valleys trying its the sweet summer sunshine. How much different from the city smoke, dust and heat.

"Well, Kochia, I am glad you survived that time of dish washing. Glad Peter Prose was able to help you out Well I did not get sick that day, but I have been quite sick since.

If my trip made me sick I will try it over again. You know what the Irishman said, "Hair of the same dog cures the bite.

Peter Prose: I am awful sorry for you. Hope you are better by now. You want to be for I am coming to the old town in October. Then there will be something doing all the time.

Peggy Alder: How are you after that reunion? It was some time. I hope the rest of the sick ones are better. Oh, that salad with the olives! I am glad to hear Azile is better.

Caro: Just come in and give us a letter.

Dece and 1492: Come on.

PICNIC AT ALFARA'S SEPT. 14

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I have attended a Social Corner meeting today and we had a splendid time and a lovely dinner with plenty of good things and we had a good gathering of sisters.

I will have a picnic Sept. the 14 at my home on the North Windham road to Putnam from Willimantic, three miles from Willimantic. Look for the sign, Sunshine farm. The Putnam and Providence busses pass by the door leaving Railroad street Willimantic at 9 a. m. and 11:45 a. m. standard time. Would be pleased to have members from all Social Corner clubs come that can. Please bring soup plate with cup, knife, fork and spoon and something good to eat.

ALFARA.

CLUB NO. 5 MEETS SEPT. 7

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It is time for our meetings in the Buckingham once more. So I hope all will come that can. Be sure and bring something good to eat. I will be hostess and hope some of the sisters will volunteer to help me as I have been so busy and also away so I have not had time to ask anyone to help me. We have just returned from Keene, New Hampshire, where we went to take my mother on her way home We had a fine trip.

I will furnish the beans and hope some of the other sisters will bring salad. Best wishes for the success of the corner and hope that all have had a very enjoyable summer.

THE SUNRISE TRAILS OF LONG ISLAND

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Would like to tell the sisters of two week end trips I took recently. Four of us started from Norwich on Saturday, May 2th for a trip to Long Island, expecting to take the boat at 3:45 p. m. from New London to Greenport, L. I. On arriving at the dock we were told that the boat had gone over in the morning but would not return until ent route than we had planned. By the time we had turned our auto around to go on, were stopped by two passenger trains coming into the New London station, also a freight train passed which delayed us about a half hour and ruffled our chauffeur a trifle. We finally started on our journey to Bridgeport, but as the boat left at 5 p. m. we could not make it, so had to push on to Stamford, where we arrived nearly an hour early as the boat did not leave until 9 p. m. The sail to Oyster Bay, L. I., was one hour and 20 minutes long and it proved to be a very pleasant sail as they had music on board and during the first half hour it was light enough to see around us. Finally we reached Long Island at 10:20 p. m. and after searching around for an hour we located rooms at the Oyster Bay Inn. An item of interest to Norwich people and us, was that the ferry boat that we crossed on proved to be the old freighter Chelsea, which ran between Norwich and New York so long, and had been remodeled as a ferry boat. On Sunday morning after breakfast at the Inn, we left Oyster Bay, passing by Sagamore Hill cemetery where President Roosevelt is buried, stopped long enough to visit his monument and to get a beautiful view from up so high. Then we went on through Huntington and down through to the motor highway which we followed down to Ronconkoma lake, it costing 50 cents to travel on the Parkway. We drove nearly around the lake, which is very large and a beautiful place, with so many different pavilions and many homes and all the beaches of white sand, would like to have had more time to spend there.

Next we went through Patchogue which was quite a busy place and then on where we stopped for a good dinner at Bellport then on over route 27 all the way through the Hampton until we arrived at Montauk Point, near 7 p. m. On our way from Easthampton to the point is a park on the ocean side and we saw any number of parties camping out in their tents and autoists making their suppers on the camp fires and also seeing the wonderful views from up on the sand dunes. As we had no camping outfit and finding no hotels near, we decided after looking at the view from the lighthouse that we could return over the same route as far as possible before dark which we did but could get no place to stay all night, as the visitors were numerous and we were just too late to get rooms. We had supper at Hampton Bays, and then pushed on to Flanders where we had nice rooms with a lady whose son had a large house with 50 rooms next door but every room taken for the holidays. In the morning we started shortly after 7 a. m. going to Riverhead then through to Port Jefferson, thinking to take the ferry to Bridgeport, but decided to go on to Oyster Bay and so see more of Long Island. On from Port Jefferson to Oyster Bay we saw any number of fields of potatoes planted on either side of the highway and some were two miles long and as many more miles broad, quite a wonderful sight with the potatoes up about four inches and each row even and no weeds. When we came back over route 25 to Sagamore Hill the soldiers were just marching to the cemetery, a parade about like Norwich would have, so we did not have to wait long for them to pass. We then left by the ferry again for Stamford and it being daylight, then visited a friend for a short time, and at 4 p. m. started home again made the sail more enjoyable than ever, Oyster Bay sound being a very pretty harbor. We arrived at Stamford about 1 p. m., had dinner and stopping at Bridgeport to see an old friend then on again having supper near Guilford and arriving home in Norwich rather late but finding it nice to get home once more.

About my other trip I'll tell in another letter.

GREETINGS FROM VOTAMI

Dear Social Corner: I wonder if any of you ever ate fried bananas on toast. Fry the bananas in butter until they are brown and soft. Then put on the toast and pour the butter over the toast

Keziah Doolittle: I forgot the yeast cakes.

Kochia: Your Cousin S. says she's glad to hear the dishes are washed ready for next time. How about the eggs? E. says they will make good hen feed.

Gingham Girl: Did you have a good time on your trip? Write and tell us about it.

Hollyhock: Get nigger ready. I'm coming down and play with him.

Peter Prose: Did you see any clams when we were down to Beach Pond? I saw two or three in swimming.

Cherry Blossom: Seen him lately?

Cens: I'm coming over to hear you play the piano before long.

Azile: Don't forget the tea.

Peggy Alder: Aren't you glad to hear the dishes are done? We were lucky we didn't stay.

GREETINGS FROM PEGGY ALDER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folks: Will try to write a few lines to help fill the Social Corner page. This is a busy time of the year, with the canning and other work that has to be done anyway. I like this beautiful fall-like weather. Perhaps by the time you are reading this it will be raining again.

I was one of the fortunate opes that attended Kochia's reunion and we certainly had a wonderful time. I will speak a good word for the lemon pie for it was very good, also had a piece of Kochia's mother's old fashioned ginger-bread.

Kochia: Glad you have recovered so nicely from such a hard day. We came home by the old Tyler place and the school house where mother used to go to school. One of the cars disappeared on the way home, but after a little while we found that they had told one of the party they were coming home through North Sterling, so we came on again. I have to laugh when I think of some of the things that happened through the day, but I think we ought to have gone to Beach Pond with those folks to look out for them. That was the crowd that was sick. Lilac Lady stood it pretty well but most of them did not. I wanted to ask you about Mt. Misery, but didn't seem to get a chance. Did you ever find the gentleman you spoke of sitting in that chair? He is so very busy I didn't think he ever had time to sit down. We are going to start at six o'clock in the morning next time or my mother is going to know the reason why. Oh, yes, there is going to be a next time. You shouldn't treat folks so well, then they wouldn't want to go again.

Lilac Lady: Wonder what that noise was down to Kochia's? Sounded like a swarm of bees.

Peter Prose: You are a good sport. I am glad Kochia had some one to help him after the crowd life. Hope you are feeling better. We think some of those olives were smelt I never shall use any more anyway. I certainly hope we meet again.

Votami: The suspense is awful. Perhaps I will find out sometime.

Johnn-on-the-Spot: Sorry the sun didn't shine so you could get some pictures. Hope you have better luck next time.

Azile: We are very sorry you were not able to attend the reunion.

Harry B: You don't know what you missed.

Caro: The folks didn't act a bit better than when you saw them last.

Dece: You had better luck than I, as I had to patch my dress when I reached home, a new one at that.

Nonesopretty: I went over to see you Monday night, but you had made tracks for Rhode Island. I thought you were coming here before you went home again.

Nely Grey: If you find out who that is please remember that I have to know. I think it is Polly.

1492—Did you take the shovel to N. H. with you? I'll tell the world that Kochia can make good coffee.

CLUB NO. 2 GETTING READY FOR MEETINGS

Dear Corner Sisters: Just to remind the club members of all clubs and writers that Club No. 2 will start its indoor meeting on Sept. 13, the 2nd Tuesday in Buckingham Memorial. Those who promised beans, salad and other food please don't forget as it's quite a long time since it was promised. Hope to see our usual good gathering. Remember if it rains outside we have sunshine inside. Bring along music, violin and anything to help in the entertainment.

Will the writer who wrote about the Epsom salts and Ivory soap treatment for all rheumatic troubles kindly send the recipe again, also explain what she can in regards to use and cure? A reader of this Corner phoned me she was using it and thought the few treatments were starting to show some help and I wanted to know more about it.

Rose of New England: Glad you liked my mother's old fashioned pie filling. Yes, it is good. Was little surprised when I found out who you were.

Bay State: Son is hoping to hear from you soon. New road is open at Buckingham please attend to it and leave package with my father for son.

True Blue: I have that badge you ordered, also three others. I'll bring to Buckingham Sept. 13.

Mrs. Waters: It was kind of you to phone me about Deliah Deal. My long years of friendship with you make me know her care with you is trustworthy, lad she could get your home to go into for his care. Corner sisters who have autos could take the Jewett City road to near Catholic cemetery turn to left, old Lisbon road where sign says tourists accommodated ask for Ms. Waters, the second house on right side of that road. She would be glad to have any Corner sister call on Deliah Deal who is confined to her bed for one year. These directions are from the Norwich end of route.

Onondague: Haven't heard from you for a long time. How are you? Expect to see more of our friend Scottie now she has got home from the shore. Try and come to some of our meetings when visiting down here.

As I finish this letter it is raining again. After the lovely sunshine of yesterday guess we all say, "Oh dear we have had enough." Hope the weather man gives us some good September weather.

SOME PRIZE RECIPES

Dear Sisters of the Corner: I am sending a birthday cake for this month also some prize recipes.

September Birthday Cake—September birthday cake with its beautiful poppies will delight all who happen to be so fortunate as to be born in this month. The poppy, September's own flower and the sign of the zodiac are worked out in tones of red, with green for the stems and black and green centers.

Rule, one cup sugar, one-half cup butter creamed together. Break into this, one egg and beat one cup pastry flour sifted three times. The last time, add one third cup of cornstarch, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon making powder. Add a little of this to the first mixture, stir in the second egg and the milk, then the remaining flour and the vanilla. Bake in a moderate oven in layers put together with chocolate filling with white icing for background for poppies.

Plum Pudding (To be eaten warm): 1 cup chopped suet, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 1 level teaspoon soda 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup raisins chopped.

Mix all these together and stir in flour to make pretty stiff. Steam 3 hours. Serve with hot sauce.

aSuce: 1 cup rganulated sugar, 1 tablespoon flour heaping, mix well together. 1 tablespoon of butter, dash nutmeg, or 1 teaspoon of vinegar. Pour on boiling water to make right consistency. This makes desert for ten.

Fruit Punch: 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1 1-4 cup tea, 3-4 cup orange juice, 1-3 cup pineapple juice, 1 pint ginger ale, 1 pint apollinaris, 3 slices of lemon.

Pour tea over sugar.

Salmon Finger Rolls: Roll 3 large breads fine and soak in 3 cups of milk until soft. Then add the salmon, 2 cups of creamed mashed potatoes and season with sage, pepper and salt, (I use a little paprika or pimento.) Work to a smooth paste. Cut in shape of lady fingers, spread in shallow pan and set on ice to chill. Then roll in eaten egg and flour, and fry in deep fat until golden brown. Serve hot on platter garnished with red pimentoes cut in small pieces with parsley.

Salmon Triffles: 1 can of salmon, mixed with 1 cup cooked rice, 1 teaspoon of butter, 1 egg.

Method—Mix this all together and boil in cabbage leaf. Fasten together with meat skewer and boil in salted water. Serve with candy pepper drops with watercress.

IMOENGE GRAEF.

A TRIP TO INDIANA

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I have recently returned from a visit with friends in Indiana, and enjoyed so many things I could write about. I hardly know where to begin. However, I traveled mostly by the old fashioned steam and rail method from Hartford, Connecticut to my destination. Left Hartford Sunday morning, July 31st, for New York city, crossed the river by ferry to Jersey City to the Erie terminal and at 3 o'clock p. m. stepped onto the train, which was made up of 12 or 14 cars. I was interested in passing scenes along the route through New Jersey New York state and a little touch of Pennsylvania till darkness came, and the cars were lit up. In the morning when I awoke, I found myself at Youngstown, Ohio, and from there on, I saw nothing but level land instead of the hills and valleys we have in our eastern states. The rivers, lakes and ponds were few and far between. Many fields were conspicuous with shocks of wheat and oats. The green corn was standing and unmatured, the same as we see it around here. Although I passed through a good deal of the farming section of Ohio and Indiana, there were also many large towns and some sities that showed the manufacturing industries. The people of Ohio are very proud of their state for its variety of production, from food stuffs, fuel supplies from its soil, and vast mercantile concerns. I was reminded of what I heard a lady from Cleveland, Ohio say, a few years ago. "We raise everything in our state, all the way from onions to presidents of the United States." This thought appealed to me again, as our fast express train rushed by a remote country station, and over the door, I saw the words, Niles, the birthplace of William McKinley. At the city of Marion, which is quite a railroad center, I saw a large up-to-date building, on which was painted The Harding Hotel. My thoughts turned backward, to a few years ago, when the law granted the woman's vote and I had cast my first ballot for the president, whose resting place was in his city of Ohio. After a few hours more of speedy travel, we passed the boundary line of Indiana, without any apparent difference and when 587 miles from Jersey City, according to the time table the train stopped at a pretty little station called Akron, and there I stepped from my 23 hours of continual journey. It was now 2.11 p. m. by Central standard time. Very soon, I was greeted by friends who had come to meet me, and seated in their auto, and on the way to their home a short ride of 3 1-2 miles. How much it means to a tired traveler, and over a thousand miles from home, to receive a hearty greeting, the hand shake of a real welcome, and to sit at the table and enjoy a nice wholesome supper. This was my pleasure once more to be with these friends for exactly ten years ago, (the day before) I had made my first visit with these Indiana people.

After retiring that night I soon fell into a quiet restful sleep, and dreamed of my own home, in far away, little Connecticut.

I will continue in my next letter about my visit and later of my return trip.

Kind regards to all.

JENNIE.

PRIVILEGE AND TRAINING

Dear Corner Members:

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd wind slowly o'er the lea,
The ploughman homeward wends his weary way,
And leaves the world to darkness and to me.

Beneah those rugged elms, that yew-trees shade,
Where heaves the turf in many a molding heap,
Each in his narrow cell for ever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.

We should right now give a rising vote of heartfelt thanks to the Bulletin for granting us the privilege of intercourse, exchanging greetings, ideas, and helpful advice.

Such a pleasure to look forward each week to the loving messages and recipes sent by those whose practical experience proves the value of each item.

Just to sit down and read the contributions, and while perusing the letters, recognize hidden in the lines, some dear friend we have not met for years. And then our thoughts wander back to the dear old days, when together we wandered to the hill, to do honor to the loved ones resting there. I remember as a tiny child on a Memorial day, being led by the hand of my older brother to the square, where our beautiful stars and stripes were suspended across the road then to see the band and the men of the G. A. R., leaving their lodge room, the stalwart color bearer, one who could take his place among his fellow men. Thanks to the sacrifices of these same veterans, we would then take our places in the rear of the procession and were given wreaths to carry up the long, winding road which led to God's acre. And after that the taps were sounded by the bugler, that call which reaches the heart of all who hears, and makes the soul stir as though it were being sounded for each and every one of us, the last call of each Christian soldier, the last farewell to each brave comrade in this world of strife; the farewell call as the soul drifts to the eternity there to await and call to each one who is trembling o'er the bring, the te Deum.

Then each offering was placed in memorium; and we silently paced back to the sound of muffled drums carried by the men who were the leaders in the battles which were won and made possible this wonderful peace and security we all feel in our homes and hearts today.

Let me tell you, friends! That is the training each child should receive, to day, to give thanks in their little hearts that those men left their homes and little ones to win the freedom we enjoy, to know when their time comes to face the world that they will stand face to face with the enemy of hypocrisy, bigotry, and prejudice, and show the world the spirit of courage, to say, "We are always ready!"

PLAINFIELD MAN'S TRICK RESULTS IN COURT HEARING AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 2—The case of Harry Vincent, of Plainfield, charged with perjury, was continued to the 7th inst. after a hearing in the city court Friday. Vincent was arrested last night by State Police Officer Arthur Johnson, Groton barracks. Vincent, who has had a driver's license several years went to the office of the state motor vehicle department recently, represented that he was his brother and sought to obtain a license by false representation so that the brother could get a license to drive and not pay for it. The license was issued in the name of Vincent's brother, after Vincent had sworn to the correctness of the information he had furnished and had showed his qualifications to be given a license. The falsity of Vincent's information was discovered during the week and a warrant for his arrest was issued by Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry P. Hollandersky.

BLACK AND TAN RAIDS ON THREE LOCAL DIVES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 2—An effort on the part of the police to rid the city of black and tan resorts, so called, was started last night and early this morning. As a result of the activity of the bluecoats, three such dives were raided and their proprietresses arrested, as well as the frequenters. At one of the places raided a near-murder occurred, for Albert Williams, colored, familiarly known as "Big Boy" Williams, attempted to slay Jordan Frisbie, colored, United States Coast Guard. Williams, who is also a coast guarder, is a prisoner at the county jail awaiting trial in the police court tomorrow on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Williams has been seen as a preliminary fighter in several cities about the state, but instead of using his ring ability this morning he used a knife.

The first raid was enacted about 11 o'lock when Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman William Riordan went to Potter street and took a position where they could observe entrants to the house conducted by Marian Lewis, 80, a place long reputed to be a house of immorality. No evidence of activity was noted there until two sailors, Harry Marvin and Edgar Kendrick, were seen to enter. After the sailors had been inside the house several minutes, the officers went to the entrance and gained admission. There they found Marvin and Kendrick, the Lewis woman and four kinky-haired maidens, Frankie Clark, Peggie Gray, June Young and Lillian Love, all colored. The sailors were whites. Also there was found a gallon container of home-made liquor. The proprietress and frequenters were arrested, the Lewis woman being released on bail of $250 and the frequenters on bail of $50 each. In the police court today, their cases were continued to the 8th inst.

The second raid was the result of the attempt of Williams to slay Frisbie. The two coast guarders, together with Walter T. Blakeley, Glen C. Noven, and Leon J. Kochendoerfer, white and Fred Simms, colored, all sailors, had been drinking at the house, 360 Main street, another dive conducted by Alice Marks, colored. There a fight arose between Williams and Jordan, which did not terminate in the house, but was adjourned to the yard, where the battle was resumed with added aggressiveness. Williams drew a pocketknife and started wielding it upon Jordan, with the result that Jordan was knocked down or fell. The fight was reported to the police and Acting Sergeant William Graham, Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Frank Pilipena and William Riordan responded. Just before the officers reached the house, the Marks woman ran away as did Williams. Jordan was found bleeding from a series of wounds in the arm and was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where 14 stitches were required to close the wounds. Patrolman Walter O'Neill later arrested Williams on State street, but the Marks woman went into hiding and has remained there today. The police anticipate that they will be able to arrest the woman within a day or two and she will be charged with conducting a disorderly house. All of the sailors found at the house, together with Erma McRae, 23, colored and who is an actress, she says, were arrested charged with frequenting. They were released upon furnishing bail of $50 each. In the police court their cases were continued to tomorrow. The only liquor found in the house was a small quantity of beer. This was seized.

The third and last resort to receive the attention of the raiders was the dwelling, 14 Federal street, of which Ray Rider, colored, is the proprietress. She was charged with conducting a house of ill-fame and when she was presented in court she received a fine of $50, but execution of the sentence was suspended. The three women, all colored, Marian Johnson, Dorothy Turner and Vivian Brown, and three white men, Joseph Decklow and James and John Smith, all of this city, were arrested charged with frequenting. They escaped punishment in court, also the women were ordered to leave the city and the men received suspensions of judement.

Tonight Marion Lewis went to police headquarters and informed Lieut. James Sullivan that she had reason to believe that the four negresses charged with frequenting and who were arrested at the Lewis' woman's resort, intended to jump their bail and go to Yonkers, N. Y. The Lewis woman stated that while Louis Elfenbein had qualified on each of the bonds of $50 for Frankie Clark, Lillian Love, June Young and Peggy Gray, that Frankie Clark had secured Elfenbein's $200. As Elfenbein was the bondsman it was for him to vacate the bonds if he did not want the women to leave the city, and by so doing the women would be placed back in custody. It was afterwards ascertained that the four women had gone to Yonkers, having left New London on the 6.56 o'clock train for New York, but acquaintances of the quartette said that they intended to be here when their cases were called in court.

MacGregor Davidson, United States Coast Guard sailor, was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. That additional charges were not listed in the complaint Davidson can consider himself lucky. He was fined an aggregate of $20 and costs. Davidson was in a fight with another sailor on Green street last night when he was knocked down. His head struck the sidewalk with sufficient force as to produce a bad laceration. When Patrolmen George Laboue and Frank Linehan arrived, Davidson was lying unconscious in the gutter. He was placed in the police auto and taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital where the wounds were dressed. On the way to the hospital, Davidson attacked Officer Linehan, striking the latter a severe blow on the face and at the hospital, Davidson struck Dr. George P. Cheney a blow on the head, while a nurse did not escape the viciousness of Davidson's anger for she received a blow on the chest.

BODY FOUND IN CELLAR— L. D. BECKWITH SUICIDES

Lorenzo D. Beckwith, 44, a former resident of New London, committed suicide at New Haven, last Wednesday, it became known today when arrangements were made for bringing the body to New London for burial. Mr. Beckwith ended his life in the cellar of his home, where his lifeless body was found, after he had taken a dose of poison. His identity was not established with the finding of the body and not until last night was identification positive. Beckwith was born in New London, the son of the late Alsom and Mary Beckwith. He was a butcher by occupation, but later became a veterinary. During the World war he was employed by the government in purchasing horses and mules, which were shipped overseas. After the war, Mr. Beckwith settled in New Haven. He is survived by a sister, Miss Minnie Beckwith of this city.

James R. May, commissioner appointed by the probate court, has sold a house and lot, corner of Montauk and Denison avenues, owned by the estate of Jennie L. Barbour, to Jennie Barbour Clark.

Raymond B. Smith has sold a house and lot on Avery court to Albert J. Portelance.

Barney Belgrad has sold the house and lot, corner of Franklin and Jay streets, to Melinda Frink. Belgrad purchased the house Wednesday of the estate of Ellen E. Murphy.

Leo A. Sullivan, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, of 506 Bank street, died last night at the residence of his parents after an illness of four years of chronic heart disease. Besides his parents, Mr. Sullivan is survived by three brothers, Daniel F., and John Sullivan, of this city, and Thomas J. Sullivan, of New York.

Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky, who has not performed duty for a month because of a surgical operation, resumed his beat at Ocean Beach last night.

Max Mayeroff of Brooklyn; John Frisbie, U. S. S. Cummings; William McKenna, 48 Center street; Daniel Dred, 77 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Alexander Kuester, 125 Broad street; John Kaskwiak, United States Coast guard, state pier; Stanley Secton, East Lyme, Henry Stanton, Lyme and Harry Regarry of Taftville, the last named having been injured in an automobile accident several weeks ago, were patients discharged today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

The funeral of Miss Emily G. Knox, was held at 15 Masonic street this afternoon at 1 o'clock, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The body as forwarded to Groveland, Mass., for burial tomorrow in Riverview cemetery.

The funeral of Miss F. Brown was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 30 Morgan street. The services were conducted by Miss Elmira H. Lovell, first reader of the First Church of Christ, Scientist. The bearers were C. Harrison Whittemore, Harold Bosworth, Stephen H. Chapman and Clifford Bosworth. Burial was in East Neck cemetery, Waterford.

Charles Robinson, 53, was in the police court today charged with vagrancy. Judgment was suspended to permit Robinson to be examined to determine his sanity. Robinson was walking about the streets at 6 o'clock this morning talking to himself and his actions attracted the attention of Patrolman Clarence Wells, who arrested him more for safety's sake than anything else. When presented for plea, Robinson pleaded guilty and said that he was only a poor Irishman from County Cork, Ireland and that if he was allowed his freedom he would remain in New London. He said that he was "bumming his way" to Boston. Robinson will be examined by City Physician Cheney.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley St. C. Donnelly, former residents of New London, now residing at Coral Gables, Florida, left today by automobile for their home, after having been in this city several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hannigan have returned to their home, 24 Alger street, having spent two weeks with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Drake at Flint, Mich.

Mrs. Kate J. Bacon of Richmond, Va., has returned home after having been a guest at the Hotel Mohican for a month.

The Crowley club will rent a cottage at Ocean beach for September and October. The members plan to conduct several social functions there being enjoying the superb bathing always a feature during these months.

Announcement is made of the recent marriage of William C. Hartling, 28 West street and Miss Juanita Parsley, 23 Harris court. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph A. Elder at the residence of the clergyman, 68 Williams street, several days ago.

William Johl, of Groton, is at Silver Bay, N. Y., where he will remain over the holiday.

Nobile Giacomo De Martino, Italian ambassador to the United States is included among recent arrivals at the Hotel Griswold. Ambassador De Martino has been a guest at the hotel several times this summer.

A mechanic arrived in New London today from the factory of the manufacturers of the voting machines which the city recently purchased and which will be used at the elections this month. The mechanic will start tomorrow erecting the machines, which will be installed in five voting districts.

ECHOS FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS AUXILIARY

The semi-monthly meeting of R. E. Hourigan auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was held on Monday evening at the post rooms, Main street with President Ida Fairbanks in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and accepted. A complete and interesting report of the state encampment at Middletown was read by Mary Hull, first delegate.

Mary Drew, first past president of Hourigan auxiliary, on behalf of the sisters, presented to Rosamond Jacques, second past president of the auxiliary, a handsome past presidents' pin, in recognition of her services. Plans for the 28th national encampment to be held in Providence, R. I., from Sept. 4th to 9th were discussed, and final preparations were made to have a large delegation present to represent Hourigan auxiliary.

Among the sisters who are to attend are President Ida Fairbanks, Past President Rosamond Jacques, Past President Annie Turner, Sr.; Vice President Viola Rodman, Treasurer Agnes Peloquin, Sisters Bertha Piper, Lena Maynard, Emma Kavanaugh and Hazel Gauthier.

HOPE REBEKAH LODGE

Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., is to resume its meetings on Wednesday evening, September 7th, but the sewing circle is to meet at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon in charge of Mrs. Lillian Tuttle. The members are planning to stay for supper and attend the meeting in the evening. Important business is to come before the meeting and it is expected that it will be well attended.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA

The Daughters of America met on Thursday evening with Council Caroline Howard in the chair. The committee in charge of the lawn party recently held at the home of Mrs. Rose Carter at Norwich Town, reported a profit of about $50. There were about 40 present at the meeting and it was decided that Miss Rita Bradford receive the table cloth and napkins. Refreshments were served by the feast committee, Mrs. Mary Adams, chairman, Mrs. Edith Palmer, Mrs. Bertha Collins and Mrs. Laura Buddington. A pleasing program of piano selections, solos, duets and dancing was enjoyed following the meeting, this being in charge of Mrs. Alice Metcalf.

STAFFORDVILLE

Mrs. Martha Blodget Goodwill, 69, was found dead in her bed last Saturday morning, Aug. 27th. Mrs. Goodwill was the widow of Andrew Goodwill who died in Hartford hospital in 1912. She had been a great sufferer with an incurable trouble for a number of years but bore her pain with patience and fortitude. She had many friends but no near relatives except a brother living in Pennsylvania. She was a member of the Methodist church. The funeral was held in the Methodist church Tuesday at 3 o'clock, Rev. Edward Eells officiating. Burial was in the family lot in Staffordville cemetery. The bearers were George Ladd, Philo West, Charles Williams and William Jewett. The flowers were beautiful.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rishton attended the wedding of Raymond Tallman and Miss Myra Waycroff, at Kingston, R. I., last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Lyon, Miss Ruth Bosworth, Mrs. Earl Belcher and little son, George W. Miller and Mrs. Herbert Bosworth attended Willimantic camp meeting.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—Week-end profit-taking and occasional short selling imparted some irregularity to today's stock market, but the general trend was again upward with the high grade industrials leading the advance. Offerings which came into the market as a result of the desire of many traders and investors to lighten their accounts over the holiday were generally well-absorbed, and failed to halt operations for the rise in a number of issues in which special merger or dividend developments are believed to be pending.

Trading in the various commodity markets assumed a more orderly tone than of late. Cotton fell off week-end realizing, prices at the lowest getting down on an average $1.50 or so a bale, with some slight recovery late in the day. Grains were mixed, wheat rallying a little on reports of frost in Canada after an early inclination to sag, while corn eased off on moderate offerings stimulated by private crop estimates.

Despite the heavy week-end demands for currency, which resulted in the calling of about $20,000,000 in loans, call money was again in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 1 1-2 per cent. The increase of slightly more than $15,000,000 in brokers' loans wiped out the unexpected decrease of the week before, but was disregarded as a market factor. The persistent demand for some of the seasoned dividend paying issues lent color to the belief that a substantial portion of the $250,000,000 distributed in dividends this week would find its way back into the market.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported further irregularities in the business situation, but there were no points of actual weakness. Reports that the U. S. Steel corporation had increased from 79 to 81 per cent of capacity stimulated some early buying in steel common, but the price closed around 145 7-8, yesterday's final figure.

Public utilities grew in favor with operators for the advance, partly due to expressions in some speculative quarters of a belief that these shares are selling out of line. American Waterworks, old and new, Abitibi Power, International Telephone and North American were among the leaders, which sold into new high territory.

Some of the tire shares attracted strong support, particularly Goodrich and Kelly Springfield 6 and 8 per cent preferred, both of which reached new tops. Retail Stores again reflected the outlook for good fall business, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck mounting in to new maximum ground followed by Gotham Silk Hosiery. Tobacco shares also displayed strength.

Not a few of the high priced industrials and specialties were included in the march to year's high figures, notably Dupont, Baldwin, General Electric, Allied Chemical and several others. This was largely a factor in carrying the average of 20 leading industrials to a new high water mark for the year.

There were only a few weak spots, including Pathe common and the A shares and American Piano, all of which touched new lows for the year.

The money market showed little change in any of the principal items.

Establishment of a new high for the year by Norwegian kroner, which was quoted around 26.20 cents, featured the generally steady foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled a small fraction higher around $4.86 21-32 and French francs unchanged below 3.92 cents. Japanese yen fell off 5 points to 47.38 cents, and Hungarian exchange advanced 4 to 17.5 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Postmaster Edward Adams stated Friday that the schedule of hours to be in force at the local postoffice on Labor day would be as follows: 7 to 8 a. m.; 3 to 3:30 p. m.; and 6 to 6:30 p. m.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Louis society was held Friday evening.

Mrs. Alfred Linderson who is spending the season at her summer home, Pine Tree cottage, at North Stonington, spent a short time this week at her home on North Third avenue.

In spite of the wet weather adn other varieties of vegetables spoiling, local farmers have an abundance of corn, and the field corn planted in the lots near the No. 4 weaving mill of the Ponemah company, and at the corner of Hunters avenue and South B street has reached a record height and is commented on by many people who see it.

Letters advertised this week at the loca postoffice include mail for Mrs. Florence C. Barber and Walter Donocki.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fregeau of Providence street have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Solfride Fregeau, to Louis Paradis, Jr., Tuesday morning at Sacred Heart church.

Late summer and early fall flowers are beginning to bloom in the gardens of the residences about town. Among these are hydrangeas, cosmos, marigolds, dahlias and zinnias. One of the most showy displays in the floral line has been at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bardsley, where a large bed of snapdragon has been in bloom. The seeds were brought from England by Mr. and Mrs. Bardsley while on a trip early in the year.

Mrs. Frank Hodkinson of South B street is spending the summer in Europe.

John Coleman of New York was a business caller in the village Friday.

A party of local men expect to camp at Pachaug pond over the week end and Labor day.

NEW LONDON COUNTY HAD 188 HOLIDAY ACCIDENTS

Chances of accident for motorists in week-end and holiday traffic during the summer are from five to fifteen times greater in New Haven, Fairfield and Hartford counties than in other counties of Connecticut, it is indicated by accident records of the state motor vehicle department.

It is also a two to one chance that a "holiday" motorist unfortunate enough to be in an accident will find himself involved with another driver whose home is in a town other than that in which the accident occurs. Statistics show that about two-thirds of the drivers involved in holiday or week-end accidents are listed as from "out of town" or "out of state."

Time of day also provides an element of hazard for the holiday motorist. Chances of becoming involved in an accident are from two to eight times greater during the popular driving hours between noon and 7:30 p. m. the figures show.

The seashore counties, New Haven, Fairfield and New London, respectively, lead all others, except Hartford, which is third, in providing dangerous locale for holiday tourists. Two-thirds of the state's holiday and week-end accidents are in these three counties. Hartford county usually reports more than half of the rest.

A total of 2,309 "holiday" accidents are listed for July, August and September 1926. By counties, these occurred as follows: New Haven, 731; Fairfield, 565; Hartford, 517; New London, 188; Litchfield, 128, Middlesex, 99; Windham, 41; Tolland 41. Practically the same standing is being maintained during the present year.

Forty small towns last year reported more than a hundred summer "holiday" accidents where in every case the drivers involved were from other towns in the state or from other states. Among 3,944 drivers listed in such accidents in 1926 only 1,681 were residents of the towns in which the accidents occurred. Drivers from other towns numbered 1,798 and from other states, 465.

Reports on the time the accidents occurred shows that 1,032 were between noon and 7:30 p. m., 579 from 7:30 p. m. to midnight, 379 from 5 a. m. to noon, and 164 from midnight to 5 a. m. Thus far this year the accident record is in about the same proportion for the respective periods.

HEALTH OFFICERS WATCH SANITATION AT FAIRS

With regard to sanitation activities at fairs throughout the state this season the weekly health bulletin, issued by the state department of health, says:

These are busy days for health officers in whose territory agricultural fairs are soon to be held. Such fairs through their varied exhibits of agricultural products, canned foods, pies, cakes and needlework, to say nothing of farm machinery and automobiles, attract thousands of people each day.

Health officials have at heart the welfare of these people and for many weeks now they have been in touch with the fair officials to make sure that a safe water supply is available; that sanitary privies are provided and are to be kept in sanitary condition; that food stands have facilities for washing dishes, cups and silver in hot water, and that food supplies may be reasonably protected from flies and dust.

Some health officials have already planned to send samples of the water supply to the state laboratory to be analyzed so that before the fairs open a safe water can be assured. Such water samples should be sent to the laboratory, 247 Pearl street, Hartford, at least two weeks before the opening of the fair.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR MISS ELIZABETH BOYNTON

A farewell party was held Thursday evening at the home of Miss Elizabeth Boynton, No. 57 Division street, by a number of her friends. Miss Boynton is entering the W. W. Backus hospital training school for nurses this fall. She was presented a $5 gold piece and other gifts. Refreshments were served.

Those present were Misses Loretta Kelly, Marie Hunzinger, EmBeth Bennett, Helen Desmond, Anna Leirich, Alice Fitzgerald, Anna Johnson, Frieda Johnson and Gladys Cruthers.

WORLD WAR VETS PAY VISIT TO NORWICH

Charles H. (Chick) Coles and Sgt. "Buddie" Quinn, veterans of the first division, U. S. A., who are completing a tour of the country were in Norwich Thursday and Friday and Friday evening started for Providence in their machine, a former army ambulance. The veterans left here for the Rhode Island capital to attend the 28th national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

They have visited every state in the Union, covering in all about 280,000 miles in their converted army ambulance which Chick bought from the government for $35. Thursday night the veterans attended a meeting of Hourigan post, No. 594, V. F. W. Both are also members of the American legion.

BOY KNOCKED DOWN AT WASHINGTON SQ.

Adam Buzon, 12, of 20 North Thames street was injured about the right side of his body Friday morning about 11 o'clock when struck and knocked down by a Cadillac sedand operated by Edward Fidell of 595 West Main street and owned by Mrs. Lucy Davenport of 666 West Main street. It is alleged that the boy ran directly in front of the car at Water street entrance at Washington square, coming from behind a parked delivery wagon.

The boy was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital and his injuries treated. He was taken to his home shortly after the wounds had been dressed.

Lamprey-Mitchell Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. John Avery Mitchell of 46 Fairmount St., announce the engagement of their daughter, Polly Brewer Mitchell, to F. Loomis Lamprey of Schenectady, N. Y. Mr. Lamprey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Lamprey of Warren, Pa.

NEW DAMAGE ACTIONS ARE FILED IN COURT

Damage actions filed with the clerk of the superior court in this city include the following:

The city of New London has brought suit for $3,000 against Atty. George Curtis Morgan and Annie R. Morgan, executors of the estate of the late Elias F. Morgan, of New London.

According to the complaint the city of New London claims taxes in the amount of $1,635.16 with interest amounting to $759.81 from Oct. 1 ,1910 to Oct. 1, 1925 together with a charge for recording tax liens of $1,050.

Claiming damages of $1,200, William Goos of New London has brought suit against Thomas C. Dillon, New London, realtor and administrator of the estate of the late Katherine Goos.

According to the complaint, the plaintiff has rendered services from Feb. 10, 1926 to July 23, 1926 to Katherine Goos at her request at $7 a day which for 64 days would figure $1,148.

The complaint states that she died July 23, 1926 and that on September 23, 1926 Mr. Dillon was appointed and qualified as administrator of the estate. The papers allege that the claim although presented within the required time was disallowed by the administrator.

To collect on a note now overdue James E. Griswold of Groton has filed suit against Charles E. Yering, individually and as administrator of the estate of Freda D. Yering, late of Groton.

According to the complaint the defendant Charles E. Yering and Freda Yering on Aug. 27, 1925, owed the plaintiff $3,000 as evidenced by a note of that date, secured by a mortgage on land in Groton. The General Financing Corp., holds a subsequent mortgage, the New London City National bank holds mortgage and James Orkney of Groton has a mechanics lien on the property. The plaintiff seeks a foreclosure either strict or by sale.

Hattie B. Gorman, admx., of the estate of Edmund R. Gorman, late of Groton is made defendant in a foreclosure action brought by the Winthrop Trust company, of New London, executor and trustee of the estate of Byron M. O'Brien, late of Groton. According to the complaint, Edward R. Godman on Oct. 16, 1922, owed Byron M. O'Brien $1,650 as evidenced by a promissory note of Oct. 16, 1922, payable on demand with six per cent interest, payable semi-annually. The note was secured by a mortgage.

The claim is made that Mr. O'Brien died on March 29, 1923, and the Winthrop Trust company, became executor and trustee of the estate. The Savings Bank of New London holds a mortgage of $2,875 on the property. The plaintiff asks for either a strict foreclosure or foreclosure by sale.

On the claim that a golf ball, driven by a guest at the Old Lyme Country club, Inc., golf links, entered her property and struck her in the head, Louise D. Bruhns of Old Lyme seeks damages of $5,000 and an order of the superior court compelling the country club to construct its links so that the plaintiff will be free from danger of flying golf balls while she is upon her own land.

In the complaint it is alleged that on and before Aug. 17, 1926 the plaintiff owned land with a dwelling thereon adjoining the land of the country club. On that date a guest of the defendant, it is alleged by reason of the defendant's layout and construction of the links, careless mismanagement drove a goft ball in and upon the plaintiff's property striking the latter in the head. The plaintiff claims that she has suffered the partial loss of sight and that she expended $200 for medical attendance and care.

It is alleged that golf balls are continually going upon the plaintiff's property and that the defendant has been notified of the faulty construction of the course.

Damages of $1,125 are asked by Winogen Smith of New York in a suit which he has brought against George H. Bogert and Margaret Bogert, husband and wife, of Lyme. The plaintiff alleges that on or about No. 1, 1922, the plaintiff leased to the defendants an apartment on the third floor west of a building at 230 West 59th street, Manhattan, at a monthly rental of $225. It is alleged that the defendants failed to meet the terms of the leases and vacated the place.

Then, according to the allegation, the plaintiff endeavored to re-let the apartment for the defendants, but the best rental that could be obtained was for $215 a month. The difference is claimed by the plaintiff.

Maurice O'Donnell, Jr., of New London, has filed suit against the borough of Groton asking damages of $15,000. The plaintiff alleges in the complaint that on May 21, 1927, he was engaged in the welding business in New London. On that day he was at the plant of the water and electrical department engaged in welding for the defendant. O'Donnell had concluded his welding and was picking up his tools preparatory to departure when without any warning the boiler exploded.

The negigence of the employes of the defendant in allowing the compressed air to flow into the tank to an amount and at a greater pressure than the tank could stand caused the explosion.

The plaintiff was thrown down and was rendered unconscious. He was severely and permanently injured.

Damages of $30,000 are asked by Eldora Ostrander Booth of New York city, in an action she has brought against William Booth, Jr., of Waterford. The plaintiff alleges that within a few months of their marraige on October 18, 1899 he abandoned her and has since failed and neglected to provide for her reasonable support.

The plaintiff alleges that since her marriage to the defendant she has been compelled to use her own money in an amount upwards of $25,000 to pay for items incurred for her reasonable support for her apparel and medical care and attention, and that the defendant has property and is financially able to render support to her.

GEO. E. PITCHER STARTS SUIT AGAINST CITY FOR $20,000

Suit for $20,000 damages against the city of Norwich, was started Friday by Geo. E. Pitcher, agent for Howell S. Bailey of New York city, because of the failure of the city to remove certain guy wires and a wooden pole in front of the Bailey property on Burnham square, on or before September 1st.

The complaint alleges that an agreement was entered into by the plaintiff and Richard Quinn of Norwich by which the latter agreed to take over the property of the plaintiff over which the wires were strung by the city. It was further agreed that Quinn was to tear down the old structure and build a new building at his own expense at a cost of at least $10,000 and lease said building and land for a period of 15 years at a rental of $150 monthly, the building at the end of said period to belong to the plaintiff. It is alleged that failure of the city to remove the guy wires resulted in Quinn's refusal to go through with the leasing of the property. The action is returnable in the superior court on the first Tuesday of October.

The new suit will be handled by Attorney John H. Barnes of Norwich, who has been retained by the plaintiff.

On Friday it is alleged that Mr. Pitcher stated that he fully intended to cut the guy wires over the Bailey property at midnight Thursday and that the only reason it was not done was because the man he had hired to cut them was not asked to fulfill the task. It is alleged that Mr. Pitcher stated that in view of the fact that the poles were braced and he could not accomplish his purpose there was no need of cutting the guy wires.

Had Mr. Pitcher carried out his threat and cut the guy wires despite a court order allowing the wires to remain in place at least one additional week, all Norwich residences, business houses and manufacturing plants, except those in Greeneville, Taftville and Norwich Town, would have been cut off from power and light it is understood. In addition to this trolley service would have been disrupted and the fire alarm telegraph system passing through Main street crippled.

The alleged threat caused the city officials to take every possible precaution, Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., Mayor Milo R. Waters, and others sanctioning the bracing of the poles Thursday night.

In addition to bracing the standing poles a police officer was placed on duty at the Bailey property.

MACHINES IN CRASH NEAR CITY LINE

A Ford coupe, N-5755 driven by a coast guardsman by the name of Veno and owned by A. F. Pinkham, also a coast guardsman stationed at New London, sideswiped an Essex sedan P-17715 owned and driven by Stephen Burka of Bridgeport, stationed at the Submarine base, about a quarter of a mile below the city line on Laurel Hill Friday night at 11.45 o'clock. Riding with Burka was Carl Crittenden, a member of the crew of the U. S. S. S-10.

None of the occupants of the cars were injured in the accident but the Essex had a broken front and rear fender and dashboard on the left side and the Ford lost its front left wheel and fender.

State Policeman D. C. Brown of the Groton barracks came to Norwich and investigated the accident and Veno, who has no operators license, it is said, will be arrested on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without a license and brought before the city court of Norwich today (Saturday). It is understood that the parties owning the two machines reached an agreement whereby the damage to the Essex will be paid by the owner and driver of the Ford car.

At the time the accident occurred third car, travelling about 55 miles an hour, struck the right rear end of the Essex and swerved off the road, travelling some 150 feet before returning to the highway. The driver of the third car did not stop to ascertain the damage he had caused to the Essex.

TRANSPORT PLANE PILOT FORCED DOWN AND KILLED

Daniel G. Cline Was Found Dead in His Demolished Monoplane in the Woods of East Willington—Plane Was Wrecked When It Struck a Tree—Was Bound From Boston to Hartford—Cline Was Discovered Saturday Afternoon—A Passenger Had Left the Transport at Dudley, Mass., After a Forced Landing—Accident Was Due to Fog.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 4—Fastened in a crumpled heap in the cockpit of a completely demolished monoplane, Daniel G. Cline, 3, pilot of the missing Colonial Air Transport plane which was scheduled to arrive in Hartford from Boston at eight o'clock Friday night, was found dead in a lonely expanse of woods in the Moose Meadow section of East Willington, shortly after four o'clock Saturday afternoon. Cline was making a brave attempt to reach Hartford after having already been forced down near the Dudley Flying field in Massachusetts because of a dense fog. On leaving Boston he was carrying as a passenger W. T. Lyman, Boston business man. After the forced landing at Dudley, Lyman thought better of traveling by air and took a train to New York where he spoke on aviation at Reading Saturday night. Facing a thick, sifting fog, nature's worst enemy to aviation, Cline set out again in the hope of successfully inaugurating a Boston-New York air mail and express service to be conducted by the Colonial Air Transport. He had sent a message on to Hartford that he was taking the journey but as the hours dragged on apprehension for his safety was felt. A rescue plane was sent out from the East Boston airport. Pilot B. F. Billings and a newspaper reporter started in a search over Massachusetts to the Connecticut line and over the northeastern Connecticut woods.

About midnight Edward Burdick, a farmer in Moose Meadow was awakened by the droning of a powerful motor. He determined readily that it came from an airplane and went out of doors. Fog drifted in thick sheets and he realized that the airman must be in difficulty. The plane could not be seen, but the roar of the motor showed that it was circling about over the meadow. Suddenly the quiet of the isolated district was shocked by a resounding crash. The noise of the airplane stopped simultaneously and Mr. Burdick realized that there must have been an accident. He scribbled a note and secured the services of a neighbor to make the trip of over a mile to Willington village where a telephone message was sent to the Stafford Springs state police barracks. Lieutenant Russell I. Harmon detailed State Policeman Starkell to the scene but no trace of the airplane could be found at the time. Later in the day John Hipsky, a resident of the section, made a trip to Stafford Springs where he heard that an airplane was missing. Recalling having heard a mysterious crash during the middle of the night he associated the possibilities and upon returning home he with his sisters Vilna and Wilhelmina Hipsky set out through the woods as one of several searching parties that had already been organized. On a sharp knoll in deep woods some two miles from the Moose Meadow road the wreck was discovered, shortly after four o'clock in the afternoon. The plane had run head-on into a hickory tree some ten inches or more in diameter. The terrific force had snapped the tree some two feet from the ground and felled it. The impact had spun the plane around and the long fuselage rapped itself around the trunk of another tree. The heavy Wright motor and propeller were hurled some ten feet away while pieces of the wings and fuselage were scattered as far as fifty feet away. Inside of the overturning cockpit was the huddled body of the pilot. Lieutenant Harmon was notified. The straps holding the pilot were cut away and an improvised litter made to make the arduous trip to the roadway. Medical Examiner Dr. F. B. Converse of West Willington was called and upon viewing the remains gave permission for removal. The primary cause of death was given as a broken neck and secondary, a broken ear and cut on the left side of the face.

It was generally believed that Cline was flying very low in an effort to get his bearings and that the fog prevented his seeing the considerable rise in the level of the tree tops caused by the knoll. His watch was stopped at 11:25 o'clock, standard time according to the plane's schedule, and believed to be the time when the crash occurred. Representatives of the American Railway Express company came to the scene to remove express mail while the state police went to Hartford with two mail pouches, one consigned to Hartford and the other to New Brunswick N. J.

Cline was considered one of the best pilots on the Colonial Air Transport inc. staff.

PLANE ROYAL WINDSOR STILL STUCK IN MUD

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 4—(AP)—The Royal Windsor, one of the three monoplanes rooting in Maine tonight, awaiting favorable weather conditions off the North Atlantic coast for flights to Europe was still stuck in the mud of the newly laid out Portland airport at Scarsboro, three miles from this city. The others were the Rome-bound Old Glory at Old Orchard Beach and the Sir John Carling, flying from Canada to England, at Washburn in Aroostook county.

Phil Wood, co-pilot with C. A. "Duke" Schiller, of the Royal Windsor, which splashed through the soggy field at the airport late yesterday, on arrival from St. Gregorie, Que., in their flight from Windsor, Ont., to Windsor, England, said they would attempt to get out of the mud tomorrow after unloading most of their cargo. They will then fly to Old Orchard Beach where conditions are favorable for a take off with their full load.

TO MAKE FLIGHT FROM IRELAND TO PHILADELPHIA

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Sept. 4—(AP)—Captain R. H. MacIntosh in his Fokker plane "Princess Xenia" arrived at Baldonnel airdrome this afternoon from Bristol, England to prepare for a hop off on a flight to Philadelphia.

Captain MacIntosh plans to fly from Dublin to Philadelphia as a contender for the $25,00 prize offered by the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin for the first non-stop flight from a European capital to that city.

SEARCHING LABRADOR COAST FOR MISSING AVIATORS

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 4—(AP)—Private as well as governmental agencies in Newfoundland joined today in a search of the bleak Labrador coast for the missing English plane St. Raphael which took off from Upavon, England, last Wednesday morning in an attempted non-stop flight to Ottawa, Ont.

Several business firms here with branches in Labrador notified their agents to make inquiries along the coast as to whether a plane was sighted or heard in that region. Because of the imperfect communications it was not expected that replies would be received here before tomorrow or Tuesday.

In the meantime the government, through its coastal vessels, lighthouse service and chain of wireless stations along the Newfoundland and Labrador shores continued its search for the St. Raphael and its occupants, Princess Lewenstein-Wetheim, pasenger, Captain Leslie Hamilton, pilot, and Lieutenant Colonel F. F. Minchin, navigator.

There are nine wireless stations on the Atlantic coast of Labrador, extending from Battleharbor northward to Makkovik, a distance of 450 miles. The more northerly of these stations serve areas where the population is very scattered and isolated, and Superintendent Collins of the government wireless service said today that a week might elapse before any news was heard of the fliers if they were forced down on that part of the coast.

The mail steamer Kyle, which makes fortnightly trips from St. John's, plying along the Labrador coast to Makkovik, is now in the north. The vessel is equipped with wireless and the fact that she has made no report is construed here as meaning that she heard or saw nothing of the missing plane.

The hospital ship Strathcona of the Grenfell Labrador Mission is also on the Labrador coast conducting summer work among the fishermen. She does not carry wireless but it is assumed here that if she heard anything of the mission fliers she would steam at once to the nearest wireless station and report the facts. There are ten lighthouses along the coast from Battle Harbor northward, but none possess wireless equipment.

PRIDE OF DETROIT LANDED AT KARCHI, BRITISH INDIA

KRCHI, British India, Sept. 4—(AP)—William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, in the monoplane Pride of Detroit, arrived at Karachi at 2:53 o'clock this afternoon.

The Pride of Detroit made a perfect landing on the airdrome of the Royal Air force. After circling the airdrome once the plane gradually descended near a smoke bomb, which had been placed on the airdrome as a guide for the aviators. Brock and Schlee were greeted by the American consul and several Americans who reside at Karachi.

Hundreds surrounded the plane eager to get a close up view of the round the world fliers and their machine.

Brock and Schlee emerged from their plane looking fresh, though dusty and unshaved. They were taken by automobile to the officers' mess a few minutes after their arrival. They expect to hop off at dawn tomorrow for Allahabad.

Today's flight was uneventful until shortly before landing at Karachi, when one of the gasoline tanks began to leak. The repairs to this would be completed today, they expected.

Brock and Schlee expressed their intention of pressin forward as quickly as possible since they are anxious to make up the day and a half they lost at Constantinople waiting for the official Turkish government permission for them to continue their flight.

The Pride of Detroit hopped off from Bunder Abbas, Persia, at 7:30 o'clock this morning for Karachi, a distance of approximately 710 miles. Landing at 2.53 p. m., would make an elapsed time of seven hours and 23 minutes for the flight. On the next leg of their round-the-world venture Brock and Schlee plan to fly to Allahabad, India, a distance of 925 miles from Karachi.

FEAR THAT A CANADIAN LOBSTER SMACK WENT DOWN

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 4—(AP)—A crate with 70 lobsters inside was found today in the vicinity of Half Way rock which mariners believed might give a clue to some of the wreckage found scattered along the nearby coast the last few days. The find of the crate led to the belief that a Canadian lobster smack might have gone down in Thursday's storm.

Fishermen said that only lobsters coming from Canadian ports are shipped in crates, those from Maine ports being brought in tanks in the smacks.

HEAVY FOG IS DELAYING LONDON TO LONDON FLIERS

CARIBOU, Me., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Reports of fog all along their projected course to Harbor Grace, N. F., today forced Captain Terry Tully and Lieut. James Medcalf, "London-to-London" fliers, to postpone further the start of the next leg of their flight. Their monoplane Sir John Carling remained tonight in the field at Washburn, six miles from here, where it was forced down by fog last Thursday night.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARA, Brazil, Sept. 3—(AP)—Reports from Alamuer, Montealegre and Guarupa state that thus far no news has been received concerning the missing American aviator, Paul Redfern.

The search for Redfern continues.

CANTON, Sept. 3—(Delayed)(AP)—The Cantonese merchants have agreed to raise a $10,000,000 Mexican military loan. It is stated that the government is forcing all businesses to purchase bonds up to 40 per cent of their capitalization.

GENOA, Italy, Sept. 4—(AP)—Colonel Ricciotti Garibaldi arrived from England yesterday aboard an English cargo ship.

Colonel Garibaldi, who is a grandson of the Italian liberator, was deported from France last winter in connection with the Catalan conspiracy. He went to Cuba, after a visit to England. In August he returned to England and was allowed to stay there temporarily.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA, England, Sept. 4—(AP)—Richardo Cacco is claimed to have completed a fast of 5 days' duration. Sacco, who has something of a reputation as a faster in Great Britain, was sealed in a cabinet of wood and glass on July 16 at the Casino here. It is asserted that he subsisted on six bottles of lemonade daily. He lost 30 pounds in weight and is almost too weak to move. He will have a meal consisting of chicken broth tonight.

UNEMPLOYMENT ON THE INCREASE IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Sept. 4—(AP)—Chancellor Winston Churchill's optimistic speech at Floors Castle yesterday offered some comfort to Englishmen, who are blue over the industrial and agricultural outlook, as it made clear that the next budget will not involve increased taxation It could not, however, discount the official figures of 1,044,400, unemployed in the week ending Aug. 22, an increase of 22,000 over the previous week.

The farmers, whose conditions has become worse by reason of the cold wet sumer, were not pleased by Mr. Churchill's emphatic statement that the Baldwin government would not let Lloyd George and the laborites secure it into increased tariffs on foodstuffs.

The British steel manufacturers' effort tao combat Belgian and French competition by offering a rebate of 7 1-2 shillings per ton on joists and 5 shillings on other materials to buyers who patronize only British firms was tahe industrial sensation of last week. The steel manufacturers say they hope to afford employment to 100,000 men now idle.

Lombard street is more plentifully supplied with funds by the Federal Reserve bank rate, but prospects of a reduction of the bank rate are dimmed by foreign gold demands.

The Lancashire cotton spinners have been heavily hit by the rapid rise in raw cotton, and the Manchester paper are suggesting that the stimulation of the cotton market is artificial, and there is a suggestion of abstention from buying.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS WILL CONVENE TODAY

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 4—(AP)—Reduction of world armaments stands out as the predominant topic before the assembly of the league of nations which will hold its opening session at 10:40 tomorrow morning. This will be only the eighth annual assembly of the league ,thus proving that the Geneva institution is still a child in international affairs.

Many of the delegates who reached Geneva tonight for the assembly proceedings do not hide their disappointment over the difficulties to be met in advance in the cause of disarmament and what some critics of the league term a tendencyto side-step the political problems which concern the great world powers.

France and Germany are alone apparently insisting upon something being done in the domain of disarmament, whose cause was chilled by the difficulty the league's preparatory commission found in drafting a suitable protocol, which would serve as a basis for an international conference, and by the failure of the recent three-power naval conference.

SPANISH BALLOONISTS ARRIVE AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—(AP)—Majors Benito Molas and Enrique Maldonado, who will pilot Spain's entry in the James Gordon Bennett air races starting from Detroit, arrived here today on the Royal Mail liner the Manuel Arnus.

Major Maldonado said he expects to pilot the new dirigible being built for Spain on its first flight from Seville to Buenos Aires.

This flight is to test the possibilities of a dirigible air service between Spain and South America, Major Maldonado said.

OBITUARY

Rev. William E. Kelly

MILFORD, Sept. 4—(AP)—Rev. William E. Kelly, assistant pastor of St. Mary's church, Milford, died at St. Vincent's hospital, Bridgeport, early this morning after an illness of several weeks' duration.

Rev. Kelly was one of the best known of the younger priests of the Connecticut diocese. He spent all of his clerical career in Milford, except for a few months. He was born in Hartford 30 years ago and was graduated from St. Thomas' seminary in that city. He was also graduated from St. Bernard's seminary, Rochester, N. Y. He is survived by a mother and a sister in Hartford.

Unemployed Laborer Killed Seven Persons

Steel Worker at Youngstown, Ohio, Failed in Attempt to Take His Own Life.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Sept. 4—(AP)—Seven persons were killed and five others wounded here because one man, a laborer, was out of employment.

Late last night, Tony de Capua, 42, a steel worker, worried because he had no work, shot down and killed his wife, three daughters and three grandchildren while in a depressed mood. He said he intended to end his own life. He is alive, however, because his gun "jammed" when it came time to turn it on himself.

Bodies of the seven persons were found in different rooms of the de Capua home where the crazed man had chased them and shot them down. Three infants were killed in their beds.

In a hospital today de Capua said he had quarrelled with his wife over financial matters and because of unemployment he had decided to "get rid of them all." His voice choked with emotion, de Capua then described how he had killed each one.

After the shooting de Capua, standing on the curbing of the street as police arrived, opened fire on the officers. One patrolman fell, shot through the thigh. In the fight which followed and in which de Capua was wounded and captured by police, Gladys de Capua, 34, his daughter-in-law, and two neighbors were wounded. Today physicians described their conditions as serious.

Three children of the two families escaped de Capua's gunfire and were found crying beside the other bodies.

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER TALKS OF WAR AND PEACE

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Sept. 4—(AP)—Three lanes of activity lead to peace and away from war and the threat of war, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of columbia university and president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, declared in a lecture here tonight.

The most important is the renunciation of war as an instrument of public policy, Dr. Butler said. The others he summarized as general acceptance of the definition of an aggressor nation, and refusal of neutral nations to allow their nationals to give aid and comfort to the aggressor power. The aggressor he defined as "that nation which, having agreed to submit international questions to arbitration or judicial process, begins hostilities without having done so."

In connection, Dr. Butler urged that steps be taken in Congress toward acceptance of the invitation extended by M. Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, to join the French nation in following this course against war.

"The action thus proposed by M. Briand is something quite different from that advocated by those who would outlaw war," the speaker said. "War cannot be outlawed if by that is meant, disposed of and prevented by resolution or denunciation. On the other hand, war may and can be renounced between like-minded and advanced peoples as an instrument of public policy."

Dr. Butler declared the question of limitation of armaments would settle itself when huge armaments were discovered to be truly and solely ornamental.

PARIS CROWDS CHEEREC AMERICAN LEGION

PARIS, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Two hundred forty-nine members of th eAmerican Legion reached Paris today aboard the President Roosevelt. They were cheered by large crowds at the St. Nazaire station. The Riviera, Switzerland and Italy are among the places they will visit before the opening of the convention Sept. 19.

James F. Barton, the principal speaker at the congress of the general association of war wounded and mutilated at Moniauban today, paid tribute to the wounded of France. "We of the American Legion honor you mutilated of France for your fortitude, courage and sacrifice," he said. "The sons of Washington have not forgotten the sons of Lafayette. We come from America upon a sacred pilgrimage and we bring to you a message of affection we are confident of uor continued friendship."

During the trip across the Atlantic a sharp lookout was maintained for the missing plane, "St. Raphael," with Captain Hamilton, Colonel Minchin and Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim aboard. The President Roosevelt has a record of having been at sea during every trans-Atlantic attempt since the flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

NAVAL BASE SAILOR WAS FATALLY BURNED

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 4—(AP)—Fred Paulson, Jr., a sailor stationed at the New London naval base, was fatally burned here today when gasoline being pumped into the tank of his motorcycle overflowed onto the hot motor.

Enveloped in flames, the young sailor, who was here visiting his family, leaped from his machine and was running about when Mrs. Willard Jennie of Pittsfield, a passenger in an automobile stopped at the filling station, jumped out of the car, pulled off her riding coat and threw it about him, saving him from further burning. The heroic action was in vain, however, for Paulson died in Dickinson hospital tonight.

HILL ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF MURDERING HIS MOTHER

SEATLE, Wash., Sept. 4—(AP)—Still maintaining his innocence, Harry Hill, 22-year-old Streator, Ill., youth arrested here last night and held on a charge of murdering his aged mother, announced late today that he will resist extradition.

Sec'y U.S. Consulate Was Shot in Dresden

Emil Steger Was Seriously Wounded by an Unknown Individual.

DRESDEN, Germany, Sept. 4—(AP)—An attempt was made today to assassinate Emil Steger, secretary of the United States consulate here. An unknown individual fired a pistol at him, wounding the secretary seriously. Mr. Steger was removed to a sanitarium and was in an unconscious condition tonight. His assailant escaped.

LABOR DAY MESSAGE TO AMERICAN WORKMEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—(AP)—In a Labor day message to American workmen, President Green of the American Federation of Labor today congratulated them on accomplishments of the last year and urged that in coming political campaigns their votes be cast for candidates who favor the labor cause.

Similar statements were forthcoming from Matthew Woll, vice president of the organization nad Frank Morrison, its secretary. Woll warned against "revolutionary phrases" and "violent demonstrations," and asked that American labor study national forms of government with their division and delegation of political power in order that its vote may be wisely cast. Morrison called for "intelligeoct and organization" as as "the only effective weapons," by which labor may achieve its ends.

Viewing the labor movement as "gradually increasing in membership and in strength of purpose," President Green urged continuation of the campaign of organization. He deplored certain decisions of the courts in labor cases during the past year, mentioning in particular the supreme court's disposal of the stone cutter's case, and decisions against the milkmen of Boston, and the street car men of ndianapolis.

Mr. Green said he observed a "most amazing" change in the attitude of employers as well as of financial and commercial interests" toward recognition of labor's contention "that high wages make for prosperity."

"Here and there, however," he added, "can be heard demands that the wages of all workers shall be reduced. Only those who fail to comprehend the true basis of our nation's prosperity can favor or urge such a proposal. It is the duty of the organized wage earners of America to oppose with utmost vigor any attempts to impose a general reduction in wages."

THE WEST HAVEN ELKS HAVE LOST THEIR GOAT

WEST HAVEN, Sept. 4—(AP)—All elkdom was aroused last night when word went fort hthat "William" had escaped. Not only had William gone A. W. O. L., but he had removed the side of the garage attached to the brand new club house of Lodge 1537, the "baby lodge" of the United States, installed last Saturday.

"William" who is a goat and worth $40, was the property of the Wallingford lodge of Elks, until the West Haven branch was formed when he was turned over to the officers to remain in their care, until the next lodge is organized in Connecticut.

Joe Andrews, of Church street took care of "William" until homesickness caused him to cry all night whereupon he was promptly turned over to Henry Varth, steward of the club and stowed in the garage for safe-keeping.

An all night search Saturday night during which sundry portly and dignied elks might have been seen snooping under hedges and in ash bins followed his escape. He was found tied to the town post by early church-goers on Sunday mernING.

Chief of Police Harry Tuttle who is an officer in the new lodge, may be asked to place "William" in a cell until a home strong enough to hold him can be found.

DEMANDED RESIGNATION OF SOVIET AMBASSADOR

PARIS, Sept. 4.—(AP)—A campaign demanding the resignation and recall of Christian Radovsky as soviet ambassador to Paris, is assuming great intesnity and bitterness in all newspapers with the exception of the extreme lefts and communists. Even the staid and sober Temps says measures must be taken to prevent a recurrence of the soviet ambassador inciting workers to rebel against the buorgeoise government and calling upon soldiers to disobey their chiefs.

The French foreign office today issued an official communique relative to the Rakovsky incident saying that the soviet government under the signature of Foreign Minister Tchitcherin officially disavowed their ambassador, "reproving in the most formal manner the idea that anyone of its representatives in France could attempt to organize insurrection and desertion of French territory while the soviet government is entertaining the most peaceful relations with the French government."

It is stated unofficially that the incident likely will be cleared by the resignation of M. Radovsky.

FOUR NEW HAVEN YOUTHS UNDER ARREST IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—(AP)—Four youths were held today in bail aggregating $60,000 on charges of being fugitives from justice from New Haven, Conn., and for violation of the Sullivan anti-gun law. Police also recovered an expensive sedan said to have been stolen by the four in New Haven from Thomas Harrison.

When arrested the young men gave their names as Carmine Parise, 20; Henry Miller, 18; Kenneth McIntyre, 20; and Thomas Kelleher, 20, all of New Haven. Each was held in $10,000 bail, the amount being doubled in the case of Miller and McIntyre who possessed pistols, police said.

THREE CONVICTS ESCAPED AFTER SHOOTING A GUARD

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4—(AP)—After shooting and seriously wounding a guard, three convicts escaped from the eastern state penitentiary tonight by sliding down a rope thrown over the wall surrounding the prison. The guard was sent to a hospital and an alarm was sounded for the capture of the fugitives.

Miss Bertha M. Pratt, 32, an insurance clerk of Hartford, committed suicide by inhaling gas.

NEWINGTON BOY WAS INSTANTLY KILLED

SOUTHINGTON, Sept. 4—(AP)—Joseph Charamut, six, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Charamut, of Rocky Hill, Newington, was instantly killed today by an automobile driven by Frank H. Dreher of 101 Warren street, Meriden.

Joseph, his mother and grandmother, Mrs. Mary Dombrowski, were on their way to Joseps Clez's farm and took a trolley to Lazy Lane junction. As they stepped off the car, Mrs. Dombrowski hurried across the street, while Mrs. Charamut remained where she had alighted. Joseph lingered for a moment by his mother's side and then started to rush over to his grandmother.

Just at that moment, the car driven by Dreher hove into view. The boy and the driver saw each other at about the same instant and each tried to get out of the other's way but the crash came despite the fact that Dreher went 24 feet off the road to prevent it.

Constable Thomas Murphy placed Dreher under arrest on a charge of reckless driving following the accident and he was later released under a bond of $1,000.

TWO PERSONS KILLED BY AUTOS IN WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Two more persons were added to the list of automobile victims in this city today when an unidentified man and Mrs. Lyman F. Holman died at the City hospital.

The man was struck by an automobile driven by Frederick J. Edmonds of New Bedford early this morning. His skull was fractured and he died several hours later without regaining consciousness. The driver said the man walked directly in the path of the machine and he could not avoid striking him, although he applied the brakes.

Mrs. Holman, 62, was struck by an automobile Wednesday. Her skull was fractured and she never regained consciousness. The machine which struck her was driven by Verner Miskanen of Worcester, who said the woman stepped in front of his machine. He was fined $20 in central district court on Saturday for driving an automobile equipped with defective brakes.

COOLIDGE PREPARING TO RETURN TO WASHINGTON

RAPID CITY, S. D., Sept. 4—(AP)—President Coolidge spent his last Sunday in the Black Hills quietly today while his staff prepared for his departure for Washington the end of the week.

The first president to come west of the Mississippi river for so protracted a stay, Mr. Coolidge leaves many reminders of his residence to the people among whom he lived for three months. By legislative action a mountain has been named for him in the Black Hills. Near the game lodge a boy scout camp bears his name. Far up in the hills a massive memorial to four American presidents will perpetuate his name over an inscription explaining the will perpetuate his name over an inscription explaining the progress of the republic.

Close by the summer white house runs a trout stream called race Coolidge creek, and over at Brookings, S. D., on Saturday an amphitheatre of the State Agricultural college will be Christened Coolidge Sylvan theatre.

DROWNING MAN WAS RESCUED BY RUM RUNNERS

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4.(AP)—Rescued from drowning off Virginia Beach, Va., Friday by the crew of a mysterious launch, Harold Broderick, 43, of Norfolk, Va., wealthy laundry owner, was kept prisoner on the boat until this afternoon when he was landed at a point near Bay Shore, 20 miles from here, on the Chesapeake bay. He stated here he believed the launch was rum running.

Given directions how to reach Baltimore, the crew told Broderick to "beat it" His rescuers gave him an old suit which he wore over his bathing suit. He sailed tonight for Norfolk after communicating with his wife who telegraphed him money.

Broderick stated here that he was carried out to sea by a strong undertow and, being a capable swimmer, was able to keep afloat. Some time later, when he was virtually exhausted, he said, the big launch came beside him.

He said he was dragged onto the deck and rubbed back to consciousness.

MOVIE THEATERS IN CHICAGO RESUME

CHICAGO, Sept. 4—(AP)—With the movie lockout and strike settled by compromise, the ticket vendors at Chicago's 350 movie theaters, closed since last Monday because of the dispute, clicked merrily again today for thousands of patrons.

Virtually every theater in the city was filled to capacity. The agreement reached at the offices of Mayor William Hale Thompson last night, provides that the stage hands will receive an increase in wages of between 7 and 8 per cent, representing three-fourths of what they demanded.

The operators' union withdrew its request that apprentices receive an increase. The operators at the Belmont theater over whom the entire controversy originally started are to receive full pay until next January when the operators' agreement expires. Their status will then be reconsidered.

DOLL CARRIAGE PARADE FEATURES ELKS FAIR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 4—The doll-carriage parade held under ideal weather conditions, proved an outstanding attraction at the Saturday afternoon matinee of the Elks' County fair. In the presence of thousands the little tots, each in a clever interpretation pushed their perambulators on the large open-air stage which had been made festive with flowery arches and bunting for the occasion. Of a dozen contestants first prize was awarded to "Patsy" Ashton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ashton, second prize went to Alice Dorothy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Rivers and third prize to Elinor Guilford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Guilford. "Patsy" Ashton interpreted the spirit of America. The tot was attired in the proverbial stove-pipe hat, swallow-tail coat, spectacles, etc., associated with the country doctor. On her medical kit was written "Dr. Pill". Her carriage was arranged to represent the stork. From the bird's bill was suspended a small blanket in which rested the doll. Alice Rivers was a charming little aviatrix pushing a carriage patterned after Colonel Lindberg's Spirit of St. Louis and which bore the inscription, "New York to Paris, May 21, 1927." The little Guilford girl the great cause of human welfare in her attirement as a Red Cross nurse. The judging was conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stemmons of C. A. C., Storrs and Mrs. G. C. White, also of Storrs. The contest was in charge of Maurice S. Leonard, chairman, William Flynn and Edmund R. Portelance, assisted by Miss Esther Portelance as enrollment secretary.

HEAVIEST TRAFFIC OF SEASON IN DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 4—However much motoring may cost, this fact seemed to have no bearing at all today on the plans of thousands to go out with their cars for a Labor Day outing. No holiday period of the summer produced the maze of motor traffic that roled through Danielson from Friday afternoon until tonight. Many thousands of cars whirled through Danielson in the period mentioned, at times producing a density so great that machines were running through the business section almost as close togehtre as freight cars in a train. The blocking of the Main street crossing for the brief period required for a train to pass over resulted in long queues of cars accummulating both sides of the crossing. Wilball, Chief John McFarland had little difficulty with the hordes of motorists. The drivers were almost without exception operating carefully and with special discretion. Up to late this afternoon no accident of any importance had marred the holiday motoring period anywhere in this vicinity. Late hours of the past three nights brought a slackening of traffic through Danielson, but it did not cease even during the wee sma' hours of the morning.

Motor coach lines were feeling the pressure of business Saturday as these lines seldom rave felt them since they came into being. On the New England line—Hartford and Providence, through Danielson—double header service was maintained during the morning hours of Saturday. By early afternoon three coaches were being run each way on every tripe and by night the service had been increased to four coaches each way on each trip.

These fine accommodations permitted of handling the traffic very satisfactorily. Bud Shaw in Danielson all who had planned to go either east or west were able to get aboard.

On the Connecticut company's line through here the riding was also heavy on Saturday and extra service was provided to care for the crowds. Today was regarded by coach line transportation men as the quiet one of the triple holiday period. They look for another jam of business on Labor Day, as thousands start back for their homes—and work.

Saturday morning at St. James' church there was a high mass of requiem, with Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., as celebrant at the funeral of Miss Gertrude Martin of Dyer street. There were numbers of relatives and friends in attendance. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Joseph A Demers, M. S. The bearers were Arthur Chabet, Alphonse Bedard, Frank Baribeault, Ovid Guimont, Silvio Richards and Edward Gingras. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

A minor accident in Main street, at the Keystone block, Saturday morning was that in which a Hudson closed car driven by Ralph E. Gomez of Meriden was damaged considerably when it was in collision with a parked truck of Tait Bros. This accident was due to Gomez swinging his car sharply over toward the west side of the street, as he was coming into town, to avoid striking a bicycle ridden by Stanley Bugsella of Tiffany street, West Side. Chief John McFarland checked up the accident. The Gomez car, which was damaged about the front and had a broken windshield, was taken to a garage to be repaired.

Saturday night, about 11 o'clock, the death occurred at Ballouville of Mrs. Emma A. Keene, 78. Mrs. Keene had been in feeble health for a long time, but seriously ill only since last Monday. She was the daughter of Albert and Celia Marcy Brown and had lived all of her life in this town. Mrs. Keene was the widow of James Keene. She leaves two sons, J. Elmer Keene, of Danielson and Edgar Wheaton, a son by a former marriage.

This afternoon at the home in East Killingly af funeral service for the 11 days' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Kanley Kliday was conducted by Rev. Albert Abbott of the Danielson Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in the cemetery at Putnam Heights. The bearers were Russell Hammond and Harold Hammond. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Opportunities that present themselves to Killingly people to spend Labor Day pleasantly include attendance at South Killingly's Old Home celebration, where hundreds will gather, given good weather; at the baseball games in number being played here and in the surrounding towns; at the that theater; at summer parks and at the dances scheduled for the evening. Numbers also have passed up all the local attractions, though Danielson has no formal celebration, to visit cities in more or less remote parts of New England. Labor Day generally is to be observed as a holiday in Danielson, as in all the surrounding communities.

Among the things called to the attention of the state officers stationed here today was the report of someone breaking into the railroad station at Abington last night, stealing an antiquated typewriter and breaking open some express packages.

A number from Danielson were at South Killingly this afternoon to attend the service of worship at the Congregational church, this service preceding the Old Home observance scheduled for Labor Day.

This week brings the caucuses at which the republicans and democrats of Killingly will nominate their candidates for town offices for another year, the election to be on the first Monday in October.

Excepting for the grocers and meat markets of Danielson, the Thursday half-holiday arrangement that has prevailed through July and August is ended for another year. Thursday of this week with the exceptions noted, the stores in Danielson will be open all day.

Those who wish to transact business at the Danielson postoffice on Labor Day will have to be about it early, for the office will be closed, as is usual on holidays, from mid-forenoon, though the lobby will be open throughout the day. Mails will be despatched as usual.

Radio fans have agreed that the federal radio commission has not done so well, insofar as this particular territory is concerned, in reassigning wave length and broadcasting periods in such a manner as to stop stations interfering with each other. That trouble still exists in marked degree.

Summer dance resorts in this vicinity enjoyed about the peak patronage of the season Saturday evening, when the weather was mild and enjoyable—for all excepting the drivers who had to guide motor cars through the fog that developed as the night wore on.

One who kept check of the registrations of motor cars proceeding through Danielson on Saturday claims to have seen machines from 34 different states, and some of the provinces of Canada.

The first tints of all, while not very general, have appeared on trees and other foliage throught this section of Windham county.

Miss Katherine T. Thayer of Putnam and Worcester is spending the holiday period with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Witter of Broad street.

Attendance at the various churches in Danielson was particularly good this Sunday morning, when the weather was ideal and the splendid weather seemed to sponsor an inclination to have a part in divine worship.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Reed motored to Vermont today to spend the holiday with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hanlon and daughter, Clare, of Long Island, are spending the holiday with relatives in aDnielson.

WESTERLY

PEACEMAKER USES CLUB; SANTA TURANO BATTERED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 4—The Westerly police were notified about midnight Saturday that there was a fight on Pierce street and that a man had been seriously injured. Patrolman Michael Curtin went to the rear of the house 35 Pierce street. In the hallway of a house 45 Pierce street he found Santa Turano, 58, of 45 Pierce street covered with blood. The front haliway was blood spattered. Investigation revealed that Turano, somewhat under the influence of liquor, had trouble with his wife and Nunzio Perruzzi, 35, residing with Tony Cefone had gone to the Turano house to see if he could stop the trouble. His advances resulted in a drawing of knives and Perruzzi was thrown out.

Mrs. Turano then left for the home of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown on Pleasant street. While she was gone Turano went to the house where Perruzzi had a room and the latter was reported to have seized a club and smashing the electric light, had brought the club down three times on Turano's left shoulder and arm and twice over his head. Blood flowed freely, so Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called. He found it necessary to take three stitches to close the head wound. The shoulder was found broken and the man was adviser to visit the hospital. Later friends were reported to have taken the injured man to the South County hospital at Wakefield.

Perruzzi, who has been at the Pierce street address only a week, was reported to have disappeared across lots through Central Park to lose himself in the woods and Officer Curtin lost track of the man in the darkness. Personal property of Perruzzi to the amount of several hundred dollars remains in his boarding house and it was thought that he might return later for it; a part of it is being held for rent due.

Patsy Ditacca, rooming in the same house reported to the police that he did not hear the disturbance. Perruzzi, also known as Nunzer Perugs, is 35 and reported as not engaged in any particular line of business with the exception of the manufacture of glue and by-products from cherry stones. He is sought by the Westerly police to detail what he knows of the fracas.

CAR RUNS INTO POLE—THREE MEN ARE INJURED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Sept. 4—A Ford sedan of Massachusetts registry, owned and operated by James L. Buckner, 30, of 29 Hubbard street, Malden, Mass., collided Sunday morning about 7:45 on the Boston Post road with the telephone pole in front of the residence of Amos E. Brewer, 114 Franklin street. The automobile was described by a witness as careening in an easterly direction, apparently out of control until it struck the post on which is fire alarm box No. 214. The windshield was broken and the steering wheel put out of commission. Accompanying Buckner were John Florence, 49, of 27 Newton avenue, Westerly and Alexander Falconer, 56, of 5 Partridge street, Somerville, Mass. The Buckner plane cut the windshield cut the men, Bruckner having nine tendons of his hand cut and lacerations about his head. Florence had scalp lacerations and Falconer lacerations on his left hand. The fish truck of Finn Bros. of East Greenwich was passing and picked up the injured men, taking them to Westerly hospital where their injuries were dressed by Dr. John Champlin, Jr.

Patrolman Michael Curtin investigated the accident.

Resulting from an automobile accident in the town of Hopkinton, Saturday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock while returning from Providence on the Nooseneck Hill road, Russell C. Duguid is confined to the home of his father on Potter Hill road as the result of injuries. Driving a Pierce-Arrow touring car on Brightman Hill his auto was in collision with another car coming from a driveway near the Sign of the Turk tea room. The force of the collision drove the Duguid car some 27 feet off the highway, damaging the front of the car and cutting the driver's right hand and injuring his side and back. He was brought to the office of Dr. Harry F. Crandall in Westerly where medical attention was given him, before he was taken to the home of his father. The injuries to his side were of such extent that it was thought necessary to have X-rays taken to determine if a rib was cracked or broken.

EXTENSIVE ATHLETIC PROGRAM AT NORWICH FAIRGROUNDS THIS MORNING

Dashes, distance running and boxing all will be seen at the fair grounds today when the Duwell A. A., working in conjunction with the committee in charge of the pagent, presents a programme featuring 20 different events. Soldiers, sailors, coast guardsmen and boys representing the different cities of Connecticut and Rhode Island will all play a part in the activities which it is expected will surpass any of its kind ever seen in this city.

At 10 o'clock the fun will begin when Norwich's own boys, products of the playground, lineup for the championship of the city. In five different events, the teams representing the various play centers of the city will battle it out for supremacy. In these contests an entry of 40 boys will compete for the three individual prizes in each of the five games which are as follows:

220 yard run.
440 yard run.
One-half mile run.
One-half mile relay.

The men representing the various units of Uncle Sams military organization will take up where the playground youngsters leave off.

About 40 men, wearing the colors of the submarine base, coast guard, Connecticut National Guard, and Fort Wright, will struggle for the honors in this branch of closed events. The coast guard squad composed of ten men, each trained to the minute spent the biggest part of Sunday morning at the fairgrounds, getting used to the track, and according to the way they shaped up in practice, at this time are regarded as favorites in their division. This unit, modern in every respect will move to the grounds at about 8:30 o'clock, trainers, rubbers, coach and equipment. Although neither of the other three organizations have been seen in action here as yet, it is expected that they will come up to the guardsmen in every form, shape or manner.

Following the military games, will come the boxing, four three round bouts. Fought under A. A. U. rules, this part of the program will be filled with a continual round of thrills. If scraps compare with those seen over at the Duwell field during the past month. The entry list for the boxing is made up of men from Norwich, Westerly and Jewett City, as follows: Al Koziol, Young Besade, Vin LaRochelle, Young Plante, Young Anthony, Frankie Adams, Johnny Kop and Young Tennant, all of this city. Joe Buron, Young Chape, Chick Turf, Young Fairbanks, Young Ike and Kid Luzzio of Westerly and Kid Miller, Young Ashean and Youn Salinski of Jewett City. Every contestant will receive a prize, gold wrist watches to the winners and watch chains to the losers.

The open events, featured by a three mile road race will wind up the athletic program at about 2 o'clock, in time for the pageant which will take up the remainder of the afternoon. The open events are as follows:

100 yard dash, 1-2 mile run, relay, 1 mile race.

The entry for this branch will be exceptionally large as teams representing the New Haven Harriers, Duwell A. A., Westerly A. C., and individual entries from Putnam, New London and Norwich together with the men of the military units who are also eligible, will all be seen in action.

For four solid hours from 10 to 2 the people who pass through the fairground gates, will be treated to real live, clean entertainment. All athletes, whether runners or boxers, are requested to report at the grounds where they will be checked at the gate by 930 o'clock.

MARTAFTS WIN BOTH GAMES OVER WEEK END

The Martafts won both of the week end games, nosing out the Robertson All Stars in the ninth inning 4 to 3 on Saturday and then winnig easily from the Elm City Giants on Sunday 8 to 4.

Saturday's game was one of the best of the season being a pitchers' battle for six innings when Taftville broke into the scoring column with a lone run. The All Stars evened the count in the first of the seventh. Taftville found Pepin again in the seventh and took a two run lead. Jewett City came right back in the first of the eighth and drove Gauthier from the mound. With the bases loaded and only one away Russ Fisher went to the box. Fisher retired the side with only one run which tied the score against him. Fisher held them safe in the first of the nine and his teammates put across the needed run. Krauss led off with a single. Jarvis was passed and Krauss scored from second on Bill Gley's long single.

Bunting hits in the first inning Taftville was a way to a good lead in the Sunday game against the Elm City Giants and from then on were never in danger as the visitors' runs came singly. J. Lane was the star of the game getting a home run, a double and a single off Fisher's delivery in four times at bat. Eccleston led the hitting for Taftville getting three singles in four times at the plate. The score:

JAIL HILL PLAYGROUNDS WINS SEASON BANNER

Jail Hill playgrounds, with Les Carroll and Miss Cecelia Brock in charge, has annexed the playground banner signifying the best all-round center for the 1927 seasons, its second in the life of Norwich playgrounds. The infant of city playgrounds won the title with 176 points, 23 ahead of Elizabeth street its nearest contender.

A splendid spirit of cooperation was noted at this center and the Hillers surely worked hard enough to deserve all honors which this award may bring.

The winning of the baseball title helped greatly in swinging the tide in favor of the Cedar street outfit for their nine swept through the season with but two defeats and made a clean brush of the world series.

CUBS GET FURTHER SETBACK AT HANDS OF CARDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 4—(AP)—Chicago's pennant hopes were given a further setback today when the St. Louis Cardinals defeated them 3 to 1 in a great pitching duel between Charley Root and Willie Sherdel, the Cardinal's star southpaw.

A crowd of 38,000 crowded into the park to help pull the Cubs out of their losing streak, but were disappointed when McCarthy's club dropped its seventh consecutive game. The crowd overflowed into the field, making a hit in this territory a two bagger.

The world champs won the game by bunching their hits in the first and seventh innings while the Cubs lost their chance of winning by poor base running, in which the Cardinals executed a triple play which wiped out their hopes in the seventh inning.

The Cardinals' got their first run with a double by Orsatti and a single by Frisch. Their other marker came in the seventh on doubles by Clark and Hafey. Chicago's lone run came in the eighth and was helped by Jim Bottomley, who dropped a throw at first base. Hartnett had grounded to Shortstop Maranville, and was safe when Bottomley dropped the throw. Heathcote ran for Hartnett and reaching third when Tolson, batting for Root, doubled into the crowd. Adams' long fly to Clark enabled Heathcote to score after the catch.

The play which wrecked the Cubs' chances came in the seventh. Stephenson opened with a single and Wilson doubled into the crowd. Grimm grounded to Frisch, whose throw to Bottomley retired the Cub captain. Wilson was caught off second and run down, Bottomley to Maranville to O'Farrell to Frisch. Stephenson then attempted to go home and was nailed, Frisch to Bottomley to L. Bell. The score:

BRAVES SPLIT WITH ROBINS IN DOUBLE HEADER

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—(AP)—Boston and Brooklyn broke even in a double-header at Ebbets field today, the Braves winning the first contest 3-2, and Brooklyn capturing the second by the same score in 13 innings.

Boston's victory in the opener was gained largely through enewich's fine pitching. He shut out the Robins until the ninth inning. Dazzy Vance, who was in the box for Brooklyn, was accorded erratic support.

The Boston defense cracked wide open in the final stages of the nightcap. Errors by Farrell and Fournier and Statz's scratch hit through Farrell filled the bases with only one out in the thirteenth. Hendrick then scored Ehrhardt with the winning run on a long sacrifice to left field, although the play at the plate was close.

Brooklyn led in the second game until two were out in Boston's half of the ninth. Clark then weakened and Boston tied the score. Fournier hammered out a home run in the sixth.

Manager Dave Bancroft of the Braves was banished from the field in the sixth inning for an argument at the plate with Umpire Jordan. The score:

TODT'S TWO HOMERS HELP RED SOX TO WIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—(AP)—A home run by Todt, his second for the day, gave Boston a 5 to 3 victory over Washington today in the eleventh inning. Rogell was on base at the time. Todt's first circuit drive came in the second inning. By winning the contest Boston evened the series to a game apiece. It was the second consecutive time that the two teams have been forced to extra innings to settle the count. The score:

SALE OF TICKETS FOR BIG SHOW AMOUNT TO 44,000

CHICAGO, Sept. 4—(AP)—Approximately 44,000 of the 160,000 tickets for the Tunney-Dempsey championship bout at Soldier field September 22 will be the $40 variety, or "ringside" seats.

The Herald-Examiner today said "obviously not more than one-eighth of these ringside tickets will permit their purchasers to get within even hailing distance of the ring."

Of the eight unassisted triple plays that have punctuated the records of major league baseball over a period of 50 years, two have been made during the present season.

PIRATES RETAIN LEAD BY WINNING FROM REDS

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 4—(AP)—Pittsburgh retained its two game advantage for the National league leadership by defeating Cincinnati 8 to 4 today. The Pirates pounded Adolfo Luque freely for nearly six innings and ran up a lead that was too much for Cincinnato to overcome.

The visitors scored twice on hits and an error in the second, another in the fourth and on two hits and two in the fifth when the Waner brothers, Lloyd and Paul, got identical home runs.

Both boys lined hits down the left field foul line and both of the hits bounced into the stands giving each a circuit ride.

A double and three singles gave the Pirates two more in the sixth and sent Luque to the showers, Ray Kolp going in. The eighth and last run was scored in the seventh on two hits and a sacrifice fly.

Cincinnati scored a brace of runs in the fourth when Lloyd Waner failed t oget up for Hughey Critz's short fly back of second, Kelly and Ford scoring. Kelly had walked while Ford singled to left. They added two more in the fifth when Luque singled and Dressen walked. Allen flied deep to Lloyd Waner but when Wright threw wild to first, trying to double Dressen, Luque counted while Dressen rode to third. Dressen scored on Bressler's National league ball when he batted for single.

"Pid" Purdy got his first taste of Kolp in the ninth inning and sent a sharp single to right. Purdy reported to Cincinnati last Thursday, coming from Seattle. He is an outfielder and played with the White Sox last year.

LARGE FIELD ENTERED FOR LABOR DAY GOLF TOURNEY

A field of over fifty will tee off this morning in the Labor day golf tournament at the Norwich Golf club. The first qualifiers to go out will leave at 8:30 o'clock and them at regular intervals during the morning. The qualifying round will be of 18 holes and the eight low gross scores will play for the club championship while the others will continue in the Labor day tourney.

Although heavy orders, enough to keep the Lyman Mills at Holyoke, in operation through the winter, have been reported the general feeling is that the directors will not postpone their plan to liquidate. The mills employing normally 1,200 hands are said to be in better condition than for a long time.

J. W. THURSTON BEATS HARWOOD TO ENTER FINALS OF E. C. TENNIS TOURNEY

J. W. Thurston of Hartford advanced to the final round of the singles in the Eastern Connecticut tennis tournament on Sunday when he disposed of Percy Harwood, local tennis star, 7-5, 8-6, 6-1, in the semi-finals. Although winning in straight sets Thurston by no means had things his own way for Harwood was pressing him all the way. Harwood carried the Hartford player to extra games in the first two sets but in the third set Thurston's steadiness carried him through with ease. Thurston played a steady game on the defensive and Harwood had difficulty in breaking through this defense.

Thurston came to the semi-finals by beating O. C. Foster of Providence in the second round 6-4, 4-6, 6-1 and winning from B. D. Kelly in straight sets 6-1, 6-1. Harwood after drawing a bye in the first round beat W. Wemple of New London 6-1, 6-1, in the second round. He took his third round match from Stevens Wright of New London after a hard fight, 2-7, 4-6 6-4.

In the doubles O. C. Foster and H. B. Weaver, both of Providence, became finalists when J. W. Thurston and Arthur Wright, both of Hartford, defaulted after losing the first set 14-12. Foster and Weaver will meet the winner of the other semi-final match between Harwood-Angeles and Powers-Kaufman.

Today there will be two semi-final matches and the two finals. Powers and Weaver meet this morning in the singles semi-finals and the winner will meet Thurston in the afternoon in the finals. Powers has won the Willowbrook trophy once and a winner today will give him two legs on it.

UHLE HOLDS WHITE SOX AND INDIANS WON

CHICAGO, Sept. 4—(AP)—George Uhle mastered the White Sox today and Cleveland won the final game of the series 6 to 3.

Until the eighth inning, the White Sox had but two scratch hits, but in that inning, singles by Falk and Flaskamper and Metzler's double drove in two runs. Chicago made another hard rally in the ninth, but Uhle broke it up by bearing down again.

Three White Sox errors contributed materially to Cleveland's victory, Barrett's wild throw letting in two runs. The score:

WHERE MORE CARE IS NEEDED

Today the motor vehicle department has something interesting to say in its report concerning accidents in which pedestrians and children have been involved. It is interesting from the standpoint of those who have witnessed accidents, near accidents and who have long since realized the growing necessity of displaying greater care in the highway. Those who have gone through such accidents and are here to tell the story do not need to be reminded of the need of care on the part of themselves and the other fellow, but there is great need of thoroughly impressing it upon those who are inclined to be careless.

When the motor vehicle department shows that there were 23 persons killed and 530 injured in accidents resulting from stepping in front of moving vehicles from in back of standing vehicles it is laying emphasis upon an obvious danger and it is directing attention to accidents and fatalities that might easily have been prevented.

Another class of accidents is that involving persons crossing the highways. Here again of the 2349 persons, including 1091 children, who were struck crossing the road. A large proportion might have been avoided had there been due care and a proper willingness to yield on the part of all concerned. There are those who invite accidents by their very attitude. There are the speeders, the reckless drivers and there are those who cross the street looking neither to the right nor left and require auto drivers to do all sorts of contortions in an effore to avoid them.

Accidents of this character have occurred not because there has been nothing said about the need of being careful, but in spite of it. The obligation, however, rests upon the shoulders of all highway users. When greater care is used, even though there are more cars, there will be fewer accidents. There is need for such recognition and it is an important light upon present day conditions which the department's accident reports present. Through the constant presentation of it is there is reason for hoping that in time care will be the guiding force of a much greater number of highway users, motorists and pedestrians alike.

LABOR DAY

Labor day will be celebrated in many ways throughout the country. It will for the most part be a day of stilled industry, it will be a day of rest or recreation for a large proportion of the people. For some it will be a day requiring much harder work than on most days of the year.

The observance of Labor day has undergone many changes. It was 45 years ago to a day that the holiday had its beginning through the big parade which was held by the Knights of Labor in New York city. Five years later the first state had adopted legislation making the day a legal holiday and since then it has spread throughout the country.

We have gotten away, for the most part, from the big parades and demonstrations. It is a day when the people get out into the open spaces and find pleasure in many directions. The day of the literary exercises has gradually disappeared and without loss of interest in or support of the labor organizations. Labor has been put on a better basis and it unquestionably feels that there is not the need for the parades which were considered beneficial in displaying strength in past years. Impressions are created and understanding reached in a different way under present conditions.

Labor day is long anticipated each year as a day of rest and pleasure. It will not cease to be appreciated and put to good use because the observance of the day has undergone a decided change since it was established.

AMERICA IN THE RACE

The Schneider cup races were encouraged and have been held for the purpose of encouraging developments in aviation. They have interested leading countries, including the United States with the result that the cup has been won twice by the United States, twice by Great Britain and twice by Italy. That means that the contest at Venice September 25 is going to be the one that will determine the ownership of the cup, and is therefore a vital race.

This government has withdrawn from the development of racing planes, but this country is still interested in aviation, and this is convincingly demonstrated by the fact that private interests have contributed an amount sufficient for Lieutenant Williams of the navy to equip a plane for participation in this big contest. Government interest has been restricted to the lending of two 24 cylindered, 1500 horse power motors to the lieutenant. It is interested in seeing what technical data Williams can furnish concerning their performance.

Because of what are declared to have been unavoidable delays in trial flights Lieutenant Williams has been unable to get his swift plane away to Europe on any commercial ship that would make it possible for him to tune it up and get into the race. Great Britain is unwilling that the race should be postponed. That left the only possible chance for him to participate hinging on the provision of a fast cruiser by the government. British planes have been transported in that manner, and in a final decision the navy department has decided to assign the cruiser Trenton to this duty.

The interest of this country is naturally keen. It has faith in Lieutenant Williams and it hopes that he will win. There is no certainty of such an outcome but in view of our past participation it is desirable that we should see the contest through and such contribution as the navy will be making is only in keeping with the interest which is certain to be manifested by the country in general. Uncle Sam rises to the occasion.

JAPAN'S WITHDRAWAL

Difficulties are not over in China but the time has come when Japan believes that it can safely withdraw the troops which it sent into the Shantung province and it has done so. This causes those who are constantly viewing with alarm whatever action Japan takes to be fearful that this step is only temporary and that the troops which have been recalled will later come back.

There is no certainty that Japan will not send more troops into Shantung. It has not promised that it will not do so but from the attitude it has taken and the course which it has followed since condition began to grow bad in China does not not justify the view of the alarmists that Japan has its eyes upon China and proposes to get a good slice of it.

Other nations have sent troops to China for the protection of their subjects and their property. For a long time Japan refused to send troops into China, but when the time came that it decided it was necessary to do as the others had been doing it acted. Suspicions were at once aroused. There were those who felt that this meant the beginning of a permanent occupation. They saw Japan seizing territory which would be particularly advantageous to it for development and expansion purposes.

Whatever may have prompted such a view Japan has not been acting in a manner during the trouble in China which would warrant it. Its attitude has been to aid China and to avoid friction during the internal struggle. It indicates now that it did not desire to send the troops there in the first place but that it was forced to such action by developments, the subsidence of which leaves it free to withdraw and it promptly does so. It is a move which stands out to the credit of Japan. It withdraws from a position which might be considered advantageous if it had ulterior motives in putting the troops there in the first place. It deserves credit for a course which cannot fail to remove suspicion and taking a position which must be interpreted as being that of a good neighbor.

FIRING THE SUPERINTENDENT

The controversy that is raging in Chicago between the school board, backed by the mayor, and the superintendent of schools, William McAndrew, can be expected to end in the superintendent losing his job. Politics has been back of this undertaking for some time. Superintendent McAndrew is charged with insubordination in hiring extra teachers, but he has been slated to go. It was part of the last mayoralty campaign. The superintendent was charged with being a tool of King George of England and the promise made that if successful in being elected Mr. Thompson would bring about his removal.

That is one of the promises that is not being forgotten. Superintendent McAndrew has declared his intention to fight, but it will be a hopeless opposition. The cards are apparently stacked against him. He doesn't intend to get out while under fire but as far as expecting to continue the job he might as well get out and align himself with educational activities where his services would be eagerly desired and appreciated. However much Chicago might need his services as the head of the schools, it has been shown that politics demands something else and politics has a way of getting what it wants that is not always beneficial to a community. If the last mayoralty campaign in Chicago can be regarded as reflecting Chicago sentiment, it is a losing fight which the superintendent plans to wage. Perhaps Chicago will have reason to regret the attitude it is displaying in subsequent years, for it is quite evident that the successor of the present incumbent will face grave responsibilities or become the rubber stamp of political leaders.

EDITORIAL NOTES

This is the day that the exodus of vacationers from the beaches is in full swing.

Labor day, intended for rest and recreation, will probably be one of the most strenuous of the year.

With a roof garden on the remodeled white house, Washington will be more and more up in the air.

The man on the corner says: Can't complain much over the way in which September is now performing.

New York has been acting in several of its recent murder cases as if it wanted to discourage that sort of crime.

The government is now out of the business of carrying mail by airplane, but it will take longer to get rid of its merchant ships.

Those desiring to be made voters should bear in mind that their applications should be in the hands of the registrars by Tuesday.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

The smart modern bookcase is tall and slender and adaptable to narrow wall spaces.

Garments stained with milk should be rinsed in cold water before they are laundered.

Make children's warm weather dresses out of fabrics that you know will wash well.

Half fill parfait glasses with grapejuice and top with orange flavored whipped cream.

Quilted glazed chintz covers the quaint French provincial chairs that are made of maple.

Green peas, lima beans and fresh soy beans are the richest vegetable sources of protein.

Delicious sugar and cinnamon sandwiches may be made with thinly sliced graham bread.

Cushions for out-of-door use should be covered with leather or sunfast washable fabrics.

Do not fit a garment wrong side out, as a person's right and left sides are seldom exactly alike.

Canned cherries may be used in a steamed pudding and the juice saved for a thickened hot sauce.

If book ends are inclined to slide glue a piece of rubber elastic to the under side of each of the ends.

To mend a stocking with thread of the exact color, draw a thread from the hem at the top of the stocking.

Chocolate cornstarch pudding may be made with water, in place of milk, if butter and flavoring are added.

Crushed egg shells with warm soapy water will clean bottles and fine glass ware without scratching them.

In flavoring hot tea, for variety add a slice of lemon and a slice of orange; also a bit of strawberry jam.

A round mirror hung over a chest of drawers or a small table is the mode in dressing tables.

The shine on shoes will last longer if a piece of ordinary wax is rubbed lightly over the shoes after polishing them and then rubbed smooth with a soft cloth.

COOKING TERMS

Blanch—means to make white. In cooking it has two meanings. (1) to pour boiling water over, drain, rinse in cold water. This is used for rice, macaroni or spaghetti after cooking, and for vegetables before or after cooking. (2) for nuts. To remove the skin.

WHEN CANNING

Keep paraffin in a small, covered, lipped saucepan or individual teapot so it can be quickly melted and easily poured.

BETTER BREAD

Never put fresh bread in the box containing stale bread. It will take away its nice fresh taste in a short time. Keep the bread-box cleaned out and there will be no difficulties of this sort.

HARDENED BRUSHES

When paint brushes have become hardened and stiff through disuse, put some vinegar in an old can, put the brushes in and boil for about ten minutes. The brushes will come out soft and pliable.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Juice of ripe cucumbers takes vegetable stains from the hands.

Washing the teeth occasionally with baking soda will keep them white.

When hands have been in the water a long time and are puckered up, rub them with lemon or vinegar to restore the softness and to prevent chapping.

Blackheads, as everybody knows, are enlarged oil glands that have become obstructed by a mixture of dust with the natural sebacous secretion. The cure for this too common blemish lies in thorough cleansing, stimulation of the activity of the skin and refining of its texture.

It is a relatively simple process requiring only patience and regularity in treatments.

CARPET BEETLES

Carpet beetles, which do damage similar to that by clothes moths, may be exterminated with naphthalene flake, paradichlorobenzene, or camphor, placed in trunks, chests or closets that are not often opened. If the beetles are beneath carpets or rugs, in piano felts, upholstered furniture or closets in daily use, these substances are of little value. The house as a whole should be fumigated with hydocyanic-acid gas, carbon disulphid, or carbon tetrachlorid.

Socalled household methods for "setting" the colors in fabrics are largely a waste of time and materials. No successful household methods of setting the colors in dyed fabrics are known. Manufacturers, however, have been steadily improving the processes of dyeing fabrics, so that most colored goods are fast in washing. The best way is to try a small sample before buying, both for sun fading and water fading.

NUTRITIOUS HOT DAY DISH

Baked eggs and cheese make a good supper dish for warm weather. Break the desired number of eggs in a buttered earthenware or glass baking dish, add a few tablespoons of cream and salt enough to season.

Sprinkle the top with grated cheese mixed with fine dry bread crumbs. Set the dish in a pan containing hot water and bake in a moderate oven until the eggs are set and the crumbs are brown.

JUST A HINT

An electric iron by itself is harmless, but in connection with a woman, a doorbell and a forgotten switch, is apt to be the torch that burns down one's home.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Tin earrings gayly enameled in imitation of old fashioned peasant jewelry are being worn.

The chiffon velvets which dressmakers are using extensively for evening models is the lightest that has yet been produced by the fabric makers.

Just the thing for traveling is a flat bag of pigskin that opens up to disclose two large and two small pockets of rubberized silk.

Some of the prettiest lace dresses are belted with velvet ribbon and the necks are bound with velvet.

A red velveteen coat seen recently was particularly attractive worn with a small hat of the same gay hue. These velveteen coats are very popular at present for country club wear.

A Paris frock with a black velvet circular borrows a sports idea and has its bodice fashioned from striped chiffon in ivory, flesh and yellow shades.

Zorino is the new nappy, soft fur, looking a bit like beaver, that forms the smart beige and brown cape collar on a brown cloth coat.

Many of the suits run to vivid metal brocades. Others are luxurious combination of rich colored satins and a third type is chiffon trimmed with lace or ostrich.

Satin evening dresses have brought satin evening slippers back to popularity. Shoes and dresses match, with the result that slipper dying is again a necessity for those who do not have their shoes made to order.

Skirts are usually box pleated or circular, or both. Fullness has a tendency to centralize in front and the top of hems may be indicated by a narrow stitched bias of contrasting material.

Nothing could be nicer for summer days than an ensemble which consists of a coat of printed linen and a frock of white silk broadcloth. The coat is bound with the same color silk that makes the tie and belt of the dress.

DRESSES AND COATS

For afternoon velvet is the newest, but perhaps flat crepe is the most popular. Flat crepe dresses for wear under velvet coats are shown by every dressmaker. The silk crepes, morocain, romain and crepe de chine are much used.

Evening fabrics begin with velvet and end with chiffon. In between are the flat silks, satins and georgettes of other season. Lightweight, lustrous gold and silver brocades of small indefinite pattern are used for some of the newest and prettiest evening dresses.

For evening coats there are brilliant, large patterned brocades and much velvet. The printed velvet, however, is usually reserved for afternoon dresses, though it is occasionally made into effective evening wraps.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Soap combined with bluing will cause rust spots.

If the soap is not altogether pure, when combined with a starch, it will yellow the clothes.

If washing soda is used and is not thoroughly rinsed out, the fiber will be weakened when heated by the iron.

Perspiration stains may be removed from white clothes by dampening the article with lemon juice and salt before the clothes are put into soap and water.

When the ironing board cover is worn out tear off the strips containing the eyelets and stitch to a new piece of muslin and you have a cover good as new.

To remove grass stains, hot water and soap may be successful if the material is washable. Remaining traces on white cottons or linens may be bleached out with Javelle water or potassium permanganate. Fabrics that may be injured by water should be sponged with denatured or wool alcohol.

TO CLEAN RUG

In every home there are sure to be spots on the dining room rug at times. To clean, first remove all loose dirt, then put a cloth under the portion of the rug to be washed, thus protecting the floor from dampness. With a brush and heavy suds made from good, pure white soap, rub the spotted portion. Work with a circular motion, forcing the lather into the nap, but not through the foundation weave. Use only the top suds. Sponge repeatedly with a cloth wrung out of clear water. While the rug is drying, brush the way of the nap. The rug will then look like new.

MUSTY SMELLS

When glass bottles, jars or earthen vessels have a musty, disagreeable odor, fill them up with cold water in which soda has been dissolved, and it will soon freshen them.

TOO QUICKLY

If the cake, bread or beans in the oven are baking too quickly and getting too brown, set a pan of cold water in the bottom of the oven and it will cool it for you.

LONGER WEAR

The economical buy in bed linen is half-bleached linen. It is very much stronger than the bleached linen and will become absolutely white in a very few washings.

STAINED ASH TRAYS

Apply a little denatured alcohol with a brush to the dark-brown stains which cigarettes make on copper and brass ash trays and the stains will disappear immediately.

TO FRESHEN SPONGE

The sponge that seems a bit sour can be sweetened by rubbing a cut lemon thoroughly into it and then rinsing several times in lukewarm water. It will be like new.

DIGS OUT THE DIRT

The little pointed hardwood skewers that come in meat roasts are handy to clean out corners and around handles of cooking utensils when washing pots and pans.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Minnesota has one woman judge.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lucas, of Tonbridge, England, recently gave birth to her 24th child.

Mrs. W. B. Cole of Mexico, Mo., superintends a crew of workmen in street construction.

A jury venire recently summoned in Sharp county, Ark., consisted of 32 women and no men.

By acting as a guide in Wisconsin's north woods, Miss Virginia Owens is earning enough money to pay for a university education.

The average London business girl, it has been estimated, powders her nose four times an hour and takes two minutes to do it each time.

Though she is past 92 years of age and a great-great-grandmother, Mrs. William H. Sleeper, of Weare, N. H., is without a gray hair in her head.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Among those in attendance at the eighth meeting of the assembly of the league of nations, opening at Geneva today, will be Raymond T. Rich, the new general secretary of the World Peace foundation. This will be Mr. Rich's first visit to Geneva, although he has had several years experience with American international work in Europe as well as Asia. In 1922-23 he was secretary of the German student department of the European Student relief, in which position he came to know well many of the leaders of international affairs in Europe. In 1924-25 he was instructor in contemporary history in Canton Christian college, at Canton China. Just previous to taking his present post he was, for nearly two years, national secretary of the Foreign Policy association. Mr. Rich is a graduate of Brown university and makes his home at Hingham, Mass.

YOUR HEALTH

THE HEALTH OF THE SCHOOL CHILD

By Edward S. Rimer, M. D., New York Member Gorgas Memorial

Starting to school is an ordeal for most children. After a summer spent largely in the open, school means a radical change in the child's daily regime.

Not only does he miss the outdoors, but the freedom of following his own devices. He feels cooped up. His physical activities are repressed. He is made to study. His whole world is changed.

How may we prepare the child for this change and best adapt him to his new regime?

First, at the beginning of the school year, have your child examined by the family physician. This examination should be thorough, special attention being given to the eyes, for possible defects of vision, the ears for impairment of hearing, the teeth for cavities or other conditions requiring dental care and the nose and throat for diseased tonsils and adenoids. Mouth breathing, snoring, frequent colds, sore throat and discharging ears may be due to infected tonsils and adenoids.

Posture should receive attention. Round shoulders, flat chest, spinal curvatures and flat feet should be noted and the necessary corrective measures begun.

The general condition of the child should be seriously and thoroughly studied. Departures from the normal in heart, lungs and kidneys may thus be found.

Study your child and try to give your doctor an intelligent inventory which may help him materially in forming conclusions. Thus many defects and incipient diseases can be corrected early.

The school scedule is so crammed that too little time is allowed for open air play. It is of the utmost importance that advantage be taken of every opportunity to be in the fresh air and sunlight. Poor appetite, constipation, irritability, and restless sleep are all frequent symptoms in the child who does not get outdoors enough.

Certain children who cannot easily adapt themselves to school suffer considerable mental stress and strain. They may be so unhappy that they become nervous and morose and exhibit emotional outbursts. Every effort should be made to get at the bottom of such a condition so that it can be corrected before serious damage has been done.

Rest is essential, particularly with the undernourished. Lack of gain in weight is, in a great measure, due to insufficient rest. An over-tired child is irritable, prone to disturbed sleep, and does not want to eat. Ten minutes' rest after lunch and a rest period before dinner is a great boon, especially to children who tire easily. Rest should not only be physical, but mental. A quiet half hour might well be a part of every child's daily regime. Over excitement is responsible for many mental and physical upsets.

Sleep is the most important form of rest. When there is unusual physical effort, cellular activity is increased, the organs function more rapidly, fatigue products are thrown off in increasing amount, and the individual tires. A child tires more quickly and needs more rest than an adult.

The boy or girl who follows a well considered arrangement of the day, so that study, meals, outdoor play, rest, and sleep each has its rightful place, bids fair to outshine the child with no such plan. This applies to all children, but with special force to the nervous or malnourished.

CHILD TRAINING

THE UNFAIRNESS OF ADULTS

Lydia Lion Roberts

The six children were sitting quietly in their seats near the front of the hall, chatting amiably and waiting for the concert to begin. They had been there almost half an hour when a woman came down the aisle and stopped at their row.

"Will you children please move over?" she said peremptorily.

The children looked up at her in surprise and then looked questioningly at one another.

"Move over so I can have this end seat," insisted the woman.

The children hesitated, but no one moved.

"Come hurry! It is almost time for the concert to begin," urged the woman. "I always have the end seat when I go anywhere, and I like this row best, so please move over."

"Aw, come on move over," a boy said, and he pushed the boy beside him. The other boys and girls followed his lead and reluctantly moved over so that the woman got the end seat.

There were three other end seats vacant across the aisle which the woman could have chosen. That row of boys and girls had come to the hall more than half an hour early to get settled in the seats they wanted, while the woman came in at the last minute.

It wasn't that the change of seats made any great difference to the children, but it must have increased their resentment at the unfairness of those adults who do as they please regardless of courtesy, and who take advantage of their years to usurp the rights of those younger. If the children had been saucy or disrespectful, the woman would have been highly indignant; if they had refused to move over she would probably have gone to some one in authority and made trouble; yet it is to be doubted if she would have dared to make her last minute request for a special seat to a row of adults.

Adults have an important responsibility toward children which many hardly seem to realize. The adults whom the children admire and respect, the ones to whom they apply "game," "fair," "square," and other adjectives of approbation, the adults according to whom they pattern their little lives are not the kind who treat children inconsiderately. The people who have the most influence over the little folks are the ones whose innate sense of justice and fairness causes them to treat the child of five or more with the same courtesy and kindness that they would another adult or that they expect and desire themselves. After all, the Bible verse does not say, "Do unto other adults only as ye would that they should do unto you."

Stories That Recall Others

A Conscientious Borrower

One morning Mrs. B. answered a knock at her kitchen door. There stood, Helen, age three, who lived in the other half of the house.

"I want to borrow a match for mother; she said that she would bring it back when the grocer boy comes," announced the child.

In a few minutes Mrs. B. was summoned to the door again. There stood Helen, holding a burned match between her thumb and finger.

"Here is your match. Many thanks. Mother did not use it at all. She was busy, so I thought I might as well bring it back to you."

Mob Psychology

Mob psychology is a funny thing. The other day two men thought they heard an airplane and stopped to stare into the heavens. Each passerby in turn would stop to stare with them and soon a good sized crowd had gathered. It reminded one of the old story about the Landsee Linns at Trafalgar square, London.

One day a man stood staring at one of these sculptured beasts and remarked that it was so lifelike he could almost imagine it moved its tail. His companion made a wager that if he whispered that aloud, he could have a crowd gathered in five minutes that would stop traffic, so they tried it.

Each one who stopped would say to the next arrival: "Stand right still and watch very carefully. Don't you see that bushy tail beginning to stir?" Soon hundreds and gathered to watch the lion's tail move.

VISAS ABOLISHED IN POLISH CORRIDOR

BERLIN, Sept. 4 (AP)—Polish visas have been abolished for all persons travelling through the Polish corridor on the two principal trains of the Dirschau-Danzig-Marienburg route, connecting with the regular Berlin-Warsaw service.

This passport alleviation was agreed upon at a joint conference at Danzig between the German and Polish authorities with the view of further facilitating traffic between Germany and Poland. It was mutually decided, however, that the regulation requiring passengers to present their passports on entry into Danzig territory remain in force.

Beware Germs In Bathtubs

Scrubbing with soap and water alone will not sterilize your bathtub, for soap cannot destroy the millions of germs that breed there. Sylphonathol in the water you use to clean it will make your tub absolutely germ-proof and easier to clean. Use the same solution to disinfect other bathroom fixtures, too. Get Sylphonathol at all dealers.

UNCASVILLE

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church hold a picnic Thursday at the home of the president, Mrs. Richard Johnson, who served a delicious scotch dinner. Twenty-three were present. Plans were made for a supper at which time Waterman P. Brown will give an exhibition of dahlias from his plot on a farm.

The W. C. T. U. will meet Sept. 8 at the home of the president, Miss Nellie J. Starr.

Pequot council No. 125 K. of C. recently held a carnival on the lot where they expect to build, the proceeds to be used toward the new building. The committee in charge was William Devine, chairman, William Driscoll, George Chagnon, Jr., Arthur Flouhr, Matthew Geary.

Milo Peters had his car stolen from Huntington street where it was parked in New London recently. It was found abandoned a few days later on Orchard street. It was undamaged.

Beginning Tuesday, September 13 the Raymond branch library is to be open during the noon hour.

OBITUARY

Peter H. Steffenson

Peter H. Steffenson passed peacefully away Sunday afternoon at his residence on Laurel Hill road after a protracted illness.

Mr. Steffenson was born near Copenhagen, Denmark, May 31st, 1857. During his early life he served as an apprentice to a naval architect in the port of Copenhagen. At eighteen years of age he shipped from Copenhagen as a ship's carpenter and began a career of travel to many parts of the world. He spent a period of years in the tea clipper trade between New York and Japan and also spent several years in English vessels trading up the rivers of China. His travels on the high seas were identified with such famous clipper ships as the "Indus," the barkentine "Economy" the largest vessel of her kind to be built, and also the ship "Alice Roy" which latter ship made a record passage from Yokahama, Japan, via Cape Horn. Three times in his early life he was compelled to abandon vessels wrecked in mid-ocean.

In the year 1884 he entered the United States geodetic and coast survey service and was employed for a period of years on the well known "Gedney" engaged in surveying the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to the Gulf of Mexico. It was while surveying along the coast line that Mr. Steffenson first became acquainted with the city of Norwich and chose it for his future home.

He resigned from the United States service in 1887 and came to Norwich and settled on Laurel Hill road in his late residence, which he built. For twenty-two years prior to his last illness he was employed as chief engineer of the Brainard & Armstrong silk mill in the Greeneville section of the city.

Fraternally Mr. Steffenson was a master mason and a member of the local association of Stationary Engineers. He was also a member of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church.

In 1885 he was married to Alida Anderson who survives him. He also leaves two sons, Albert P. Steffenson of this city and Raymond E. Steffenson of New York city and a daughter Mrs. Abby S. Carley, formerly of the Backus hospital staff.

Mr. Steffenson was a kind and loving husband and a devoted father to his children and his always jovial disposition endeared him to many.

FUNERALS

Frederick C. Spaulding

The funeral of Frederick C. Spaulding, who died in Preston, was held Saturday morning at the funeral parlors of Undertaker C. A. Gager. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, conducted the service and burial took place in the City cemetery on Oak street. Rev. Mr. Ricketts conducted the service at the grave. Friends acted as bearers. Relatives and friends were present and there were numerous and beautiful floral tributes.

For many years Mr. Spaulding was a baker in this city, having been in the employ of the late Mrs. Maria Robinson. In later years he lived a retired life and was employed as caretaker in the Steiner hall building where he had an apartment. Over a year ago he was seriously injured when he was hit by an automobile one Saturday night as he was crossing Main street near the Steiner building and since then he has been in the Backus hospital and the Norwich state hospital.

SMALL BOY SUFFOCATED IN FIRE AT OAK GROVE BEACH SUNDAY

Ralph S. Wolfe, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen C. Wolfe, formerly of New London, but now residing at Oak Grove beach, between Crescent beach and Black Point, was suffocated Sunday afternoon in a fire at his parents' home, where his body was found in a bed room after the Niantic fire department had extinguished the flames.

The cottage was discovered to be afire about 1 o'clock, the flames having started upstairs and making great headway. As there were no fire fighting facilities the Niantic fire department was summoned, making a three mile run with about 25 men under command of Chief Charles Tubbs. When they arrived the upper part of the house was a roaring furnace, but they ran a line of hose to a pond nearby and working half an hour had the fire practically out. The blaze was confined to the upper part of the house which was badly damaged.

During the excitement attending the discovery of the outbreak of the fire, it was some time before it was discovered that the little boy was missing. As soon as the firemen could enter the house they made their way upstairs where the little boy's body was found under a bureau where he had evidently crawled to escape the flames, which, however had reached his face. Dr. John F. O'Brien of the Seaside sanatorium was present when the body was recovered, but there was nothing that could be done to save the boy's life as he had apparently been dead some time, in the opinion of the doctor. The body was taken in charge by a New London undertaker.

How the fire started is not known, but the upper part of the house was extensively damaged.

DANGER IN STEPPING FROM BEHIND AUTOMOBILES

That pedestrians should be careful when stepping onto travelled highways from in front or from behind standing vehicles is emphasized in a statement prepared by the state motor vehicle department which shows that twenty-three were killed and 530 injured in such accidents last year. Children were particularly unfortunate in this type of accident. Their heedlessness or inattention on the part of car drivers resulted in the death of twelve and injuries to 351 others.

Only one other type of accident in which pedestrians figured caused more injuries than the practice of darting into traffic from the end of parked vehicles. During the year 2349 pedestrians were struck by motor vehicles while crossing the streets and highways included among the victims were 1091 children.

More children were involved in all types of "pedestrian" accidents than adults, 1719 children being injured, as compared with 1765 adults. Coasting and playing in the streets resulted in death or injury for 189 children, 94 were hurt while coasting with sleds or scooters and roller skating and 95 while at other play.

Thirty-two children were injured two fatally while stealing rides, and this pastime also accounted for injuries to four adults. Forty-eight pedestrians were hit while standing on sidewalks by cars which jumped the curbs while momentarily out of control. Twenty of the victims were children.

Fewer head-on collisions between automobiles were reported than any other type of accident in which one vehicle was engaged with another. Collisions in which the front of one vehicle struck the side of another were most numerous, there being 5,229. "Side-swiping" resulted in 3,335 accidents, there were 3,507 rear-end collisions and 1,535 head-on accidents.

Trolley cars and motor vehicles were frequently opposed in accidents during the year. 1,121 crashes occurring between such vehicles. Motor vehicles were in forty-seven collisions with railroad trains, in each case while the train was moving. Bicycles figured in 349 accidents, horse-drawn vehicles in 330, parked cars in 2,151, and poles, trees, hydrants, bridges and other stationary objects in 1,882.

Getting on or off a motor vehicle is not looked upon as hazardous, usually, but sixty-two persons were injured while boarding or leaving their cars last year. In most cases the vehicles were moving at the time of the accidents, but a number of persons were hurt while the cars were standing.

Many other motor vehicle accidents were reported in which there were no collisions. These include 371 overturned cars, forty-three which ran into ditches or water, forty-three damaged by fire, and accidents to five persons while cranking cars.

GIVEN $200 FINE FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

Found guilty of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, John Flaherty, New London, was fined $200 and costs in the city court Saturday morning. Friday afternoon he took a Chrysler sedan owned by George C. Sullivan of No. 49 Warren street, from in front of a local store and a few minutes later ran into a machine owned by the Plaut-Cadden Co. He was arrested by Officer Michael Carroll. He gave his name as George Morgan at police headquarters but the police learned his real name.

Flaherty came to Norwich with Mr. Sullivan. While Mr. Sullivan was in a store on business Flaherty proceeded to become intoxicated. Sullivan thought the machine had been stolen, when he found it gone and went to police headquarters to report the matter. There he learned what had become of the machine.

HIT AND RUN DRIVER STRIKES JOHN AMBURN

John F. Amburn of 190 Laurel Hill avenue, well known painter, is a patient at the William W. Backus hospital suffering from a severe laceration of the left leg, as the result of being struck about 11 o'clock Sunday evening on Laurel Hill avenue by a hit and run driver. The accident occurred near his home, as he was crossing the street.

Dr. Paul F. Gadie was summoned and he had the injured man taken to the hospital, where the wound in his left leg was treated, five stitches being required to close it. It is expected that he will remain at the hospital for several days. The local police were called and an investigation is being made to ascertain the identity of the driver of the machine, if possible.

FEDERAL OFFICERS MADE RAID IN TAFTVILLE

Theodore LaBarre and Alfred H. Napoleon of Taftville, arrested Friday on a charge of violation of the liquor law were presented before U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson who continued the cases until September 7th. Both men are out on bonds.

They were arrested Friday afternoon in a raid on the Rock Water Soda Co., No. 72 Hunter's avenue by Stanton L. Briggs, Harry W. Avery, E. F. Raffile and John A. Holtz, federal prohibition agents. The raid revealed 80 cases of alleged beer, 150 gallons of beer mash, two 50 gallon barrels of beer, malt, mash, oil stoves, boilers, capping machine and other equipment.

PAYS $25 FINE ON RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

At the Saturday morning session of the city court Colin E. Turner of Preston City was fined $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving. He was arrested Friday night after the machine he was driving hit Agnes Gronski, 12, on North Main street and dragged her about 100 feet before the machine stopped. Several witnesses testified that the machine was traveling at a fast rate. Turner admitted the machine was going 30 miles an hour.

The first golf tournament for the national amateur championship ever played west of the Mississippi river was held at the St. Louis Country club in 1921.

BROADWAY THEATER HAS SPLENDID RE-OPENING

The long awaited re-opening of the Broadway theatre, now one of the finest in the state, took place Saturday evening. A brief formal program marked the opening night, Mayor Milo R. Waters, Chief Howard L. Stanton and prominent theatrical men being among the speakers. Just before the show was started Manager Wolfsohn of the Palace theatre introduced as the master of ceremonies, Mr. Eldridge, junior member of the theatrical firm of Eldridge and Levenson. In introducing Mr. Eldridge, Manager Wolfsohn spoke of him as the youngest chain theatre owner in the country.

Mr. Eldredge spoke of the dilapidated condition of the theatre when they started to remodel and redecorate it and told of the large amount of work that was necessary to convert it to its present splendid condition. Mr. Eldridge presented Mr. Levenson and he told of the many difficulties that confronted the company in the remodeling. He spoke of the fine co-operation given by Contractor Archibald Torrance, the O'Neil Electric Co., J. A. Fitzgerald, and other firms which did the actual work. He also spoke of the excellent work of Charles E. Lewis who helped outline the changes and design the theater.

Mayor Milo R. Waters briefly addressed the audience and during the course of his remarks said that he is glad to have the theater reopened. The mayor spoke of previous openings of the theater and told of a number of well known theatrical men and women who have in days passed appeared on the Broadway stage. Chief Howard L. Stanton of the local fire department also made a brief address.

Following the formal opening exercises the first show, in the new theater was started, the feature picture being Firemen Save My Child, with the famous comedians, Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in the leading roles. The added attraction was "The Elegy" based on the famous musical composition. The Broadway concert orchestra provided a splendid program for the accompaniment of the pictures. The theatre management received numerous congratulations and huge and beautiful floral bouquets from their many friends. Frank Brett is the theater manager.

The Broadway is really a new theater. The four walls of the building are about all that remain of the old theatre. The lobby is spacious and colorful and the walls are finished in a glaze antiqued hue. The display frames are of burnished gold with blue velour backgrounds. A beautiful ornamental iron and crystal fixture is suspended from the ceiling. The terrazzo floor is laid in checker board style, black and pink. The marquee and signs are on a parrallel with those found in Boston, Chicago and New York theatres. The name Broadway has been worked out in script on either side and in block letters across the front. The ceiling has been paneled in squares and will hold hundreds of electric bulbs.

The promenade is inclosed in silken damask and hanging from the ceiling are two large Spanish lanterns. Leading from the promenade are two stairways to the balconies. Rich thick carpets have been laid all over the theatre and throughout is an atmosphere of Spain.

The ladies' room has been designed and furnished in the most modern style. It is finished in apple green with crystal fixtures and brackets. It is furnished with a large mohair suite, overstuffed size, a vanity dresser, with three mirrors and bench, a full length door mirror and there are framed pictures and mitre cut mirrors on the walls.

The smoking room is a duplicate of the leading millionaires club in New York. The walls are finished in craftex and painted brown. The ceiling is paneled in beam style and the floor of tile, with 9-inch squares of tan and brown with dark brown border. Smokadors and ash trays are within easy reach of the chairs. Sport prints in walnut frames adorn the walls. The lavatory is finished in ivory white.

The new seating plan affords an unobstructed view of the stage from all seats. All new chairs, richly upholstered, have been installed. The heating plant is modern with a new oil burning system operated from thermostats in the auditorium where the temperature is controlled at all times. An auxiliary to this system has been installed so that on particularly severe winter days it will be possible to blow heated air into the theater through ducts. Every modern appliance for safety has been installed.

A new fireproof roof has been built, new panic bolts have been put on the fire-escape doors, an asbestos ceiling has ben constructed in the smoking and toilet rooms, the sprinkler system has been constructed in the smoking guishers are to be found in all parts of the building. The lighting of the theater proper is from special flametint bulbs. Local contractors and mechanics were employed throughout the entire construction work which was started last June.

GREASE WAS SMOKING IN LUNCH CART

The fire department received and oral call at 8:09 o'clock Saturday evening for a supposed fire in the New Wayside lunch cart on Franklin street owned by Angelio Covello and operated by James Ellis. The place had been closed for the evening and a window in the door had to be groken by the firemen in order to gain entrance to the building. The firemen found a quantity of grease smoking on the stove. No chemical was used. Engine 1, Squad A and the deputy chief responded.

BABY CUT BY GLASS IN SOUTH ATTLEBORO CRASH

A sedan driven by Dominic O. Tromontizzi of 214 Franklin street, this city, tipped over Saturday morning when it came in collision with a truck leaving a service station at Mendon road, South Attleboro. The truck was driven by Joseph Pichard of 108 Margaret street, Pawtucket. Mrs. Tromontizzi and her 18-months-old daughter, Susie, were in the car. The baby was cut about the face by glass from the windshield and was taken to the Pawtucket Memorial hospital for treatment. The driver and his wife were bruised and received minor cuts. The left wheele mudguard and all the glass in the car were smashed. The truck and its driver escaped unharmed.

WIDELY KNOWN SURGEON AND DENTIST FOUND DEAD

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 4—(AP)—Dr. Harold L. Smith; 39, widely known oral surgeon and dentist, was found dead in his office at 704 Congress street today. Death was ascribed to a clot of blood in the lungs. He was an honor student of the dental school of the University of Pennsylvania.

As an oral surgeon, Dr. Smith had a wide practice. He was the author of various articles on oral surgery which appeared in many dental and medical magazines and was a member of the Maine State and New England Dental societies. He was president of the Maine society in 1923 and was librarian of the New England society.

SEES UNIVERSAL LEISURE "WHEN ATOM IS SPLIT"

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP)—In half a century or so hardly anyone will have any work to do, says Dr. Percy Buck, professor of music in the University of London.

"In 50 years from now every human being will have a vast amount of leisure on his hands," explained Dr. Buck, to the university teachers attending the summer vacation lecture course.

"If once an atom is split—and this is bound to happen in a certain number of years—there will be no need for coal, gas, electric light, steam or anything else like that. Think of it! We will be able to run a train from London to Edinburgh for half a penny, and to light the whole of London or New York for less than one single penny."

FAILS TO RECOGNIZE WOMEN OF HIS PARISH

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP)—The Rev. A. Cuming, vicar of Addleston Parish, is in hot water because he cannot recognize the women members of his congregation. He has issued an appeal through the parish magazine.

"Not long ago I called upon one of my parishioners in the afternoon and visited with her for about 15 minutes," the vicar says. "An hour later I passed her in the road and did not know her."

"A woman indoors with her hat off is to me an entirely different person from what she is out of doors with her hat on. It is the same with girls. The instant they leave school they seem to me to be completely transmogrified, and I can recognize them no more."

ENGLAND'S BIRTH RATE AT LOWEST MARK

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP)—The birth-rate in England and Wales has now fallen below that of France. With the exception of Sweden, it is the lowest of the principal European countries, according to the Registrar-General.

The birth-rate for 1926, was 17.8 per 1,000 population. Excepting the rate of 17.7 in 1918, the last year of the war, which at that time was regarded as phenomenally low, that for 1926 is the lowest recorded since the establishment of civil registration in this country.

In view of the continued decline during the first half of the current year, it is probable that the rate for 1927 will be lower than that for 1918.

RICE GRASS PROTECTS ENGLISH COASTS

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Sea-walls of England are being protected and acres of land reclaimed from the sea through the planting of rice grass.

Rice-grass was discovered at Southhampton in 1870. It is not only of high value for pasturage, but it collects the mud, and thus raises the foreshore inch by inch. It spreads rapidly both by seeing and by growth of roots.

Plants are being exported to all parts of the world. A recent consignment was sent to Tasmania.

DOG RACING CHANGES LONDON NIGHT LIFE

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Greyhound racing, all the go in London just now, has completely altered the night life of the city. Since the sport became so popular at the White City, where an evening's contest is often witnessed by 80,000 to 100,000 persons, London may be said to dine four times at night.

First there are the theater-goers who take their meals at 6:30 or thereabouts so as to have time before going to the play. Immediately afterward appear the leisurely dancers who dine from 8:30 on. After the dancers come the "dog dinners," as they are called, these coming after the evening races are over, and just before the after-theater crowds begin to arrive for supper.

Cafe managers say there has not been such a definitely new meal-time since theater suppers were introduced in London years ago.

PHOTOGRAPHERS DEPLORE CHANGING STYLES

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Fashions in faces are changing too fast to suit London art photographers.

"Many women want to change their type every few months and expect us to make photographs of them which are artistic," declared one Mayfair photographer in despair. "Why, if some of my customers retain their grandchildren the poor descendants will find they had a different looking grandmother every few months.

"One month customers will come in made up as orange women, with faces made up to give them the appearance of Spanish women. They next appear done up in powders of pastel shades, with their hair drsesed so as to give an entirely different cast of countenance. Eyes are altered from month to month, mouths are dyed into different shapes, noses are altered by the tricks of color and their figures are recast through the skill of Paris modists."

BUYS RARE BOOK FOR SIX CENTS

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP)—A copy of Hocus Pocus, the oldest book of magic in English, was found recently by a stage hand on a second-hand bookstall and bought it for six cents.

The book is nearly 200 years old.

Only six copies of Hocus Pocus are in existence, three in this country and three in America. Of the other two copies in England, one is in the strong box of the Magic Circle, and the other in Jasper Maskelyne's library of 53 volumes of magical literature.

DIES FROM INJURIES WHEN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE IN JEWETT CITY

(Special to the Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 4. — Fred Campbell, about 70, of Bayonne, N. J., died Sunday night shortly before 11.30 o'clock at the W. W. Backus hospital, Norwich, as the result of injuries received when he was hit by an automobile in Jewett City while walking home from church, two hours earlier. His brother, Emery, who was walking with him, was also knocked down and injured. The latter is a patient at the hospital and at midnight was reported as resting comfortably.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve was notified of the man's death and will probably hold an inquest this (Monday) morning.

The two brothers were crossing the street at the junction of North Main and Lenox streets, when they were hit by a machine driven by Jerome Gareaux of 295 Ohio avenue, Providence. The driver did not stop but put on speed to get away. Supernumerary Officer Alfred Bacon, who happened to be sitting on steps nearby, heard the crash, saw the machine beat it, and commandeered Charles Barber to catch the car, which he did at Gills' gas station. The injured men were taken to the hospital in the ambulance and Mr. Gareaux and his wife were held without bonds to await the outcome of the accident. Officer Henry Vegiard, Deputy Sheriff Dolan and two state policemen investigated the case.

Fred Campbell had come to Jewett City to visit his brother, Emery, a resident here, where Fred also resided, and at one time worked in a gun shop in Norwich.

Mr. Campbell's wife, Ella Willcox, a native of Jewett City, died some years ago. Mr. Campbell leaves one son, Howard Campbell, of Bayonne, N. J., and two brothers, Emery and Oscar Campbell of Jewett City.

FIGURES SHOW GERMANS DRINK MORE BEER

BERLIN, Sept. 4 (AP)—The 16,491 breweries of the Fatherland are working full time and Germans are drinking more beer than ever.

The latest statistics indicate annual consumption of nearly 20 gallons per capita, which is about 25 per cent higher than consumption the previous year.

Figures show that since the stabilization of the mark beer exports have declined steadily. The importation of Pilsener from Czechoslovakia and even of English ale and stout has risen. On the other hand, the consumption of "Schnaps" in all its varieties seems to be on the wane.

Beer tax and excise yielded about $65,000,000 in the last fiscal year. Spirits produced approximately $46,500,000.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"FIREMEN, SAVE MY CHILD" THIRD IN ROW FOR COMICS!

They've gone and done it again, those two unbeatable laugh-provokers—Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton.

In fact, they've stepped out and suppressed their two previous efforts by a wide margin.

"Firemen, Save My Child" the third of the Beery-Hatton pictures, looks as though it were destined to go down in film history as one of the greatest comedies of 1927. It will surely rank among the foremost farces of all time.

What they did in the uniforms of the army in "Behind the Front" and the navy in "We're in the Navy Now" was but a forerunner of the riot they cause in the blue of the fire fighters.

"It's doubtful if anyone will emerge from the new Broadway theatre where the new Beery-Hatton opens for a five days' run, ending Wednesday night, without aching sides.

When these two comedy stars first appeared together in "Behind the Front" they were a sensation. In "We're in the Navy Now" they took a stride forward, but in "Firemen, Save My Child" their team work seems to have ripened by experience. They have attained something so outstanding that it would scarcely be possible for them to surpass it.

Beery and Hatton again appear in misfit uniforms, without which it would be difficult to picture them, and the uproar they cause in a perfectly nice young fire department, as they "do their stuff" on fire trucks, with hoses, desperately fighting flames, or just as desperately wallowing in mud to rescue the chief's daughter is one long laugh to the final fadeout.

The picture is not merely a string of "gags." It is a well-defined plot with excruciating comedy situations each moment provoking new shouts.

Tom Kennedy is back with the team again. The hard-boiled non-com who made life so miserable for them in the previous pictures, continues to harass them, this time as the fire captain. He makes a splendid foil for Beery and Hatton.

Josephine Dunn, a beautiful young blonde, scores heavily as the fire chief's daughter, the object of the two comedians' romantic interest. Joseph Girard, another veteran of the team's previous pictures, is the fire chief. Water Goss does nicely in a juvenile role.

Edward Sutherland, the director and Monty Brice, scenarist and comedy constructor, who were responsible for comedies, have again created a great work. All in all "Firemen Save My Child" is a picture that no one can afford to miss.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY BUSINESS REVIEW

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—(AP)—Although ere were no conspicuous movements reward in general business during e past week, a general feeling of nfortable optimism seemed to prevail. The approach of the autumn season, to which the various industries ve been looking as the turning point doubtedly had some subtle effect on timent, while tangible reports, such a 4 per cent increase in U. S. Steel erations and improvement in the otor trade were outstanding factors. spottiness continued to be the main haracteristic of most surveys of commercial activity during the week, with e general run of business still lagging behind last year's records.

Steel, with reported increased buying and predictions that the U. S. Steel rporation's tonnage statement would ow a favorable trend among the ore encouraging items. Steel prices ere virtually "pegged" at last week's vels.

Freight car loadings continued to crease, and were less than 15,000 cars hind figures for the corresponding ek of 126. This is the nearest approach to last year's record that has en made since spring. During the mmer the difference has been dededly in favor of 126, the average nning around 50,000 cars. Although ily operating income of most railads again fell a long way under last ar, belief was held in many quarrs that the movement of crops in e fall would help materially in closg the gap between 1927 and 1926.

Record production in August was ported by several of the large autoobile manufacturers. This industry ossesses a feeling of optimism when oking ahead to the autumn, based rgely on the belief that retail trade ll pick up sharply when the uncerainty created by the imminence of ew models has been cleared away.

The oil situation presented a somehat more favorable outlook. A meaure has been attained in the Seminole eld which has caused deep worry mong petroleum producers for onths. Voluntary efforts to limit oduction to a volume considered reaonable have had their effect. West exas, another potential trouble maker, is now under close scrutiny, and perators in that region are in the idst of preparation of plans to prent as much as possible a recurrence f the flood created by runaway flow a Seminole.

Steadily increasing sales by mail order houses and chain stores have made hares of such businesses favorites on e various stock exchanges, and many bservers are disposed to believe that eir presage excellnt trail trade in the ll season. Commodity prices on the hole have exhibited gratifying stacility, although here and there some arked changes have taken place, noably in cotton, cotton fabrics and ides. The dry goods trade reported ncreasing expansion reflecting the arly appearance of fall buying.

Despite a rather heavy drain caused y end-of-the-month requirements and n increasing demand for commercial ans, there has been no strain on the money market. Call money was available all week at low rates, and little hange was noted in time money or ommercial paper rates.

Bank clearings were well above the igures for both the preceding week nd the corresponding six days of last ear.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Elsred Godere of Pratt avenue are in Brooklyn, N. Y., to attend the wedding of Mrs. Godere's son, Alfred Norman, formerly of Taftville.

Alexander Boileau is confined to his home on South B street by an injury to his foot.

Earle M. Wood, Mahlon E. Wood and Peter Lukoff of North Third avenue are spending a few days at Gardner lake.

At the Sunday morning service of the Taftville Congregational church, the pastor Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis took for his theme, "A Pleasant Reality." This was the first service for the re-opening of the church which has been closed during August while the pastor Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdion. In the evening there was a meeting of the members of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor in the church vestry. It was a consecration meeting and the leader was Robert B. Schmidt. The topic dealt with was "The Use and Abuse of the Tongue." The church school will resume its session next Sunday.

James Carter of the Hunter road, Curtis Hedler of Terrace avenue, Reginald Monty of Riverside grove and Hartwell Zuerner of Maennerchor avenue are at Gardner lake.

Richard Oat of North A street is at Gardner lake.

NORWICH TOWN

Having been the guest of Norwich friends on a delightful motor trip through the New England states, extending over a period of three weeks, Mrs. Henry Wagner, returned recently to her home at Norwich Town. The objective was Ellsworth, Maine, where she was the guest of Mrs. Isaac Hodgskins. Over 1,000 miles was covered through picturesque mountains and valleys. Touring through the Green Mountains, and a visit to Sea Lamoine springs were among the many interesting features. On one mountain ascended, upon reaching its summit, at the conclusion of that route, Mrs. Wagner was informed that she was as high as she could get, unless she went up into the clouds.

State Supervising Agent of Schools James F. Connolly and Mrs. Connolly, have taken up their residence in the former Harland mansion on Sentry Hill, Norwich Town, having moved their household furnishings Thursday from Saybrook. Their daughter, Miss Margaret Connolly will arrive in Norwich Sunday.

Rev. G. H. Bacheler, of Liguiere, Indiana, paid a surprise visit to Norwich relatives this week, having been the guest for several days of his sister, Miss Mary E. Bacheler, at the homestead on East Town street.

About 25 Endeavorers participated in the treasure hunt and corn roast at the home of Crosby Peck, Otrobando avenue, Wednesday evening. Under the auspices of the Congregational Y. P. S. C. E., the affair proved most enjoyable. The social committee, Reginald Avery chairman, had charge of arrangements. Leaving the chapel, various notes were concealed in a number of locations each notifying the searchers for the trophy where to go next. After scouring around for some time it was finally located under a certain tree, where it was necessary to dig deep to find it. The winner of the prize, a box of candy, was Miss Elinor Moore.

Following this, the company adjourned to the Peck grounds, where on the hill at the rear, a fire was built and there was a corn roast with hot dogs and rolls, marshmallows and coffee. Singing and sociability concluded the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Peck had as dinner guests Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Will Peck and Andrew Tower, of East Haddam, also Misses Annie and Rose Smith, of Colchester, sisters of Mrs. Peck.

State Supervising Agent William B. Floyd, Mrs. Floyd and three children, of East Great Plain, expect to move today (Sunday) to Norwich Town, having taken an apartment in the Harland mansion.

Mr. and Mrs. William Young returned recently to their home on McClellan avenue, concluding nearly a month's visit at the former home of Mr. Young, visiting among his relatives.

The household furnishings of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kinney, were moved Wednesday from Providence to 12 Town street, Norwich Town.

The latest news received from Rev. Edward Huntington Smith, in China, is that now he is in the hills, where it is cooler than on the plains at this time of the year. No work is possible at his former station in Ing-Hok, so his headquarters is at Foochow, where he is senior missionary. His especial work is that of Dr. Beard, who with others from Foochow, is in this country on furlough.

Mrs. Fremont Vergason of Vergason avenue is visiting her brother in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Goring of Julian Terrace moved the first of the month to the former Sheltering Arms house, Harland road.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson who have been at Best View this summer moved last week to Mrs. Dunderdale's apartment on Harland road.

Mrs. Robert Dunderdale and daughter Miss Elizabeth Dunderdale of Harland road are at the Wigwam, at Pleasant View, R. I., for an outing.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith and son Albert of Brooklyn, Conn., have moved to Norwich Town and are occupying an apartment in Joseph Schwenk's house on the New London turnpike.

The first fall meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the First Methodist Episcopal church, is to be held at the home of the president, Mrs. William Weaver, Huntington Green, Tuesday afternoon.

MACHINE STRUCK POLE, FENCE AND GAS PUMP ON NORTH MAIN STREET

Several automobile accidents Saturday and Sunday made up the week end record of motor vehicle difficulties in the city of which the most spectacular was what was reported to be a drive down North Main street by Joseph P. Gadle, Jr., of 196 Hickory street, which ended when the machine hit a gasoline pump and turned over. Officer Peter Vuono, who was pursuing the Gadle machine in another which he had commandeered arrived after the car had turned over on its side and found Mr. Gadle still behind the wheel, it was reported. With the assistance of Charles O. Mueller, he took the driver out and placed him under arrest on the charge of driving while intoxicated. Mr. Gadle secured bonds after he had been brought to police headquarters in the motor patrol wagon driven by Officer Patrick Shahan.

Mr. Gadle's drive began about 8.15 o'clock above Sixth street, it was reported, and when he reached a point near the filling station of Charles O. Mueller, his machine veered over to the left side of the street, took a splinter off a telephone pole, struck a fence and then knocked over a gasoline pump at Mueller's station.

Two machines that were parked on North Main street, near Sixth street, were reported to have been hit by a passing automobile about the time that Gadle's car came along each having damaged mud guards, but the drivers were not able to state that it was Gadle's car which hit theirs. These were the machines of Joseph Fraser of 290 Hamilton avenue and Andrew Zysk of 17 Carpenter street. Mr. Fraser had his side injured and was attended by Dr. Paul F. Gadle.

Geoffrey J. L. Levesque of West Warwick, R. I., had a charge of reckless driving made against him by Officer Lamphere after the Rhode Island man's car had been struck on Thames street by the New London-Norwich trolley car due in Franklin square at 7.45 Saturday night. The Rhode Island man who was driving towards New London steered his machine from the right to the left side of the street and was obliged to come to a sudden stop because of a parked machine ahead of him. Harold Talbot was motorman and Israel Chaput motorman on the trolley car.

When Levesque was brought to police headquarters, it was found that he had a proper driver's license, but the car registration was for 1925 in the name of Joseph Dimeo of 75 Westminster street. Levesque claimed that he was employed by Dimeo, but the cars waas aaaaaaaaaaaETAOINNNN car was held here as it was without a 1927 registration certificate and Levesque was charged with driving without registration.

Automobiles driven by Herbert W. Hummell of 34 Mulberry street and John J. Redpath of 168 Summer street, Franklin, Mass., were in collision on Sunday afternoon at the corner of Shetucket and Water streets. Each driver reported the damage to his machine at about $15.

HUNTINGTON REUNION ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Continuation of the Huntington family reunion began at 9:30 Saturday morning when the members of the family re-assembled at the old First Congregational church on Norwich Town green. The session was opened with music by Huntington composers, rendered by Mrs. Lois Huntington Whaley, violinist, and Miss Katherine Huntington of New York city at the piano. The report of the treasurer, Robert Huntington of Hartford, showed steady growth in prosperity and in numbers since the last reunion five years ago in Norwich Town.

Professor Ellsworth Huntington of Yale university made a brilliant address outlining his research in the vital statistics of the family in contrast with the development intellect, religion, etc., of the entire community. The elements in the family that persist, generation after generation, are worthy of scientific study, he said, as his new book "Builders of America" will show, when issued late this month.

Response to the honor roll showed that five of those present Saturday attended the first Huntington reunion seventy years ago.

E. T. Huntington of Cleveland, Ohio, Anita de Leon, Mrs. Caleandro, Mrs. Thomas and Miss Helen Donalson played solos. Dean Hurlburt of Harvard reported for the nominating committee.

New officers were elected for the coming five years, as follows: President, Dr. James Lincoln Huntington of Boston; vice presidents, Mrs. Edith Huntington Wilson; John Perit Huntington, William Fallows; secretary, Rev. Walker Cutter of Charlestown, Massachusetts; treasurer, Robert W. Huntington of Hartford.

The new president took the chair and called for the singing of "Oh God, Our Help in Ages Past."

Bishop Coles, of Central New York, pronounced the benediction and the meeting adjourned to the parish house for luncheon, served by the Wauregan house.

A drive to Lebanon, visits to historic graves in the ancient burying ground and inspection of the old Huntington houses in Norwich Town filled the afternoon until the visiting Huntingtons set out for home, north, south, east and west.

MYSTIC ARTIST'S PICTURES DISPLAY LOCAL SCENES

With 28 paintings on exhibit, J. Eliot Enneking of Boston and Mystic has placed before the art lovers of the eastern part of the state many local scenes on canvas. Many of his offerings are of natural spots of beauty in the vicinity of Mystic, Noank and Stonington.

One of the favorite subjects of the artist is that of Potter's Wharf at Noank and of which Mr. Enneking treats. The two old houses in Grave street, Mystic, also are among the array; also the Baptist church at Noank.

Among the subjects on display are: The Spendthrift, Grey Day, Potter's Dock, Noank, Homeward Bound, The Dory, The Old Hulk, Cosy Cottage, September Afternoon on the Mystic River, The Duck Pond, A July Morning, The Brook in Winter, Snow on Mt. Kearsage, The Sassafras Tree, Late Afternoon, Gloucester, The Spire, Noank, The Red Shed, Afternoon Lights, Mystic Village, Woodland Brook, Along the Shore, Reflections, Partners of the Tide, Summer Clouds, The Village Church, Stepping Stones, Noank Docks, Autumn in the Mountains.

ST. PATRICK'S SCHOOL TERM TO OPEN WITH SPECIAL MASS

The rector of St. Patrick's parish, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May announced to the congregations at the four masses Sunday that the parish school would begin the term and year Tuesday, Sept. 6th. Pupils will assemble in the church under supervision of their teachers, the Sisters of Mercy to attend a special mass at 8 o'clock that morning, to invoke God's blessing on the new school year.

New pupils are to meet the principal at the school this (Monday) morning at 10 o'clock.

Sunday school in the parish will resume sessions the coming Sunday, after the summer suspension.

From now on, there will be daily instruction in the parish school for those children who are being prepared, in a large class, to receive the sacrament of confirmation from the bishop, Sunday, Oct. 16th. Candidates who do not attend the parish school will be instructed every Sunday and on special days of the week to be announced. Since spring, this preparation has been in progress, that the children may be well grounded in the conditions requisite for proper reception of this sacrament, with its seven-fold gifts of the Holy Ghost.

It was stated that a priest of the Order of Passionists is to come to Norwich to preach throughout a novena, or nine days' devotion in honor of St. Therese, the "little flower of Jesus", from Sept. 22nd to 30th.

At the 7.30 mass Sunday a large number of the members of the Children of Mary society, Miss Loretta Bellefleur president, received holy communion, two priests being required to administer the Eucharist. At 9, Rev. John J. Reilly assisted Rev. Myles P. Galvin in giving communion to the large number of penitents. The day was the thirteenth Sunday after Pentecost, the epistle read in all the masses throughout the world being Galatians 3. 16-22 and the gospel Luke 17. 11-19—the cleansing of the ten lepers.

The rector expressed his obligations to all who had aided in making the parish lawn party such a success, beginning, he said, with his two able assistants. As certain of the bills are not in yet, the exact amount cleared was not stated; but it is in excess of the sum netted last year.

COLCHESTER TO MOVE SCOTT HILL SCHOOLHOUSE

The moving of the Colchester school house located in the Scott Hill district to a site on the old Norwich road, two miles away, and an addition to the school located in Westchester at a cost not to exceed $2,000 was voted at a town meeting at Colchester Thursday at which Charles F. Brown presided and about 200 voters attended. The sum of $1,500 was appropriated to cover the cost of moving the school building, which is a frame structure built a few years ago at a cost of $3,500.

The action was taken in an effort to relieve the crowded condition existing in the town because of the abandonment of the Scott Hill section as a residential section following the conversion of that place into a protected area around the Norwich reservoir. The closing of the section resulted in the city of Norwich giving the town of Colchester the sum of $3,500 to pay for the loss of its money invested in the school and accordingly the cost of moving the Scott Hill school and building an addition to the Westchester school will not cost the town any money.

The town meeting was opened by First Selectman C. A. Kramer. John Condren was elected clerk, and Mr. Brown chairman. Speakers at the meeting included the Rev. P. J. Mooney, James Purcell, C. A. Kramer and Julius Sulton.

Work on moving the Scott Hill school and constructing the addition to the Westchester school will be started as soon as possible. The Scott Hill school has been closed for the past year due to its distant location from settled parts of the town.

PRESTON IS READY FOR SCHOOL YEAR

A meeting of the town school committee of Preston was held at the home of Mrs. Appleton Maine, the chairman, on Thursday evening.

All members were present, also Mr. Connolly, the new supervisor. It was voted that all pupils who desired to attend the Norwich Free Academy should be required to furnish a certificate signed by the secretary of the committee. Every school building has been thoroughly cleaned and repairs made where necessary. A new heater has been installed in the Poquetanuck school. All teachers who taught in the town last year will return the coming year including, Miss Frances Kingsberger, the school nurse.

Returned from Motor Trip

Mr. and Mrs. George Conrad of 211 Palmer street and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gardner and two sons, Conrad and Vernon, of 33 Thirteenth street, have returned from a motor trip through Massachusetts and Vermont, having been the guests for three days of Mr. Gardner's brother, Frank Hempstead, of Hindsberg Valley, West Brattleboro, Vt., and returning over the Mohawk Trail.

VACATIONISTS MUST NOT ABANDON THEIR CATS

The following was received by Frederic H. Wayne, district agent for Norwich-New London territory, with branch office at 24 Town street, Norwich Town:

In order to make it known that abandoning dogs and cats is contrary to law the Connecticut Humane society is placarding the state with posters announcing that the society will pay a reward of $20 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person cruelly abandoning any dog or cat or other animal.

Every year as the vacationists return from the shore and other resorts the society receives many complaints of cats and dogs being left behind. It is suggested that trouble may be avoided by the individual and suffering by the animal by notifying the agent of the society in Norwich of any sick or stray animals so that they may be mercifully disposed of.

Caucuses for Sterling

(Special to The Bulletin).

ONECO, Conn., Sept. 4—Both parties hold their caucuses for town officers this week and present indications are that more voters will be out than ever before. Chairman I. E. Frink has called the republican for Thursday night, and Chairman Georgiana Mowrey set Saturday afternoon as the date for the democratic gathering. There are many new voters to be made this year but they are out of luck as far as caucuses go as the new voters will have no voice, not being enrolled as voters until after the caucus dates.

Visitors to the country Sunday brought back the first of the delicate white clematis.

THIEF LIFTS $50 FROM COFFEE URN IN A NEW LONDON RESTAURANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 4—The Atlantic restaurant, Bank street, received the attention of thieves this morning, for between the time that the restaurant was closed and its being opened for business, $50 was stolen. The restaurant was closed at 3:45 o'clock and opened again at 4:30 o'clock. It was then discovered that entrance had been gained, when the money was missing. The police were notified of the break and Sergeant John Cavanaugh, who made an investigation, determined that entrance was gained by removing a screen from an open side-window. The money was taken from a coffee urn evidently by some one who had knowledge of the money having been deposited there.

PERMITTED TO TELEPHONE, SAILORS STOLE A WATCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 4—Robert Sullivan, 35 Walbach street, made complaint to the police Saturday night that he had been robbed of his watch, a Waltham time piece and that one of two sailors was guilty of the theft. Sullivan said that the two sailors went to his home and requested permission to use a telephone. While Sullivan was absent from the room where the telephone was located one of the sailors took the watch and its theft was not discovered until after the bluejackets had left.

COLLISION DUE TO THE FOG—YONKERS WOMAN INJURED

(Special to The Bulletin).

NEW LONDON, Sept. 4—An automobile driven by Carl Scrader, of Yonkers, N. Y., in which were his wife and son, collided with an unidentified automobile on the New Haven turnpike, about five miles outside of the city Saturday night. Mrs. Schrader was cut by broken glass and because of her injuries Schrader did not stop, but continued to New London, where his wife was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital for treatment. Schrader made a report of the accident to the state police. He said the crash was caused by a dense fog.

NORWICH MEN'S OUTING ENDS IN LOCAL HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 4—Daniel Levy, 89 Market street, Norwich and Charles Bultacadoil, 37 West Main street, also Norwich, were painfully injured at 5 o'clock Saturday morning when their automobile was wrecked at Saybrook. They were brought to New London and taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, Levy suffering from laceration of the scalp and Bultacadoil having a fractured left arm. Levy and Bultacadoil were on their way from Norwich to New York to spend the holiday, when the accident occurred.

An automobile driven by Nicola Vitale, 44, of 566 East 187th street, New York, in which were Vitale's son, Alfred, 15, and daughter, Louise, 16, and an auto driven by Wilbert S. White, 60 River street, Arlington, Mass., in which were White's wife, Florence, and William Callow and wife, Laura, of Boston, collided on Plant Hill, East Lyme Saturday noon. Both automobiles were wrecked, the occupants of both cars, excepting Alfred Vitale and White being injured. Mrs. Callow sustained the most serious injury, for she received a fractured skull and her condition is reported as critical at Lawrence hospital, to which institution all the injured persons were taken. Mrs. Callow's husband received a laceration of the face. Mrs. White received an injury to her left shoulder and left leg. Vitale suffered a scalp wound and his daughter had abrasions of the face. Vitale and his son and daughter were on their way from New York to Providence and drove a Chrysler sedan. White and his party were en route from Boston to Bridgeport. When the two cars were about to pass on the hill, an insect got into Vitale's eye and in his effort to remove the object he unconsciously guided his car in front of White's auto. The state police are conducting an investigation and Vitale may be arrested for violation of the state motor vehicle laws in driving on the wrong side of the highway.

Albert Williams, colored, United States Coast Guard sailor, known to the followers of fistiana as "Big Boy" Williams, was in the police court Saturday charged with assault with intent to kill Jordan Frisbie, also colored and a sailor. The evidence presented by the prosecution was insufficient to bring about a conviction and Williams was found not guilty. Williams was arrested Friday night after a row at the home of Alice Marks, colored, 360 Main street, where several sailors and one woman were gathered. During the night a row occurred and resulted in a fight between Williams and Jordan. During the melee Jordan's arm was thrust through a window and he sustained such bad lacerations that he was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where 14 stitches were required to close the wounds. Frank Simms and Erma McRae, the latter claiming to be an actress, were found in the house and were arrested charged with frequenting a disorderly house. They were fined $5, but execution of the sentence was suspended. The Marks woman vanished when the police were responding to a telephone call sent by neighbors and if she can be found she will be arrested on a charge of conducting a disorderly house, on which charge she has been arrested before.

Master Joseph Sengarena, 11, of 15 Pond street, Norwich, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from a deep laceration of his left arm, sustained Saturday morning in Lyme by being thrown through the windshield of the automobile in which he was riding when the auto collided with another car.

Sebastino Longo, 43, of 20 Shaw street, employed as a laborer by the city, fell from one of the garbage collection trucks at Bentley avenue and Easterly place, Ocean beach Saturday, sustaining a sprained back and torn ligaments. He is now a patient at Lawrence hospital.

The house of Mrs. Laura Smith, 44, a widow, at 33 Winthrop street, was raided by the police early Saturday morning and Mrs. Smith and three sailors, C. Wilbur Warren, James Parker and George Herman were arrested. In the police court Mrs. Smith was convicted of conducting a disorderly house and was fined $50 and costs. She could not pay, so was committed to jail, where she will remain 60 days. Warren, Parker and Herman were charged with frequenting and were fined $5, but execution of the sentence was suspended. The Smith residence had long been suspected of being a rendezvous for sailors and when three bluejackets were observed to enter the house about 2 oclock, Acting Sergeant William Graham and Patrolmen Patrick Sheehan, Frank Philopena and Lawrence Fardy raided it.

Charles F. Danz, 24, of 20 School street, was presented on a charge of reckless driving. He pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs. Danz, who is a painter, was driving on Ocean avenue early Saturday morning. The course of the auto was so irregular that Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin held Danz up and finding him intoxicated, arrested him on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. When presented in court, however, the charge of complaint was amended to that of reckless driving.

William Dunigan and George Muhlberger, soldiers stationed at Fort Wright, were charged with intoxication, but judgment was suspended. Dunigan and Muhlberger were arrested on John street Friday night by Patrolman William Riordan.

Jerry Mead, also charged with intoxication received a suspension of judgment.

Mrs. H. H. Leland, of Waterford, drove her automobile to Tyler park, Saturday afternoon, and parked it there. While she was absent some thief stole a handbag containing the driver's license of Mr. Leland and the auto registration.

Mrs. Annie B. Morris in walking along State street Saturday afternoon lost her handbag, in which among other articles was $21. She reported her loss at police headquarters.

Thomas Rogers, of 4 Truman street, was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman William Riordan charged with refusing to move his auto when ordered to do so, also driving an auto that is equipped with defective brakes. He will be in the police court Monday morning. Rogers has been arrested before for violation of the city's traffic laws and at the time was fined $5.

Albert Olsen and Frank Sears, sailors, members of the crew of the destroyer Trippe, United States Coast Guard, state pier, went to East Lyme Saturday and there became intoxicated. They were arrested by Constables Charles Tubbs and William Folles. Olsen and Sears were brought to police headquarters here and locked up. They will be presented before Justice of the Peace Charles Watrous Monday night.

An automobile truck driven by Raymond Brown, 910 Eastern Point road, Groton, collided with a fire hydrant on Golden street Saturday night and damaged it; the top of the hydrant was cracked. Brown reported the accident at police headquarters.

Augusta Pace, 54 Goshen street, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with breach of the peace and will be in the police court Monday. He furnished a bond of $50 for his appearance in court. Pace was arrested when he went to his home and caused such a disturbance that his wife made a complaint to the police.

An automobile found abandoned on Preston street three weeks ago has been discovered to be the property of Joseph Payne, 611 Broad street. The auto was taken in charge by the police Aug. 13th when a resident of that street reported that the machine had been parked there a day or two. When the police investigated there were no markers on the auto and it was removed to Katz' garage, on Jefferson avenue. Since that time the police have been unable to ascertain the owner. Saturday afternoon a representative of the Automobile Underwriters' bureau, Hartford went to police headquarters and supplied the engine and serial numbers. The automobile is a Chevrolet and communication with the sales manager of the Chevrolet auto here revealed that the automobile was sold to Payne in 1925 and the police records show that the auto was stolen here June 20, 1925. Payne was notified of the recovery of the auto and went to the garage, where it was turned over to him.

Christopher Ledwith, of Stonington; Mrs. Allie Bronitsky and infant daughter, 53 Linden street; Mildred Needham, 159 State street; Albert Smith, Wilbraham, Mass.; John Saunders, Niantic and Clarence and George Donch, Mystic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

The funeral of Leo Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, was held Saturday morning with services at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. George Clark, with Rev. Michael Reagan deacon and Rev. Raymond J. O'Callahan sub-deacon. The bearers were Francis O'Hara, John Doyle, John Crowley, Thomas Sullivan, Patrick Shea and John Sullivan. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Lorenzo D. Beckwith, of New Haven, a former resident of New London, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 62 Washington street, this city, the services being conducted by Rev. Charles F. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Robert D. Marsh, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marsh, 28 Fraser street, died at Lawrence-Memorial hospital Friday where he had been under treatment but a few days for stomach trouble.

Leroy Morgan, of Groton, and Miss Florence R. Smith, of Saybrook, were married Saturday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth.

Edward Harper, of 1 Huntington street, was arrested in Waterford Saturday night by State Police Officer George Sisson, of Groton barracks, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He was driving on the New Haven turnpike and in such a reckless manner that Officer Sisson, who was patrolling the highway held Harper up and in doing so discovered that he was intoxicated. He was brought to New London police headquarters and locked up.

Tony Rerringo, of 2 Pratt street, 16, is the latest boy to be missing from home. The lad's father went to police headquarters today and asked for assistance in locating the youth. The father is of the opinion that the boy has gone to New York.

Frank Redden, of Bank street, parked his automobile on State street, Saturday night and about midnight when he went to where he had left the car he discovered that it was gone. Redden reported the theft to the police and said that he believed an acquaintance had taken the auto. Redden made a tour of the city and this morning he found the car parked on Union street. He informed the police that he was convinced the acquaintance had taken the auto and that if it is damaged he will cause the arrest and prosecution of the young man suspected of using it.

Attorney Marion R. Davis, of Niantic, a member of the firm of Geary, Davis I. Keefe, has resumed his duties after having been ill at his home several weeks.

Joseph Dodo, 165 Main street, will be presented in the police court Monday charged with breach of the peace and upon complaint of his wife. Dodo went to his home Saturday night and engaged in a row with his wife. The brawl became such that Mrs. Dodo made complaint to Patrolman Lawrence Fardy who arrested the husband.

Several drunks were arrested Saturday night and will be in the police court Monday. William West was arrested on Potter street by Patrolman William Riordan, John Sullivan and Walter Banning were arrested at the Union station by William Jorgerson special agent in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. John Hart was arrested on John street by Patrolman William Riordan.

DEATH OF PETER ASHE, ONCE NORWICH RESIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 4—Peter Ashe about 60, died early this morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. James E. Maher, 180 Vauxhall street. Death ending an illness of about a year, from heart trouble. Besides his daughter Mr. Ashe is survived by his wife. Mr. Ashe was born in North Farnum, Canada. He moved to Norwich when comparatively a young man and entered the employ of the Connecticut company as motorman. Later he was appointed superintendent of the New London-Norwich line and afterward was an inspector of the New London line. Several years ago he was transferred to the equipment department and his last employment with the company was in charge of a line truck in this city and in Norwich. About a year ago his health began to decline and compelled him to abandon active employment. He finally took to his bed.

JAMES BATHGATE DEAD—OWNED MILLS IN FLANDERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 4—James Bathgate, 82, formerly of Niantic, died last night at the residence of his son, George H. Bathgate, 560 Montauk avenue, death ending a lingering illness. Besides his son, Mr. Bathgate is survived by a daughter, Mrs. George E. Hall of Hartford. Mrs. Bathgate died about three years ago. Mr. Bathgate was a member of the Second Congregational church. Prior to his removal to New London he was interested in woolen mills at Flanders.

Lydia Elizabeth, widow of Albert Chadwick, died last night at her home, 42 Crescent street after a lingering illness. She was of advanced years and is survived by a son, H. E. Chadwick, of this city, a marine engineer.

William T. Pearce, student officer at the submarine base, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer John Courtney charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $200. Pearce will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

The annual picnic of the F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company was held in Waterford this afternoon, a feature being a New England clambake, which was served this afternoon. The event was attended by about 150 members.

POQUETANUCK

The Sunday school of Saint James' church held the annual picnic on the rectory lawn on Friday afternoon, the event having been postponed from Thursday on account of the rain. An enjoyable afternoon was spent by all present, various games being the chief attractions for the children. The games were under the direction of Miss Marguerite A. Miller and Miss Donna E. Winworth, teachers in the Sunday school. The winners of prizes were Miss Josephine Barron, Miss Wanda Gromko, Miss Stella Barron, Miss Celia Barron, Miss Gladys Perkins and Master Alfred Perkins.

TWO PLANES ARE READY FOR TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHTS

The Old Glory is at Old Orchard, Me., Scheduled to Hop Off Today, Probably in the Afternoon—Phil Wood, Navigator of the Monoplane Royal Windsor, Announced That He Would Take Off at Dawn Today—The London to London Plane, Sir John Carling, Might Take Off Before Dawn.

OLD ORCHARD, Maine, Sept. 5—(AP)—Two trans-Atlantic airplanes squatted on the Maine seacoast tonight, one ready to hop off from Scarboro at daybreak tomorrow and the other from the beach here some time later in the day.

Impatient at delays which have held the Fokker monoplane, Old Glory, from its start for Rome from here for two days, Phil Wood, navigator of the Canadian monoplane, Royal Windsor, announced that he and "Duke" Schiller, his pilot, would hop off from Scarboro for Windsor, England, at dawn tomorrow.

He had first planned to hop with the Old Glory to take advantage of the radio which the American plane carries, but two days of delay caused him to suddenly change plans especially after learning that his rival Canadian plane, the Sir John Carling, had resumed its flight from London, Ontario, to London, England, with a hop from Caribou to Harbor Grace, N. F. Both planes are eligible for a $25,000 Canada-England flight prize.

The Old Glory, which arrived here Saturday from Roosevelt field, has been hung up by the delayed arrival of its complete load of gasoline and reluctance of its backer, William Randolph Hearst, to permit a takeoff until the government had O. K.'d the machine. Both difficulties were believed to have been smoothed out today, but Phil Payne, the flight director, postponed the take-off until tomorrow.

Due to tide conditions on the beach here, the Old Glory probably will not take to the air until sometime tomorrow afternoon.

THE CARLING MIGHT TAKE OFF BEFORE DAWN

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., Sept. 5—(AP)—The "London-to-London" plane Sir John Carling, piloted by Captain Terry Tully and Lieutenant James Medcalf, landed on the Harbor Grace flying field late today after a flight of nearly 700 miles from Caribou, Me., preparations were begun, immediately upon landing for a take-off on the transatlantic leg of the journey early tomorrow.

Chafing at the interruptions in their flight from London, Ont., here due to fog, the fliers intimated that they might not even wait for dawn to hop off for England. As the work of refuelling the monoplane proceeded they said that should weather and other conditions permit they might try a night start.

The plane took off from Washburn, six miles from Caribou, Me., at 9.49 o'clock, eastern standard time, this morning. It was just about 4 o'clock eastern standard, when the Sir John Carling made a perfect landing here. For the flight of approximately 680 miles the time was 6 hours 10 minutes. Tully and Medcalf said they found excellent conditions all the way.

The plane was reported only once during the flight, at Burgeo, on the south coast of Newfoundland nearly 200 miles from here. From Trinity bay the pilot sighted the Harbor Grace airport and headed straight for the harbor.

Tully and Medcalf were welcomed here by Justice John Casey, acting district judge, and officers of the airport commission. When they announced their plan to proceed without delay for England willing volunteers joined in the work of loading gasoline and oil.

Perfect flying weather prevailed today and the indications tonight were that it would continue for some time.

CONJECTURE ABOUT THE PLANE ST. RAPHAEL

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 5—(AP)—The missing trans-Atlantic plane St. Raphael may have reached this continent and in confusion put out over the ocean again, it was detailed reports today of the sighting of an unidentified plane over Belle Isle Friday night.

When first seen the plane was travelling in a northwesterly direction, and proceeded out of sight over the coast line of Labrador, the lighthouse keeper of Belle Isle reported to C. P. Edwards, superintendent of radio for the department of marine and fisheries.

Two and a half hours later, it reappeared, he said, pursuing an erratic course to the southeast. This course would have taken it out over the Atlantic.

It was pointed out that at the time the plane was reported seen there, the St. Raphael, bearing Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Col. Minchin and Captain Hamilton, from Upavon, England, to Ottawa, was not many hours overdue.

"Belle Isle lightkeeper could not see plane for any distinct markings," the report said in part, "other than red light. When it was first seen it would have been about 2,000 feet in the air in the vicinity of Battle Harbor, travelling steadily in a northwest direction. They watched it about thirty minutes until it became lower and lower finally disappearing behind the highland of the coast at 12.30 a. m.

"The assistant lightkeeper saw the red light and is quite positive of hearing the noise of an engine at intervals. The light was then erratic going up and down in the sky as well as changing direction until it disappeared in a southeast direction.

RUSHING PREPARATIONS FOR TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHTS

CRANWELL, England, Sept. 5—(AP)—The Nottingham Evening News says today that Captain R. H. MacIntosh and Charles A. Levine are rushing preparations for transatlantic flights both hoping to be the first to take off and adds that both planes are scheduled to hop off at six o'clock tomorrow morning.

COOLIDGE HAS COVERED BLACK HILLS COUNTRY

RAPID CITY, S. D., Sept. 5—(AP)—Remaining almost exclusively in the Black Hills of South Dakota during his summer vacation, President Coolidge nevertheless has travelled by motor alone in that period almost far enough to have crossed and recrossed the continent.

The five daily trips he has made each week from the State Game lodge to the executive office have carried Mr. Coolidge, it is estimated, 3,840 miles by automobile, a new record for himself.

Numerous drives to the fishing ground and about the hills have swelled this total to almost 5,000 miles for the summer. In addition it is estimated the numerous side trips he has made to South Dakota cities by railroad have taken him over about 1,015 miles while the rail journey to Yellowstone National park boosted this total to almost 2,500 miles.

Today gave the president an opportunity to relax from this incessant traveling. Although he had planned to spend Labor Day at the executive office, he cancelled the 34 mile trip when informed there was little at the office requiring his attention.

The day was spent quietly at the lodge and like yesterday the band of the Fort Mead, S. D., cavalry station, entertained with a public concert.

In his motor travel, to the surprise of many Mr. Coolidge has used the new limousine placed at his disposal here and besides this comfort he has had his regular chauffeur, Francis Robinson, to drive him at all times. Robinson has been at the White house since the days of President Taft.

WORLD FLIERS HAVE REACHED ALLAHABAD, INDIA

ALLAHABAD, India, Sept. 5—(AP)—Their round-the-world plane parked beside a railway station, the two American globe-circle fliers, William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, spent tonight resting here for their hop to Calcutta, 485 miles away, tomorrow.

Only a few reporters were present when the Stinson-Detroiter, with 7,635 miles of its trip around the globe behind it, landed at the airdrome here today. A few hundred villagers, ambling out of their countryside dwellings, grouped themselves wonderingly around the Pride of Detroit.

Brock and Schlee were in excellent spirits, but both confessed being somewhat tired.

The fliers still have 14,377 miles of their round the world flight to cover.

THREE PERSONS HURT IN COLLISION AT STAMFORD

STAMFORD, Sept. 5—(AP)—Three persons were hurt when cars of Rocco Bruno, of this city and L. H. Deming of Riverside, were in collision today in West Main street. Those hurt were Camille Argusto, aged six, and Mettie and Rocco Argusto, of 16 Hazel street, who were in Bruno's car. The explanation to the police was that a third car hit Bruno's and the latter was driven against the car of Deming. The third car driver did not stop.

The three persons hurt in this mishap brought the number to 12 injured in vehicle collisions since Saturday.

"DRY" LEADER LOWMAN ATTACKS GOV. AL SMITH

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 5—(AP)—An attack on Governor Smith and other New York state officials for failure to provide enforcement laws and a plea to the general public to help solve enforcement problems by reporting to Washington if they "know of a still or a brewery anywhere," were made here today by Assistant Secretary Lowman of the treasury, in charge of prohibition.

Despite lack of state enforcement laws, he said in an address before an annual outing of the Methodist Episcopal churches of western New York, temperance and sobriety were on the gain, in New York and everywhere else.

"Under the leadership of Alfred Emanuel Smith, our governor who now wants to be president" said Mr. Lowman, "every law on the statute books of New York state dealing with the liquor traffic was repealed, except the provision that it is a misdemeanor to be found drunk in a public place.

"They evidently overlooked that law or it would have gone, too."

Explaining why the federal government does not step in and police the state of New York, he declared that in the face of the "open opposition of the state and local officers it would require an army of 30,000 prohibition agents to handle a proposition like that."

Rum row, he continued, had disappeared from New York harbor, and the greatest trouble now was being experienced off Florida where "rum hounds have recently said they would kill two coast guardsmen for every rum runner who is shot."

15 AUTO ACCIDENTS IN TWO DAYS AT STAMFORD

STAMFORD, Sept. 5—(AP)—Two persons were admitted to the Stamford hospital tonight following two separate automobile crashes which marked the 14th and 15th in two days here.

Mrs. R. H. Darsch of Englewood, N. J., was seriously injured when the car in which she was a passenger collided with a machine driven by P. S. Sexton, of Darien at Noroton hill and the Boston Post road.

Shortly after Mrs. Darsch had received emergency treatment at Stamford hospital, the doctors were called on to patch up M. Fred Burke who was injured when his car collided with one driven by Peter Bozzero, of South Braintree, Mass., at East Main street and Myrtle avenue.

FIVE POLICEMEN WERE SHOT BY CRAZED NEGRO

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 5.—(AP)—The body of Wesley Cooysey, Negro, 40 years old, riddled with bullets, was dragged from his burning home here tonight after dozens of tear bombs had been hurled into the house. Five policemen who attempted to enter the place after Cooksey threatened to kill his wife were injured, two seriously. Cooksey held the officers at bay for three hours. Police set fire to the house in an effort to drive him out.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BERLIN, Sept. 5—(AP)—The latest reichsbank statement, dated Aug. 31, indicating an increase in note circulation of 527, 800,000 marks unfavorably impressed the boerse, although gold and first class paper covering for the first time exceeded two billion. Gold alone increased 21,400,000 marks owing to imports from Russia, which obliged the release of yellow metal to meet foreign obligations.

VENICE, Italy, Sept. 5—(AP)—Mayor James J. Walker of New York declared today that he was opposed to the American policy of immigration limitation. He was speaking at a luncheon given in his honor in the historic hotel Royal Danieli by Count Orsi, podesta of Venice.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Sept. 5—(AP)—The outcome of the approaching elections in the Irish Free State appear to be problematical with the opinion of experts divided as to the ultimate victor. The campaign of the De Valera candidates is being carried on with full page advertisements in the newspapers, which are being answered by the government party which stresses the activity of de Valera in opposition to the government and recalls the cost to the country of De Valera's fighting. One slogan reads: "Do not give the perjurers a chance to perjure themselves again."

ISSUE OF GOVERNMENT NOTES AND CERTIFICATES

WASHINGTON Sept. 5.—(AP)—More than half a billion dollars of notes and certificates of indebtedness were offered by the treasury today in announcing its September 15, or third quarter financing programe.

There are two issues, consisting of approximately $250,000,000 in six months 3 per cent. treasury certificates of indebtedness and about $250,000,000 for cash and a limited amount for exchange in 3 to 5 year 3 1-2 per cent treasury notes. Both offerings are dated Sept. 15.

Subscriptions for the certificates and cash subscriptions for the notes are invited at par and accrued interest, while the exchange subscriptions are offered at 100 1-8.

In addition to the cash offering of notes, these securities will be exchanged for second Liberty loan converted 4 1-4 per cent. bonds, the amount for exchange to be limited only by the amount of the second 4 1-4s surrendered and accepted.

Interest on any second 4 1-4s surrendered and accepted upon alloted exchange subscriptions will be paid in full to November 15, 1927, when all bonds of the second Liberty loan have been called for redemption. Subscribers offering the 4 1-4s for the new notes will be paid interest from May 15 to November 15, less the amount of the premium on the notes issued.

Treasury certificates of indebtedness of series o f Ts-1927 and Ts 2-1927, both maturing September 15, will be accepted at federal reserve banks at par in payment for the new certificates, any accrued interest to be adjusted on the series so paid for. The old certificates also will be accepted in payment for any of the new notes, series R-1930-32, which are alloted for cash.

ORGANIZED LABOR WILL OPPOSE RADICALISM

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Organized labor will continue to oppose radical doctrine and support the principles of Americanism advocated by Benjamin Franklin, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said today at Labor Day ceremonies of the Central Trades and Labor council of greater New York.

Informal exercises were held at the statue of Benjamin Franklin in Printing House square and a memorial wreath was laid upon the pedestal of the statue as a tribute from labor.

"Now in America the foundations of our government are being assailed," President Green said. "Men and women have arisen in all parts of the land who challenge and denounce our government and believe some other political doctrine should be accepted in its place. I assure you now that the men and women of labor stand unflinchingly against these doctrines."

"We remain loyal to the principles of democracy and Americanism that Benjamin Franklin proclaimed," Green said in paying tribute to the great American patriot.

YOUNG HILL TO AWAIT OPINION OF ATTORNEYS

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 5—(AP)—Unshaken in his denial that he slew his aged mother, Mrs. Eliza Hill, in Streator, Ills., and then fled when he read in newspapers that he was suspected of the crime, Harry R. Hill, 22, tonight awaited the opinion of his attorneys as to whether he should fight efforts of the state of Illinois to bring him home for trial.

Hill was arrested here Saturday night, when detectives noticed the similarity in engine numbers of an automobile he had sold here under the name of H. Jackson, and a car which had been stolen here recently. He had been living in a hotel almost within a stone's throw of the police station. He had sold the automobile for $85 because his funds were down to three dollars.

Search disclosed a card case engraved with the name of Harry Hill a number of letters addressed to him and a picture of Miss Alice Sawyer, his Streator sweetheart.

MESSAGE IN BOTTLE THAT WASHED ASHORE

BARMOUTH, England, Sept. 5—(AP)—A message in a bottle, believed to have travelled 2,000 miles by sea, has been washed ashore at Barmouth.

The message reads: "1062 miles east Boston S. S. Eastern Dawn, December 22, 1926. This drift bottle thrown overboard in latitude 44 degrees 43 N, longitude 46 degrees west. Please return this note with date and place bottle found to K. Baarsiag, general delivery, Brooklyn, New York, U. S. A."

The message was in perfect condition.

REPORT WILMER, ALA., SWEPT BY A TORNADO

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 5—(AP)—A telephone message to the Mobile Register from D. L. C. Lane of Wilmer, Ala., tonight reported a tornado which swept into that place from an easterly direction late today damaging property and crops in that vicinity. Telephone communication westward was broken, he said, and fear expressed that Lucedale, Miss., had been stricken.

No lives had been reported lost nor any persons injured, according to his message. He said it was impossible to estimate damage until a more complete survey could be made.

Believes Coolidge Will Be Re-elected

Charles E. Hughes Doesn't Think It Necessary to Say Any More.

NEW YORK, Sept. [illegible] (AP)—Charles Evans Hughes, w[illegible]ed today from a trip ab[illegible] volleys of questions a[illegible] would again seek th[illegible] nomination for pres[illegible]: "I think President [illegible] will be renominated and [illegible] not think it is necessary to say an[illegible] more than I have already said," replied the smiling former secretary of state, as newspapermen on the Leviathan persisted in questioning him on the report that republican state leaders would ask him to reconsider his recent declaration that he would not be a candidate.

Mr. Hughes, who ran for president against Woodrow Wilson, politely sidestepped all sorts of questions designed to throw light on the subject.

Mr. Hughes had been abroad two months touring southern France and the Pyrenees.

STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE OF A HARTFORD LAWYER

HARTFORD, Sept. 5—(AP)—The cloud of mystery which has hung over the disappearance of Benjamin D. Baggish, Hartford lawyer, for the last five days had not been dissipated at a late hour today.

Reports from the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn, where he was last seen before he left the home of relatives there to bathe in Gravesend bay, were that his body had not been recovered and no trace of him had been found.

The lawyer's father, Nathan D. Baggish, of 269 Vine street, was in Hartford today, after his long vigil at Benson hurst, convinced that his son was drowned in Gravesend bay and further search for him would be futile.

The clothes which Mr. Baggish wore to Bensonhurst before his disappearance and his personal effects, were brought back to Hartford by the lawyer's father and are at the Baggish home at 48 Adams street. His car has also been driven back.

500 GALLON STILL WAS RAIDED AT PLYMOUTH

PLYMOUTH, Conn., Sept. 5—(AP)—Four men were arrested, a 500-gallon still and 20 barrels of denatured alcohol, was seized and a large truck and a touring car was confiscated by state officers who raided an abandoned allica mine in the Plymouth district, early yesterday morning. In the town court this afternoon the men pleaded guilty to charges of manufacturing intoxicating liquor and paid fines and costs.

Salvatore Covette, who claims he has lived in the mill building for the last five years paid costs of $61.22. Vito Bochicino of Plymouth, the alleged proprietor was fined $100 and costs; Angelo De Prenthe of New Britain was fined $25 and costs and Anthony Albinese, 21, of New Britain who was arrested as he drove a truck into the mine grounds was fined $25 and costs. In all cases the costs were $61.22.

State Officers Herbert Cleaveland and Merran C. Hill, who made the raid are searching for two other men who escaped as the officers neared the mine property.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDED ON DANBURY-NORWALK ROAD

DANBURY, Sept. 5—(AP)—Gunnar Johnson, of 4 Lovell terrace, Worcester, Mass., and Francis Clark of Georgetown, this state, went to the Danbury hospital this morning with injuries received in collision of automobiles on the Danbury-Norwalk road six miles south of here.

There were five persons in each car and the other eight had bruises but none required hospital attention. Johnson was driving one car and Clark was a passenger in the other which belonged in Norwalk. The latter car was pushed into a small pond on the roadside after it overturned. Johnson received a possible skull fracture and concussion of the brain. Clark has broken ribs.

State police investigated to determine the nature of the collision and the name of the driver of the Norwalk car.

VETS OF FOREIGN WARS PARADED IN PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 5—(AP)—Between 6,000 and 7,000 members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars paraded here today, heard addresses by Major General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the United States army, and United States Senator Rice W. Means of Colorado, and received messages from President Coolidge and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, as features of the 28th annual national convention of the order.

Marcus Loew, 57, Died of Heart Attack

One of the Most Powerful Figures in the World of Motion Pictures.

GLEN COVE, N. Y., Sept. 5—(AP)—Marcus Loew, one of this country's most powerful figures in the world of motion pictures and vaudeville, died at his country estate "Pembroke" here this morning of a heart attack. He was 57. He had returned last night from Saratoga, where he was visiting Nicholas M. Schenck, vice president of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures corporation.

The trip from Saratoga was made aboard his yacht, the Caroline, and business associates said yesterday that Mr. Loew apparently had been in the best of health. At 6:30 a. m. death came while he slept. Mrs. Loew and their two sons, Arthur and David, were at the bedside.

A self-made man in the true sense, Marcus Loew rose from a factory job at the age of 10 to heights from which he wielded enormous power in the theatrical world. His interest in motion pictures came after he had established a chain of vaudeville houses.

THEATRICAL MEN SHOCKED BY DEATH OF MARCUS LOEW

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—(AP)—Leaders in the theatrical world here were shocked by the death this morning of Marcus Loew, president of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures corporation.

Samuel L. ("Roxy") Rothafel was visibly affected by the news. "I have lost a dear friend," he said. "Marcus Loew was a genius and a great organizer. The industry has suffered an irreparable loss."

E. F. Albee, head of the Keith-Albee vaudeville circuit, said he had visited Mr. Loew two weeks ago and found him apparently in high spirits. "Everyone respected him," Mr. Albee said. "He was a keen business man; devoted to his home and family and a fair opponent in business. I considered him one of the finest examples of clean business principles in the theatrical world."

"I am very sorry to hear of Marcus Loew's death," said Arthur Hammerstein. "He was one of my best friends and had been a great friend of my father. His death comes as a great shock."

Harold Lloyd, motion picture comedian and close friend of Mr. Loew, expressed his regret at the death of the magnate and declared that Loew has been esteemed throughout the motion picture industry."

B. S. Moss, who was associated with Mr. Loew for many years, said: "The motion picture industry has lost a pathfinder who blazer the trail by his progressiveness, his fearlessness and his integrity. I personally have lost a great friend."

TWO MEXICANS HELD IN NEW YORK FOR BOMBING

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—(AP)—Two Mexican restaurant employes were ordered held without bail late today when arraigned on charges of placing the bomb that exploded in an alley between the Brooklyn supreme court building and the hall of records early this morning.

In the lodging room of the suspects police said they found metal and lead parts used in the manufacture of bombs, maps of the principal subways, and photographs of municipal buildings in Washington, D. C., all marked with pencil, besides a supply of anarchistic literature.

Several pieces of clock mechanism similar to those found at the scene of the explosion also were discovered, but there was no evidence directly connecting the arrested men with the crime, police said. The men were arrested near the supreme court building shortly after the blast.

40,000 HOLIDAY VISITORS AT CONN. STATE FAIR

HARTFORD, Sept. 5—(AP)—At 10 o'clock tonight, officials of the Connecticut state fair conservatively estimated that upwards of 40,000 holiday visitors had been admitted to Charter Oak park. This, according to these officials, is the largest single day's attendance in the 20 years of the fair's history.

Grandstand events, opening at 1 p. m., and continuing without pause until 10, drew more than 4,000 spectators. Horse racing was the chief attraction, a runaway horse, which was not captured until it had run itself out, providing the biggest thrill.

OBITUARY

Austen Colgate

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—(AP)—Austen Colgate, an official of Colgate & Co., died at his Barnegat, N. J., fishing camp today. The Colgate home is in Orange, N. J.

Harry Tatham, 72, organizer and general manager of the Springfield Woolen mills, died at Nashville, Tenn.

SIGHTED REDFERN AND HIS AIRPLANE AUG. 26, 165 MILES OFF SOUTH AMERICA

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5—(AP)—The Norwegian steamship Christian Krong, docking here late today, reported that it had sighted Paul R. Redfern and his airplane, Port of Brunswick, August 26, when he was within 165 miles of the South American coast.

Redfern circled about the ship for some time, it reported and dropped five notes, three of which sought directions.

He last was seen, officers said, heading toward the Venezuelan mainland, 165 miles away. Between him and the mainland was a group of islands, only 100 miles from the point where he was sighted by the ship.

Officers expressed the opinion that Redfern had either reached the mainland or had landed on one of the islands between the ship and the continent.

The ship was proceeding from Port au Spain, Trinidad, to Kingston, Jamaica, when the plane was sighted.

At the time the plane was sighted, the ship was in latitude 13-7 north and longitude 60-37 west.

The plane descended to within hailing distance of the deck and circled back over the ship, dropping a note enclosed in a round pasteboard box.

The note read: "Please point ship toward nearest land." Apparently he was not satisfied that the ship's officers had understood the note, they said.

A second note landed in the water near the boat, and W. T. Notweet, fireman on the Christian Krong, leaped overboard and procured it. The second note read:

"Point ship toward nearest land and wave one time for each 100 miles distance."

A third note picked up by the boat was similar to the others and was signed "Redfern, thanks."

The ship turned her bow toward the west, where 100 miles away lay the group of islands of which the Cayo Grande and El Roque are the largest. These islands are 65 miles west of Venezuela.

In addition to waving a flag to indicate the distance to nearest land, the ship sounded two blasts on its whistle. The aviator circled about the ship several other times before turning his nose toward the west, officers said.

The weather was splendid for flying, they reported.

WAYNE B. WHEELER DIED AT BATTLE CREEK SANITARIUM

General Counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America Had Been Taken to the Sanitarium Three Days Ago From His Summer Home at Pointe Sable, Mich.—Had Been Undergoing Treatment for a Kidney Ailment for Several Years—Had Just Returned From Funerals at Columbus of His Wife and Father-in-Law When He Was Taken Ill.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Sept. 5—(AP)—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America, died at Battle Creek sanitarium here late this afternoon. He was taken to the sanitarium three days ago from his summer home at Little Pointe Sable, Mich.

Mr. Wheeler was taken ill last Thursday with a kidney ailment from which he had been undergoing treatment for several years. He was removed from his home to a hospital and after an examination rushed to the sanitarium where it was at first decided to perform an operation.

Mr. Wheeler apparently responded rapidly to treatment however, and he showed so much improvement yesterday that it was decided not to operate.

A bulletin issued late last night by his physician, Dr. Floyd E. Verity said the dry leader's condition had improved to such an extent that it was thought he would be out of danger within a few days.

Today however his condition took a sudden turn for the worse and he sank rapidly, dying about 3.20 p. m. Members of Mr. Wheeler's family were at the bedside.

Mr. Wheeler's death followed that of his wife by a few weeks. Mrs. Wheeler was fatally burned in an oil stove explosion at the Wheeler home which also indirectly was the cause of the death of her father. Seeing his daughter rush into a room, her clothing in flames, the aged man was stricken with a heart attack which proved fatal.

Mr. Wheeler had just returned from Columbus, where the funerals of his wife and father-in-law were held when he was taken ill. His condition was not thought serious until his removal to the hospital. Even then physicians did not consider his condition grave.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed but it is thought that his body will be interred in Columbus beside that of his wife.

Mr. Wheeler had told his physicians that he felt much better and, asked permission to read in his bed. A nurse handed him a book and as he lifted it, fell forward, dying instantly.

Dr. Verity declared Mr. Wheeler's death was due to a heart attack aggravated by the kidney trouble.

The body was taken to a local undertaking establishment and will be accompanied to Columbus by one son and a friend, Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, Tuesday morning.

SKETCH OF THE CAREER OF WAYNE B. WHEELER

(By The Associated Press.)

The dynamic character of Wayne B. Wheeler for years cast its shadow over every one of the bitter fights that have waged around prohibition and its enforcement in the United States, because his name had come to mean prohibition in its every sense.

Backed by the Anti-Saloon league and the vast religious organizations supporting it, Mr. Wheeler fought long and stubbornly for the 18th amendment to the constitution, and the Volstead act to enforce it, and when that battle was won, he fought no less stubbornly against every effort to modify those enactments.

Typifying, as he did, the very spirit of the drys, Wheeler took the leadership around the halls of congress, about the capitol, and even at the white house in opposition to every move by legislative, administrative or executive branches of the government which he thought would disturb the dry balance which he and his co-workers had set up.

It has been said that Wheeler was abused for his activities by the wets, but that his energetic fighting qualities had at least earned the secret admiration of some of them. While the wets heaped about his head an unprecedented quantity of stinging phrases, the dry leader worked untiringly to put more teeth into the enforcement act which they denounced so bitterly.

Although ostensibly the Anti-Saoon league general counsel was merely the instrument of the league, so far as Washington was concerned Wheeler was the league, and in his activities there he was credied with wielding an enormous influence on legislation affecting the dry cause.

There was no move to amend the Volstead act however slight escaped the sharp eye of this Ohio-born lawyer. He was inquisitive to a superlative degree of every bill touching upon prohibition which was dropped into the senate or house bill boxes, and he was lightning-like in striking at the measures he considered objectionable.

In his battle for his cause, Wheeler depended to a considerable extent on the value of the printed word, and he came to be one of the most expert phraze-makers in public life. His statements bristled with epigrams, and early in his career he found that brevity was a great asset n getting his ideas before the public. Few of his statements issued to the press exceeded a typewritten page, and most of them were made up of two or three pungent paragraphs.

Some of the most stirring times in the Washington life of Mr. Wheeler came during the 69th congress, when the Anti-Saloon league counsel engaged in his famous exchanges with Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, chairman of a senate campaign funds commitee. This meeting of the senate commitee was advertised far and wide as a clashing of the wits of two outstanding leaders who were diametrically opposed as to the wisdom of one section of the laws of America, but the decision as to the victor, so far as outside apearances went, rested with the individual sentiment of those who undertook to render it.

But this was only one of the constant combats in which Mr. Wheeler engaged on capitol hill. He was a prolific witness before committees, and wherever he appeared, the wets were there gunning for him. Even with this every day running of the gauntlet, the forces associated with him were uniformly successful in beating back every threatened advance by the opponents of the dry laws.

Soon after enactment of the Volstead act someone coined the word "Wheelerism" which was f reely used on the floor of the senate and the house by those who asserted that the Anti-Saloon league had set up a "super-government,' which cracked the lash on the backs of congress as well as the officials of the administration.

"Wheelerism" was the target of invective wherever the never 'surrendering wets came together, and to the drys it was a force that even the wets recognized as almost all-powerful and against which their shock troops were sent time and again in vain assaults.

Besides guiding the policies of the Anti-Saloon league in matters of legislation, he was never slow to make known his opposition to treasury decisions which he considered adverse to prohibition interests. No treasury official, from the secretary down, was imune from Wheeler criticism in such instances. One of the long fights made by him at the treasury was for the retention of Roy A. Haynes as prohibition commissioner, and this contest was carried to the white house Mr. Haynes finally lost out, but with his departure Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary in charge of enforcement, who was oposed to Haynes, resigned from the service.

Mr. Wheeler had shown the effects of illness here during the last session of the 69th congress, and dry advocates had looked anxiously about to see who would be able to take up the work he had been so successful in. It was admitted on every side that his death would be a heavy blow to the dry forces carrying on their campaign here. Some wets even privately declared that someone with the energy of the Anti-Salon league chieftain might have been invaluable to their cause in the days when the lines were being drawn on the prohibition issue.

The dry leader was born at Brookfield, Ohio, on November 10 1869. He was a graduate of Oberlin college and held degrees from that school as well as Muskingum college and Western Reserve university. He was married to Ella R. Candy, of Columbus, Ohio in 1901, and they had three children, Robert Wayne, Donald Hyde and Joseph Candy. The tragic death of his wife in a fire in his home was a stunning blow to him.

He began temperance work while still at college and was a member of many organizations interested in prohibition.

50 TURTLES IN TERRAPIN DERBY AT THE 101 RANCH

PONCA CITY, Okla., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Urged on by ten thousand lusty voices after he had faltered within six feet of his goal, Billy B., owned by Mayor Dale Beaver of Fairfax, Okla., today won the fourth annual terrapin derby at the 101 Ranch over a field of 50 other turtles. Billy B's time for the 75 foot course was one minute, 28 1-2 seconds.

Budy, owned by Bobby Barger, six year old Fairfax boy took second place, coming over the line after following five feet behind Billy B., the distance.

Beaver received a purse of $3,870, while Barger was given second money, $750.

Third place went to a terrapin owned by Miss Kathryn M. Laughlin, Tulsa stenographer, who received $500.

As the starters raised the doors of the terrapin pen in the center of a circle, 150 feet in diameter, the racers set out for the finish line 75 fet awaya. Most of the contestants in the finals headed toward the shade of the grandstand.

SMALL POX ABOARD HOLDS STEAMER AT QUARANTINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—(AP)—The luxurious cabin of the American merchant liner "American Banker" was turned into a physician's ante-room as the ship steamed into quarantine today and 78 passengers, many of them young women school teachers returning from a holiday aboard, underwent vaccination after a case believed to be small pox was discovered among the crew.

MORE BURGLARIES COMMITTED IN AND NEAR WILLIMANTIC

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 5—A break into the garage of Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins near Columbia Green and the theft of about $100 worth of tools and accessories during the night hours of Sunday morning is believed to have been made by the same burglars who have recently victimized places in this city. The thieves first tried to open the door with a key but it broke in the lock and they then broke a window in the rear of the building. After making a selection of automobile parts and tools they left via the door which they opened from the inside. The burglary was associated with those committed here at the Texas Oil company plant on Columbia avenue, the Jordan Auto company garage on Main street and the William Knight gasoline station on North Windham road. The police received a message over the teletype this morning that the New Britain police were holding two suspects who are not unknown to the local police. Captain o: Police Frank McLean, County Investigator William E. Jackson and State Policeman Starkell of the Stafford Springs barracks left at once for the hardware city and developments were expected within a matter of hours.

The burglary epidemic in this section has been spreading, it was disclosed today when it became known that the refreshment stand conducted at Lakeside park, Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, by former Police Chief Daniel J. Killourey and his son John Killourey had been burglarized sometime after midnight Sunday morning. The place was considerably ransacked and merchandise valued at about $35 was stolen The police are convinced that the breaks in Columbia and South Coventry were made in succession. The activities of the burglars are now matter for investigation by the uathorities of three towns, Windham, Columbia and Coventry.

Although the local investigating officials had not returned from New Britain up to late afternoon there was assurance at police headquarters here that the two youths being held in New Britain were guilty of the series of burglaries in this city and vicinity. The boys, William Kaminsky, 20, and Stanley Budnick, 20, are Eagleville residents. A little over a year ago they were arrested for breaking into places here, including the grain store of ex-Mayor William D. Grant and a radiator repair shop conducted by Benjamin Carpenter. They were committed to the reform school at Cheshire. The boys arrested at No. 11 Orange street, New Britain this morning by Sergeants Patrick O'Meara and Thomas J. Feeney who surprised them in bed, later confessed to nearly a score of burglaries in various paris of Connecticut, according to accounts reaching here. Articles of every description were found in the room and in an old Ford car. There were about 100 keys to fit auto and door locks, a blackjack, handcuffs, mechanics' tools, wearing apparel, pistols, flashlights, and various other trinkets including a broken safe dial combination. In five soiled men's socks were coins, from nickels to 50 cent pieces.

Announcements of the changes in location of two business houses were made over the week-end. The Laramee meat market will remove from 32 North street to allow for the enlargement of the bakery conducted in the adjoining store by Eugene Lescoe. Mr. Lescoe, who owns both buildings plans to take over the store occupied by the market and alter the bakery so as to give it twice the street frontage it now has with a store depth of 20 feet. The new frontage will be 60 feet in length. The tenement over the store at 32 North street has been remodeled and will be occupied by Mr. Lescoe who came here from Middletown in 1917.

Willard Whittemore of the W. H. Smith Company, Inc., wholesalers of produce and fruit has announced the removal of business quarters from the Loomer Opera House block, 18 and 22 North streets, to the former Tiffany Beef company building near the Milk street railroad crosing on Valley extension. The building which has been used for storage purposes for some time by the fruit concern is a two and one-half story wooden structure and adapted to the wholesale business. Renovation plans call for a one-story brick front, 22 by 30 feet and raising the building two feet with the construction of a brick foundation. It is expected that the Laramee company will take over the stores vacated by the fruit company.

Robert Smith of Bridge street has been awarded two prizes for the best blue shade and ruffled varieties of gladioli on display at the Elks' Country Fair. The awardments were made by the New York State Gladioli Florists, through Charles Whitney, Windham county agent. Mr. Whitney was ac- of the New York office who expressed companied to the fair by J. S. Holden pleasure in witnessing such a fine gladioli display in Willimantic and offered his cooperation in giving a similar exhibit next year. Mr. Whitney, a veteran of gladioli shows, said that the beautiful shade of blue displayed was not to be superseded and the ruffled gladioli Altog is near to being the only one of its kind in eastern Connecticut. They only other ruffled Alton observed by Mr. Whitney was by a Pennsylvania contestant entered in the American Gladioli show in Hartford last week.

FARMER WOMAN IN OKLAHOMA

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Because It Gave Her Health and Strength

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing.

They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a houseful of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and tired.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 337, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health?

WESTERLY

TURANO'S SON FROM PENN. MAY TAKE UP FATHER'S CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 5—Santa Turano, of 45 Pierce street, beaten up Saturday night in the fracas on Pierce street, after receiving treatment at the South County hospital, Wakefield, returned Sunday to his home in Westerly. He is now confined to the house. It is reported that his son, a member of the Pennsylvania state police is coming to Westerly to investigate. Turano's assailant, Nunzio Perruzzi, remains at large.

FORTY BATTERYMEN LEFT FOR BIG PROVIDENCE PARADE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 5—Forty members of Battery E, 243rd R. I. C. A. C. (H. D.), Capt. John F. Datson, commanding, stationed at the armory on Dixon street, Westerly, with First Lieut. Elvin W. Andrews and Second Lieut. Francis Spry, drilled Labor Day afternoon in company formations on Railroad avenue and Dixon street. This was previous to their departure at 12:30 o'clock for Providence, where at 4 o'clock they participated in the regimental street parade. Under Col. Cyril L. D. Wells the entire military organization of Rhode Island paraded in the program of the 28th annual national convention of the Veterans of foreign wars, which meets this week in Providence. The batterymen left the Dixon street armory in two large busses, while the officers and wives made the trip in private automobiles.

The September meeting of Westerly Town council, ordinarily held first Monday of each month, is set for this (Tuesday) morning. There will be but two more regular meetings of the present council for the bi-ennial election of council members will be held Nov. 7th.

Members of Westerly band, Charles O. Gavitt, director, left the Pawcatuck river bridge Monday morning by motor bus for Pleasant View beach, where they played at a sale of real estate held on Labor Day.

The night before Labor Day in Westerly was "celebrated" this year almost like the night before the Fourth. At the junction of Oak and Town streets a crap game got under way and growing in proportion had from 20 to 30 "shooters" and "frequenters". Word of the impromptu celebration reached the ears of Lieutenant of Police George H. Champlin on duty in Dixon square. He recruited a posse and by auto was soon on his way to the site of "the shooting." The approach of the officers was marked by a keen-eyed sentry and on his lusty shout of "the police" there was a hasty exodus of all but more aged residents of the vicinity. A careful survey of the field failed to show the presence of dice or anything in the kittle, so the police officers returned, empty handed.

Funeral services for John Thomas Parker, of 8 Summer street, were largely attended at his home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. H. C. Suter, pastor of Grace Methodist church, Westerly, assisted by Rev. H. Moyle of Hollowell, Me., and Rev. Joseph Cooper of South Manchester, brothers-in-law of Mr. Parker. The floral tributes were beautiful. Rev. Mr. Suter conducted the committal services at River Bend cemetery, the bearers being thgee cousins, Edwin, Oliver and William Keast of Barre, Vt.; three nephews, John Burne of Stony Creek, Thomas Spargo of Hollowell, Me., and Robert Scott, of Westerly.

R. B. Mellon of Pittsburgh, Pa., left Sunday for New York from his summer home, "Sunshine" at Watch Hill. Mr. Mellon in New York will meet his brother, Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, who has been on a visit to Italy. Sunday of next week Mrs. Mellon will leave Watch Hill and the servants will follow during the week, after closing the cottage for the season. Extensive changes are planned at the Watch Hill cottage before it is opened next year.

Capt. Reginald Dean, U. S. A., and Mrs. Dean arrived in Westerly Sunday night from Washington, D. C., to visit Capt. Dean's mother, Mrs. Frank N. Wilcox, in Pawcatuck, and other Westerly relatives and friends. Mrs. Dean was formerly Miss N. Edna Niblock of Westerly.

Railroad Trainmaster William J. Smith and Railroad Police Sergeant McGrath of the New Haven railroad force were at Westerly station Labor Day afternoon to facilitate the great evodus of beach visitors in Westerly and the Labor Day holiday guests. These literally swarmed every express train leaving the station. Regular express trains were operated with an increased equipment and in many cases in extra sections, the first being made up generally of coaches and the last of chair cars and sleepers. Apparently the pleasant weather delayed their departures and the late afternoon and evening expreass carried nearly their maximum patronage. The Seashore Special express this (Tuesday) morning has a large reservation list.

William Cameron, Jr., returned to his home in Stamford by automobile Sunday night, after being the guest of his cousin, Miss Pauline Pitcher, in Westerly for five weeks.

Members of Pup Tent, No. 189, of New London, passed through Westerly Labor day morning in automobiles for Providence to attend the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Edwin R. Connors of Pawcatuck left Monday morning to resume his medical studies in Boston.

NOANK

New York actors and actresses are staying at the home of Mrs. John Fitzpatrick while in the village. Bradley Barker is the director and the name of the picture is to be "Comrades." It is all in colors, the first picture of the kind to be taken around this part of the country. Friday morning when the fog shut off the village and the sun would not shine, Director Barker was walking the floor of his room waiting for a break in the weather. He gave a short instructing talk to his company. At 10 o'clock the sun cleared up the fog so down to Riverside avenue the movie people went to start on a scene along the waterfront where two little boys, Leo Needham and Jackie O'Brien from New York, called the Bully Boys were sitting on the end of Capt. Charles T. Potter's dock, fishing with long poles, catching a big fish. Soon a dispute started over who owned the fish. Then Henry Melvin and Mr. Murry stopped the fight. A crowd of 50 people lined the streets and gave the players a big hand for their good work. Saturday morning the sun was behind a fog bank, but about 10 o'clock it cleared and taking the camera to the lawn at Mrs. Lizzie Potter's while many local fisherman were working on the dock, with their nets, Fazio Prati was soon working the camera at the side of the old red house on the lawn. At Mrs. Potter's was a table with three sitting around it. Mrs. Jennings of New York taking the part of a old woman. Mr. Stone and Mr. Saunders were old sea captains and were playing checkers. Soon misunderstanding about a move they almost came to blows. Then Mrs Jennings, with a smile told the men "Fighting over a game of checkers again!" A large crowd had gathered to watch the actors. All the time Director Barber was putting action into the scene. The company will be here for three or four days more. The picture will be shown first in the Paramount show house in New York and Noank will be seen again in the movie land.

The movie people are fast making friends among local residents. When onee roup finishes with its part a new group comes from New York or Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Lawler and family and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andrews, John Crohan, Miss Shara Aire and Miss Rose Lawler of Springfield, Mass., are spending a few days at Rose cottage.

Dr. and Mrs. King of Brooklyn, N. Y., are spending two weeks with Mrs. John Fitzpatrick.

Boat Flip, Capt. Ivan Crossman and Mate Franklin Rathbun, left the dock going to fish works after bait for their lobster pots. Saturday afternoon the boat dropped anchor to wait for the steamer to come when the fog set in thick. It was around 8 o'clock in the evening that a noise of a sea-plane was heard by Mate Rathbun. The plane had to land in the water, only 25 feet from the boat, as it got lost in the fog. It proved to be Roger's air line coming from New York bound for New Bedford with George Stanton at the wheel with two men in the plane. Mr. Stanton said it was the worst fog that he had ever run through since running a seaplane. The plane engine got wet and the boat Flip towed the plane from the east end of Enders' Island to Wilcox dock, a distance of one-half mile, for the night, for the men did not want to fight the fog during the darkness to Massachusetts. Stanton told the fishermen if they came down to Wilcox dock Sunday morning they could take a ride in the plane; but Capt Crossman said the old salt water was good enough for him, not up in an airplane. Airplane men thanked them for helping them out and each got cigars for his reward. The pilot told them if at any time they were in New York to look him up and he would give them a good time.

Miss Evelyn McLeod of Newport was visiting her cousin, Mrs. Angus McLeod over the holiday.

Miss Dorothy McLeon of Fall River, spent the week end with local relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus MacQuarrie of Montauk, are in the village for a few days.

William Ecclestone has moved his household goods from Main street to Mystic.

Japanese are very fond of soft drinks and ice cream, and the setting up of soda fountains is increasing each year, according to Halleck A. Butts, Tokio, commercial attache. It is believed that there are about 25 to 30 soda fountains in Tokio alone. Although this seems to be a small number in comparison with the number in operation in an American city of the same size, it shows a large gain within the last two or three years. Most of the soda fountains in use at present are of American make.

DANIELSON

FIVE WEDDINGS IN DANIELSON AND VICINITY ON LABOR DAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 5—One would hesitate to record that today produced a plethora of weddings in Danielson and vicinity, but it may be safely recorded that Labor day looked good to a very considerable number of persons who had decided to enter into matrimony and picked the waning summer holiday as positively the best time in the world for their venture. Their good judgment might be elaborated upon, for the day was perfect weatherwise as well as otherwise.

Those who had little to do on the morning of the holiday and were doing it down in the business section found diversion and entertainment—and possibly a bit of inspiration and renewed interest in life—in watching the happy couples and their attendants as they paraded up and down in gaily decorated automobiles, or surged into a photographer's to have more or less permanent records of their great adventure recorded for posterity. The diverting spectacle was entirely pleasing and hopeful.

At 7.30 a. m. at St. James' church Miss Marie Clare LaFlamme, resident in the Connecticut village section of Danielson and Edouard Dumas of Putnam, were united in marriage by Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., at a nuptial mass of which Fr. Demers was the celebrant. The attending couple were Camille Lemery and Miss Alice Egan. A reception followed the church ceremony.

Another marriage at St. James' church at 8.15 a. m. was that of Miss Alexandrine Chabot and Joseph Arthur Giguere, both of Danielson. They were attended by Miss Dora Chabot, sister of the bride, and Louis Jette. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Antheime Mollard, M. S., the pastor of the parish, and he was celebrant of the nuptial mass. Numbers of relatives and friends of the contracting couple attended the ceremony, and also in attendance and participating in the ceremony of the marriage were the members of the French-speaking Children of Mary, of which the bride has been a member.

The third marriage of the morning at the church was that of Miss Alice Gorman of Brooklyn and Henri J. Madon of Danielson. The attending couple were Miss Alice Berry and Frank Gorman. Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., an assistant at St. James and ministering particularly to the missions of Brooklyn and Hampton of St. James parish, solemnized this marriage and was celebrant of the nuptial mass.

Of special interest to a large number of Danielson people was the wedding this morning at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's church in Putnam of Miss Jeanette Authier of that city and Rudolph LeClair of Danielson. Rev. U. O. Bellerose, the pastor performed the marriage ceremony and was celebrant of the nuptial mass, which was largely attended. Members of the Children of Mary, of which the bride has been a member for years attended the marriage mass in a body and participated in the usual way of honoring one of the members entering into the marriage state.

Miss Irene Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin T. Burns, of Academy street, Danielson, was bridesmaid, and Camille Brodeur of Putnam was best man. During the day Mr. and Mrs. LeClair left on a honeymoon trip during which they will visit in Washington, D. C. Upon their return they will make their home here in Danielson, where the groom has lived for years with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bousquet of North Main street.

This morning at St. Joseph's church in Dayville Rev. Ignatius Kost, the pastor, united in marriage Miss Alexandrine Getry of Putnam and Joseph LaBelle of Ballouville. Father Kost celebrated the nuptial mass, attended by a large number of relatives and friends of the couple. The attending couple were Miss Eglantine LaBelle and Frederick Getry. During the day the bridal couple left for a wedding trip. They are to make their home in Ballouville.

Passing from the sincere and conventional in relating what may be set down in print about happenings one heard about here today, there enters into the record brief mention of two not so sensible young women from the Grovenordales who hopped in for an automobile ride with strangers last night and found themselves deserted and broke in New London this morning. One doesn't know how they come to do it, but they do. This particular but wiser pair of modern Janes were riding northward toward their home town on a bus that passed through Danielson this morning. Their fare, it was understood, had been paid by the New London police. These supposedly ultra modern young women were bleary-eyed, heartsick and just a jot discouraged with themselves. They had worried, cried, promised themselves many things and had to answer many questions and make many explanations they did not care to detail. They had been without sleep and no super-abundance of food. They had indulged in an experience. Still their plight was not so bad as befalls girls who have to walk home from a gondola ride in Venice. They were homeward bound on rubber tires.

This morning at St. James' church a solemn high mass of requiem high mass of requiem was celebrated at 10 o'clock in memory of Mrs. Mary Hills, who died in Montreal the past week. The officers of the mass were Rev Edward Shelley, M. S., formerly an assistant in St. James' parish, Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., and Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S. Mrs. Mills was the mother of Mrs. Arthur Baribeault of Maple street and Mrs. Joseph Baribeault of South Main street. They were unable to go to Montreal for their mother's funeral, so arranged for this morning's solemn high mass here.

Tuesday evening of this week furnishes an unusual end of the summer feature inasmuch as St. James' band is to give a concert on Davis park at 8 o'clock, through the generosity of Mrs. Marinda C. Butler Robinson, many years resident here, and always interested during her residence in working for public musical events. Tuesday night's concert is the first scheduled for the park this season.

Tonight at Wildwood park and at Kum-Along-Inn pavilion on the West Side myriad dancers reveled in the enjoyment provided and rounded out one of the most perfect week end holiday periods this territory has known in a long, long time.

Motorists prepared for camping monopolized about every available good place for miles around Danielson today, an itinerant tour of highways and byways indicated. In many a secluestered nook a big car was parked while members of a party enjoyed a dainty lunch and then the wonders of a beautiful countryside.

Up to this afternoon not one official announcement had been made relative to candidacies for town offices at the party caucuses scheduled for the end of the coming week. However, those who appear to know will tell you that Selectmen John A. Gilbert and Napoleon P. Gingras, Dayville, will receive the nominations to succeed themselves in office at the republican caucus—and that things are not so certain as to what the democratic caucus will do as to naming candidates for selectmen. As to the other offices on the ticket, everything is silent, presaging no conflicts.

The rattle of hammers in the central section of the borough today, sort of left the impression that it really was Labor day for many, and was an offset to the general impression that Labor day is really a day without work for people that Labor the larger part of the time. Which seems to recall that an exception proves a rule.

Goodyear grows! It has been necessary to provide a new one-room school building in that community of Killingly for the opening of the school year, because the larger school otherwise would be overcrowded. Goodyear will have seven teachers during the school year opening Tuesday morning, more teachers than in any other community of the town, Danielson alone excepted.

Filling stations in Danielson enjoyed a lucrative business over the three day holiday. With every day approximating a perfect one and motor traffic at its supreme peak of the season, many a driver needed gas or oil for his car—and stopped here for it.

Sensitive people who are inclined to worry about such things, may be pleased to know that better motor equipment than ever before will be used during the school year opening Tuesday in transporting children to Danielson to school from outlying districts of the town than ever has been used before.

George Dragon, for many years a resident of Wauregan, now of Springfield, is visiting with relatives in Danielson.

Hundreds of pupils of the town of Killingly regarded this Labor day as a soft of joint festal and tribulation event, for they have to go back to school Tuesday morning. Of course, there were some exceptions.

Tonight summer camps on lake resorts in this vicinity were being abandoned by residents who have spent the greater part of the time since July 1 in the open. They have to get "home" now for the sake of their children, in many instances, that the youngsters may attend school.

Alvah Clemons, was shaken up a bit during the holiday period when a horse he was driving belted in Dyer street because of the automobile traffic and tossed him out. Mr. Clemons escaped with only a few scratches.

State Officer George L. Gardner is to leave the state police department the coming week end to take civilian employment in Danielson. He has obtained a position in civilian life in Danielson. Officer Gardner formerly was a resident of Central Village. He has been of the personnel at the Danielson barracks for several years.

Miss Alice L. Greene has returned from a two weeks' visit with her brother, Charles B. Greene in New London. Other visits Miss Greene has planned are to be with friends in Springdale, this state, and in Cambridge, Mass.

The perfect August record of no fire alarms in Danielson was maintained over the triple holiday period, and may it ever be thus.

Corn cutting is underway in minor degree in territory hereabouts, but the finest fields of the product are as yet untouched and likely will remain so for at least another fortnight. The crop, as it is now progressing, promises to be excellent.

Deacon and Mrs. A. C. Greene of North Main street are nearing their 62nd wedding anniversary, which will b observed in an unostentatious manner. Mr. Greene will reach his 88th birthday September 24, and it is pleasant to record that this wonderful gentleman retains fairly good health.

Wedding parties having their pictures taken fairly cluttered up the business section during the early hours of this morning, and everyone appeared to be having a delightful time, what with throwing confetti, participating in parades of gaily decorated cars and the general happiness of what might be termed the general occasion. The parties were representative of this and surrounding communities.

Miss Mary E. Greene, who has been spending some time in the west, is now visiting with her parents, Deacon and Mrs. A. C. Greene of North Main street.

George A. Sambroski of Lowell was a visitor with friends in Danielson and Goodyear over the holiday period.

PUTNAM

GORDON WINSLOW IS MAKING REPUTATION AS A SPRINTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Sept. 5.—Gordon Wislow of Sunnyside Heights, a graduate of the Putnam high school in the class of 1927, whose ability as a sprinter has now become well known through the state, added another win to his list of victories when he raced in the 100 yard dash, open event, at Rockville fair, last week, and won the race with ease in ten and two-fifth seconds. Wipslow has been asked to compete in an important meet at Bridgeport in the near future, when Jackson, the state champion, and Serracki of New Britain, another star, who lost to Winslow in a meet at Camp Trumbull will be running. Charlie Murphy of this city may also compete in the Bridgeport events. Winslow also won the 200 yard dash at Norwichthis morning.

The weather over Sunday and the holiday in this section was ideal. Putnam has probably never seen a larger number of automobiles, some whose destination was Putnam, but by far a greater number passing through and coming and going from all directions. Tourists returning from the White Mountains, and Canadian frontiers were numerous.

At the Putnam Country club, the links were thronged both Sunday and today, the majority of the players being from out of town.

The annual meeting of the Thompson W. C. T. U. was held at the King's Daughters' hall at East Thompson. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Minnie Bixby; secretary, Mrs. Everett Huntington; tresurer, Mrs. George Bixby; press and publicity, Mrs. Ella Carlton; flower mission superintendent, Mrs. Edythe Woodward Adams. After the election of officers refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed. In the afternoon, there were a number of talks made by the invited guests, including Rev. George Davis, Rev. Frank Chamberlain and Rev. Talmadge Root.

The Thompson union was organized in 1899 with Mrs. Jennie Robinson as president until her death and since then Mrs. Minnie Bixby has each year been elected president.

The annual meeting of the League of Women Voters was held at the home of Mrs. George Lyon in the English Neighborhood at Woodstock. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Adelaide Merritt; vice president, Mrs. Albert Hibbard; secretary, Mrs. Ewart Healey; treasurer, Mrs. F. U. Johnston. A short programme was given followed by an informal discussion on current events by Miss Ethel Upham.

Labor Day marks the dividing line between the summer season and the fall at Pomfret. This summer has been a very active and crowded one there and those who love the autumn months at Pomfret are already gathering and from present indications September and October will more than live up to the traditions for a gay and brillant season. Among the well known families there are the following: Mr. and Mrs. Horace B. Clark of Hartford will remain at the North cottage which they have occupied exclusively during the summer months; Mrs. Rufus B. Richards who has been at the East cottage through the summer will continue there during the fall months and her daughter, Mrs. Albert Lythgoe will be with her; Misses Alice and Mary VanBibber from Alstead, N. H.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Delafield and Mrs. Keane from Boston; Miss Herbert from Rockport, Mass.; Rev. and Mrs. Frank Cookman from Bar Harbor.

At the Main house will be Mrs. Loren Dubois, Miss Alice Wells of Manchester, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goodwin from Bar Harbor; Robert Varnum, Mrs. Herbert Maynard of Dedham, Mass.; Miss Isabel Duer and Miss Frances Hoffman of Baltimore; Mrs. Charles Phatt of Bar Harbor; Miss Hattie Barriere of Newport; Mrs. Forbes and Miss Forbes of Nahant; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Purdy of Murray Bay; Miss Anna B. Thomas, who has recently returned from abroad; Mrs. William Bradford and Miss Bradford of Providence.

Rev. Father Adrian Dykeman, for 25 years curate at St. Mary's church officiated at his last mass on Sunday as curate and will leave for New York this week, sailing on September 10 on the "Rotterdam" for Holland, his native country. He will make his home at Heerlen-Limburg and after a rest will take up his church work there, but at a smaller parish than St. Mary's where the work will be lighter.

Father Thomas McGarry of Ansonia, N. Y., has been the recent guest of his sister, Miss Mary McGarry of Woodstock avenue.

Alexis Bebeault of Main street is nursing a sprained arm and shoulder. While walking across the floor at his home, his heel caught in a rug causing him to fall heavily and sprained his arm and shouler.

After being closed for the past three months, the Bradley theatre opened on Sunday night with a thoroughly remodeled and modern theatre. It is now one of the finest theatres in New England of its size. Nothing has been neglected to make it a comfort and pleasure to the theatre goers of this section.

A new Estey organ, electrically operated, has been installed. Luxurious leather seates have been put in and from gallery to orchestra, the seats are the same, and it is as comfortable upstairs as it is down. An excellent ventilating system has been installed and is now working so that no matter what the crowd, or temperature, clean, fresh air will be guaranteed.

The decorating scheme, executed by the well known Eckhardt studios of New York has transformed the Bradley into a thing of beauty. From a ladies' rest room to a gentlemen's smoking room, splendid fixtures, lighting effects, carpeted floor, fancy grills, new safety exits and a completely uniformed staff, the theatre is ndw a theatre that the management is proud of.

Miss Prndence Paine of New York spent the week end and holiday with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Paine of Thompson.

Hyde Smith of Worcester, formerly of Putnam, was the guest of friends in the city last week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Williams of Center street have been entertaining Mr. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Williams, of Brookline, Mass.

Miss Bertha Child of Boston spent the week end and holiday with her mother, Mrs. Annie C. Child of South Main street. Miss Child is a dietitean at the Massachusetts General hospital. She graduated in June from Simmons college at Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. George Baker are the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Richard West, at Lowell, Mass., for Mr. Baker's vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Rich of Grove street and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rich of Fitchburg, have returned from a trip by automobile through Vermont and northern New England.

Miss Rhoda Gilpatric has returned from a girls' camp at Wilton, N. H., where she has been a counsollor this summer.

Miss Clara Keller who has been spending her vacation with her sister, Mrs. Graydon Sharpe, has returned to her home at Harrisburg, Pa.

Miss Alice Griffin of Boston is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Martha Griffin of Pomfret street.

JEWETT CITY

GAREAUX HEARING TODAY TO BE HELD IN TOWN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWET CITY, Sept. 5—Tuesday morning a hearing will be given Jerome Gareaux, of Providence, in the town court, at the police station where he is being held without bond. He is charged with having caused the death of Fred S. Campbell Sunday evening, when the latter was struck by the automobile of Gareaux in North Main street. Pending the receipt of the findings of Coroner J. J. Desmond, the case may be continued and Gareaux admitted to bail. State Detective Lewis was in town today, and held conference with the local police regarding the case, which seems to be viewed unfavorably for Gareaux, vecause of his attempt to get away from possible responsibility.

The state detective was of the opinion that all possible credit is due Officer Bacon, as without his prompt action the man would have made a clean getaway, and in a few minutes would have mingled with the traffic with which the state road was crowded and no identity could ever have been established.

Undertaker E. E. Gilbert was given permission this forenoon to remove the body from Backus hospital to his rooms in Jewett City. Howard R. Campbell, son of the man killed, was reached by wire at Keansburg, N. J., by his uncle, Oscar Campbell, and arrived here this evening. He is staying with his cousin, E. H. Hiscox. Mr. Campbell was a member of the Jewett City Baptist church and one of the older and honored members of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M.

CARELESS DRIVING CHARGE AGAINST ATTLEBORO MAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 5—Resultant from an automobile mixup in Voluntown, Sunday afternoon, State Trooper Carmody arrested Frank X. Lorette, 124 Pine street, Attleboro, Mass., on a charge of careless driving. Lorette spent the night in a cell at the local police station. This morning, bonds of $100 were furnished by Mr. Porier of Taftville and Lorette was released for trial in the Voluntown court.

Foxglove is out along the local country highway. It is about the only flower left except te composites. One girl has a new name for it, and calls it Devil's Thimble. Its large pale yellow flowers, are a sure attraction when seen among the dark green bushes beside a roadside wall.

No pictures at Finn theater tonight. —adv.

Sunday and holiday weather here was ideal, with Labor Day temperature at 72 degrees most of the time. Few visitors came to town, but those who availed themselves of the double-header holiday were many.

The borough was well represented at the pageant in Norwich, while some went to Hartford and other nearby celebration points. Callers at East Greenwich were much interested in the 250th anniversary exercises.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Campbell had as Labor Day guests Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Officer of Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Campbell, Bridgeport, and Mrs. Martha Casavant, Providence. Mrs. Casavant leaves today (Tuesday) for a two months' western trip.

Jeremiah Morey and family have returned from a week's automobile trip to Hartford, Springfield, Chicopee Falls and Mt. Tom.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davis, Miss Bertha Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gray motored to Cape Cod over the week-end.

J. E. Phillips is spending a week's vacation in New York and on a trip over the Storm King highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tischsler and Miss Ruth Allen of Lisbon leave Tuesday to spend some time in New York.

Sunday was a record breaker for travel over the state road, with a falling off of more than 50 per cent Monday. One man allowed that everybody had got somewhere and hadn't come back yet.

Leslie Carroll and Eugene Carroll, Jr., have been spending a few days visiting friends in Boston and on Cape Cod.

It is worth a trip to Wauregan for those interested to see the great field of silo corn, being grown by the company. Many acres show a stand 8 feet high and still going.

Miss Ruth Ballou is in Sandusky, Ohio, the guest of her roommate at the school they attend in Boston.

Miss Dorothy Paul returned Sunday after two weeks' visit at her sister's home in Middletown. Mrs. H. E. Paul spent several days there last week.

Ruthie Rebekah lodge celebrated the Rebekah degree Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Deley Adams and family of Baltic have been guests at Mr. and Mrs. John Medick's.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Carkin and three children of Groton, Mass., are spending the week end at Mrs. John Medick's. Mrs. Carkin was formerly Charlotte Noble of Jewett City.

George Torney has as guests at his home at Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stamand's, his sister, Miss Tormey, of Providence and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Tormey of New York.

GALES FERRY

CHAPMAN FAMILY REUNION HELD AT THE SUB-BASE

The second anual re-union of the Chapman family, was held Saturday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Courtland E. Colver at the submarine base. The day was fine and much enjoyed in the open by the guests, on the lawn, and with walks up the hillside to the Colver lake. Dinner was served at long tables under a large elm on the lawn. The menu included cold meats, baked beans, escalloped corn, salads, cake and pie with fruit, and coffee.

Following dinner Mr. Colver, secretary of the clan, called on William L. Chapman of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., brother of Charles H. Chapman of Cheshire, president of the clan who was unable to be present, owing to the illness of Mrs. Chapman, to preside at the business meeting. By order of the chair, the officers remain the same for another year: President Charles H. Chapman, Cheshire, Conn., secretary, Courtland E. Colver, submarine base. The President and Mrs. Jessie L. Fox of Middletown, were made a committee, with power to select some shore resort for the reunion and dinner next year. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Addison L. Chapman and Mrs. Jesse L. Fox of Middletown, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Chapman and son William Duke Chapman, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Chapman, Groton, Frederick M. Chapman and son F. Mrs. Harold Brand of Quaker Hill was a caller Thursday on her aunt, Mrs. Fred W. Turner of Long Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Turner of Long Cove were recent guests of the former's nephew, Byron Wilcox and family of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., who are spending their vacation at Giant's Neck beach.

HOPKINTON

Thomas E. Champlin is in Westerly hospital and recently was operated upon for appendicitis and other troubles.

Rev. E. P. Mathewson officiated Saturday morning at his home in Ashaway, at the marriage of Leslie Eugene Wright and Ollie Viola Brown of Hope Valley. A double ring ceremony was used. They were attended by Charles H. Wright and Myra A. Brown, brother of the groom and sister of the bride respectively.

Two autos collided Saturday near Brightman Hill, on the Nooseneck Hill road. One was just coming out of the driveway to "The Sign of the Turk," when struck by the other. Both machines were damaged, but the number plates were removed so that the ownership could not be discovered and no report of personal injuries has been made.

Fred C. Allen, visited his parents Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Allen, over Labor day.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo P. Kenyon took a buggy ride Friday and called on friends in Alton and Carolina.

Mrs. Sarah F. B. Hood was taken suddenly and violently ill last week and is still in bed, though more comfortable.

Miss Hannah May Dean, 17 years old, and her niece, Miss Olva Martha Dean, who is 18, received diplomas at the graduation exercises of the Middletown, Conn., high school.

Fly-Tox Quickly Ends Mosquito Torment

Normal human blood is too thick to be drawn through the mosquito's small piercing tube. They must first inject a thinning fluid. In that way disease germs are set afloat in the blood stream-bacteria of burning fever and crippling disease. There is also the danger of streptococcic infection (blood poisoning) from scratching the bite. Mosquitoes should be killed. Health authorities advocate Fly-Tox. Fly-Tox is easy to use. Safe, stainless, fragrant, sure.—Adv.

BE MADE A VOTER

Certain steps are necessary in order to be made a voter. It is not an arduous task, but it is necessary to take those steps and to take them at the right time and in order. It is easy to overlook the importance of taking action at the proper time and for that reason the notice of the registrars of voters, that all applications from those who desire to be made voters should be in their hands by tonight, ought not to be disregarded.

Those who apply are supposed to be citizens, to have resided in state and town the required length of time and to be of the proper age. Further than that there is only the necessity of proving ability to read and the taking of the elector's oath to have the right to vote to become operative.

It is all very simple but those who want to become voters must follow the prescribed routine. There is a date fixed, by which time all applications must be in the hands of the registrars. Forgetfulness is not acceptable and there are only certain times a year when voters are made. It is therefore necessary to act in keeping with the requirements of the law and those who neglect it must of necessity wait until another opportunity is available.

There should be a sufficient ambition on the part of those eligible to become voters. Strenuous efforts have been made in behalf of the franchise and the chance to have a say in regard to governmental affairs is highly treasured. It is therefore surprising that more of those who become of age or those who have obtained their citizenship otherwise, do not show a greater eagerness to go through with the formality of getting this great privilege and putting themselves in a position to exercise it on any and all occasions.

Inasmuch as the registrars of voters have given warning, those for whom it is intended should rise to the situation. No one can force them to take such a step but it is one of the accompaniments of good citizenship.

SHEEP RAISING

Evidences are available throughout the country that sheep raising is not abandoned and that there are those who believe that it is not only possible to carry on this feature of farming activity but that it is profitable.

Connecticut and New England has large possibilities for sheep raising. The one big handicap is the sheep killing dog and when it gets busy serious havoc is wrought. Discouraging as such slaughter may be, it hasn't convinced many that it is sufficient to drive them out of the business. There is a demand for quantities of home produced spring lamb and there is always a market for such wool as can be clipped for market. These involve slight labor on the part of the producers but they serve to fatten the farm revenue.

Efforts for the encouragement of sheep raising and the aid which has been made available for the breeding and care of sheep has not exactly resulted in covering the New England hillsides with sheep. It cannot be said that it has been followed by sheep being raised on every farm, although to a greater or less degree it has served to create greater interest in a farming proposition than hitherto existed and it would not be surprising if sheep raising was on the gain. They are at least to be seen on many farms. Sometimes the flocks are large and at other times they are small but greater interest in the raising of sheep and the revival of the industry means a greater interest in the curbing of the prowling, sheep killing dogs, which never ought to be allowed at large.

A sheep killing dog is entitled to little or no consideration. The prompt despatch of such is an excellent remedy and the loss will be insignificant. The unfortunate part of it is that it is too often such dogs are not discovered or known until they have done serious damage and caused owners to throw up their sheep raising ambitions in utter despair.

DEBTS TO UNCLE SAM

When Comptroller General McCarl of the federal government rules to the effect that he will not sanction the paying over of federal road allotments to four states until they have satisfied their debts to the federal government it indicates that Washington still has some means of pressure even if it has been unable to get a settlement otherwise.

The failure of certain states to settle debts owed to foreign bondholders is frequently a cause for comment. That is an old story but references are occasionally made to the fact that the government should meet these obligations even if the states will not. But while certain states have not discharged these age old debts it appears that there are others which are no more willing to reimburse the federal government for loans recently contracted.

The states of North Carolina, Tennessee and Louisiana owe the federal government the total sum of $700,000. They got government funds to aid in the carrying on of Indian wars and they have not settled though many years have intervened. The fourth state is Montana which is obligated only to the extent of $20,000 for money advanced from federal sources for the fighting of forest fires.

From all indications it would appear that there was not sufficient appreciation of the assistance that was given by the advancing of federal money else it would have been promptly paid back. Bringing federal pressure to bear has not been productive of favorable results. Washington, like foreign bondholders, is singing for its money, but Washington, according to the comptroller general, has a means of collection which is not available to foreign holders of the bonds of these states and it is his proposal that it be used.

If other states return federal loans it is only fair that all should, and if states which are due to receive federal appropriations for road building or other purposes are going to experience the handicap that would go with the holding up of such funds it would indeed be a costly experience for each one of them.

THE DEVIL'S HOPYARD

The Devil's Hopyard is part of the state park system. Within the past year it has received much advertising because of its unusual attractions. It has been made more available through the construction of the Norwich-East Haddam highway and those who go there to enjoy the natural beauties of the setting are constantly increasing.

Reports which come from those who have recently visited the park are to the effect that the highway provisions for those who desire to pass judgment on the state's acquisition are grossly inadequate. Rainy weather has helped to wash and damage the road but during week ends the highway through the park is not sufficient to accommodate the many cars which are making the trip in both directions. There are points where it is impossible for two cars to pass, and there are considerable stretches where it is only by the greatest difficulty that cars entering can pass those going out. This with the wretched condition of two of the hills leaves the only poor impression which visitors gain of the hop yard with its native wildness and its captivating falls.

Regardless of the work that the state has done in providing access to the park there are certain essentials which are needed and can be provided without great expense. The attractiveness of the spot is sufficient to create popularity but those who are disposed to visit there should have a reasonable assurance of safety and comfort. The state park commission might get a valuable insight into the situation by a personal visit on a pleasant week end. The road is bad enough for one way traffic without being obliged to take care of those going in both directions.

THE CRASH AT WILLINGTON

Attention has of late been especially centered upon the losses of life that have accompanied attempts to fly over long stretches of water. This does not necessarily mean that safety is assured by flights over land, as the death of Aviator Cline in the woods at East Willington clearly demonstrates.

Whether it will ever be known just what the circumstances were is a question. The indications create the impression that the experienced pilot was flying low for the purpose of determining where he was during a thick fog and may have gotten so close to the ground that he was unable to avoid the wooded hillside. However the plane had experienced trouble and the pilot realized that he was facing risks which he was unwilling to assume to the extent of continuing beyond Dudley, Mass., with his passenger, who was dropped there.

It was the first trip with a weighty load of express matter under the control of an experienced pilot and one who had gained the reputation of getting his plane through. The crash will unquestionably be the subject of an investigation but it is evident that circumstantial evidence must govern any decision. It is another one of those demonstrations of the terror of fog and it emphasizes the fact that that terror is real, quite as much on land as on the water, and that while it may be possible to rise above, or to fly through, dense fog under the guidance of modern instruments, getting bearings or effecting a landing through the impenetrable curtain is a highly dangerous process.

WIGWAGGING THE PULPIT

"I was wondering Rankin, if we could devise a code," suggested the rector's young wife at breakfaast. "I mean so that I could signal you when there's something I know and you ought to know. I sit so far back now that my motions wouldn't be noticed by the congregation."

"What kind of a something do you mean, my dear—that I ought to know?" His manner was just a shade too bland.

"Now don't be reverend! Last Sunday, for instance, you couldn't find your handkerchief and I had seen you slip it under those books on the pulpit and knew at the time you wouldn't have an idea where it was when you wanted it. It was pure misery to see you diving under your surplice into your trousers' pocket after it, the way you do, and not to be able to tell you where it was."

But the good-looking clergyman only laughed.

"You're a regular little Martha. You feel the small things too much. I don't believe any one else in church knew I'd lost my handkerchief."

"They all knew it better than you did. You get so engrossed with your thought that you don't know what's happening and the thought is always so good that I can't bear to have people's attention distracted by something that strikes them as funny."

"Funny? How do you mean—funny? I didn't disgrace myself for lack of a handkerchief, did I?"

"N-no, but it was evident you wanted it, and"—she giggled nervously—"twice you did, surreptitiously, touch the tip of your nose with your finger."

"No—truly! And once in awhile, dearest, you do mis-speak without knowing it. Nothing so bad as the man that said he had a half-warmed fish in his bosom when he meant half-formed wish, but just enough to interrupt your effect. And if I could only tell you in some way!"

He considered.

"I don't see how you could prepare for such emergencies. There'd never be two alike."

"No; perhaps you're right. But one thing we could do—" and now she reached the point she had been deftly leading to— "when I think you're not being heard all over the house, I could give you a sign for that."

"But I am heard all over the house," he asserted, as she had known he would.

"I know you think so. But when you drop to those very low tones—"

"Low, but carrying, remember. It's the carrying quality that counts in public speaking. I can adjust my voice, even in low tones, to reach any part of that church. It's one of my strong points."

"—Just the same, Rankin, I've tried to tell you several times that in the new church you're not being heard so well. That's why I took a seat far back to make sure, and last Sunday I missed a lot of your sermon."

Here was something concrete to be reckoned with, and, though Dr. Butler's first concern was for his wife's hearing, it was finally agreed that if, at any time during the service, she should put her handkerchief to her lips and hold it there he would immediately raise—the word he insisted on was "increase"—his voice. Mrs. Butler was happy. She had trod on sensitive ground so lightly that the feelings of her adored husband had not suffered.

But as she listened to him from her remote pew, a few hours later, she realized with growing amusement that, though her plan was succeeding, it was not working precisely as she had expected. Her husband, bent on proving her warning superfluous, was aiming the weekly announcements at the rear wall with a force and a clipped emphasis that caused people to look at each other inquiringly. It was so patent to her that his attention was focused on the sound of his voice rather than on his words that she was just wondering how it must seem to the rest of the congregation when—what was he saying!

"Next Tuesday — will be—Ash—Wednesday!"

An inward convulsion seized her. There was a shriek of laughter struggling to get out of her mouth and involuntarily she clapped her handkerchief to her lips. Instantly her husband increased his voice and with a boom like Big Bertha responded to her signal.

"Next Thursday — will—be — Ash Wednesday."

Something told her that the whole congregation was shaking silently, but nothing told her to lower the signal. Obsessed by one thought—to hold back that laugh—she bowed her head and continued to press her handkerchief against her lips.

A tense silence followed. In vain her husband sent incredulous glares at her. He knew he had made himself heard. At last he said impressively:

"Will some one kindly tell me whether I am distinctly heard in the rear of the room?" a vestryman sitting behind Mrs. Butler managed to rise and say, with a gulp which she understood all too well:

"Yes, indeed, Dr. Butler, we hear you."

"Thank you," said the dignified clergyman. But the glance of triumph which he darted at his wife turned to one of bewilderment as, with a scarlet face, she rose and hurried down the aisle to the outer door, leaving him to wonder, all through the service, what under the sun could have happened!—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Protest Against Playground Plan.

Mr. Editor: The proposition to convert the city dump into a children's playground, I look upon with wonder and surprise. Wonder that such a thing could happen in these civilized times. Surprise that the tax-payers should remain indifferent and allow it.

All agree that the last city meeting was a farce and a disgrace to Norwich. Every item bloated to the fullest extent. Many new items, some plainly unnecessary and all voted without a dissentinb no, or request for explanation. What a deplorable change, when compared with the meetings of the past.

Now the proposition to convert the city dump into a children's playground—that "dump" of disease breeding filth, made up of garbage and refuse, surrounded by dirty semi-stagnent water boiling with poison gases from its filthy bottom, the whole being showered with soot and smoke belching from the stacks of the shops and engines on the railroad and located at the lowest spot in the city.

It seems to me that our city officials should have something to say about this—our health officer—if we have one—also the mayor and the officers elected to care for our city's interests.

What will be done about the city's garbage? Will the place be used for a dump and a playground, too?

Then, too, the city barn should be abandoned by the city soon. That building situated on a valuable corner in the center of the business district should be sold to business interests adding to the prosperity of the city and returning revenue in taxes. And the city's tools and apparatus should be moved to and housed on the dump. Arrangements should be made for this in event of any distribution of the dump land.

This dump is one of the resources of the city and should be conserved. It is ideal for manufacturing purposes, being convenient to railroad and tide water, and should now be leveled and top dressed, a permanent street surveyed through with allowance for future growth and so put in shape to appeal to manufacturers looking for new location or for factory sites.

Would like to suggest here, that any land given as an inducement for any business to locate there should have a string on it, that in event for any reason—such business be discontinued the land should revert to the city and not be sold for junk.

Now the tax payers should be interested in this playground proposition for the cost will be considerable, no one knows or has any idea the many thousand of dollars it will cost. Also it will require a yearly tax for maintenance.

And it is not right to tie up or dispose permanently of any of the resources of the city. A mistake of this kind has been made in the past, namely the town farm with approximately 10 acres all entirely within our city's limits dwarfing the city that much and blocking building in that section. This farm should be located outside the city, in the town or county, and this land made available for building purposes, adding to the city's growth with resultant revenue through taxes. Let us avoid another mistake and hope that a number of public spirited citizens will gather at the public meeting in the council chamber in the city hall this (Tuesday) evening and vote down this proposition.

Norwich is now staggering under a heavy burden of taxes and the taxpayers should demand that all unnecessary expenses be now stopped and the watchword economy.

PUBLIC SPIRIT.

Norwich, Sept. 5, 1927.

Little Talks on Thrift

DIGNITY OF LABOR

Public thought at this time turns naturally to the subject of labor, and the present period should be a reminder of the necessity and the dignity of toil.

It is unfortunate that any false pride should exist with regard to the honored place held by those engaged in manual pursuits or that any young man should choose as his life's work a line of endeavor for of which he is ill fitted, simply because of illusions regarding the status of those who work with their hands.

The young man who takes up an honorable trade has by no means lowered himself in what should be his rightful standing in society, nor has he taken a step that means the end of ambition for great personal success.

There is much sound common sense in some of the so-called old-fashioned customs and practices. Many of our most successful men were originally farm hands or factory boys.

It is not merely an idle platitude to speak of the dignity of labor. The skilled artisan who is willing to give an honest day's work for an honest day's pay holds second place to no one in the scheme of human progress.

We can well afford to get back to some of the ideals of our forefathers with regard to the rightful place of physical labor. Let those of our younger generation who are today choosing their life's work understand that there are opportunities of worthy and creditable employment under advantageous conditions in many of the trades, and that in going into these positions they will be sacrificing nothing in the estimation of sensible people.

False pride in these matters has cost many a young man a successful and useful career.

Lack of thrift on the part of many is due to this same erroneous viewpoint. It is worthy and honorable to be engaged in honest work of any kind. Those who despise hard work despise real thrift.—American Society for Thrift.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John B. Kendrick, who is in line for congratulations today on the occasion of his 70th birthday anniversary, is a member of the United States senate from Wyoming and in point of service is now entitled to be classed among the veterans of the upper house of congress. His home is in Sheridan, and he comes from a region where stock raising is one of the chief industries. Consequently, he has kept a close eye on all Federal legislation that would help or harm the interests of the stockgrowers. Senator Kendrick himself is a large owner of cattle ranches in northern Wyoming and in southern Montana. He was born and raised in Texas, lived for a time in Colorado, and then settled in Wyoming. Before going to the senate he had experience as a member of the Wyoming legislature and as governor of the state.

WILLIAM W. BACKUS

William W. Backus, who gave in 1891, $75,000 (which with accumulated interest now amounts to over $80,000) for the construction of the hospital in this city which will bear his name and which will not be completed until the spring of 1927, died at his home in Yantic, Wednesday noon, after an illness of 10 days with pneumonia at the age of 89 years. He was the last survivor of his family, which has been prominent in the history of the town since its first settlement.

William Backus, who came from Norwich, England, to Saybrook as early as 1637 and moved to Norwich in 1659, was the American progenitor of the family. He was the first Englishman and the second person to die in the settlement.

William W. Backus was the son of James Backus, and his mother was Dorothy Church Chandler, daughter of Charles Church Chandler, Esq., of Woodstock, Conn. His father was one of the first settlers of Ohio, and was among the founders of Marietta in 1788 and he built the first house in that town. At the urgent request of his father James Backus returned in 1791, to Yantic, where he built a sawmill, and in 1812 built and ran two carding machines for carding wool for farmers, hatters and others. He also built a merchant's store, and manufactured potash and pearl ash, and built a provision house for the purpose of packing beef and pork. He afterwards carried on the iron business founded by Elijah Backus and conducted by the family until new methods of producing iron goods made the business unprofitable.

Mr. Backus was the sixth child in the family of eight children, six daughters and two sons, none of whom married. He was born in Yantic, Oct. 22, 1803, and was 13 years of age at the time of his father's death, Sept. 16, 1816. Most of his life has been spent at the old homestead in Yantic. He went in 1819 to Marietta, Ohio, and was for than a year in the mercantile establishment of Dudley Woodbridge, Jr.

Ill health caused him to return to Yantic and to take up his abode in the ancestral mansion where six generations of the Backus family spent their lives. Under his eye for threescore years and ten the farm has been cultivated. He was a thrifty farmer, raised huge and profitable crops and for half a century he was the largest raiser of cattle in New London county. He was enterprising and prosperous.

He was an eager student and was well informed; and he made paying investments in New York and elsewhere. He held considerable stock in the elevated roads in New York city.

Mr. Backus was a man of retiring disposition. By tact and prudence he amassed a fortune estimated at from $250,000 to $300,000.

In 1889 he issued at his private expense a genealogical memoir of the Backus family containing about 400 pages, and it is surprising to note the important events in the history of the town which are directly connected with the history of this family.

His monument is the W. W. Backus hospital, which is being built through his liberality, and which has been munificiently endowed by Mr. W. A. Slater. The thought which prompted the gift has permanently connected his name with an institution the beneficent influence of which will be felt by generations unborn.

(Condensed from Norwich Bulletin, July 19, 1892

Mr. Backus bequeathed $25,000 to the Norwich Free Academy, $20,000 each to the Y. M. C. A. and the United Workers, $15,000 to the Otis library, $10,000 to Eliza Huntington Memorial home and $5,500 in all to kinsmen, friends and churches. The residue of his estate, amounting at the lowest estimate to $80,000 went to the Backus hospital.

YOUR HEALTH

GOITER

Charles F. Kuhn, M. D. Detroit, Mich. Member Gorgas Memorial

Goiter, as no other single word concerning health, has been the subject of discussion more frequently than anything else by city, state, and national health authorities.

Enlargement or disturbance of the thyriod gland is called goiter.

The thyroid gland in adults usually consists of two lobes about two inches long and one and one-fourth inches or more broad, situated in the front of the neck as a shield over the Adam's apple. It is known as a "ductless" or "endocrine" gland of internal secretion. Its secretion is called a "hormone" and is discharged into the blood.

The activating principle of the thyroid hormone is thyroxin, a crystalline compound containing iodine. Without this hormone life would be impossible.

The glands of internal secretion are now known to play an important role in the physical and mental growth and development of an individual.

The goiter belt in America includes all the vast territory of fresh water lakes, the Great Lakes, in inland mountainous regions. Sheep and fish in these states, as well as many human beings, are known to be afflicted with goiter.

The addition of small quantities of iodine to the water and salt has wrought wonders in diminishing the goiter menace.

In Switzerland, where goiter is so prevalent, there may be seen many cretins, persons dwarfed in body and mind, as helpless as little children.

The Atlantic seaports are practically free from the scourge of goiter, iodine being found in the water, air, food and fish.

In consequence, the popular treatment for the prevention and care of goiter is to give some form of iodine. Much harm has resulted from the indiscriminate use of drugs and electricity by the laity and nostrum venders. Science has discovered, however, that there are various types of goiter, requiring careful study and different treatment.

The highly nervous, intensive, energetic individual, complaining of shortness of breath upon exertion, palpitation or heart flutter, ravenous appetite, one who is unable to tolerate heat, is potentially a goiter subject.

The youth or adult who, having always enjoyed good health, suddenly becomes listless, drowsy, forgetful, feels chilly or cold, has dry scaly skin, brittle hair, and takes on fat, is also a subject to be examined for another form of goiter disturbance.

The absence of a prominent neck is no assurance of freedom from goiter.

Striking improvement is often seen following early and scientific treatment of the diseased thyroid gland.

It is not our purpose to attempt to outline medical or surgical treatment for goiter, but vividly to impress the importance of an early diagnosis of the various disturbances of the thyroid gland and to warn against the many goiter cures so freely offered.

A Hot Time

Stolen sweets may have a sting
And retribution swiftly bring.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Cubby was now quite at home at Farmer Brown's. He was quite one of the family. A hook had been put on the pantry door so that he couldn't get into it again. And now that it was all over Mother Brown took great delight in telling about how Cubby had upset the milk and then fallen into the flour barrel. Every day he was allowed to run about as long as Farmer Brown's Boy was near to keep track of him.

For a few minutes there was a hot time

Such an inquisitive little chap as he was! Why, the curiosity of Peter Rabbit was nothing to the curiosity of this little Bear. He poked his nose into everything that he could poke it into. He could follow Farmer Brown's Boy all about the place. He could even go fishing with Farmer Brown's Boy, playing about on the bank while Farmer Brown's Boy fished.

Now over among the apple trees were some hives of bees, for Farmer Brown liked honey and he always kept bees. For some reason or other Cubby never had been over where those hives were. Then one day he started to follow Farmer Brown's Boy through the Old Orchard. Their way led right past those hives. Cubby noticed them. Right away, as usual he became curious. He must find out what those white boxes were. The way to find out was to go see. So he turned aside and marched straight over to the first hive. Farmer Brown's Boy didn't know it. He had taken it for granted that that little Bear was still following at his heels.

When Cubby reached that first hive he stood up on his hind legs to examine it. The hive was on a low bench. When he stood up, Cubby's head was only just a little above the entrance to the hive. Suddenly he felt a sharp pain in his nose. He slapped at it with one paw. There was another sharp pain and again he slapped at his nose with his little black paw. At first he didn't discover what it was. Then he noticed a few insects around a little hole in that queer box. They were humming very angrily and every minute the number of them grew. Cubby reached out and sniffed at that little doorway. At the same instant those bees, for that is what those humming insects were, began stinging him wherever they could reach him. But that sniff had tickled Cubby's nose with a smell of something he never had tasted, but which somehow he knew was the best thing in all the Great World. It was inside that white box and he meant to have it.

It was just at this point that Farmer Brown's Boy looked back and discovered where Cubby was. "Hi there!" he yelled, running toward Cubby. But he was just too late. Cubby had scrambled up on that bench, and was pulling that hive over. Yes, sir, that is just what he was doing. He meant to have that honey, no matter what happened.

Now I said Farmer Brown's Boy was just too late. It was true. He was just too late to prevent Cubby from upsetting that hive. But it would have been a whole lot better for Farmer Brown's Boy if he had been a whole lot later. As it was, he managed to get there just as the swarm of bees poured out. Those bees were no respecters of persons. They were too angry to stop to find out who was at fault and who wasn't. While some of them started in to give Cubby a lesson, a lot of others seemed to blame Farmer Brown's Boy for what had happened. For a few minutes there was a hot time. Farmer Brown's Boy took to his heels. He had to. But Cubby buried his nose in honeycomb and was blissfully unaware that there were any such things as stinging bees. He plunged one paw after the other into that broken honeycomb and crammed it into his mouth. His face was smeared with honey. It dropped from his paws. His coat was smeared with it. Now and then he struck angrily at the bees, but he kept right on eating. He was stuffing himself with honey.

Going to College?
For Two Years or Four?

A college degree in business has cash value. It is the symbol of time-saving, money-making training.

President Faunce of Brown University, says:
"The vast majority would benefit more by some other kind of education than that given in the traditional American college."

Roger Babson, America's greatest statistician and business adviser, says:
"Is it wise to spend four years in college if planning to enter business? Courses longer than two years tend to defeat the purpose."

Our Two-year Collegiate Business Courses are attracting hundreds of high school graduates each year.

They lead to state-authorized degrees and prepare for preferred positions.

Enroll now for Business Administration, Higher Accounting, Executive-Secretarial, Commercial Teacher Training. Other collegiate courses in General Business and Stenographic-Secretarial Training.

65th Year, Day School begins Sept. 6—Evening School, Sept. 8—Evening Courses in Business Administration, Higher Accounting, Sept. 20.

Just like the old-time beans baked in the ground!

Never such beans as those of the Maine woods lumber camps until now —— in

BEAN HOLE BEANS

Can you imagine baked beans with the flavor of forest fragrance, with the tang of camp fire smoke?

Such were the old-time beans baked in the "bean hole"—the ground oven—of the Maine woods lumber camps.

Everyone who heard of them wanted to enjoy their rare flavor. But of course beans couldn't be baked that way at home.

But now you can enjoy them! For a packer of fine foods has found a process that reproduces that wonderful out-door flavor. In Bean Hole Beans!

He uses the old Maine recipe. And his own unique production methods give you baked beans that taste of fragrant pine and wood smoke. Bean Hole Beans are like no other beans you've ever tasted! Enjoy this new deliciousness today. Your grocer has them. Two sizes —medium and large.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

SEIZE ALLEGED LIQUOR IN FRANKLIN STREET RAID

As the result of a raid on the store at No. 121 Franklin street, early Monday evening, George W. Smith, 21, was arrested on a charge of violation of the liquor law. He was held in bonds of $1,000 and will be presented in the city court this (Tuesday) morning.

About 8 o'clock Monday evening a police squad headed by Officer Patrick Shahan made an entirely unexpected visit at the Franklin street place. The police walked through the open doors and surprised Smith, who says he is the proprietor of the place, and about a half dozen men. Two or three glasses alleged to contain beer; several whiskey glasses and a small quantity of liquor were seized as evidence that Smith was violating the liquor law. Smith was taken in charge and booked at police headquarters.

The police also seized 17 cases of empty beer bottles and three cases of beer. At police headquarters Smith admitted that he had been engaged in the liquor business about two weeks. He stated to the police that he got 25 cents a glass for liquor, $2 a for a pint and 15 cents a bottle for beer. He claimed that he was the proprietor of the place and said he was not working for anyone.

The raid was made by Officers Patrick Shahan, Howard Coburn, Michael Punch and Joseph Gendron. The police raided the place on a warrant.

NORWICH EAGLES MAKING IMPROVEMENTS TO BUILDING

The building committee of the Eagles' home has let the contract for the construction of an outside entrance to their hall to W. S. Spencer, the well known local contractor, who will commence breaking ground this (Tuesday) morning.

Among other repairs to be made at this time are a ladies' and gentlemen's rest room, a large coat and reception room. Upon completion of these repairs this hall will be sublet to the other fraternal orders of the city for meeting or social purposes.

As the entertainment committee of the Eagles was about the first to hold public whist and pinochle parties they have planned for a public whist and pinochle contest to run for eight weeks. Prizes are to be awarded for the members only and also for high sample in the tournament for both gentlemen and ladies.

Another interesting feature on the program for the first month is the three night bazaar to be held late in the month.

MOTORCYCLE OPERATOR IS FOUND UNDER INFLUENCE

About 9 o'clock Monday night Almon J. Dennis, 29, New York city, was arrested on North Main street by Officer John Quinn and Peter Sullivan on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was booked at police headquarters and held under bonds of $300 for his appearance in the city court this (Tuesday) morning.

Dennis was accompanied by his wife who was riding in the sidecar of a motorcycle he was endeavoring to operate. The police noticed the unusual manner in which the motorcycle was being driven and investigating discovered that Dennis was under the influence of liquor. He and his wife were on the way back to New York when he was taken in charge.

INTOXICATION CASES BEFORE CITY COURT

Four men paid fines for intoxication when presented in the city court Monday morning before Judge Arthur P. Libby. Two who were arrested Saturday were fined $5 and costs each, paying respectively $13.50 and $14.50. The other two were Sunday drunks who were fined $10 and costs each, paying $18.50 and $19.50.

John O. Malley, who was before the court on an intoxication charge was granted a continuance for one year in his case and John Tennant, who was charged with a similar offense, was given a continuance for six months.

Undertakers Cummings and Ring had charge of the funeral arrangements.

TEN FAIRS IN STATE WILL HAVE HEALTH EXHIBITS

Exhibits of public health work will be given by the state department of health at 10 fairs in various parts of the state during the season which has just started, the department announces.

The first exhibit was given last week at the East Haddam grange fair. Arrangements are practically complete for a large new exhibit at the Connecticut state fair at Charter Oak park next week. The compilation of vital statistics will be featured, with a computation machine in actual use most of the time. Strip films presenting the activities of the department in pictures will be presented constantly. In addition it is expected that thousands of leaflets on public health work will be distributed.

The state fair exhibits will be taken to several local fairs during the coming month, including the following: Wolcott fair, Wolcott, Sept. 16 and 17; North Stonington grange fair, North Stonington, Sept. 20 and 21; Woodbridge grange fair, Woodbridge, Sept. 23; Mt. Carmel fair, Hamden, Sept. 24; Union fair of Somers, Enfield, Ellington and East Windsor, at Ellington, Sept. 28; Beacon Valley fair Naugatuck, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 and 2; Durham fair, Durham, Oct. 5 and 6; Riverton fair, Riverton, Oct. 12.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVER BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

When presented in city court Monday morning before Judge Arthur P. Libby on the charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, Joseph P. Gadie, Jr., of Hickory street had a demurrer entered on his behalf by his counsel, Attorney Charles L. Stewart. The demurrer was overruled by Judge Libby, who bound Gadie over to the September term of the criminal superior court, placing the bonds at $1,000, which were furnished for Gadie.

Gadie was arrested Saturday night by Officer Peter Vuono who found the man behind the wheel of an automobile that had turned over on its side after hitting a pole and a fence on North Main street and knocking down a gasoline pump at the filling station of Charles O. Mueller.

SHOWER IN HARTFORD FOR MISS LILLIAN CRUMB

Miss Lillian Crumb of Hartford, formerly of Norwich, whose marriage takes place this week in Norwich, was tendered a farewell party and shower last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. J. P. Canfield of Hartford. The shower was given by about twenty five employes of the Newton, Robertson & Co. of Church street, Hartford, where Miss Crumb has been employed as cashier for the past year.

During the evening piano selections were rendered by Lawrence Fogg and dancing was enjoyed. The surprise gift to the bride-to-be was a beautiful table lamp, the presentation speech being made by Roger Dickinson, manager of the company. Many other delightful gifts were received.

CHILDREN WERE GUESTS AT HISTORICAL PAGEANT

Through the generosity of a number of local people the children of the Rock Nook Home at Norwich Town and the New London County Home on Roosevelt avenue enjoyed the historical pageant from seats in the grandstand. Each one of the 75 children present received peanuts, ice cream and pop corn. The Rock Nook children made the trip to and from the fairgrounds by automobile and the county home children went to the grounds by trolley car. Miss Grace Benjamin was in charge of the arrangements.

MAGNIFICENT HISTORICAL PAGEANT GIVEN AT NORWICH FAIRGROUNDS

New London county honored, Monday, at the Norwich fairgrounds, the memory of the Narragansett and Mohegan tribes which in 1643 engaged in one of the bitterest Indian battles in the history of this section of the country, at East Great Plain. The day's program opened at 10 in the morning with a series of athletic events at the fairgrounds. Then at 2 o'clock occurred the unveiling of a memorial tablet on a plot of land opposite the fairgrounds, given by Dr. Ier Jay Manwaring. About 3,000 people attended the formal exercises which marked the unveiling of the tablet.

Following the memorial exercises, which were free to the public, a beautiful historical pageant of the Battle of the Great Plain was staged at the fairgrounds. The cast comprised several hundred people from all sections of the county. The attendance at the pageant was estimated at over 5,000. The pageant was repeated at 8 o'clock in the evening, bringing the day's celebration to a close.

Throughout the afternoon and evening there was dancing in the new dance pavilion located a short distance west of the main entrance. Side attractions on the grounds included blanket and candy booths, and there were the usual hot dog and coffee, soda water, ice cream, cigar and cigarette stands and a dinner tent. The descendants of the Mohegan Indians, now residing at the Mohegan Indian village a few miles south of Norwich, on the Norwich-NewLondon highway, held their annual festival on the grounds throughout the afternoon and evening. Their large wigwam was located near the main exhibition hall.

Approximately 75 descendants of the Narragansett tribe came from Providence and other Rhode Island cities and towns to "Smoke the peace pipe" with a like number of descendants of the Mohegans. Members of the Wampanoags were also present at the celebration.

PAGEANT WAS GIVEN WITH COLORFUL SETTING

Immediately following the formal exercises marking the unveiling of the historic Indian tablet, Swahn's military band, followed by many of the 2,000 spectators, paraded from the memorial plot, into the fairgrounds. With the band in the lead the several hundred members of the pageant cast paraded from the main exhibition hall across the fairgrounds to the race track enclosure where the early history of this section of the state was unfolded before an audience estimated at 5,000 or over. The grandstand was filled to capacity and hundreds found points of vantage on the race track. The stage setting was most attractive and was greatly enhanced by the multi-colored costumes.

Part one: Prologue. Trumpeters announce the arrival of Miss Norwich. Miss Norwich enters, followed by her attendants.

The address of welcome by Miss Norwich: "Fellow citizens of Norwich and of the United States: In the name of the inhabitants of this goodly town, and in honor of our celebration today, I bid you all a most cordial welcome. Whether you were born within its boundaries, interlacing your affections with those with whom you compose this incorporated brotherhood, in the great family of the Union, or whether you have forsaken your home in some foreign country, renouncing all allegiance unto it, and having adopted this as your earthly home, here to abide as one of its children, seeking its peace and its welfare, as long as God in His Providence shall continue you here, or whether you are a native of some other town, city, or state, and are present to enjoy with us this celebration; in the name of the city of Norwich, I extend to each and all of you the endearing address of fellow-citizens and friends, and bid you welcome to the historical pageant of Norwich."

Miss Columbia, followed by her 48 states is greeted by Miss Norwich.

Miss Norwich: "Welcome! Welcome, Columbia; and you her daughters, Fair United States! Welcome to Norwich and to this historical pageant."

Miss Columbia: "Miss Norwich in the name of the United States, I acknowledge this, your welcome. With pride we recognize in Norwich one of the brightest gems in our crown of American achievement and progress. We are happy tonight to receive your welcome to this gathering in remembrance and honor of those worthy men and courageous women who here began a march of progress, the direction of which has been forward. May forward be your watchword—and your goal, perfection."

Miss Norwich and Miss Columbia, together with their attendants were then escorted to the court of honor from which they reviewed the pageant in state.

Interlude 1 and II—Prophecy of Father Time.

Episode One—The Dawn of Creation. In the distance ghostlike forms were seen approaching, followed by many beautiful things. They lifted their veils and behold, the Dawning of Creation,—the birth of sky, land and flowers, shaped and moulded in a beautiful harmony of movement.

Episode Two: Early Indian Camp Life. Just as everything is in harmony with creation growing in its merry play, the voice of man is heard. This breaks the stillness of nature and in gross confusion the creation spirits run and hide under cover of the forest.

The Mohicans were one of the earliest tribes, coming from the bank of the Hudson when they were driven out by the Mohawks. This scene represented the coming of the Mohicans and one of their encampments enroute.

Interlude III: Prophecy of Father Time.

Episode Three—The Narragansetts Attack the Mohegans—1643. Miantonomo the Narragansett chief, assembled his forces and marched against the Mohegans, under Uncas. Having been informed of Miantinomos aproach, Uncas met him on the Great Plain. Uncas sent a messenger requesting a parley. This being granted, the two sachems met on the plain between their armies. Uncas suggested that he and Miantonomo should meet in single combat, thus deciding the fortune of the day, and saving the lives of many of their warriors. The Narragansett refused and Uncas fell prone on the ground as a signal to his men. They were standing ready with bent bows and instantly discharged a shower of arrows. The Narragansetts were taken by surprise, were routed and fled in panic across the river. Miantonomo was captured on Sachem's Plain and was kept prisoner until it was decreed by the English that he be put to death. Interlude IV: Prophecy of Father Time.

Episode Four: (a) Dance of the Wilderness Spirit. A symbolic ballet representing the Spirit of the Wilderness in its most playful mood, with the Powers of the Forest, Powers of the River and the Mist Maidens dancing in the unexplored wilderness. (b) Conquering the Barriers. A symbolic portrayal of the heroic advancement of the pioneer manhood and pioneer womanhood of America in the face of obstacles and the opposing forces of nature. The forest harboring many lurking dangers had to be cleared away. Floods from the rivers had to be subdued. Mists from the swamp lands brought on fever, and following closely came famine, with death itself stalking always in the shadows. Yet the advancement went steadily forward and the struggle of the early manhood and womanhood of America have been crowned with the noble triumphs reflected in the Norwich of today.

Interlude V—Prophecy of Father Time. Episode Five: The Deed of Norwich. During the Indian wars the Indians had destroyed each other and the place was made ready for the white man's coming. They therefore settled on this land and the deed conveying the land, upon which Norwich was built, was signed—"Onkas, Owaneca, Attawanhood, Sachems of the Mohegan" on June 5, 1659.

Episode Six—A Tableau Showing the Mohegans of Today.

Interlude VI—Prophecy of Father Time.

Episode Seven—After Hardships—The Pleasures.

Many were the trials and hardships suffered by the First Settlers and pleasures were rare. This scene is to show one of the occasions enjoyed by all—guests arriving at some hospitable home—early in the '80's. The merry-making of the lovely maids and gallant beaux, which ends in a hilarious Virginia Reel.

Intermission

Interlude VII—Prophecy of Father Time.

J. W. THURSTON OF HARTFORD WINS E. C. TENNIS SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP

Youth bowed to age and experience in the finals of the Eastern Connecticut tennis tournament at the Norwich Golf club courts on Monday when J. W. Thurston of Hartford, the 51-year old tennis veteran, defeated the youthful Providence star, H. B. Weaver, in three thrilling sets of tennis, 2-6, 8-6, 6-4, 6-3. With 43 years of tennis experience behind him, the larger part being of tournament play, Thurston outgeneraled Weaver after the Providence's youth's flash of brilliancy in the first set.

Weaver by no means submitted to defeat without a struggle. He played a smashing game from the first game until the last and at times it looked as though he would pull throug .Thurston led his superior to defeat without a struggle. He played a smashing game from the first game until the last and at times it looked as though he would pull through. Thurston by his superior tournament knowledge played Weaver to his downfall. In the fourth and final set Weaver was wild and Thurston was never in danger. The veteran played a canny game saving himself at all times for the long grind under the boiling sun, only exerting himself when the Providence youth threatened by a brilliant flash at the net or in the back court.

It was a match that clearly displayed what years of experience in tournament play can do against a youth that is just entering upon a tennis career. Weaver had more speed but lacked the experience of tournament play.

Weaver came to the finals by beating Ralph Powers, first winner of the Willowbrook trophy, in the semi-finals in the morning, 6-4, 6-3.

The doubles title went to O. C. Foster and H. B. Weaver, the Providence team who won from Percy Harwood of Norwich, and John Angeles of New London in straight sets, 8-3, 8-6. Harwood and Angeles came to the finals on a default by Paul Kaufman and Ralph Powers who were unable to pay their semi-finas match. The dobules match was hotly contested, especially the second set which was carried to extra games.

Following the completion of the tournament which without doubt was the best of any played at the local club, Warren L. Chaffin, chairman of the tennis tournament committee of the club, presented the winners and runners-up in the tournament with the prizes.

The success of the tournament is due largely to the efforts of Mr. Chaffin, Percy Harwood and James Roantree, secretary of the club.

ROONEY SETS NEW WORLD'S MARK AT AMATOL

AMATOL, N. J., Sept. 5—(AP)—Establishing a new world's record for the distance, Tom Rooney of Indianapolis led a field of 14 stock cars over the finish line today to capture the Labor Day event for six and eight cylinder machines at the Atlantic City speedway here.

L. L. Corum, finished second and Gil Anderson third. Both are from Indianapolis.

Rooney's time for the 150 miles was 1:33.27 and his average speed 96.30 miles an hour. Corum averaged 94.02 miles an hour in finishing in 1:35.43 and Anderson's average was 93.96 mile an hour in finishing in 1:35.47.

Before engine trouble forced him to slacken his speed Anderson, who led for the first 125 miles, set new records of 93.42 miles an hour for 10 miles; 96.35 miles an hour for 25 miles; 96.65 miles an hour for 50 miles and 95.77 miles an hour for 100 miles.

Ralph Hepburn, who won a special 25-mile race, was in third place in the feature event when he blew a tire at the 147th mile. He finished fourth.

NORWEGIAN CREWS WIN MILE LIFE-BOAT RACE

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—(AP)—Norwegian crews took first and second prizes in the first international lifeboat race run over a one-mile course in New York bay by eleven life-boat crews of six nationalities today.

The winning eight was from the Norwegian-South American liner Segundo and the runner up, from the Wilhelmsen liner Titania. The American crew of the Crown City, of the Roosevelt line finished fifth, the best ranking obtained by the four American entries.

The time of the Segundo's crew was 15 minutes and 27 seconds, the Norwegians enjoying a handicap, as their boat, only of 31 persons carrying capacity, was much lighter than the heavier craft of their competitors. The winners received a cash prize of $225 and a cup, the runners-up, $135 in cash, and the third finisher, the crew of the Dutch ship Rotterdam of the Holland-American line, divided $90.

CROWD RUSHES UMPIRE IN GAME AT TOLEDO

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 5—(AP)—Umpire Derr of the American association was roughly handled here today by fans who swarmed over the field at the close of the first game of a holiday double bill which Columbus won 2 to 1.

A close "out" decision at first when Toledo threatened a rally in the ninth innig was responsible for the demonstration. Several hundred fans rushed from the stands and attacked the umpire. A small detail of police on the field was powerless to stop the enraged spectators, but Derr succeeded in breaking away and getting to the Toledo dugout without serious injury. Police reserves arrived as the crowd prepared to storm the dugout.

TILDEN AND HUNTER ARE NATIONAL DOUBLES CHAMPS

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 5—(AP)—William T. Tilden, 2nd., of Philadelphia and his Wimbledon partner, Francis T. Hunter, of New York are the national doubles tennis champions for 1927. They won the title on the main court of the Longwood Cricket club today by defeating William M. Johnston, of California, and Richard N. Williams of Philadelphia, in straight sets, 10-8, 6-3, 6-5.

Following the men's doubles match, Miss Eileen Benett of England, and Henry Cochet of France, won the mixed doubes tite from Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston and Rene LaCoste of France.

The scores were 2-6, 6-0, 6-2.

SHULTZ WINS PIKES PEAK HILL CLIMB

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Sept. 5—(AP)—Glen Shultz, Coloado Springs automobile racer, today won the ninth annual Pikes Peak hill climb. His time was 18 minutes 25 1-5 seconds.

This is 6 1-10 seconds slower than his time last year, when he also captured the event.

The race was marred by the serious injury of George Doty, who plunged off the highway with car a mile from the starting point.

Norwich Dog Makes Clean Sweep

The Elks' fair dog show was the scene of a clean sweep for Chase Cliff kennels. Christa von Kirchenfirst won first in the limit and first in the open. Brunolf won first in the American breed, first in the limit and first in the open.

In the high scaling Brunolf defeated Don Coeur Cheri his age old rival of many meets, with a jump of nine feet. Yet a great deal of credit belongs to Cheri for she is improving fast and already a great deal of backing is being given her to win the high scaling at the Norwich fair dog show.

TUNNEY TRAINS BEFORE CROWD OF 2000 PERSONS

LAKE-VILLA, Ill., Sept. 5—(AP)—Gene Tunney today showed two thousand Chicagoans, most of them viewing the title holder for the first time, the stuff of which champions are made.

Working out for the first time since his arrival her eFriday from Speculator, N. Y., to complete training for the championship fray with Jack Dempsey in Soldiers' field, Sept. 22, Tunney travelled nine rounds at top speed to work out any kinks that may have developed in a four-day lay-off. Gene has been able to get in only a few miles of road work during the process of acclimation and unpacking at the Cedar Crest Country club, his home until the night of the title defence.

The crowd cheered Gene's every movement as he punched the light bag for three rounds and boxed two sessions each with Chuck Wiggins, Billy Vidabeck, and Frank Muskie.

Certainly no kinks appeared during the work-out. Tunney cuffed and jabbed his mates at will, showeing them about the head with volleys of clean blows.

Chuck Wiggins again bore the brunt of the heavy work. For a round all went well with the Indianapolis light heavyweight, but in the second session, Gene caught the bounding Wiggins with several solid right slams to the head that laid Chuck on theropes.

Gene boxed superbly against Billy Vidabeck, timing on-two punches to the head nicely. Billy did his best to bob out of range but could not elude Tunney's shifty attack.

One solid right smash to the heart, a punch Gene rarely uses in training, doubled the Bayonne middleweight in the second frame.

Billy Gibson, manager of the champion, announced today that Tunney will box tomorrow and Wednesday. The charge of $1.10 per customer will continue. Tunney probably will lay-off Thursday and Friday to store up energy for the entertainment of the week-end crowds.

TRAVERS GETS VERDICT OVER JACKIE HORNER

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 5—(AP)—Tony Travers, of New Haven was given the referee's decision over Jackie Horner, of St. Louis in the star bout of the Elm City A. C. boxing program at the White City stadium, Savin Rock, tonight. Travers easily outclassed his opponent all the way, according to ringside critics. Travers weighed 144 1-2, while Horner weighed five pounds more.

In the semi-final Georgie Day, of New Haven, received the referee's decision over Al Matera, formerly of New York but now of Bristol, Conn., in an 8-round bout. They fought in the 135 pound class.

Marvin Shecter, of New Haven was announced the winner by the referee over Frankie Cavanaugh, of Bridgeport in a six round battle. They are light-heavyweights.

Arthur De Champlaine, of Wallingford won on a technical knockout in the last round over Young Wagner of New London in a scheduled six round bout. They fought in the 122 pound class. Wagner's eyes were so badly damaged that the referee stopped the bout.

Billy Coe, of New Haven was awarded the referee's decision over Tommy Gans, of New London, who substituted for Jimmy Mullins, of Bridgeport, in the opening four rounder.

RICHMONDS AND CARTONS IN CLASH TONIGHT

The leading Yankees and last place Red Sox staged a tough ball game yesterday and tonight in the Industrial league at the Academy campus there is every indication of another stiff tussle when the first place Richmond Radiators joust with the tail-end Atlantic Cartons.

Things have lost some of the runaway aspect that dominated the race in this loop, mainly because of J. B. Martin's two wins over the Richmonds and now tonight the Ironmen will have another tough situation to face when Rabbit Gauthier ascends the mound for the Cartons. Undoubtedly he is one of the very best pitchers in the league and with any kind of help should give the Radiators plenty to think about.

Andy Kotch will pitch for the leaders and the game will get underway promptly at 6:15 p. m.

PORTLAND WINS SECOND HALF OF N. E. SCHEDULE

BOSTON, Sept. 5—(AP)—The regular playing season of the New England league closed today with Portland at the head of the standing for the second half of the schedule. Lynn won the first half, which ended July 4.

President Claude Davidson of the league tonight announced dates for a series between the two winners to decide the pennant holder. The first two games will be played in Lynn, September 7 and 8, the next two at Portland September 9 and 10.

Dates of further games, if necessary, will be announced later. The team first winning four games will hold the championship.

BAKER WINS 75-MILE MOTOR RACE AT PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 5—(AP)—Joe Baker, of McKees Rocks, Pa., won the 75 mile race on the half mile Bridgeville speedway today, making the grind in one hour, one minute and 31 seconds.

Jack Casey, of Pittsburgh, raced acros the line first in the 25 mile event. His time was 25 minutes and 25 seconds.

Sammy Swank, of Akron, O., took second honors in both races. Casey was third in the 75 mile event while William Stitzel, Pittsburgh, captured third place in the smaller race.

McKAY AND HUNTER ARE WINNERS IN WEEK-END PLAY

In the week-end tournament at the Norwich Golf club which continued through Labor Day, Eddie McKay won low gross prize with a 78. Jock Hunter had low net when he shot a 93 which with a 30 handicap gave him a net score of 63. A. E. Payson with a 92 and 23 handicap turned in a net score of 69 for second low net while Dr. Campbell shot a 96 for a net score of 70 for third low net.

Ritola Wins Halifax Marathon

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 5—(AP)—Willie Ritola of New York won a modified marathon of 10 miles on the exhibition grounds track here today in 52 minutes 32 2-5 seconds. Albert "Whitey" Michaelson of New York was second and Jimmy Hennigan of Boston third.

ATHLETICS WINS BOTH GAMES OF HOLIDAY BILL

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5—(AP)—The Athletics strengthened their grip on second place today by taking the morning and afternoon games from the Washington Senators by scores of 2 to 1 and 3 to 0. The Mackmen got to Tom Zachary in the closing innings of the morning game by scoring a run each in the eighth and ninth that overcame the Senators' 1 to 0 lead. Hale's double scored Wheat who delivered a single in the ninth with the bases filled.

Jack Quinn blanked the visitors with seven hits in the afternoon contest.

The Athletics made a triple play in the seventh inning of this game when Bluege lined to Boley with men on first and second. Boley's throw to Bishop caught Judge off second and Bishop's throw to Dykes retired Ruel on a close play at first. The score:

YANKS AND RED SOX PLAY HECTIC DOUBLE BILL

BOSTON Sept. 5—(AP)—The largest crowd to watch American league ball in this city in years witnessed the cellar Red Sox take a sensational 12 to 11 contest from the first place Yankees in 18 innings today and then remained to see the New Yorkers romp off with a 5 to 0 verdict in a five-inning second game. Darkness ended the closing tussle. The paid attendance was 34,385 making ground rules necessary.

Hundreds stormed the gates after the sale of tickets was stopped.

Lou Gehrig made his 44th homer in the third inning of the first game to tie with Babe Ruth for the season total.

Koenig was on base at the time with Ruffing pitching. Ruffing twirled 15 of the 18 innings, Whitse finishing. The Yanks came from behind to tie the score in the ninth with a two run rally.

Each team scored three runs in the 17th and in the next inning successive doubles by Myer and Flagstead off Hoyt, the fifth New York pitcher, settled the battle. The game lasted four hours, twenty minutes. The score:

TIGERS DIVIDE HONORS WITH WHITE SOX

DETROIT, Sept. 5—(AP)—Detroit earned an even break in the holiday doubleheader with the White Sox by winning the afternoon game 10 to 6 after being shut out 5 to 0 in the morning. Thomas held the Tigers to four hits in the forenoon while both Blankenship and Barnabee were hit hard in the second game. Carroll who started in the afternoon for the Tigers was knocked out of the box in the seventh inning.

Johnny Mostil, who attemnted suicide while the Sox were training at Shreveport, La., made his first appearance of the season in the outfield this afternoon. He went to his old position in centerfield in the sixth inning. He had only one fielding chance and made an error on that. Heretofore Mostil had been used only as a pinch runner.

DAVE MORTON LEADS QUALIFIERS IN LABOR DAY GOLF TOURNAMENT

Dave Morton led the field of fifty qualifiers for the Labor day tournament at the Norwich Golf club with an 80 on Monday afternoon and also qualified for the club championship flight of eight. Morton took a 41 on the outward nine and cut two strokes off this figure on the journey in, finishing one stroke under John Moulton who had second low gross. Low net honors went to J. T. Hunter who shot a 93 which with his 30 handicap gave him a net of 63. Second low net was by J. F. Rogers who had an 84 with a 17 handicap giving him a net of 67. The third low net score was 69 made by A. E. Payson with a 92 and a 23 handicap.

Those who qualified for the championship flight of eight were Dave Morton 80, J. D. Moulton 81, Sam Wilcox 82, John F. Rogers 84, W. G. Park 86, Dr. V. Eldred 87, Ralph Howe 90, John Dick 90. These eight qualifiers will compete for the club title this week. The low eight qualifiers will also compete with the other qualifiers in the Labor day tournament in which there will be two sixteens and one eight. The tournament committee has ruled that all first round matches must be played by next Sunday night or players will be disqualified. The qualifying scores were as follows:

J. Knott 55-54—109.

RIVERVIEW BLANKS MERIDEN INSILCO CLUB, 6 TO 0

Playing steady ball behind the steady pitching of Lefty Dugas the Riverview club shutout the fast Meriden Insilco team, 6 to 0, Monday afternoon at the State Hospital diamond. This was the first defeat that the Meriden club has suffered in 16 starts. Harry Mills, after a long lay-off with a sprained ankle, was back in the game and poled out two hits. Dinty Moore continued his long distance hitting getting a triple and a single in four times at bat. The fielding of Bob Christy was one of the brilliant spots in the game. The score:

COBB DENIES HE IS TO BUY BALTIMORE CLUB

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5—(AP)—Reports that Ty Cobb was negotiating for the purchase of the Baltimore team of the international baseball league were denied today by the "Georgia Peach".

"When I get through playing, I'll be through with organized baseball," said Cobb. "I may be through at the end of this season, but won't decide until I get home from my hunting trip in Wyoming whether I'll return to the Athletics or quit for good."

Miss Syndicate Wins Race

DETROIT, Sept. 5—(AP)—Miss Syndicate, piloted by Horace E. Dodge of Detroit, won the fifth annual Yachtsmen's Association of America 150-mile sweepstakes at the gold cup regatta here this afternoon. The Dodge craft covered the distance in three hours 9 minutes and 33.55 seconds. Second place went to Solar Plexus, driven by W. C. Erickson of Detroit, and third place to Baby Gar VIII with Lot Sanborn, Detroit, at the wheel.

CUBS EARN EVEN BREAK WITH CARDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Jess Haines airtight pitching shut out the Chicago Cubs today in the afternoon game of the double header, and St. Louis won 2 to 0. The Cubs hammered out a victory over the Cardinals 5 to 1 in the morning combat.

An overflow crowd this afternoon led to the Cubs' downfall. Chick Hafey drove two balls into the crowd for doubles and each paved the way for a Cardinal run. With Frisch on base, Hafey drove him home with a double. In the seventh Hafey got his second two bagger, went to third on an infield out and trotted home on Bush's wild pitch.

Maranville and Orsatti collided in the Cubs' half of the ninth in center field, chasing English's fly. Both fell to the ground and English was granted a two bagger. After five minutes to recover, both went on with the game.

GIANTS CLIMB TO WITHIN ONE GAME OF THE TOP

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—(AP)—The Giants climbed to within one game of the Pirates today by splitting with the Braves, dropping the opener by 6 to 1, and annexing the second by 9 to 8, while the Corsairs lost twice to the Reds. Boston stopped New York's winning streak of ten straight in the first game, Robertson holding the McGrawmen in check while his mates pounded Barnes. About 56,000 were at the Polo grounds when the Giants closed out the double bill and an avalanche of brave hits descended upon the diamond when New York won.

George Harper hit two homers in successive times at bat in the second game none being on base either time. After Terry and Jackson singled in the ninth with one out Harper tried to win the game with a hit only to strike out. Cummings came through with a double for the deciding run. Henry's relief pitching saved the day for the Giants. New York made five errors in the nightcap three being charged against Hornsby. Boston had four misplays. The score:

STRAYING RHODE ISLAND GIRLS SEEK NEW LONDON BY WAY OF NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 5—Mary Barlow, 18, of 9 Ayr street, Central Falls, R. I., and her chum, Loretta Finnegan, 17, of 49 Hamilton street, Pawtucket, R. I., ran away from home yesterday, but their freedom was cut short, for they were arrested in New London a few hours after they arrived here, penniless. The girls left home Sunday morning and while walking on a highway outside Providence, were given a ride by an autoist, who took the girls to Norwich, which was as far as the auto driver was going. After alighting from the car, the girls started for this city, walking on the east side of the river and continuing along the military highway until they arrived at the Thames river highway bridge. They reached New London about 9 o'clock and it did not take them long to obtain company for they made the acquaintance of two sailors. The sailors and the girls were on Hempstead street at midnight and because of the youth of the girls, Patrolman Thomas Lyden questioned them, and deciding that they were runaways and in danger of falling into ways of vice, they were arrested and taken to police headquarters. They were later taken to the Salvation Army for the night. This morning they were given into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, who provided the girls with transportation to their homes.

Sailors ran wild at Ocean Beach for a brief time Sunday night and as a result of their conduct two of them were arrested charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, while a third bluejacket was arrested for the same offense on State street. Joseph Stevens and Paul Kempfer, both members of the S-4, stationed at the submarine base were at the dance hall and because of their drunken condition started a disturbance. Patrolman Clarence Martin, on duty there and Patrolman James McKenna arrested the pair. In the police court today Stevens and Kempfer were fined $10 and costs. Stephen Wykoski, a United States coast guardsman and a member of the crew of the destroyer Wilkes, stationed at the state pier, was in a turbulent frame of mind because of too much drink and was arrested on State street by Patrolman William Riordan, he, also, was fined $10 and costs.

TAFTVILLE-NORWICH CARS COLLIDE ON OCEAN AVENUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 5—An automobile driven by Charles Matthews, of Taftville, in which were Mrs. Matthews and their infant, and an auto driven by Morris Morsene, Norwich, collided this afternoon on Ocean avenue, corner of Hillside road. Both automobiles were extensively damaged, but none of the occupants sustained injury other than minor bruises. The infant was in the arms of its mother and did not receive any injury, although the parents sustained trivial bruises. Morsene assumed responsibility for the crash stating that an insect entered his eye and that he lost control of the steering wheel. Matthews reported the accident at police headquarters, leaving the location of the accident in a public service automobile because of the damage sustained by his machine.

POMFRET STUDENT MISSING FROM ROOM AT EASTERN POINT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 5—Edward Pierce, a young man, residing temporarily at Eastern Point, is being sought by the state police, Groton barracks, and the New London police. He has not committed a crime, but ran away. The young man had retired late Sunday night and shortly after 1 o'clock this morning his father went to the son's room, to find the youth missing, the latter having climbed through a window on the second floor and descended to the ground, then disappearing. The young man, it is understood, had been spending the greater part of his vacation with his father and is a student at Pomfret school. No cause is given for the young many running away.

William Pearce, a student officer at the submarine base, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Traffic Officer John Courtney charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. In court today the complaint was amended to reckless driving and Pearce was fined $25. Pearce was driving his automobile at the corner of State and Bank streets when traffic was great and the manner in which he guided the auto attracted the attention of Officer Courtney, who caused Pearce to stop. It was then discovered that Pearce was drunk. He has been at the submarine base but a short time, coming to the New London station from Philadelphia.

RETURNING VACATIONISTS MAKE ENORMOUS TRAFFIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 5—Traffic in New London from 6:30 until 8:30 o'clock was similar to that which occurs at the conclusion of every Yale-Harvard boat race. At the union station the platform was jammed with hundreds of returning vacationists; but the congestion there did not last long because of the many trains operated by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. Between 7 and 8 o'clock there was a train entering or departing from the station about every 10 minutes, sometimes oftener. A special train of 15 coaches left at 7:15 o'clock for Boston and all trains westbound were operated in more than one section.

Vehicular traffic was terrific during those two hours in front of the Union station, repeated tie-ups occurred for there was a steady arrival of autos with their occupants leaving the city, while the Groton ferry and Fishers Island steamer brought tourists to New London on their way home. The buses were also numerous and crowded, one trip of the Hartford bus line being made up of four buses to take vacationists to that city. At the corner of State and Bank streets, traffic was greatest and so great was the motor vehicle passage that a traffic officer was stationed at State and Atlantic streets to direct traffic through North Bank street in order to relieve the State street congestion and keep the line moving.

Henry Ellison, 32, colored, of 12 Moore court, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolmen Harry Watterson and William Riordan charged with breach of the peace, by Mrs. Robert Price, a neighbor. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $50 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Ellison has been arrested several times, once for breach of the peace, once for frequenting a disorderly house and once for violation of the liquor law. This afternoon he engaged in a wordy quarrel with Mrs. Price, and it is claimed abused her by applying harsh language to her.

Sailors engaged in a near-gang fight on Potter street last night, but no serious damage resulted. All the bluejackets had been drinking and when several of them came together the fight started. While the battle was at its height Patrolman William Riordan and two shore patrol officers from the United States Coast Guard station appeared and the entire gang was taken to police headquarters and locked up. When the shore patrol went off duty at midnight the sailors were taken back to the coast guard station for discipline. During the fight, which occurred in front of a store, one or more sailors smashed several windows. The store was closed and the proprietor was out of town. He returned to New London tonight and is now seeking reimbursement for his loss.

An automobile owned by Jack Halpern, of Perry street and a car owned by Howard L. Beebe, 75 Howard street collided this evening on Montauk avenue, corner of Blydenburg avenue. Both cars were damaged, particularly Beebe's which had to be towed away. Beebe claimed that Halpern drove from the rear and crashed against Beebe's machine, damaging mudguard, fenders and axle.

There was no meeting of the city council this evening, the session being postponed to tomorrow night because of the holiday, as several members were absent from the city.

The trial of Edward Harper, of 1 Huntington street, Norwich, arrested in Waterford Saturday night by State Police Officer George Sisson, of Groton barracks, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, will not be held in the Groton town court until Friday afternoon next. Harper has furnished bail of $150 for his appearance at that time. It was intended to try Harper this afternoon, but because of the holiday that action was deferred.

Charles P. Hammond, former member of the New London police department, now employed in Brooklyn, spent the holiday with his family on Billman street.

Mrs. Emily C. Speirs of Mohegan avenue has been invited by the Atwater Kent Foundation of Philadelphia to form a local committee to organize and promote an audition. This is for the purpose of selecting a young man and young woman from among the city's best singers to compete in district and national auditions in a nation-wide contest to be broadcast through station WTIC. The national contest planned has the approval of President Calvin Coolidge. The committee appointed for Connecticut is headed by Mrs. John H. Trumbull as honorary chairman, with Miss Marion Fowler of New Haven active chairman. The personnel of the committee includes representatives from seven cities and towns of the state and includes J. Lawrence Erb of New London. In a letter to Mrs. Speirs the request is made that she act as local chairman and select her committee from the ranks of prominent citizens. She has made no decision in the matter to date.

But one week remains before the annual city election for the selecting of three members of the council and a like number of members of the board of school visitors. Candidates for election are hustling in an endeavor to obtain support. For three days this week the voting machines will be in the voting places, where voters may be instructed in the operation of the machines.

James Craig was fined $5, but execution of the sentence was suspended on a charge of intoxication. He was arrested on State street last night by Patrolman William Riordan.

John Sullivan was fined $5 on a charge of intoxication. He was arrested at the Union station last night by William Jorgerson, special agent in the employ of the New Haven railroad.

Jacob Greenblatt, 432 Main street, Norwich, was fined $5 and costs on a charge of violation of the state motor vehicle laws in passing intersecting streets without reducing the speed of his auto or sounding a signal. Goldblatt was on Main street last night and passed several intersecting streets at a fast rate of speed. He was held up by Patrolman William Riordan and arrested.

The residence of Louis Schwartz, 31 Perry street, was entered by a thief within a day or two and, during the absence of the family, for today Mrs. Schwartz discovered the burglary and reported it at police headquarters. Whether any plunder of value has been taken has not been determined, although it is known that several articles were stolen. Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz had been absent from the city a few days and this afternoon returned to New London. Mrs. Schwartz went home and arriving there discovered evidence of burglary, for the interior of the house was disturbed. Investigation resulted in it being revealed that a few artifcles, not of monetary value, were missing. Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case and found that entrance was obtained by forcing a rear window. The thief ransacked the house in his search for plunder, but it is not believed that any articles of value were stolen. It is also believed that the burglary is the work of one or more boys.

Mrs. Kline, Wheeling, W. Va., a summer resident at White Sand beach, Blackhall, reported to the New London police this afternoon that she had lost a handbag, containing articles of value.

The exodus of summer visitors started this afternoon and by tomorrow the majority of the summer residents will have started for their homes. The late afternoon trains carried extra coaches, especially west-bound trains, while the evening trains were run in two sections, so great was the crowd of men, women and children. The railroad had anticipated the rush of homegoers and had arranged for the handling of the crowd. Steamers from Fishers Island and Block Island brought crowds that augmented the thousands from this city and the country-side that jammed the union station platform. The departure of the summer visitors was noticeable at Ocean beach, for the crowd there today was exceedingly small, contrary to expectations. Until 3 o'clock there was less than 5000 bathers and sight-seers on the pier, boardwalk and beach, but after that hour several thousands poured in on trolley cars and automobiles, but the bulk of the late arrivals were New Londoners, or those residing in this vicinity.

The police were called to a residence on Cutler street this afternoon when a resident there who had been drinking drove his wife from the house and otherwise created a disturbance. A neighbor summoned the police, Patrolman John Courtney responding. When the officer arrived at the house a relative had succeeded in calming the man and general peace had been restored, for the man and his family were seated beneath a shade tree in the yard. None of the family desired to make a complaint, so the man escaped arrest.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Callahan, of New York, formerly of New London, are spending a few days with relatives in this city.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

A gala holiday bill of entertainment such as no one should miss can be seen at this popular theater. Five acts of vaudeville supreme are the featured stage attractions. The headline act, one of the most sensational and gorgeous attractions of the season, Frank Mack, Norene Thrash and their Filipino band are without a question, the most pretentious offering seen on any stage. The dancers are superb, and the band is, one of those that you could listen to for hours and then applaud for encores. Dries and Collins, two eccentric comedians will bring many a tear of laughter, through their funny doings. Mack and Lee and company in a comedy skit called You're Too Late, is very very clever. Edith Boland, a sweet little miss in a rendition of wonderful songs. We might add that Miss Boland has a rare voice and chuck full of personality. Cabaret Dogs in a novelty canine offering was tremendously received. A great bill all through and furnishes good, clean amusement from start to finish. The screen feature Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle in Adam and Evil, a most unusual farce comedy a new angle in motion pictures may be seen.

In the story, Adam and Evil, now being shown at the Palace theater with Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle in the starring roles, the opening scene reveals a young couple reading the morning paper and paying no attention whatsoever to each other until they discover the news is broken over into a section in the possession of the other.

The story is a roaring farce comedy in which has been woven a great deal more truth than fiction in the lives of bored husbands and wives.

Broadway Theater

The most famous comedy team in the history of motion picture has been reunited. Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, the pair of laugh-makers which set the world in an uproar of joy in Behind the Front and We're in the Navy Now, appear together once more in Firemen, Save My Child, now playing at the Broadway theater.

To make the reunion complete the entire production line-up which scored so heavily in the two earlier pictures was behind the camera for Firemen, Save my Child. Edward Sutherland, who directed the two previous Beery-Hatton triumphs, again wielded the megaphone. Monty Brice, who was comedy constructor on those two pictures and has since been elevated to the post of director, laid down his megaphone for this production and served as he did before, creating comedy situations.

Since We're in the Navy Now, Beery has made two comedies—Casey at the Bat which has been a big success wherever shown, and The Big Sneeze.

Starting Thursday to Saturday, Aug. 8 to 10, Jackie Coogan arrives in a Metro-Goldwyn picture, The Bugle Call. Jackie has never been provided with a better story than this one and you will not want to miss it.

Breed Theater

Shopping for a caricature is no light job.

Marion Davies, Cosmopolitan star of "Tillie the Toiler", which closes tonight at the Breed theater, found this out when she undertook to assemble a wardrobe for herself in the title role of this production, which was filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Miss Davies scoured the shops of Los Angeles, New York and Hollywood, to assemble the wardrobe of some two dozen gowns, and a large number of hats, and pieces of lingere, such as the frivolous but lovable "Tillie" would wear.

Ordinarily shopping for a caricature would mean getting together a number of fantastic dresses. But Russ Westover has drawn his comic strip heroine as the possessor of an ultra-smart wardrobe, in fact well in advance of the styles and far from conservative.

The selection of the dresses took many weeks of daily shopping tours and the shortening of skirts to a minimum length, just as "Tillie" wears them in caricature. Several of the gowns were designed by the star and changes were made in the styles of others at her own suggestion.

Throughout the picture few elaborate costumes are worn by her—and these few only in a dream sequence. At the same time the gowns are smart and up to the minute—in fact a little in advance of the present moment.

Miss Davies is supported by a notable cast, including Matt Moore as leading man, Gertrude Short as "Bubbles", George Fawcett as "Mr. Simpkins," George F. Arthur as "Mr. Whipple," Harry Crocker as "Pennington Fish" and Estelle Clark and Bert Roach as the sister and brother-in-law of the heroine.

Connecticut State Fair

If impassable mountains were to spring up over night around Connecticut, cutting it off from anything more than scant communication with the rest of the country, could this state support itself? Could it go farther than that and enjoy prosperity and progress?

The answer to this question may be seen at the Connecticut state fair, to be held at Charter Oak park, Hartford, seven days, from September 4-10. It is expected that more than three quarters of the entire population of the state will visit the fair during that period, and there they will see that Connecticut, through the interrelationship of its agriculture and its industry, is practically a self sufficient unit, capable of an independent and progressive existence finding its demands well countered by its own productivity.

Such extreme conditions as would force this state willy-nilly, to be self sufficient of course happily do not exist, but the value of harmony and cooperation between agriculture and industry are harnessed to the welfare of the state and its residents, the wheels of progress are going to turn faster, and with loss strain on either constituent, and it is with an eye to promoting this interrelationship that the Connecticut State Fair association conceived the idea of the Connecticut state fair. The fair association realized that through the cooperation of agriculture and industry, both would likewise flourish.

FRANCE STILL COLLECTS FROM WAR PROFITEERS

PARIS, Sept. 5—(AP)—"War profits" are still furnishing France with a steady income, nearly nine years after the war.

Nearly 2,000,000 francs a day pour into the coffers of Premier and Minister of Finance Raymond Poincare. This is money the government is recovering from contractors who "sailed" their bills for munitions, as the French say, and also the taxes the various get-rich-quick merchants failed to pay.

Ever since the armistice parliamentary commissions, courts and special tribunals and accountants have been going over every war contract and the books of many business firms.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Items of Norwich interest 75 years ago, as taken in part from the Norwich Courier of 1852 are as follows:

Tuesday, Aug. 31, 1852—The storm on the sound Saturday night was very severe. The steamer Knickerbocker due here yesterday morning at 7, did not arrive here until 3 p. m., having anchored in the Thames river awaiting the abatement of the storm. On Saturday evening the schooner Daniel Webster of New London, while passing through Hurl Gate, came in contact with the Albany and Hartford propeller and both vessels were considerably damaged. Captain Folkert of the Daniel Webster fell overboard during the confusion and was drowned.

Just as our paper is going to press we learn that intelligence of the sudden death of Professor James Luce Kingsley of Yale college.

Eugene A. Hyde principal and Miss Julia F. Hyde, assistant, announce that the fall term of the Norwich Town high school will commence on Wednesday, Sept. 8th and continue in session 11 weeks. Directors of the school are James Stedman, Henry Strong, Hiram P. Arms, John T. Waite and George Bliss.

Thursday, Sept. 2, 1852—The fall term of Bacon academy at Colchester commenced yesterday under the charge of William Kinne, A. M., late tutor in Yale college, assisted by David C. Kinne. Tuition this year is $5.50 to $6.50 payable in advance, board in good families about $3 a week.

A fire occurred in the basement of Uncas hall building on Water street Tuesday night about 11 o'clock. Fortunately the fire was discovered early and was confined to the restaurant and bowling alley of Henry Rathbone. His loss is about $300, no insurance. The grocery store of Julius Webb and company and the hardware store of Augustus Converse on the first story above the basement were damaged by smoke and steam.

We learn that the Uncas bank has purchased a vacant lot on the east side of Shetucket street, directly facing Water street for the purpose of erecting thereon a suitable banking house. We understand that the building will be started immediately.

The case of a young man from a nearby town charged with rape was completed yesterday in the superior court and this afternoon is to be sentenced, the penalty of the crime being state's prison for life.

The Tiger Lily has been hauled off for repairs but the Water Lily will continue on her regular trips.

Joel W. White, W. A. Buckingham, Charles Osgood and William P. Eaton have organized The Norwich Tontine Hotel company and by that name shall be capable in law to purchase and hold estate etc. This corporation is authorized to build and erect a hotel in Norwich. The capital stock consists of not less than 200 shares no more than 400 shares of $100 each. Books for subscription to the stock of this corporation are to be opened on or before August 1st next. The site of the proposed building is not fixed.

Saturday, Sept. 4, 1852—The New London papers record the decease on Tuesday last of Jonathan Starr, president of the Union bank, and one of the respected citizens of that place.

The capital invested in the manufacture of clocks in Bristol exceeds $300,000 and at least 150,000 clocks are finished there annually.

Z. R. Robbins collector of the city of Norwich has given notice that the city tax of 10 cents on the dollar is now due.

E. H. Learned, cashier of the Uncas bank has given notice to the stockholders that the second installment of $12.50 per share on the capital stock of the bank is payable on Oct. 4.

POETRY

In School Days

Still sits the schoolhouse by the road,
A ragged beggar sunning;
Around it still the sumachs grow,
And blackberry vines are running.

Within, the master's desk is seen,
Deep scarred by raps official;
The warping floor, the battered seats,
The jackknife's carved initial;

The charcoal frescoes on its wall:
Its door's worn sill, betraying
The feet that, creeping slow to school,
Went storming out to playing!

Long years ago a winter sun
Shone over it at setting;
Lit up its western window-panes,
And low eaves' icy fretting.

It touched the tangled golden curls,
And brown eyes full of grieving,
Of one who still her steps delayed
When all the school were leaving

For near her stood the little boy
Her childish favor singled;
His cap pulled low upon a face
Where pride and shame were mingled.

Pushing with restless feet the snow
To right and left, he lingered;—
As restlessly her tiny hands
The blue-checked apron fingered.

He saw her lift her eyes; he felt
The soft hand's light caressing,
And heard the tremble of her voice,
As if a fault confessing.

"I'm sorry that I spelt the word:
I hate to go above you,
Because," the brown eyes lower fell,—
"Because, you see, I love you!"

Still memory to a gray-haired man
That sweet child-face is showing.
Dear girl! the grasses on her grave
Have forty years been growing!

He lives to learn, in life's hard school,
How few who pass above him
Lament their triumph

New England Industries

SHEET METAL AND STAMPING.

(Note: The information, on which is article, issued by the research department of the New England council, based, was obtained by the domestic mmerce division, United States department of commerce, through an industrial survey of New England conected in co-operation with the New igland council. The department of mmerce is now preparing for publition a full report of this industry ich will contain additional information of practical value to all New gland business men.)

Roughly one-twentieth of this county's sheet metal and stamping procts is manufactured in New England. Markets in this area take well er half of the output, and the movement of sales has been generally upard since 1921. Reports received in survey conducted jointly by the nited States department of comerce and the New England council om a representative group of procers shows that the industry as a hole is pressing forward and reaping nefits from improvements in acunting, continuance of maintenance, nus wage payments and many other ogressive features.

Not least of these is the manufacre of supplementary products durg slack periods, a condition stated by e-fourth of the firms reporting. Fo--two per cent. of the group use inntive methods of wage payment, the verage ratio of workers thus paid total personnel being 24 per ctnt. for e industry as a whole.

In the sheet metal group, 174 estabshments employ on the average 1,-12 wage earners, and produce annual- goods worth about $10,000,000 or 5.7 er cent. of the country's output for is country. All but three of the 51 oncerns in the stamping group are Massachusetts and Connecticut, here the average number of wage arners is 3,150 and the annual value f products $11,700,000 or 6.3 per cent. f the country's production.

The average period of operation in eporting groups is 26 years and that f present operation 14. Approximate- 17 per cent. of these concerns have ade changes in management in the st six years. Nearness of market, laor conditions and banking facilities ere among the chief reasons for orignally locating plants in New England.

New England is the principal marret for the products of 60 per cent. of he companies reporting. Sales in this egion average 62 per cent. of total ales, although individual concerns ell their entire output in New England nd others outside of the section. Approximately 64 per cent. of the manuacturers state that the trend of New England sales and total sales has been pward since 1921.

Distribution methods and number of oncerns using them are as follows:

Direct to manufacturers	38
Through wholesalers or jobbers	28
Direct to retailers	22
Through commission agents	10

Use of a brand of trademarks has een reported by 38 per cent. of the roup and an average of 49 per cent. f sales are thus identified.

The chief raw materials in this inustry are steel, iron, brass and tin. They are purchased in New England y the following percentages of conerns answering the survey questionnaire:

Steel	47 per cent.
Iron	46 per cent.
Brass	85 per cent.
Tin	25 per cent.

SHORT ROMANCES of EVERY DAY LIFE

The Second Honeymoon

By Phil Moore

WHEN I discovered Myrtle laying the table and Evelyn broiling steak (and burning it) I knew I was in for a siege of what I call "daughter stuff."

I half expected it, anyway. The girls had just spent a week end with Kitty, whose mother, five years my senior, is renewing her youth by flirting, smoking and out-flappering any flapper that ever flapped. I suppose it is a mixture of disgust and relief that makes my daughters treat me like a bit of rare china, or an old woman tottering on the brink of her grave, after they get home. No matter what brings it on, though, "daughter stuff" is very trying to me—its victim. I wondered what track it would take today. As we all sat down to dinner, Myrtle announced it.

"You're going on a vacation, mother," she said.

"A vacation!" I echoed.

"Yes. A whole week in little old New York!"

"New York!" I gasped. "New York! Oh, no! I hate New York. I feel all gobbled up there!"

"Gobbled up!" laughed Myrtle. "Hear her, Eve!"

"Besides, I don't need a rest," I argued.

"Of course you do. From your family if not from work," insisted Evelyn.

"You need a rest from dad more than anything else," added Myrtle. "I sometimes think all the romance has died out of father's life. That is—if there was ever any in it." She sighed and rolled her eyes pathetically, hoping she looked like Gloria Swanson.

"I verily believe father thinks you're only a bell hop," concluded Evelyn, sternly.

Bob senior sighed. It was Bobby junior who spoke next. "Say, mum," he advised, "if you don't want to see the bright lights along Broadway, tell the girls to climb a tree."

Of course I had to surrender. The next day Myrtle brought my ticket and a reservation on the Pullman. Evelyn came home with a new traveling bag. After a conference, they both decided my hat and coat would "do" to travel in.

"But," commanded Evelyn, "you must buy some clothes in New York. Dad will give you the money. Eve and I intend to pay your other expenses. You know our stock has paid us handsomely this Summer, and we can afford it."

"No bargain sale garments," cautioned Myrtle.

The whole family saw me off at the South Station the next day, to all appearances bound for the great American metropolis. Little did they know the dark deed I harbored in my breast. For I had plotted, in the night, against "daughter stuff," and had decided I would not be a victim of it this time.

When we were well out in the yards, I beckoned the porter. "I'm getting off at the Junction," I informed him. "If anybody wants this reservation let them have it."

No, I was not going on, I had decided.

"Taxi! Taxi!" invited an energetic chauffeur, as the porter bundled me off the train a minute later.

I engaged him to take me to the same hotel that Bob senior and I had patronized years ago on our honeymoon. I even engaged the same room—No. 29.

It looked out over the Square. From the window I could see the crowds hurrying home from work, the gilded dome of the City Hall, and hear the buzz and roar of traffic along the busy streets. Did those girls think I would anguish away a week in New York, when my own home town called to me with the voice of a friend? Hadn't I always wanted to spend a week here, going and doing and seeing at my own sweet will? Why, it thrilled me just to look up Fremont street, as no Fifth avenue could ever thrill New York, indeed!

I began the day by feeding the squirrels on the common. I had never had time to do it properly, before. Then I went up to the Library. I only meant to stay a little while, but—well, you know what libraries are. You can't get away from them. The next day I did the Art Gallery. At night I went to the theater. It was wonderful to enjoy the last act without worrying about a train.

I led this carefree existence until Wednesday. Then I began to worry about Bob Senior. I wondered if he had starved to death. I wondered if he had caught cold. Most of all, I wondered if he had missed me. Of course I finally telephoned him.

"Olivia," he gasped, "I don't understand; aren't you in New York? You certainly started—"

"Yes, yes," I assured him. "Of course I did. But I got off at the Junction. Meet me near Park street at 5 o'clock and take me to dinner."

"Bob," I said, vehemently, when we met, "did those girls think they were going to bundle me off to a place I didn't care any more about seeing than the plague, when I could have the time of my life right here? New York! Huh!"

When we parted, my husband begged humbly to be allowed to meet me the next night and take me to the theater. I had never seen him so devoted for years. Perhaps the girls were right, he had been taking me too much for granted. Every night, thereafter, we found each other, stealthily. We bought second balcony seats for all the shows, for this world is such a small place, it would have been just our luck to run into the girls in a better part of the house. We crept into movie houses after the lights were out. Bobby often stepped into picture shows with college chums. He must not discover us.

The week ended all too soon. At 3 o'clock on Saturday, however, I rang our front door bell. Myrtle opened the door. The moment she spoke I knew all symptoms of "daughter stuff" had disappeared.

"Mother," she gasped, "come in! I've burned my finger and Eve's got a headache; Bobby's let the furnace fire go out; and father hasn't been to supper since Tuesday. He's been coming in awfully late nights, too. I think you ought to demand an explanation. The house—"

"Is at sixes and sevens," concluded Evelyn. "Come in, you backbone of the Russell family. My, how stunning! You can't get clothes with that style anywhere but in New York."

"Oh, can't you?" I inquired.

From somewhere upstairs, Bobby Junior descended to almost kill me with a hug. "Get some eats! Get some eats!" he commanded. Then he drew me aside and whispered:

"I saw you holding hands with dad in the movies last Thursday night. You four-flusher! You never hit Broadway! Don't try to put that over on me!"

"Oh, Bobby," I cried in dismay, "you saw us?"

"Indeed I did! It was scandalous!"

"Oh, Bobby, dear, don't tell the girls."

"You bet I won't."

And he kept his word. To this day the girls talk about the "real time" they gave me in New York City, and Myrtle still thinks that all the romance has gone out of her father's life.

Bobby and I know better.

"Come, little daughter, you must wash your hands after playing with the cat."

Little Daughter—"Yes, mamma; but I'll jes' have to rinse 'em this time. I been playin' with the kitten."

Mended Hearts

By Monte Darrell

THE jingling of Dr. Greyson's office bell brought a frown of annoyance to his tired face. Reluctantly he went to answer it.

A night on the country roads had left him feeling unfit for his daily duties at the hospital, and now he was evidently not going to be allowed the scant hour before he must report.

"Please, Dr. Greyson," begged a frightened little girl, as he opened the door, "my mumsie wants you quick! She's—she's hurt—awful bad."

Forgotten was the doctor's weariness as he gazed down at the little tear-stained face.

"Tell me about it," he said kindly, as he led her quickly toward the car. "Where is your mumsie?"

"Just—just down the street. She fell down the steps and somethin' snapped. Mis' Foley tried to help her, but she couldn't stand up. Mumsie sent me after you. She—she said she wouldn't have anyone else."

"What's your mumsie's name?" he asked, naturally curious.

"Joy."

The color mounted to Dr Greyson's grayed temples and receded, leaving him looking pale and wan.

"Joy!" What a flood of memories that name recalled.

"Here's the house," directed his youthful guide. "But mumsie's gone! There's Mrs. Foley though."

Mrs. Foley came down to the car.

"She's just gone in the ambulance, doctor," she informed him. "Don't you think Sue had better stay with me?"

Sue started a vigorous protest.

"I'll look after her, Mrs. Foley," interrupted the doctor. "She'll be a nice girl."

"Well—all right. Bring her back with you, and I'll care for her until her father gets home. That will take two days after he gets the telegram."

With heavy heart Dr. Greyson drove toward the hospital. Joy was married, of course. He couldn't have expected her to stay single just because he had done so.

"What is your mumsie's last name?" he finally asked.

"Her name's True," was the reply.

Joy True, of course. But how could that be if she had married?

"What's your daddy's name?" he queried further, trying to straighten things out.

"His name's True, too, of course," was the reply.

"Foolish question," mused the doctor, feeling somewhat rebuked.

Evidently Joy had married a man of the same name. She had been Joy True when they were sweethearts.

The recollection made him happy and blue at the same time. Joy was really lost to him.

"We put her in Ward F-19," the matron informed him when he asked for the patient. "The nurses have just gotten her into bed."

"You stay here with Miss Waite, Sue," directed the doctor, "and perhaps I'll come and take you up to see mumsie a little later."

Sue smiled up at him through tear-dimmed eyes, and promised.

As he ascended to room 19, Dr. Greyson realized that this was going to be one of the hardest jobs he had ever done. Joy True was as dear to him as ever, though he had no right to think of her at all except in a professional way.

Joy was suffering untold agony from the broken limb. "Fran! I knew you'd come!" she tried to smile bravely but it ended in a grimace of pain.

The doctor flushed at the old familiar nickname. "Joy, I'm sorry to see you like this," he replied.

It required a herculean effort to make his handicap appear commonplace. After that he was strictly professional.

"We'll have to reduce that swelling some before I can set it," he announced after an examination. "I'll fix it up with splints—perhaps we can set it tomorrow."

After he had finished, Joy was a little more comfortable.

"I'll go down and get Sue," he volunteered. "That is, if you feel like having her in."

"Oh, yes—please, Fran."

He lingered only to witness the greeting between Sue and her "Mumsie," and went out with a strangely heavy heart.

No patient in the hospital that day guessed that Dr. Greyson had anything on his mind. Outwardly, he was the same genial dispenser of cheer and comfort.

The day following he found the broken bone ready to set and was obliged to administer ether.

He looked in on her a moment in the evening, but found her asleep, and didn't remain. All the old longing returned as he gazed down at her pale face.

The next evening Mr. True arrived and Dr. Greyson, on his evening rounds, hesitated outside the partly open door. On the point of stepping in to say "hello," he noticed Joy's hand clasped within that of the man beside the bed. No, he couldn't do it! Noiselessly he stole away and left them alone together.

After that he saw Joy only when duty demanded. Even then he remained in his professional shell of reserve.

Joy missed his evening calls, but could not find courage to ask him why, of all patients, she should be slighted.

As he passed her open door that evening, he saw that Sue had come with her father to see "Mumsie."

Halfway down the corridor he heard the patter of small feet and felt a warm little hand clasp his own.

"Doctor, please!" Sue pleaded. "Mumsie wants you to come and see my daddy."

He tried to think of some excuse as Sue coaxed him toward room 19.

Next he was bewildered listening to Joy's voice saying: "Dr. Greyson, I want you to meet my brother Fred."

"Your brother, Joy! Why I thought—"

"I know you did, Fran, but I never married."

"But—but Sue here—?" he stammered dazedly.

"Sue is Fred's little girl. I have had her since her mother died—when she was a baby," she explained softly. "Sue has always called me 'Mumsie.'"

"Sue, let's you and me go out in the diet-kitchen and get a drink," interrupted Fred, with a wink at Joy.

"Joy," whispered Dr. Greyson, a moment later, "you hurry up and get well. I'm not going to lose you again."

Accounted For.

"He's one of the richest men in town."

"How did he make his money?"

"Heaven knows."

"I s'pose that accounts for his expression."

Rather Ambiguous.

Excited Man (to taxi driver)—My mother-in-law must catch that train, driver, so hurry up!"

Caveman Stuff

By Parke Whitney

JOE'S teeth closed over the cigarette so hard that it snapped suddenly in two.

Why couldn't he have fallen for the sweet little blonde whom Peggy had invited for this confounded week-end party? But, no, Mollie it was ordained to be—Mollie, a mere slip of a girl, but with more love of living in her small body than my other ten he knew.

And had he fallen? So hard that he still ached, although he had firmly told himself and repeatedly, that Mollie should never know.

For, loving her even as he was forced to admit to himself, he never could marry a girl (even though she would have him)—a girl—en—a girl like that.

"Like that?"

Well, a girl who talked casually of kissing various men, a girl who stated she smoked cigarettes to be soci ble.

Seated on the side porch, screened by the vines, Joe had his thoughts rudely interrupted and his attention caught by the sound of Mollie's name.

"Mollie! Mollie's a darling, but only a bluff. She aims to prove herself a dyed-in-the-wool flapper, and your dear, blind men drink in every word as gospel truth!"

The cool voice of the little blonde went on calmly, happily unaware of the sensation she was creating in the mind of a certain young man eavesdropping below.

"I'm willing to bet anyone a pair of chiffon stockings that dear little Mollie has never been on one real petting party. Why, my dears, the parties I've been on—" her voice trailed off, and in the pause her listeners were allowed to let their ready imaginations run as they would.

"But as for Mollie—if your men would only get together and compare notes, as girls do, they'd soon find she's been joking the whole crowd."

The remarks that followed were lost to Joe's eager ears. A sentence, or a few words now and again, were all he could catch, although he strained his ears, wholly unashamed. Once he heard quite plainly, "Caveman stuff would do the trick," and again, "—would make somebody a sweet little wife."

Joe caught his breath a little at the thought of Mollie as anybody's "sweet little wife" but his, and caught it again, a little harder, at the mere thought of Mollie as his wife.

A quick change in the conversation. The subject of the blonde's remarks had evidently appeared.

The look of sheer and utter bewilderment which covered Joe's face changed slowly to one of firm resolve, and a boyish grin replaced it. He hastily quitted the porch and wandered off alone to complete in detail the plan now forming in his mind.

. . . . . .

"Mollie, I never want to see any more of this confounded lipstick on your lips again. Stand still a minute while I wipe it off. Your face is pretty enough as nature made it, without any improvements from you."

Mollie's curly dark head held firmly against his shoulder. Joe carefully wiped the colored cream from the red lips, only resisting his desire to kiss those same lips by the knowledge that one false move now might spoil everything.

"Joe!" Mollie's slender body stiffened within his encircling arm. "Take your arm away. No man can hold me with one hand and wash my face with the other."

He cooly ignored her, holding her steadily, as he inspected her lips, quite as though they were the most important thing in the world.

"As I have already said. Mollie, I don't ever want to see any of this stuff on your face again. Therefore, I'm doing a good job now. And I'm not using my other hand to clean your face, but a perfectly good linen handkerchief, which will probably be completely ruined."

His voice, cool, wholly impersonal, altogether unlike Joe's usual cheerful tone, went on with the speech he had prepared for use the first time he had found Mollie alone.

He glanced at her eyes, slowly filling with tears, resisted the old desire to put both arms about her, to kiss the tears away, and continue in the same even voice:

"I personally don't care for the girl who flaunts her popularity by bragging of the men who are 'crazy' about her—'simply wild' is the correct expression, isn't it? And the men who devour you with kisses—isn't that another favorite expression of yours? Now go home, little girl, and look in the mirror. You'll find yourself improved, I promise you."

He turned away as though to leave her. Not a sound from Mollie. Had he carried the thing too far? Why hadn't he told her he loved her first? Wy hadn't he—a hundred whys went scurrying through his mind, and were brushed away as he felt a small hand on his arm, and an equally small voice with a quiver in it, spoke:

"Joe, haven't you a clean handkerchief to wipe my tears away? Joe, I—I—don't kiss men. Really I don't." The voice grew firm and indignant. "I should think you would have known I didn't, even though I said I did!" Sweet feminine inconsistency! "The only man I will kiss is my husband," she blundered on, aroused only by Joe's astounded voice: "Your husband!"

"I—I mean the man who will be my husband, of course, stupid!" supplemented Mollie, fast becoming more and more incoherent.

"Ah!" Joe's arms, both now in use, gathered Mollie up, although one would have been quite sufficient.

"Why, Joe!" Mollie tried to be horror-stricken, but failed utterly; "I told you I don't kiss men—"

"Excepting your husband, my dear, and as I've decided I'm going to be—"

And for a short time more words proved quite inadequate.

Two women met the other day.

"Come, let's lunch together," said the first woman affectionately. "A friendship lunch, you know. They're lively."

"What's a friendship lunch?" said the second woman.

"Why," said the first one. "I pay for yours and you pay for mine."

"What's the matter, Alice?"

"Freddie and I have parted forever."

"Um! In that case I suppose he won't be calling for a couple of nights."

Love's Awakening

By Claire Wesson

CAPTAIN KENT was old-fashioned. He believed in the young marrying young. When a girl reached the age of 18 she should have a home, a husband and, maybe, a baby—but a home and a husband, anyway.

Captain Kent had decided that his first mate, Murray Cameron, would make a very suitable husband for his daughter Alicia. Cameron was 25, square-built and sandy-complexioned. He was a good sailor, saved his money and had no bad habit. And he adored Alicia Kent—ardently and futilely.

Captain Kent wanted grandchildren—curly-headed youngsters to trot on his knee. What yarns he could spin for them!

However, there was something radically wrong with the captain's motherless child, Alicia, or Alec as she preferred being called. She was an enigma. Very soon now she would be 19, and, so far, not one honest-to-goodness sweetheart had she had.

Bewitchingly pretty she was, with large sea-blue eyes and short curly hair, and cheeks kissed by the sun; a siren who broke men's hearts with a glance, and cared not a hoot for a single one of them.

Alec read a great deal, about the brave buccaneers chiefly, and spent a lot of time rowing around the harbor; but as to matrimony, which, according to Captain Kent's honest belief, should be every woman's chief study and aim—well, Alec was just hopelessly indifferent, that was all.

Captain Kent felt that Murray Cameron, being no human barnacle, was not going to stand by forever waiting for his daughter. There was a woman down in Norfolk who seemed very much interested in this fine young sailor man. Tomorrow the Voyager was going to up anchor for Norfolk, too.

The captain reckoned he'd have to sort of keep a weather eye out for this first mate of his, maybe detailing him a few extra watches while in port. There was a vague chance that Alicia might change. One could never tell about these women. They were regular human barometers, most of them.

Captain Kent laid his binoculars on the piazza railing, and swore. There was Alicia down on the rocks with a fishing rod—a fishing rod, when she should be plying a needle, if she ever expected to fill that chest that he had bought for her. Every respectable woman considered that part of her maidenly duty in life, didn't she?

Down on the rocks Alec sat frowning. Tomorrow, back to Aunt Sophronia's again. Unsympathetic, narrow-minded Aunt Sophronia, who forbade the wearing of knickers and insisted upon sewing lessons. Back to that ugly, quiet little farm, away from the smell of the sea and the pound of the surf. A day passed so slowly there; a week was an eon, a month an eternity.

Below her, in the harbor, the Voyager rode at anchor. The girl's wistful eyes rested upon the ship, hungrily, morosely. If she had been a boy, now, instead of a good-for-nothing girl, she might be a sailor, too, and live upon a ship, and that aching, aching, inside of her somewhere—why, it wouldn't be there at all.

All at once her face lighted up, her heart skipped a beat. That's what she would do—for once she would know life—pulsing, worthwhile life. Trembling with the ecstasy of the thought, she stood up. The fishing rod slid neglected into the light green water between two huge basalts.

. . . . . .

It was an eventful trip for the Voyager.

The morning before they reached Cape Hatteras the first mate made an entry in the log to the effect that a stowaway had been discovered in the forward sail locker.

Alec seemed to enjoy herself on board, although the captain made it plain to her that he was displeased and disgusted at her unwomanliness. The first mate was polite, always ready with a cheery "Good morning, Miss Kent," but he did not offer to join her in her meanderings about the ship or try to engage her in conversation. Any advances made now would have to come from her.

The memory of that last rebuff at the "Haven" dance still rankled bitterly within him. Nevertheless, he tried in vain to eliminate her from his thoughts. Asleep he dreamed of her, awake he fought continually for the concentration that the thought of her played such havoc with.

Nine days out from Hatteras the Voyager ran into a storm. All the hatches aft were battened down. The storm took three days to spend its violence. For three days and nights Captain Kent and Murray Cameron stood watch on the bridge.

Haggard from loss of sleep, hungry and stiff, the first mate came below the morning of the fourth day to announce an abatement in the storm and the ship once more on an almost even keel.

Captain Kent, who had been down getting some sleep, threw on his pea jacket and hustled up the hatchway to take Cameron's place.

Alicia put out her hand to the bearded weather-beaten man standing by the cabin light.

"I want to tell you how much I—I admire your courage—"

Cameron flushed.

"It's nothing. Just part of a sailor's life."

"I never realized before how much I—I—lov—liked you. When I thought that you might be washed overboard and drowned, I—"

For just a moment she raised her downcast, tear-wet eyes.

There was unmistakable tenderness and love shining in them.

Hungrily, Cameron held out his sore arms, and into them went Alec with a happy sigh.

On the following day, which was calm and sunshiny, by the way, there was a wedding. To Captain Kent had fallen the much coveted task of making his first mate the first mate of his daughter, also.

WEDDING

Handy-Taggart

The marriage of Miss Mary G. Taggart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Taggart of Norwich avenue and Frederick A. Handy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Handy of North Third avenue took place at 11 o'clock Monday morning at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of relatives and friends from Schenectady, N. Y., Manchester, and other cities. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dwight C. Stone, pastor of the Hanover Congregational church.

Miss Charlotte Fowler of Norwich was the maid of honor, while William Taggart, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride wore white georgette crepe and carried a bouquet of white roses and asters. Her maid of honor wore pink crepe de chine, her bouquet being of pink gladioli. The bride's gift to her maid was a sapphire bracelet and the gift of the bridegroom to the best man were cufflinks.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, which was attractively decorated with varicolored flowers. A number of guests were present. Mr. and Mrs. Handy left on a wedding trip, which will take them to Niagara Falls and as far west as Ohio. Her traveling apparel was a tan jersey dress with slippers and hat to match and a plaid sport coat.

Mrs. Handy has been employed in the office of the J. B. Martin company and Mr. Handy is manager of the Economy store at Norwich. Both Mr. and Mrs. Handy are popular among the younger set in the village and their many friends extend them the best wishes for a happy and prosperous married life.

The second annual minstrel and dance of the T. G. A. club was held Thursday night at Parish hall under the direction of William Dougherty and a corps of assistants, the minstrel drawing a capacity audience, many of whom stayed for dancing later in the evening. The hall was attractively decorated, the color scheme being black and white. The members of the chorus were Georgette Gregory, Loretta Gregory, Loretta Sullivan, Pauline Hasler, Lulu Greenwood, Susette Mentas, Adeline Ducharme, Jeanette Archambeault, Corinne Fregeau, Lucia Couture, Helen Allard, Cecelia Paquette, Yvonne Yargeau, Antonio Caron, Leo Caron, Albert Prodell, Noe Lacroix, Frank Belicky and Clarence Disco. William Dougherty acted as interlocutor, and had as end men Edward Hamil, Ernest Gilman, Henry Reardon and Louis Grover, all taking their parts in enviable manner as did the other members of the minstrel. The open chorus included the following numbers, Back Home Again in Indiana and Four Leaf Clover, while the grand finale had the following: She Loves Me, She Loves Me Not, Yoo Hoo, and Sweet Marie. Special song numbers and jokes were rendered by Scotty Powers in Scotch outfit, and Miss Beatrice Daigneault performed the Black Bottom. Other special numbers were Me and My Shadow, John Kelly; Honolulu Moon, Misses Theo Allard and Anna Yargeau, On a Dew-Dew-Dewy Day, Walter LaFontaine, I'm Looking for a Jane Named Mary, Josephine Dempsey, Ain't She Sweet, Edward Hamil, Just the Same, Ernest Gilman, You Don't Like It, Not Much, Miss Izola Blanchard, Side by Side, Henry Reardon, Is it Possible, Louis Grover, Dawn of Tomorrow, John Kelly and William Shannon, What Does It Matter, Arthur Cote. James Hanlon, was stage manager. The lighting effects were in charge of Romeo Kane, tickets, Arthur Roy, checking, James Nolan, and refreshments, Arthur Allard. A Norwich orchestra furnished music for dancing.

Miss Hazel Spielvogel of Clinton is a guest of Misses Frieda and Emma Spielvogel of Blissville road.

Miss Rose Murphy of South A street has as her guest, Miss Virginia Green of Boston.

Ernest Pollard of South Second avenue has returned from a week's stay at the home of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Dodge of Block Island.

MEMORIAL BOULDER FOR GREAT INDIAN BATTLE IS UNVEILED

On a site at East Great Plain, donated by Dr. Ier J. Manwaring, alongside the old Norwich-New London highway, which was laid out in 1670, the memorial boulder to commemorate the battle fought in 1643 between the Mohegan Indians under Chief Uncas and the Narragansetts under Chief Miantonomoh was unveiled Monday afternoon in the Labor Day program conducted under the auspices of the New London County Agricultural society.

The inscription on the bronze tablet on the boulder reads:

NEAR THIS SPOT ON THE
"GREAT PLAINS"
IN 1643
THE MOHEGANS DEFEATED
THE NARRAGANSETTS
IN THE MOST CONSPICUOUS
PURELY INDIAN FIGHT RECORDED IN THE ANNALS OF NEW ENGLAND

Close by the boulder the grand stand was erected, and seated before it was the reception committee of several hundred prominent men of New London county, while a picturesque touch was added in the audience by the group of over 50 Indian braves and women, Mohegans, Narragansetts, Pequots and Algonquins, in full costume with beads and feather headdresses.

The Narragansetts came here from the Charlestown reservation to take part in the unveiling and a number of them were seated upon the platform, these including Chief and Medicine man Pinetree and Chief Phillip H. Peckham, Chief Nighthawk, Chief Frank Nichols, Chief Strongborse, Chief and Grand Sachem A. C. Perry who is of great prominence among the Indians of America.

Perfect weather conditions favored the audience of over a thousand which had assembled when Swahn's military band opened the exercises at 1:45 by playing the Daughters of America national march. After several other selections by the band, concluding with a verse of America in which the audience joined, President Herbert R. Branche of the agricultural society, who was chairman for the afternoon, called upon Rev. Charles H. Ricketts to offer prayer.

Chairman Branche gave the address of welcome to the distinguished visitors, citizens and guests, speaking in part as follows:

"For nearly three hundred years action has been deferred and proper recognition of this important battlefield has not been made. We meet together to do honor to the memory of the Indian tribes who fought here. I do not know in whose brain the idea first presented itself that a suitable memorial should mark this battlefield. I do know that to my associates, Dr. Ier J. Manwaring and Arthur L. Peale, belongs all the credit for making it possible for us to hold these exercises here today. We are also indebted to many others who through their contributions of labor, time and money have assisted in placing this memorial here. From yonder craggy hillside this boulder was transferred and placed. It was fitting that the boulder selected should come from a site of prominence overlooking this plain and it was also fiting that the memorial should have been fashioned by nature. The early founders of Norwich and New London county were kept in constant fear and dread by these warring Indian tribes who fought here and many lives were lost. The articles of confederation between the Plantations of Massachusetts and Connecticut which were signed in 1643 were largely brought about because the natives had combined themselves against the colonists and for continual help the colonists were forced to do likewise."

Unveiling the Monument

The monument was then unveiled by two Indian maidens, Miss Gladys Tantaquidgeon, a direct descendant of a Mohegan brave of that name who was in the battle of the Great Plains, and Miss Doris Steele of the Narragansett tribe, a direct descendant of Chief Canonicus, uncle of Miantonomoh. As they withdrew the American flag which was draped over the boulder, the audience rose and the Indians stood with bowed heads around the boulder.

Mayor Milo R. Waters addressed a few brief but appropriate words to the large gathering saying that he expressed the appreciation of the city and town to the patriotic men and women who had arranged for the erection of this memorial, for when we are gone and memory fails this imperishable granite will preserve the record of one of the great historic events of New London county.

State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers of New London, who is president-general of the Sons of the American Revolution, was the next speaker. He said in part that New London county is one of the most important counties in the state, historically, and he referred to the local value there is in marking historic spots as tourists always inquire after and want to see what is historic in a town.

Mr. Rogers paid a belated tribute to the chief of the Narragansetts, saying that when Chief Miantonomoh was captured, after the defeat of the Narragansetts his captors said, "Why don't you ask for your life?" but he said not a word. That was a courageous bearing which is well to be implanted upon patriotic citizens of today. He closed by saying that people three hundred years ago loved life as we love it today and that the execution of Chief Miantonomoh, a man of real bravery, was a blot on the history of that time.

Made Eloquent Address

The next speaker was Rev. Leroy C. Perry, an ordained Christian minister, a descendant of the Wampanoags, whose Indian name is Chief Yellow Feather. He thrilled his audience with his eloquent address as he declared that no finer tribute could be paid by the city than in the erection of this memorial boulder upon which the inscription will live when words fail and parchment crumbles. He pleaded with his bearers to understand the American Indians' story from the standpoint of the Indian and declared it was a simple misunderstanding that had projected war between the Indians and the white men. He paid a tribute to Chief Massasoit as the friend of the white man and declared that the heart of Chief Phillip burned with patriotic fire for his native land, and the American red men believed that the land belonged to them because they had lived here for 2,300 centuries. The speaker declared also that George Washington said if the Indians had fought against him as they did for him, the American people would not now be enjoying the liberties of today. He pleaded that the Indians were misunderstood and regarded as foes of the pale-faces, but in reality they have proved on thousand of occasions that they were the greatest friends of the white men. He closed with a plea for justice to the red man and also for an opportunity to receive the educations which is the blessings of today. At the conclusion of his address the audience gave him tremendous applause.

James L. Case, president of the Norwich chamber of commerce, was the next to give the greeting of the Norwich chamber of commerce to the honored guests, the visiting Indian tribes and the assembly present at the unveiling. Mr. Case stressed service to the community in a most impressive manner, and received an ovation at the finish.

For Founders of Norwich

Edwin A. Tracy, representing the Society of the Founders of Norwich, was next to speak, giving the interesting information that he was a descendant of founders of Norwich both on his paternal and maternal side, from Thomas Tracy and Thomas Leffingwell, both having been among the closest friends of Chief Uncas. Mr. Tracy complimented Chief Yellow Feather for the address he had made and stated that Thomas Tracy had been a witness on the deed which Chief Uncas gave for the nine-miles square and that Thomas Leffingwell was in the boat that brought relief from Saybrook when Uncas was besieged in Fort Shantok. Chief Uncas, Mr. Tracy said, could be honored for always holding to his bond of friendship with the white men and there is no record that an Indian was ever killed by a white man in the nine miles square, which was indeed and has ever remained the peaceful valley.

The closing address at the unveiling was by Mrs. Sarah L. Alceo, honorary squaw sachem of the Wampanoags, who has been given the Indian name of "Snowbird." While speaking she turned to the Indians present and said that they were the observed of the whole world at a present moment and that the young men and the young women must take advantage of the opportunity presented by civilization. She pointed to the great oratorical chief who spoke before her saying that he is a sample of what self educational and the embracing of Christanty can do for an Indian. She finished by saying that Christianity at its worst is better than heathenism at its best. She also presented Princess Owovanson who is teaching school in Pawtucket, R. I., her English name being Doris I. Steele. She said this young lady as many other Indian women are the product of modern civilization. She also admonished the Indians to be careful what they do and see that the world hears only the finest and best things of them.

CARRIER PIGEON CAME TO CANTERBURY POULTRY FARM

A carrier pigeon, hungry and so completely exhausted that it could be picked up readily, came to the Goodrich poultry farm in Canterbury Sunday, flying down among the flock of hens as Mr. Goodrich was feeding them. The bird fell to eating at once and when it had got its fill, Mr. Goodrich was able to pick it up. The pigeon had an aluminum leg band marked "C 7624 IF 25." There was also a piece of string hanging from the band as if a message might have been tied on but had come loose and been lost.

Goodrich would be glad to locate the owner of the bird. He intends to keep the pigeon for a day or two until it is rested and will then probably release it in the hope that it will find its way back home.

SCOTTISH CHURCH DIGNITARIES COMING TO NEW LONDON

In connection with the reconstruction of St. Andrew's Episcopal cathedral at Aberdeen, Scotland, to which a memorial front will be built in memory of Bishop Samuel Seabury, Jr., who was consecrated as the first bishop of the United States, in 1784, the Rev. Frederic L. Deane, bishop of Aberdeen and Orkney, and the Rev. Henry Erskine Hill, provost of St. Andrew's cathedral, will be at the St. James' Episcopal church at New London on Sept. 29.

The Aberdeen church will be reconstructed into an imposing edifice, and present plans are that the historic scene of Bishop Seabury's consecration be carved in stone upon the front. Bishop Seabury was consecrated in Aberdeen. Not in a church. He was consecrated by the Scottish bishops in the upper room of the disestablished Episcopal church of Scotland, because the Scottish Episcopal church was suffering under penal laws, and it was not allowed to construct "houses of God."

The building which contained the upper room has long since disappeared and the structure which replaced it and became the cathedral of the diocese is unworthy of its rank and history, according to the views of the Scottish church heads.

The remains of Bishop Seabury are under the Hallam chapel of the St. James' Episcopal church, and the Scottish church dignitaries will come to New London on a pilgrimage to his tomb, on which they will place a wreath. At a service in the church they will set forth the plans for the reconstruction of St. Andrew's church. People of America will be asked to contribute to the work, so that a lasting memorial to the first American bishop may be had in Scotland.

Samuel Seabury, Jr., was the first bishop of the American Episcopal church. He was graduated from Yale college in 1748. He then went to Scotland to study medicine, but he changed this to a study of theology. He was ordained a deacon by the Bishop of Lincoln, and a priest by the Bishop of Carlisle. Returning to America, he served several churches in New Jersey before marrying and settling down as rector at Westchester, N. Y. He was a royalist during the revolution and served as a chaplain in the British army.

After peace was declared, the Connecticut clergymen asked the Rev. Mr. Seabury to go to England to seek consecration as their bishop. He undertook this step, but the English were bitter over the outcome of the Revolutionary war and they refused to consecrate any person who would not swear fealty to the British king. The Rev. Mr. Seabury then went to Aberdeen, Scotland and was consecrated as a bishop on Nov. 14, 1784. He returned to this country in 1785, and took up his residence in New London. He at once took up the local work as rector, in addition to his duties as the head of the diocese of Connecticut. He soon became bishop of the Rhode Island diocese in addition to his Connecticut affiliations.

Bishop Seabury preached in the court house, until in September 1785, he could consecrate the new St. James' church, then located in Main street. The old church had been burned during the war. He consecrated candidates for holy office, who came to New London from all over the United States. He had much to do with the adaptation to American use of the Book of Common Prayer. On Feb. 25, 1798, when 67 years old, he was suddenly stricken with apoplexy and died.

An effort will be made to have the Scottish bishop and the provost go to Groton, where the only Bishop Seabury Memorial church in the world is located. This church, the pastor of which is the Rev. Frederick W. Haist, was named in memory of the first American bishop.

OLD MOHEGAN NAMES HEARD AT THE WIGWAM

The Wigwam at the Fair Grounds on Labor day gave a great opportunity for the members of the Mohegan tribe and their kin to get together. The leafy lodge was built by the Fieldings and other men of the tribe. Those in charge of the different booths, sales and activities included members with a few names long associated with the history of the Indians of pre-colonist times, as well as those heard on their government reservation in later years. Such names as Mathews, Fowler, Baker, Meech, Quidgeon, Fielding, Story, Dolbeare, LeMoyne, Gray, Collins, Harris, Seymour, Reed, Strickland, Hamilton, were spoken frequently during the day, as friends met.

A strikingly garbed brave who came back to Norwich to assist in the activities of Monday was Julian Harris, now a resident of Hartford.

One of the successful ventures of the wigwam was the annual grab bag, holding all manner of treasures and in charge of Mrs. Lillian Collins, of 84 Franklin street, Norwich.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. W. Russell Baird went to Stamford to pass the holiday with Mr. Baird's mother.

The Misses Mullin, of Warren street returned Monday evening after spending the week end and holiday in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Pullen, of Lincoln avenue have as their guest Mrs. James R. Wells, who has passed the sumer in the mountains of Pennsylvania.

Attorney and Mrs. John H. Cassidy and children of Watertown motored through here Monday on their return from spending the summer at Block Island.

Miss Virginia Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Chase, has returned to her home on Sachem Terrace, having been at Camp Kehonka, Wolfeboro N. H., for the season.

At Beech Spring farm, their beautiful summer home at Franklin, Attorney Gilbert D. Lamb and Mrs. Lamb of New York were hosts to fifteen Windham and New London friends, at the week end.

Mrs. George A. Haskell, of Jewett City will accompany Mrs. Henry H. Gallup, Mrs. Wilbur S. Alling and Miss Sue I. Gallup to Plymouth, Mass., today (Tuesday), to attend the 11th general congress of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants.

Mrs. Wilbur B. Purvis and daughter Mary, who have spent the season with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Utley, of McKinley avenue at their summer home in Neptune Park, leave today (Tuesday) for Bayonne, N. J. Mr. Purvis was up from Bayonne to accompany them home.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding of Miss Katherine Brown, daughter of the late Dr. Frederick A. and Katherine Slater Brown, of Webster, Mass., and Edmund Collier, of New York, at the Church of the Reconciliation, Webster, Saturday, last, were Rev. and Mrs. J. Eldred Brown and Thomas G. Brown, of Norwich. Archdeacon Brown married the bride's father and mother while he was rector at Webster.

INTERESTING PAPER ON CONNECTICUT COLONIAL COINS

A paper on "Connecticut Colonial coins" read before the members of the American Numismatic association at Hartford by George arpentier Arnold of Providence, R. I., pointed out that the first regular authorized coinage of Connecticut was granted by the assembly at New Haven in October, 1785. Mr. Arnold's paper was in part as follows:

"The first settlers of New England found great difficulty in obtaining the means for trade and barter, for having brought little money to this country their resources soon became exhausted. In their extremity they were obliged to adopt the Indian money of the period, which was made from various shells and styled Sewan or Wampum.

"The general court of Massachusetts November 15, 1637, ordered that Wampum should pass fo rsix a penny, for any sum under 12d. In 1639, owing to the failure of the crops, especially corn (and corn was considered as currency) Wampum was enhanced in value and in October, 1640, it was ordered in the same general court that White Wampum should pass at 4a penny and blue at 2a penny.

"The first copper coins struck within the borders of Connecticut were the Higley or Granby cents and were dated 1737-1738-1739. They were never officially authorized, but John Higley, the copper mine owner and native of Granby, was never molested. The Granby mines were never profitable but were worked down to the time of the American Revolution, when they were taken over by the general court of Connecticut as a colonial jail and public work house.

"The Higleys were one of the most important families in Connecticut. In 1695 John Higley, Sr., was the largest taxpayer, being one of the wealthiest men in the colony, and his daughter, Hannah, sister to John Higley, Jr., was the mother of the first governor Trumbull of Connecticut.

"The first regular authorized coinage of Connecticut was granted by the assembly at New Haven, October, 1785. The act reads as follows:

"Resolved by this assembly that Samuel Bishop, Joseph Hopkins, Samuel Hillhouse and John Goodrich have liberty and authority is hereby granted to them to establish a mint for the coining and manufacturing coppers, not to exceed the amount of ten thousand pounds of lawful money, in value of the standard of British half-pence and to weigh six pennyweight.'

"Samuel Browns and Jeremiah Platt secured the contract, and two mint houses were built, one situated in what is now known as Morris Cove and the other near the mouth of the Westville river in Westville.

"Abel Buell of New Haven was the principal die sinker and prepared dies also for Vermont, New York and some of the New Jersey colonials.

"The authorized coinage of Connecticut cents was dated 1785-1788, inclusive; the obverse having a bust, not unlike Washington, with the legend 'Auctori Connec' (by the authority of Connecticut) and the reversed side 'Inde Et Lib' (independence and liberty), with the ideal head of liberty, and date."

CHARGED WITH DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE

Stanley Tomczky of No. 543 North Main street was arrested late Monday night by Officer James Ryan in Greeneville on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was booked at police headquarters and held in bonds of $300 for his appearance in the city court this (Tuesday) morning.

Swam Around Lake

John Zenker of Rockville won the swimming marathon held at Sandy beach, Crystal lake, Saturday afternoon, during the water carnival conducted by the Tolland County Y. M. C. A. There were 11 starters, eight finishing, and they swam around the outer part of the lake. The mark set will be the official standard until next year, as this was the first official around-the-lake swim. Zenker covered the distance in one hour and ten minutes, winning the first prize, a gold-lined silver cup.

Wonderful Indian Work

The hundreds who admired the Indian costume worn at the fair ground Monday by Lemuel M. Fielding of Norwich, marveled at the rich and elaborate bead work done by the Mohegan women of early times. This costume is 150 years old and is the property of Mr. Fielding, "Chief Occum," as he is known in the movies. Its intricate scrolls, figures of birds, and other emblems are all symbolic, certain of the designs standing for prayers to the Great Spirit, it is said.

Carl Ricker Exhibits

At the Charter Oak fair, Hartford, in the poultry exhibit, Carl A. Ricker, Norwich Town came in for honors with his s. c. Rhode Island Reds, cockerels and pullets; also for s. c. Rhode Island Red pen.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. Charles E. Reeves, supplied the pulpit at Sunday morning worship at the First Methodist Episcopal church, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Albert E. Whitten who is having his vacation. "The Service of Humble People," was the theme of Rev. Mr. Reeve's sermon. II Kings 5:2, was his text, "And the Syrians had gone out by companies and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid; and she waited on Naaman's wife."

Le Roy Miner was leader of the Methodist Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening, when the topic assigned was "The Use and Abuse of the Tongue." Jas. 3:1-18. (Consecration meeting).

At Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey spoke from Matthew 25:38. When saw we thee a stranger and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? At the close of the morning worship the Lord's supper was observed.

Sunday evening, during the hour for service of the Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor society, members listened to the reports of the delegates who attended Northfield conference last month. They were Reginald Avery, president of the society, and Misses Elizabeth and Louise Avery who were in attendance at the conference the entire week. The C. E. topic assigned to Sunday September 4th was The Use and Abuse of the Tongue.

Preparations are well under way for the Lawn Fete to be given under the auspices of the Congregational Christian Endeavor society.

Thursday evening in the chapel, the Congregational mid-week service of conference and prayer, will here for its lesson, "The World We Live In." The subject this week will be, What Shall the Christian Say of Modern Literature? (Scripture reference Eccl. 12:12, with special mention of 1-14. This lesson, topic, "The World We Live In," will provide a different subject each week during September.

Week end and holiday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver included Mrs. William Dow, Mrs. James Bradshaw and Mrs. Clarence Davoll, of New Bedford, Mass., who returned Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thatcher of East Hampton, were overnight guests recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Sabourin, of Town street.

The first meeting for this season of the Norwich Town class of New London County Home and Farm Bureau, is to take place Thursday, with an all-day session at the home of the leader, Mrs. William Weaver on Huntington Green. The new demonstrator, Mrs. Robinson will be present to assist with suggestions, etc, concerning the various subjects to be brought up for discussion, in planning the work for the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dixon and daughter Janet, of Englewood, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick K. Stokes daughter Dorothy, of Saybrook, Conn., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Connolly.

DISTRIBUTED POISON CANDY TO CHILDREN

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Neighborhood quarrels and distorted jelousies were blamed by investigators tonight for an apparent attempt to poison children in a South Side neighborhood here by distributing poison candy. The police were seeking a woman, perhaps of unbalanced mind, believed to be responsible.

Three boxes of candy containing poisoned wheat were found by children in the neighborhood, but the apparent attempted poisoning was frustrated when parents discovered the candy had been tampered with. Analysis by the city chemist showed the candy had been poisoned with a rat exterminator.

In a fourth case, however, a box of the candy was sent to the home of Sidney Dills where a Sunday school party was being held and three persons became ill after eating it The box was delivered to the home by a drug store delivery boy who told the police a woman had given him 15 cents to deliver the package

Other recent incidents in the neighborhood led investigators to believe that neighborhood bickerings were the cause.

Perhaps Yesterday

YOUR coffee was fair—and perhaps no better today. How about tomorrow? Why not make sure that there will not be another disappointment?

Here is a way that you can be certain, always, of having coffee that you will enjoy. Order a sealed can of perfectly blended, perfectly roasted, perfectly ground coffee, ready to use, sure to be right—YUBAN. Steaming hot, golden brown in the cup, it is a drink that refreshes and invigorates.

Coffee Making Pointers

Never use a tin coffee pot or an enameled pot in which the surface has been worn off in spots exposing the iron. Poor coffee is bound to result.

PLANE OLD GLORY IN FLIGHT FOR ROME IS AVERAGING OVER 100 MILES AN HOUR

Wireless From Steamship Berlin, 1,200 Miles West From New York, Reported Having Heard Radio Message Sent From the Old Glory—The Berlin Radio Operator Was Unable to Communicate With the Plane—The Old Glory Took Off at Old Orchard at 12:23 P. M. (E. S. T.) Yesterday—Plane Rolled Down the Beach a Mile and a Half Before Taking the Air—Averaged More Than 100 Miles an Hour in the 600 Miles to Cape Breton, N. S.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 6—(AP)—Averaging slightly above 100 miles an hour the monoplane Old Glory which left Old Orchard, Maine, at 12:23, eastern standard time today, passed over Nova Scotia for several hours this afternoon. First appearing near Digby, on the Bay of Fundy coast, the plane left Nova Scotia headed for New Foundland at 6 o'clock, eastern standard time. Bridgeport, near North Sydney, where the plane left the Nova Scotian coast, is not far from the spot where Lindbergh took last leave of Nova Scotia on his flight to Paris.

Evidence that the Old Glory's wireless was working as satisfactorily as its motor was received in a wireless message from St. Paul's island stating that the plane had twice talked to the operator there and received bearings. At 5:51 the course as given by St. Paul's Island was 131 degrees from true north. The Old Glory, at 6:10, again asked for bearings and her course was then 158 1-2 degrees from true north.

The last point in Nova Scotia to report sighting the plane was New Waterford, where the plane was seen headed northeast over the Gulf of St. Lawrence. This course would take it on almost a straight line for Cape Race, N. F., about 300 miles away.

The Old Glory, carrying Pilots Lloyd Bertaud and James D. Hill and Philip Payne, New York editor, was reported seen by hundreds all along the route. The fliers followed the Nova Scotia shore of the Bay of Fundy to Cape Split on Minas Basin, where they crossed over to Parrsboro, then following the north shore of Cobequid Bay to Truro.

From Truro the plane followed the course of the main highway to New Glasgow, thence to the Northumberland Straight Shore and due east to Arisaig, where it was sighted at 5 o'clock. There the Old Glory flew so low that its name and identification marks were easily read by those on the ground.

The next reports came from Baddeck, where the plane was seen by many as it flew up the Bras d'or lakes. That it was making fast time was evident when a report came that the plane had left the Nova Scotia coast at Bridgeport more than 100 miles from Arisaig in a straight line, an hour after passing Arisaig.

Perfect weather prevailed throughout the province and there was almost perfect visibility.

LINER BERLIN PICKED UP WIRELESS MESSAGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—The Radio Corporation of America at 9:25 p. m., eastern standard time today reported receipt of a wireless message from the steamship Berlin which reported having heard radio messages being sent from the Old Glory.

The Berlin radio operator, however, said he was unable to communicate with the plane.

The Berlin gave its position as about 1,200 miles from New York.

TESTING SIGNALS OF OLD GLORY PICKED UP

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—Radio testing signals of the monoplane Old Glory were picked up 860 miles east of Ambrose Light tonight by the United States liner George Washington, a radiogram from the liner to the Independent wireless station at East Hampton, L. I., anounced.

"From 6:21 to 6:30 p. m., eastern standard time, heard Old Glory testing, fairly loud," the message read. "Now silent at 6:30 p. m., we are about 860 miles east of Ambrose Light and plane just two degrees off our port bow."

The George Washington is enroute to New York, Bremen, via Southampton and Cherbourg, and is due to arrive here Friday.

STORY OF THE TAKE-OFF OF OLD GLORY FOR ROME

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Sept. 6—(AP)—The great monoplane Old Glory rose swiftly and gracefully from the hard packed sand of Old Orchard beach today and winged her way toward Rome. The long deferred flight began at 12:23 p. m., eastern standard time.

The toss of a coin had given James DeWitt Hill the coveted pilot's position at the start. Beside him in the cockpit was Lloyd Wilson Bertraud, who will attend to the navigation and radio operation in addition to relieving Hill at the controls at intervals. Hill is not an operator. In the passenger's seat behind them was Philip A. Payne, managing editor of the New York Mirror and flight director, who represented William R. Hearst, backer of the flight.

Payne and Bertraud had bidden their wives a cheerful farewell. No woman relative was present to speed hill on his way but Mrs. Payne had given him a hearty kiss.

The crowd stood hushed as Rev. James F. Mullen, pastor of St. Margaret's church, climbed to the top of an empty oil barrel. The purple stole about his neck was the only sign of his office. Fervently he imparted the blessing of the Catholic church on the plane and the three men who were to make the flight. On the oil spattered nose of the plan he sprinkled holy water.

This was the only ceremony. The fliers exchanged their parting handshakes with relatives and friends. Payne and Bertraud embraced and kissed their wives, and Bertaud kissed his mother.

Standing beside the plane with its whirring motor Payne flipped a coin. This had been agreed upon as the method of deciding whether Hill or Bertaud should pilot the plane at the takeoff. The coin slipped through Payne's fingers and dropped into the sand.

The starting point was 3 1-2 miles from the Old Orchard pier and two miles from the hangar of Captain Harry Jones, at the center of the beach crescent, near which the plane had landed on its arrival from Roosevelt field. It was a long unimpeded runway.

The plane started its run at 12:21 p. m., with motorcycle police as outriders. Hill guided it down the beach skillfully and smoothly. Just north of the hangar, at 12:23 o'clock, the plane left the ground. By the time it reached the pier it had gained altitude enough to clear it, but Hill took no chances and swung out to sea past the end of the pier.

FLYING IN CLOUDS OVER CAPE RACE

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 6—(AP)—At 10:15 o'clock, eastern standard time, tonight the Old Glory was reported to have been heard flying in the clouds over Cape Race.

The wireless station at Cape Race was receiving strong signals from the plane's wireless set from 10 to 10:30 o'clock.

TWO PLANES TO HOP OFF THIS MORNING

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., Sept. 6—(AP)—Lieutenants Terry Tully and James Medcalf, pilots of the monoplane Sir John Carling, retired early tonight announcing that they were going to get a good night's sleep and hop off at 6 a. m., eastern standard time, tomorrow on their interrupted flight from London, Ont., to London, England.

The aviators were honor guests at a dance given tonight by residents of Harbor Grace.

The Sir John Carling had been placed on the top of the runway recently constructed on a tableland overlooking the town, and was said to be in complete readiness for the flight across the ocean.

The only damage suffered by the monoplane when fire broke out while gasoline was being poured into its tanks last night was a tear in the wing covering about an inch and a half long. This was quickly repaired and the airmen said their machine was in perfect condition for the attempt.

The weather was clearing tonight after a light rainfall. Light wind was blowing from the northwest.

EVIDENCE AGAINST BOMBERS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—Two of six self-styled Latin-American toymakers, held by police in connection with the bombing of the Brooklyn supreme court building yesterday, were declared today to have been near the scene of the explosion 20 minutes before the blast occurred by a man who identified their photographs.

The witness, whose name was withheld, told District Attorney Dodd that he recognized Julian de Hoyas, 25, Porto Rican laborer, as the man he saw running from a side street near the court house to an automobile parked nearby.

In the rear seat of the car another man reached out to help the hurrying man and shouted, "Is everything all right?" The witness said he recognized the questioner as Jesus Silva, 24-year-old Mexican dishwasher. He was unable to identify two other men whom he declared were in the car. In the suspects possession police found a strangely rigged alarm clock with several dry batteries attached, a package of steel shavings, several bottles of mysterious liquids yet unanalyzed, New York maps with public buildings and subway stations marked; and a number of curious contrived monkeys made of lead.

These latter articles were said by the suspects to have been used by them in making toys. Other objects they declared were employed in putting together mechanical inventions.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT THE CONNECTICUT STATE PARK

HARTFORD, Sept. 6—(AP)—Five thousand children were admitted to Charter Oak park today "Children's day" at the 20th annual Connecticut state fair. Official attendance for the day, inclusive of children and adults, was estimated at 10,000.

Tomorrow will be "Mayor's day," and upwards of a dozen chief executives of Connecticut municipalities have already accepted invitations to attend. In addition, editors of Connecticut newspapers and periodicals and members of Hartford service clubs will be guests of the fair association.

The annual horse show will be an attraction of "Mayor's day," as well as on the day following, "Governor's day." Governor Trumbull will arrive from Maine by airplane Thursday and will be joined there by members of his staff and state officials. An athletic program will be presented during the afternoon of "Governor's day."

FORMER KLAN LEADER FIGHTING FOR FREEDOM

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 6—(AP)—D. C. Stephenson, Indiana's most famous prisoner, will make another bid for freedom from a life term for murder tomorrow, on that occasion through the United States district court at South Bend.

Attorney General Arthur L. Gillion, who will oppose the effort, and William V. Booker, local attorney representing Stephenson, were notified today that the hearing on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus would be held tomorrow.

Stephenson will be present at the hearing.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BERLIN, Sept. 6—(AP)—The transportation ministry will not attempt to block the trans-Atlantic flights of the planes Germania and Bremen in spite of recent frowning of such attempts by single-motored land planes.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 6—(AP)—An attempt to blow up the Buenos Aires branch of the West India Oil company, a Standard Oil subsidiary, was frustrated by a porter employe who extinguished the fuse just in time to prevent the explosion of what the police later analyzed as a most powerful infernal machine.

TYPHOID BECOMING RARE DISEASE IN CONNECTICUT

HARTFORD, Sept. 6—(AP)—Typhoid fever is fast becoming a rare disease in Connecticut, records announced today by the state department of health show.

With only 48 cases reported in the state during the frist eight months of this year, there is every indication that a new low record will be established in 1927, it is said. In the same period last year 102 cases occurred. A total of 165 cases during the year of 1926 established a low record for the state.

A report of the number of cases by months this year follows: January 11, February 4, March 2, April 2, May 2, June 5, July 9, August 13. The occurrence of only two cases in each of three successive months establishes a record for the state.

Although pointing out that in former years paratyphoid fever was often classed with typhoid, the department's bulletin states that better diagnosis is in no way responsible for the decreased number of typhoid cases, inasmuch as only nine cases of paratyphoid fever have been reported this year.

(Commenting on the decrease in typhoid, the bulletin says: "Many factors have apparently conspired to cause this great reduction in typhoid incidence which is one of the many triumphs of modern preventive medicine. Water supplies are better safeguarded and many are treated to destroy disease germs. Most large milk supplies are pasteurized. People know better how to care for typhoid patients to prevent the spread of infection. More cleanly habits of living also afford protection. Speed the day when typhoid will be so rare as to be a medical curiosity."

CHARGED WITH MATRICIDE. HILL MAY FIGHT EXTRADITION

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 6—(AP)—Indications were given here today that a fight would be made by Harry R. Hill, 22 year old Streator, Illinois youth, to prevent his return to his home town to stand trial on charges of having murdered his mother.

Anticipating action by Hill's attorneys, Deputy Prosecutor Jack Dunn filed an application for a fugitive warrant in justice court after Hill was taken to the prosecutor's office for further questioning.

He appeared pleased to hear that Dr. H. C. Hill, his father was on his way here. "I am glad to hear here is coming," he said. "Glad to know he is sticking up for me, as he always had done when I got into trouble before."

Hill's attorneys were denied a private audience with the prisoner today.

Decision on further action will not be made until Dr. Hill arrives tomorrow, it was announced. Reports from Illinois have indicated the father would ask his son to return voluntarily to stand trial, as he was convinced of his innocence.

Hill met questions bearing on the murder with a mechanical recital of "I have nothing to say." He also parried questions which would prove his identity.

Officers here assert there is absolutely no doubt about the identity of the youth.

FLED INTO SWAMP AFTER FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 6—(AP)—Country and state forces continued their search today for Harry Stevens of Garden City, who disappeared into a swamp near Warners, following a crash in which Vera Wilkinson, 11, Syracuse, was fatally injured.

Search of the swamp where Stevens vanished was abandoned today. Deputy sheriffs and state police believe he will turn up at the home of relatives, he has not been home since Saturday, according to his wife, who claims he left following a quarrel.

An inquest has been ordered for Thursday.

Witnesses of the crash were questioned today by Coroner Winn and Assistant District Attorney Peckham. They declare the car was swung into a gas station driveway and emerging onto the main road, clipped the truck in which the child was riding.

Occupants of Stevens' car admit, authorities say, that he was going at a high speed.

COOLIDGE WOULD USE TARIFF TO AID FARMERS

RAPID CITY, S. D., Sept. ..—(AP)—Discussing the tariff as it affects agriculture, President Coolidge gave Sam H. Bober, of Newell, S. D., the impression today that he wants to use the tariff to its full capacity to aid the farmer.

Bober, the Northern Hills seed grower of whom the president purchased alfalfa seed for his Vermont farm last year, asked Mr. Coolidge to raise the tariff on alfalfa seed, telling him that neither controlled marketing nor "a McNary-Haugen law would mean much to seed growers when foreign seed can be dumped on our markets at any time to compete with us and depress our prices."

"We talked quite a bit about the tariff," said Bober, "and the president recalled that he raised the tariff on butter and flax and expressed the opinion that this had been beneficial. I feel he wants to use the tariff to help the farmer as much as it can."

OBITUARY
Mrs. Julia Lawrence

BOSTON, Sept. 6—(AP)—Mrs. Julia Lawrence, wife of the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, formerly bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, died at her home in Readville tonight after an illness of two months.

Increase in Cases of Infantile Paralysis

Other Diseases Were at a Minimum in the State Last Week.

HARTFORD, Sept. 6—(AP)—A slight increase in the number of new cases of infantile paralysis has been noted during the past week, according to the weekly morbidity report issued today by the state department of health.

In an eight-day period, closing this noon, 19 cases were reported as compared with 12 during the previous week.

The increase is not alarming, according to Commissioner of Health Stanley H. Osborn, who points out that the disease is always at its height at this time of the year. Although there are more cases than in the past few years, Dr. Osborn does not consider that the disease has approached the proportions of even a mild epidemic. Warnings have been issued, however, that every precaution should be taken to guard against its spread.

Other diseases were at a minimum in the state last week. Only three cases of scarlet fevr and four of measles were reported, a new low record for the year. There were eight cases of diphtheria as compared with 19 the previous week. Whooping cough was the most prevalent disease, there being 32 new cases, far less, howver, than the 74 of the week before. Three new cases of typhoid fever were reported.

MAY ATTEMPT REVISION OF "GENEVA PROTOCOL"

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 6—(AP)—A concerted attempt to revise the "Geneva protocol", stands forth as a possibility in the League of Nations assembly tonight. Jonkheer Beelaerts Van Blokland, Netherlands foreign minister, introduced a resolution today calling for a revival of the principles of this protocol, with the serious discussion thereof, to the end that an attempt be made finally to outlaw war by filling in those dangerous gaps in the league covenant, which "unfortunately do not absolutely remove war from the world's horizon."

Despite the rejection of the Polish plan for a general pact of non-aggression, asserted by Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, in a talk with the British correspondents, Poland appears determined to push forward her idea of proposing a general pact whereby the nations would solemnly engage themselves to undertake no war of aggression, and, above all, bind themselves not to help any aggressor power which provoked war.

The conviction of Poland and the Netherlands is that the league must keep a bulldog grip on the problem of peace through arbitration, security and disarmament, and never let go, else the world can have no assurance that war has been banished as a destroyer of mankind.

Other smaller powers are expected to rally to the standard of Poland and the Netherlands.

STORY OF HAUNTED HOUSE IN MANCHESTER

MANCHESTER, Sept. 6—(AP)—This town has a haunted house or at least it has been declared haunted by persons who have visited it within the last few days at the request of its owner, Frank Vullermann. The building, a one and one half story frame structure was, until ten years ago, occupied by a woman known as Lena Curtis. Her body was found at the foot of a stair case on a winter morning by some curious folk who had been wont to see her about the place and had missed her appearance for several days.

In the house when the searchers entered were great piles of newspapers, some of them dating back 20 years, and heaps of fire wood. Only enough space was left in the room which she had evidently used as kitchen and bed room to move from stove to couch.

After her death, the place was sold and its new owner remodeled it and moved in. After a few months he moved out declaring the noises and mysterious happenings were too much for him.

Vullermam purchased the property four months ago and now he too, declares that something is amiss there. In company with several townspeople Vullerman visited his house today and all of them claimed that an iron bedstead on the second floor vibrated and rattled as they watched it and that even the paper on the wall seemed bewitched.

No one, with the possible exception of the spook if there is one, has the least idea what the next move will be but it is probable that the old place will be torn down.

PLANE AND PILOT ARE MISSING IN MAINE FOREST

GREENVILLE, Maine, Sept. 6—(AP)—Diligent search of the shores and dragging of the waters of Caucomgumoc lake today by woodsmen failed to reveal any trace of George Maxim, 31, of Winslow, pilot of the state forestry plane used for forest fire protection, and one of his companions, Amos Thibodeau, Jr., 19, of Greenville, believed to have been drowned yesterday noon when the plane met with disaster and sank, while attempting to rise from the lake.

A young man named Whitman, or Wheaton, who lives at the lake and also was on the plane, escaped by swimming to the shore with the aid of the only life preserver on the plane. He ran six miles through the woods to the nearest telephone at a lumber camp to summon help.

TO ENTER INSANITY PLEA FOR NEW YORK PATROLMAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—Counsel for Patrolman "Handsome Dan" Graham, indicted for the murder and robbery of Judson H. Pratt, construction company paymaster, will seek to enter a formal plea of insanity tomorrow, the district attorney's office was notified today.

The action will take the form of a motion before Judge Collins in general sessions to amend his plea of "not guilty on the grounds of insanity." Pratt was found murdered and robbed of a $4700 payroll a week ago Saturday, and Graham was arrested the next day.

CALCUTTA, Ind., Sept. 7—(AP)—The "Pride of Detroit", with Brock and Schlee abroad hopped off from Calcutta this morning for Rangoon, 665 miles distant.

Water Too Rough and Cold For Mrs. Corson

Failed in Attempt to Make Round Trip Swim of the English Channel.

DOVER, England, Sept. 6—(AP)—Overcome by the cold water of the English channel, Mrs. Clemington Corson (Amelia Gade) of New York was obliged this evening to give up her attempt to swim the channel from England to France. Last year she successfully made the journey from France to England.

The American swimmer entered the water at South Foreland at 8.56 a. m., and withdrew at 6.36 p. m., after going for 9 hours and 40 minutes.

Mrs. Corson's failure was due mainly to the extreme cold, her husband declared.

The channel patchy all the way and it was estimated that in some places was as low as 56 degrees fahrenheit, the woman swimmer stiffened out with the cold, and in the last stages was beginning to suffer cramp.

An absence of currents according to experts, is what makes the swim from Dover so much harder than from Gris Nez.

Mrs. Corson was reluctant to abandon her attempt within four miles of her objective and her disappointment was all the keener because she made this attempt against her own better judgment, thus wasting her three months training here, since she will not try again this year.

INDUSTRIAL STOCKS AT RECORD HIGH LEVELS

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—Prices of industrial stocks soared to record high levels on the New York stock exchange today in a broad buying movement which received its empetus from the announcement of new U. S. treasury financing, which Wall street construed as an indication of easy money rates for some time to come, and from optimistic forecasts of fall and winter business. More than 60 individual issues touched new high levels for the year or longer, and the average of 20 leading industrial shares was lifted to the the highest level ever recorded.

Calling of about $10,000,000 in bank loans failed to dampen bullish enthusiasm, or affect money rates, call loans being in plentiful supply all day at the renewal figure of 3 1-2 per cent, which has been maintained uninterruptedly since the middle of August. Stock exchange member loans increased $32,196,043, bringing the total to a new high record of $3,142,148,068. There are approximately $90,000,000,000 (par value) of securities listed on the exchange.

Coincident with the rise in prices came the announcement that a stock exchange seat sale had been arranged for $230,000, a new high record, and $60,000 above the year's low.

U. S. Steel common, General Motors, General Electric, American Smelting, American Can, Baldwin Locomotive, International Harvester, National Biscuit and Woolworth were included in the long list of new highs in the industrial group. Railroad stocks advanced with the industrials, but only three—New York Central, Southern Railway and Great Northern preferred—succeeded in bettering their previous 1927 peak prices.

Trading was in large volume, the day's sales exceeding 2 1-4 million shares.

END OF COAL STRIKE IN ILLINOIS SAID TO BE NEAR

CHICAGO, Sept. 6—(AP)—Despite statements by spokesmen for miners and operators to the contrary, reports persisted today that an end to the five months' suspension of coal operations in Illinois was near.

Tomorrow miners and operators will meet in Chicago, the second joint conference since the union workers of the bituminous industry quit after failing to make a new contract.

"There is nothing new to the situation," said Rice Miller, president of the operators. "There has been no settlement."

His denial was in reply to a story in the Chicago Daily Journal, which quoting an "authoritative source," said:

"Illinois coal operators and miners are certain that a conference which begins Wednesday will result in an agreement and an early resumption of work, probably not later than September 15."

From Hillsboro, Ill., it was reported that two mines owned by Miller, were being cleared up, and this was taken as an indication that he expected a resumption of operations.

John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, denied that a settlement had been reached. He said he would attend tomorrow's meeting.

No one has been approached about a settlement, said J. L. Todt, secretary of the Ohio coal bureau and spokesman for the operators of the state.

ATLANTIC CITY READY FOR ANNUAL BEAUTY SHOW

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 6—(AP)—Freighted with those who have been chosen by various cities and states as representative of their fairest, the beauty special bringing 75 entrants, with chaperones and officials to the annual Atlantic City beauty pageant, arrived here today.

A large crowd gathered at the station to meet the train and a band struck up, "Who's That Pretty Baby?"

Miss Norma Smallwood, of Tulsa, Okla., the present Miss America, was wearing an inconspicuous fall costume and a very narrow streamer. The crowd, however, seemed to spy her instantly and cries of "hello Norma" ran the gamut of the lines. Immediately upon their arrival the girls were taken to a large grandstand where photographs were taken by camera men from all parts of the country.

FATHER WAS FINED FOR PUNISHING CHILDREN

BRUNSWICK, Me., Sept. 6—(AP)—Westfield Davis, of East Harpswell, who witnesses testified, tied his two children, aged four and five years, to the end of a rope and threw them into the water repeatedly to frighten them so they would keep away from his boat, was fined $50 and costs in municipal court today for cruelty to children.

The fine was suspended during good behaviour and officers were instructed to see that no further violence is given the children in the form of punishment. Davis introduced several witnesses who expressed the opinion that "he did just right" in trying to scare them away from the water.

ACTION AGAINST NEW ENG. B. OF L. E. SECURITIES CORP.

Receivership Asked in Bill in Equity Filed in the Supreme Court at Portland, Me.—Charges Made That, While the By Laws of the Corporation Provide For Payment of 8 Per Cent, the Promoters Well Knew That the Corporation Could Not Earn That Amount in Safe and Legitimate Business.

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 6—(AP)—Receivership for the New England Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Securities corporation, organized in Maine and capitalized at $200,000, was asked in a bill in equity filed in the supreme curt here today. Illegitimate and illegal operations of this concern were alleged by the plaintiffs, Isabella Hetherington, M. Astley Hetherington and Helen H. Towle, stockholders of Oakland, Me.

Hearing has been ordered before Chief Justice Scott Wilson Friday morning. The bill in equity seeks injunctions and declares that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers embraces in its membership nearly 90,000 locomotive engineers in the country, that the Brotherhood Investment company is a corporation managed and controlled by this brotherhood for the purpose of engaging in financial activities throughout the country, and that the organization of the securities corporation, defendant in the equity bill, was procured or brought about by persons connected with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood Investment company "ostensibly for a large number and variety of fanciful, visionary, absurd and utterly impractical purposes of finance."

The real object, according to the allegations, "was rather to enable unscrupulous individuals connected with the brotherhood and the investment company to accumulate and control a large sum of money to be used in furthering various schemes in the name of the brotherhood but wholly outside its proper field of activity."

Although the by-laws of the securities corporation provide for payment of eight per cent. dividends on so-called class A stock of a par value of $100, it is alleged that the promoters well knew the corporation could not earn this amount in safe and legitimate business, and that the issuance of class B stock was merely a fraudulent device for gaining control of corporation assets.

The securities corporation voted to sell stock in New England and obtained permission in Maine October 24, 1925 and 589 persons are stockholders. It is alleged that the stock was misrepresented grossly as to ridiculously high profits expected.

At a special meeting of the executive committee of the board of directors in Cleveland, Dec. 30, 1925, it was voted to purchase 1155 shares of stock in the Brotherhood National bank of Boston at a price of $130 a share. It was stated by William B. Prenter at this time, according to the bill, that one of the purposes of organizing the securities corporation was to manage and control the bank.

The plaintiffs allege that the fair market value of this bank stock was not more than $100 a share at the time of purchase and that it is not more now; that more than $55,000 has been spent, wasted or lost in running the securities corporation; and that the sum of $105,000 has been borrowed and is now owed after being used in large part to buy shares of stock to hold up their value, an effort allegedly made in vain as the market value of the stock now is nothing.

REAL ESTATE DEAL ENDED IN DEATH OF THREE MEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—What started as a real estate deal today ended in the death of three men and the serious injury of a fourth.

Three of the men were shot when another man, believed by police to be Charles Bernstein, of Baltimore, Md., opened fire in the real estate offices of Bijur, Hertz and Steinberg, on the ninth floor of a 44th street building. Police have a general alarm out for Bernstein's arrest.

Victor J. Steinberg, a member of the firm, was instantly killed when his body hurtled to the street nine floors below amid the screams of pedestrians.

Robert McGroarty, stage manager for the "Road to Rome" company could not get out of the way in time and was struck by Steinberg's falling body. He received a fractured skull.

Charles Herskowitz, a real estate broker, who sought to escape the volley of bullets which were sprayed indiscriminately around the office, was found dead in the hallway outside, shot in the back.

Henry C. Cohen, attorney for Herskowitz, was shot in the shoulder and back, and died late tonight.

Police learned that earlier in the day Herskowitz, Cohen and Steinberg, together with Bernstein had met to discuss division of a commission on a real estate sale.

Cohen, according to police, before lapsing into unconsciousness told them that in the midst of the conference Bernstein suddenly became enraged, drew a revolver from his pocket and opened fire at all the others.

Steinberg, confused at the sudden attack and smarting from a wound in the shoulder, is believed to have blindly plunged out the office window in an effort to escape.

Cohen, according to police, said that Bernstein chased Herskowitz out in the corridor when the former tried to escape from the range of his gun.

Miss Sarah Bloom, stenographer of the firm, was in the office at the time of the shooting but was so hysterical she could give police no coherent story of what actually occurred.

CHARLES BERNSTEIN SURRENDERED TO POLICE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—Charles Bernstein, of Baltimore, Md., sought in connection with the triple killing in a 44th street real estate office this afternoon, surrendered to police late tonight.

DECISION ON THE SHEAN PAROLE PETITION TODAY

HARTFORD, Sept. 6—(AP)—Walter E. Shean lay down on his cell cot at the state prison in Wethersfield tonight hoping that tomorrow would bring him a parole from the institution in which he has been confined for 15 months for his part in a New Britain safe robbery in which a policeman was killed and for the murder of whom Gerald Chapman forfeited his life on the gallows.

The decision as to whether he goes free rests in the hands of the seven directors of the prison and the warden when they meet at the institution at 10 a. m., tomorrow. No indication of what the decision would be could be learned tonight.

BELIEVE REDFERN SAFE IN SOUTH AMERICA

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Sept. 6—(AP)—Belief among backers of the Brunswick to Brazil flight that Paul Redfern, the youthful aviator, is safe somewhere on the South American continent has been strengthened by the story that he was seen near the Venezuelan coast by the crew of a Norwegian steamer.

Although there is a discrepancy of a day between the time officers of the Christian Krohg said they saw the airplane and natives reported seeing it flying across the Orinoco river delta.

Dr. Frederick C. Redfern, Columbia, S. C., the aviator's father, was considering an invitation to join an expedition planned for an extended search through the jungles for his son.

The American legation at Caracas, Venezuela, reported to the state department today that it had been unable to obtain further information about the airplane sighted over the Orinoco delta. Identification had been impossible.

J. OGDEN ARMOUR'S ESTATE IS "MORE THAN $1,000,000"

CHICAGO, Sept. 6—(AP)—J. Ogden Armour's will, disposing of an estimated "more than $1,000,000," the residue of an estate once valued at from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000, was filed for probate.

The widow, Mrs. Lolita Sheldon Armour, with the packer when he died recently in London after a lingering illness, was left $100,000 outright. An annuity of $40,000 was bequeathed to Mrs. Malvina B. Armour, his mother, of whose death Mr. Armour never was informed. That bequest will return to the body of the estate.

To John J. Mitchell, Jr., husband of Mr. Armour's daughter, Lolita, an annuity of $12,000 a year was left to be passed to Mrs. Mitchell should she survive her husband.

The remainder of the estate's income was left to the widow and daughter "share and share alike."

Mrs. Armour and Mitchell were made executrix and executor.

WORKING ON CLUES TO ROBBERY IN GREENWICH

GREENWICH, Sept. 6—(AP)—Police are tonight working on several clues to the identity of the thief that entered the home of Henry Edson, Boston post road last night and made off with jewelry valued at approximately $5,000.

Six dinner guests were being entertained at the time of the break and the thief worked in the upstairs bed rooms in perfect security while the Edsons were on the first floor.

Entrance was gained through a bed room window and a ladder procured from the grounds of Christ Episcopal church across the way was used.

The break was not discovered until 10 o'clock and the Edsons said that it must have been committed between 7 o'clock and that hour.

Two diamond rings, a pin and a string of pearls were taken from Mrs. Edson's jewel box which was in a bureau drawer.

CONVENTION OF CONN. FEDERATION OF LABOR

MIDDLETOWN, Sept. 6—(AP)—John J. Egan, of Bridgeport, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, speaking today at the federation's 424 annual convention on the subject of compensation laws, declared tht professional men and not the farmers of the state are the ones who are opposed to any changes in the law which would force its acceptance on employers of three persons rather than five as it stands now.

Mr. Egan declared that labor was prone to believe that the farmer with one or two hired hands stood against changing the law, but that as a matter of fact, it was the professional men with small forces that were opposed to the change. He specifically mentioned lawyers, doctors and dentists.

The old-age pension bill was also discussed by Mr. Egan and he said that the bill which was once rejected by the legislature, will be revamped and presented again at some future time.

CASES ASSIGNED IN THE SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 6—The September criminal term of the Windham county court opened here today with Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin of Hartford on the bench. Rev. Frederick C. Williams, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church offered prayer just prior to the opening at 11:15 o'clock. Four cases were presented at the morning session and three during the afternoon. The cases and their assignments or discases and their assignments for disposal follow:

Willis Vincelette of Putnam, charged on two counts of embezzlement on March 28, 1927, pleaded not guilty and elected trial by jury. The case was assigned as first for Tuesday, September 13. Vincelette was agent for a motor concern and it is charged he possessed for his own use a Studebaker Victoria sedan, the property of Mary Lucas of Killingly.

Ovila Chalifoux of Willimantic, charged on two counts, manufacturing and having in his possession liquor with intent to sell on June 23, last, pleaded guilty. On recommendation of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, Judge Marvin continued the lower court fine of $400, plus accrued costs, and imposed a six months' jail sentence which was suspended.

David Caya of Willimantic, charged on two counts of manufacturing and having in his possession liquor with intent to sell, pleaded guilty. The lower court fine of $400 was sustained and the accused was given a six months' suspended jail sentence. He paid $225 on his fine and is to make good the balance during his probation term.

Charles Moffitt of Woodstock, charged with intoxication and driving while under the influence of liquor, pleaded not guilty through County Protector Charles L. Torrey. His case was assigned as secon dfor Tuesday, September 13.

Irving Madden of Killingly, pleaded guilty to intoxication and breach of the peace. He was given a six months' suspended jail sentence and placed in charge of special Probation Officer Harry Back of Danielson.

Harry Jodoin, of Pomfret, charged with embezzlement on two counts, pleaded guilty and was given a sentence to the reformatory which was suspended for one year. Philip Hebert of Plainfield pleaded not guilty to concealing property sold under a conditional bill of sale and chose to be heard by a jury. A second count of obtaining money under false pretenses was not pressed.

The following list of jurors were drawn by Assistant Clerk of the Court Miss Marjorie Bradford: Windham, Morris W. Golden, George A. Vanderman; Putram, Timothy Tetreault, Silas M. Wheelock; Ashford, J. W. Armitage, Otto Hattin; Brooklyn, Frank H. Mather, Clarence E. Salmon; Canterbury Charles Simpson, Byron Brigham; Chaplin, Garfield J. Hayden, Charles B. THEFT CASE IS CONTINUED UNTIL THURSDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 6—Stanley Budnick, 19, formerly of Eagleville, now of Meriden, and William Kaminski, 21, of Eagleville, were arraigned in police court this morning charged with breaking and entering the Jordan Auto company garage at 1029 Main street with intent to commit theft. The youths were arrested in New Britain Monday morning on information given by the local police department, were not put to plea today. The cases were continued until Thursday morning by Judge Frank H. Foss. Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher recommended bonds of $5,000 in each case, which had not been furnished up to late today. The boys were represented by Attorney Kelley and have also retained counsel in New Britain. The specific charge of the Jordan Auto company break made this morning is said by the police to be but one of over a score of other breaks and thefts which the youths will have to face in this and other courts. Alexander Kaminski, younger brother of William and considered one of the worst of the trio is being sought by the police. Among breaks which the young criminals have confessed being guilty of in addition to the Jordan garage are the two breaks at the Texas Oil company plant on Columbia avenue, July 4 and September 1 and Sunday morning breaks at the garage conducted by Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins at Columbia and at Killourey's Casino in South Coventry.

In the summer of 1925 Budnick and Kaminski were accused of breaking into the office of Hillhouse & Taylor, the radiator repair shop of J. B. Carpenter, the Gillette Candy company and the Polish Bakery corporation, St. Mary's church in South Coventry, the Latimer Grain and Coal company and the Central Vermont Railway depot in South Coventry, besides the theft of 200 hens in Mansfield. They were committed to the Cheshire reformatory from the superior court. They were at liberty on parole at the time of their arrest in New Brittain Monday. Just prior to their arrest here in 1925 Alexander Kaminski, then 16, was arrested for theft of a bicycle and sentenced to the reform school at Meriden from the police court. It is alleged that he is wanted for escaping from that institution.

Police Captain Stephen Tobin of Rockville and a representative of the T. H. Brooks Clothing company came here thi smorning to see the accused. Brooks failed to identify them as the two young men who came into his store in Rockville last July and stole about $1,200 The police in Meriden are making out warrants for the youths for a burglary staged there early Saturday morning in an automobile and service station. Finger prints of the lads were taken today by experts from the state's attorney's office of Hartford county.

SELECTION OF JURY FOR CLINE CASE STARTS TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 6—With the opening of the Tolland county superior court at Rockville Wednesday, the selection of a jury to try the case of Leonard Cline, novelist, charged with murder of his guest, Wilfred P. Irwin in Mansfield last May 16, will be started. No difficulty is expected in selecting the jurors in view of the fact that Cline was virtually unknown in the county. Judge Edward M. Yeomans will preside. An even 100 veniremen have been summoned. The official opening of court was today which was taken up in the most part by a long list of naturalization cases. Court Messenger Patrick H. Crattey and other attaches are doing some puzzling to accommodate 24 reservations by various newspapers and news agencies for seats at the trial. The tiny court room offers but limited space after arrangements are made for witnesses, counsel, court attendants and exhbits and charts.

Cline, calmly awaiting the trial for his life in the county jail at Tolland, has completed the writing of his latest novel, The Dark Chamber, and is mostly seen standing at his cell window from which he obtains a view of the highway. Mrs. Cline, who has been living at the Cline farm in Mansfield, is a daily visitor at the jail.

WESTERLY

WOMAN APPEARS TO CLAIM ESTATE OF GEO. W. PAPPIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 6—Judge Edward M. Burke disposed of probate business as follows:

Estate of Gladys Esther Shippee. Second guardianship account of Mrs. George M. Pendleton, of Gladys Esther Shippee, aged 9, from Aug. 1, 1925 to Aug. 6, 1927, received, examined and recorded.

Estate of Julia Bailey. First and final account received from Washington Trust company, executor, trust officer Thomas Perry appearing in court. Account from Jan. 6, 1926 to July, 1927, ordered recorded.

Estate of Eliza L. Kenyon. First and final account received from Washington Trust company, executor, from Feb. 17, 1925 to July 1, 1927, together with general releases. Allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of Richard B. and Robert S. Smith. Petition received from guardian of the persons of the minor children under the age of 14, sons of Albert B. Smith, Jr., and Vera Blake Smith, deceased, by the father that the Washington Trust company be appointed guardian of their estates. Washington Trust company was appointed guardian with separate bonds of $20,000 each, without surety. Harold D. Livingstone was named appraiser.

Estate of Lilian Pearson. Inventory received, examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of George W. Pappin. Petition received from a creditor for the appointment of an administrator to the estate of the deceased who died Aug. 15, 1927, in Westerly hospital as the result of being struck by an automobile. Attorney General Charles P. Sisson, was represented in court by Harry S. Reynolds, of Providence, who informed the court that Mr. Sisson had been called suddenly to Newport and was unable to attend. Mrs. Mary B. Blanchard, wife of Norman Blanchard of 46 Mechanic street, accompanied by an adopted daughter from New Haven stated that Mr. Pappin, who had boarded with her for many years, had promised to look out for her two children who, as well as herself, had cared for him and that on the Sunday of the day following his fatal accident he had promised to take dinner with her. Answering a question from Judge Burke, she said that although Mr. Pappin was married in the Catholic church when a young man he had lived with his wife only a few weeks, becoming estranged from the Catholic church when he claimed that his wife obtained a paper from a priest that she did not have to live with her husband. She said that all his brothers and sisters as well as his wife she thought dead.

Mrs. Blanchard testified Mr. Pappin had told her that as a young man he had worked first for farmers and at the present time had $4,000 in the Washington Trust company and insurance of $1,000 from the C. B. Cottrell and Sons company, through its agent, Alberti R. Stillman, would turn over to administrator, as Judge Burke had learned. The judge also said that another friend had made a somewhat similar claim for interest in Mr. Pappin's property and he would rule that the present proceeding was premature as the required 20 days had not elapsed for wife or kin's claim and that there was danger of even more claims coming up. Judge Burke instructed Mr. Reynolds to inform Attorney General Sisson that Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, Westerly medical examiner, was the present custodian of Mr. Pappin's property and that a further custodian was not necessary, as other assets were clothing and a watch. The judge ordered a continuance of the case to the regular session of Sept. 20th next at which time the 30-day period would have elapsed. It was the further recommendation of the probate judge that some Westerly Trust company be named executor of the estate.

PROPERTY VALUATION IS $20,540,700 NET

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept6—The total valuation of all property in the Town of Westerly as found by Tax Assessors Walter C. Hiscox, William L. Ledward and Howard E. Thorp, who completed their work on Tuesday, amounts to $20,623,800 as of the 15th day of June, 1927. On this valuation there is an exemption of $283,100 by law, leaving a net ratable valuation of $20,540,700. This amount is greater than a year ago in spite of the fact that in several cases machinery has been taken out of town, also a large Watch Hill estate.

Taxes to be collected at the rate of $2.50 on each one hundred dollars of real and tangible property and $.40 on each one hundred dollars of intangible property make a total tax to be collected this year of $417,650.60, or $8,434.30 more than last year. The sewage tax to be collected this year amounts to $16,585.

At 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the rectory of Christ Episcopal church, Elm street, Andrew Ward Fisher was united in marriage with Miss Alice Wilson Duff. Mr. Fisher was formerly the proprietor of a dry goods store on Broad street where Miss Duff was a saleslady. They were unattended, relatives only being present. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Fisher left Westerly by automobile for Kingston, to take a train for Montreal, from which city they will sail Friday for a wedding trip to England.

Russell Duguid, injured Saturday evening in an automobile collision remains about the same at the home of his father on the Potter Hill road, where he has been attended by two physicians. The auto of Mr. Duguid was in collision with that owned and operated by Edgar B. Smith, of 24 Shaw street, Sanford, Me., as the latter came out of a driveway.

At the September session of Westerly Town council, Tuesday morning, in the absence of Council President John D. Nichols, Councilman Rogers Trainer was elected president pro tem. Other councilmen present were Colemar, Nardone, Smith and Moore. Clerk Whipple and Solicitor Ferguson.

A victualizing license was voted Paul W. Munsell for store at 74 High street. Restaurant and victualizing license was voted Finita Vuono, for a store on the east side of Main street at Bradford. Approval was voted of the action of Westerly Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton in selling notes of the Town of Westerly, dated Sept. 1, 1927, and Oct. 17, 1927, aggregating $150,000 to the Old Colony corporation of Boston, Mass., at 3.55 per cent discount, also notes dated Sept. 1, 1927, due March 1, 1928, aggregating $50,000, to the Old Colony corporation at 3.65 per cent discount, the same being confirmed. James A Dunn appeared before the council to present a petition signed by 30 residents of Benson avenue and First street at Pleasant View, asking for electric lights on those streets before the summer season of 1928. The streets named are not public highways, Atlantic and Crandall avenues being the only public highways at Pleasant View beach. Referred to the committee on street lights.

Today (Wednesday) marks the opening of the fall term of the public schools of the Town of Westerly. The industrial school building on Union street, damaged by the fire of April 30th last has had the burned roof replaced and it is expected that manual training classes will hold session on the first two floors, while on the top floor used as the carpenter shop, where more damage was done will probably be ready for occupancy again in a short time. With the beginning of study by the school students, athletics will be given early attention, Football Coach D. Harold Rogers having given directions for the football squad, which lost six players last year at the close of school, to report this (Wednesday) afternoon.

Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock in the rectory of the Immaculate Conception church on High street, Miss Elizabeth Teresa McCormick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCormick of 22 Spring street, Westerly, became the bride of Jerry Kononchic of Groton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M. Miss Catherine McCormick, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Delmore Kinney was best man. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Spring street. Over 50 relatives and friends were present, including the members of the S. S. club. The bride received many beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Kononchic left this afternoon on a wedding trip to New York. They will make their home on High street, Groton.

Westerly growers of flowers, professional and amateur, have been invited to enter flowers in an exhibit to be held Friday and Saturday of this week in the Memorial and Public library. DANIELSON

MILKMAN SEVERELY INJURED AS AUTO HITS WAGON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 6—Michael Caffery, 71, who lives in the Barrett Hill section of the town of Brooklyn was seriously injured this morning when the milk wagon he was driving was struck by an automobile driven by Jerome Keech of Hutchins street on the state highway on the West Side near the Low place. The crash hurled Mr. Caffery out of the wagon, which was reduced to wreckage.

The accident happened soon after 5.30, while Mr. Caffery was on his way from his farm to the railroad station at Danielson to make his daily shipment of milk to Boston on the boat train. It was foggy at the time and the visibility greatly reduced for Mr. Keech, who was coming toward Danielson. Mr. Keech immediately sought medical assistance for the injured man, who later was removed to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam. Mr. Caffery had a number of cuts on the head and also complained of an injury to his chest. While his injuries are serious enough, they were not regarded this afternoon as of such a nature as likely to cause death. Milk cans and their contents were scattered about the roadway. The horse hauling Mr. Caffery's wagon was not seriously hurt. State Officer James Carmody checked up the accident.

Entirely unexpected this morning was the announcement of the death of George H. Call at 11.15 last night at his home on Broad street. Mr. Call was 66 years of age. He had been in failing health for several years and for the past few months had been in a precarious condition, though as recently as last Friday he was out for a ride, as was his almost daily custom. During last Friday night his condition became somewhat alarming and by Sunday it was realized that the end was near. Mrs. Call died eight weeks ago today, her death having a very depressing effect on Mr. Call and seemingly causing him to about give up his effort to regain his health.

Mr. Call had been a life long resident of Danielson. He was born February 26, 1861, a son of Henry S. and Mary F. Gaskill Call. For many years, with his brother Charles, he was a member of the firm of Call Brothers, dealers in carriages, harnesses and horse goods and in that connection and in traveling about eastern Connecticut gained as wide an acquaintance probably as was enjoyed by any man in this section of the state.

Following the death of his brother Charles, and after closing out his business interests a number of years ago Mr. Call has been retired. With Mrs. Call, he spent much of his time traveling throughout the United States and in Mexico and Central and South America.

Mr. Call was a member of the board of directors of the Danielson Trust company and of the board of trustees of the Brooklyn Savings bank of Danielson. He was a man of exceptionally pleasant disposition, kindly and generous and his death takes from Danielson a citizen it greatly regrets to lose. Mr. Call leaves no immediate relatives.

Late this afternoon the following detail of registrations in the schools in Killingly and Brooklyn today, the opening of a new school year, was made available through the office of Supt. W. E. Parker:

Killingly

Killingly high school 330; Danielson, room 1, 30; 2, 31; 3, 31; 4, 39; 5, 35; 6, 36; 7, 29; 8, 39; total 264.

Dayville, room 1, 35; 2, 36; 3, 30; 4,27, total 128.

Goodyear, room 1, 40; 2, 35; 3, 37; 4, 36, 5, 38; 6, 42; 7, 21, total 249.

Attawaugan, room 1, 36; 2, 28; 3, 25; total 89.

Ballouville, room 1, 38; 2, 32; total 70.

Killingly Center, room 1, 24; 2, 30; total 54.

East Killingly, room 1, 17; 2, 18; total 35.

Valley 22.

South Killingly 24; total for town 1265.

Brooklyn

East Brooklyn, room 1, 31; 2, 35; 3, 35; 4, 26; total 130.

Brooklyn Center, room 1, 25; 2, 23; 3, 37; total 85; total for town 218.

This afternoon at the home at Ballouville funeral services for Mrs. Emma A. Keene were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church. The bearers were Arthur W. Logg, Edward Lawrence, Frank Bennett and Bernard Simmons. Burial was in the Putnam Heights cemetery. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

This might have been termed organization day in the schools of Killingly. Fresh from the long summer vacation pupils were headed schoolward in every community of the town this morning. At assembly at the high school building there was an attendance of 330, this including the junior high. This number will increase from day to day during the week, as belated entries are made. At least, this has been the rule for years and years. It is anticipated that 350 will be studying at the high school when the complete enrollment has been made. Supt. W. E. Parker was busy today visiting the various schools throughout the towns of Killingly and Brooklyn and keeping in very close touch with the task of starting the schools off on a new year of study.

Expressions of the pleasure they had experienced were general today from those who attended the Old Home day celebration at South Killingly yesterday. With ideal weather the attendance was large and it was possible to do all that was planned in the program and to do it under the most delightful conditions. A large number partook of the clam dinner arranged by King George Jacques of East Killingly, and there were many present at the formal exercises at the church in the afternoon.

Work continues on the state-aid highway being built between Brooklyn and Canterbury on the route running southward from the Brooklyn fair grounds. The building of this road has been underway for more than a year and the southerly end of it is practically completed. Where Blackwell's brook crosses under the highway two bridges that were within a few yards of each other have been removed and a temporary bridge is in use. The spot occupied by the more northerly bridge is to be filled in and the stream directed under what will be a fine new concrete bridge when it is completed. Eventually this fine highway will be continued on from Canterbury and southward to connect with another state highway at Newent in New London county.

Significant of the fact that this was a decorous town during the three day holiday period was the absence of court business here this morning. Not an arrest was made during the period. It is a matter of satisfaction, too, that there were no serious accidents from last Friday, when traffic started to be exceptionally heavy up to midnight of Labor day. Only a few operators of motor vehicles drove other than as the state likes to have them drive. State officers from the local barracks kept a careful patrol of the state highway routes radiating from this point.

Ideal weather tonight found a large number assembled at Davis park to hear the band concert by St. James band, this concert provided through the generosity of Mrs. Marinda C. Butler Robinson of Boston, formerly resident here.

Harold F. Glendenning, former owner and publisher of the Windham County Transcript and Mrs. Glendenning visited with friends here today. They are now resident in Cambridge, Mass., Mr. Glendenning being with the staff of a textile publication. Mr. Glendenning spent Sunday at Fort H. G. Wright, Fishers Island, at the gathering of former members of the 56th Coast Artillery corps, with which he served in France as sergeant-major.

Five Massachusetts young men, questioned at the state police barracks on North Main street relative to the reason why a ramshackle old car they were driving was marking a serpentine course along the state highway between Danielson and Dayville yesterday afternoon were released after it was explained that a loose steering apparatus was responsible.

At St. Joseph's rectory in Dayville on Labor day Rev. Ignatius Kost, the pastor, was host to a number of eastern Connecticut priests at a dinner in honor of Rev. Adrian Dykemans of Putnam, who is sailing this week to return permanently to Holland after more than a score of years as an assistant to the pastor of St. Mary's parish.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Magoon and Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Marlor returned recently from a motor trip through New England and into Canada.

Motorists are pointing to a danger spot for them on the highway that circles above the river in the Hollow section at Elmville, for the highway is not fenced at that point and running off the road means a sheer drop into the river.

The weekly meeting of the Woman's Prayer league was held this afternoon with Mrs. Frank T. Preston of Broadway.

Today registrars met in the various voting districts of the town of Killingly for the purpose of revising voting lists and to receive applications from those who wish to be made voters in time to participate in the annual town election to be held on the first Monday in October.

St. James' school reopened this morning for the new school year with a particularly heavy enrollment in all grades, and was being organized so that the regular routine work may be made effective at once. The enrollment this year will be in excess of 500.

Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Pittman of Norwich and Hartford have been recent visitors with Deacon and Mrs. Ransom Liner of North Main street.

Every Tuesday and Saturday evening special bus will leave for Kum-Along-Inn dance pavilion, West Side as follows: From Moosup depot 7.45; Central Village 8.00; Wauregan 8.20; Brooklyn 8.35.—adv.

Philip Viens and members of his family have returned from a motor trip into Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Dee and sons, Daniel, Joseph and Clifford of Nashua, N. H., Frank Dunn of Worcester and Mrs. Sarah Nolan of Bridgeport were Labor day visitors here with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Reynolds and the Misses Mayme and Elizabeth Dunn.

Miss Helen Cohen, who has been spending the summer in Danielson, has returned to her home in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Fulton and their children, Hazel, Robert and George, of East Lynn, were Labor day guests of Mrs. George Stone of Academy street.

Several Killingly young men enrolled at the State Trade school in Putnam today. Enrollments at this school may be made at any time, but a particularly large number are entering just now.

William A. Fenton of Lawrence was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Registrars in this district received 38 applications today from those who wish to be made voters in time for the October town election—23 men and 15 women making their desire to be electors known in formal manner.

To allow of making a connection on the new line at the bridge at Elmville the water through the entire system of the Crystal Water Co., will be temporarily shut off Friday afternoon at 3 p. m.—adv.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM TEACHERS ADDRESSED BY STATE BOARD MEMBER

PUTNAM, Sept. 6.—A general meeting of the public of the town of Putnam called at 1.30 this afternoon with a full attendance. The teachers were addressed by Frederick S. Camp, supervisor of elementary education, state board of education. The list of teachers and other employes of the Putnam school department is as follows:

Superintendent of schools, Ralph C. Jenkins.

Putnam high school: Principal, E. L. Robinson; teachers, Miss Abbie H. Keith, Lauriston F. Noyes, Mrs. Sara T. White, Miss Marjorie McGillicudy, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Miss Irene Bernier, Miss Sara Barber; janitor, Henry Duhamel; cafeteria, Mrs. Ellen Phillips; eighth grade teachers, Miss Edith Kent and Miss Winifred Duffee.

Israel Putnam school: Principal, Lewis Battey; teachers, Miss Helen Fenn, Miss M. Etta Whiting, Mrs. Carrie B. Gascoigne, Miss Emma Dutton, Mrs. Sara Kent, Miss Ethel Strahan, Miss Natalie Dion, Miss Lucy Fellows, Miss Gertrude Warner, Miss Mildred Torrey, Mrs. Beatrice Wilbur, Miss Mildred Gregg; janitor, Frank Baker; cafeteria, Mrs. A. D. McIntyre.

Smith street school: Principal, Miss Ella L. Ballard; teachers, Miss Ruth Fallon, Miss Edith Fox; janitor, John Lucier.

Sawyer school: Principal, Miss Bertha D. White; teachers, Mrs. Alice Cronin, Miss Mary D. Wilbur; janitor, Mrs. Louise Lawton.

Music supervisor, Miss Leonora Dugan; school physician, Dr. G. T. Lamarche; school nurse, Miss Viola Snyder; attendance officer, Peter Gardner.

During the month of September, Mrs. Lewis T. Champlin will teach the first grade at the Israel Putnam school, substituting for Miss Gertrude Warner.

The closing of the schools at East Putnam and Putnam Heights schools make it necessary to transport the children from the districts to the Israel Putnam school.

The opening of other schools today for a new school year may be regarded as an associated circumstance to so many young men appearing at the State Trade school here to register for courses or to make inquiries pertaining to them, with the prospect of registering later. Today's applicants were representative of various eastern Connecticut towns, some of them within the limits of New London county. This is taken as indicative of the general interest in the school throughout and of a wide-spread appreciation of the benefits of the courses it provides.

Director H. H. Ellis said this afternoon that he was pleased with the manner in which registrations were being made today and over the prospect of many others being made during the fall season, for pupils may enter at any time.

Discussing in a general way the work of the school, Mr. Ellis said that his corps of instructors are highly capable and experienced men. As to the school itself, Mr. Ellis pointed out that its courses will fit a young man to make his way in the world as an efficient and skilled member of society. Special interest is being shown by young men in the recently instituted masonry course of the school.

Of interest is the fact that the courses of the school are given without charge to the students.

Invitations have been received to the wedding of Miss Ruth Esther Howe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Howe, of Leominster, Mass., to George Arnold Stoddard of Malden, Mass., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stoddard of Abington. The wedding to take place on September 19.

Samuel Obletz, son of Mrs. Rose Obletz of Providence street, has gone to McGill university, at Montreal, to take up second year work. Last year he went to the Ohio State university.

After a residence of 23 years in Putnam, Anastos Pandazie and his wife of Providence, leave this week for Greece, where they will visit the parents of Mr. Pandazie. He is the manager of a fruit and confectionery store on Providence street. They will spend the most of their time while abroad at Macedonia, Greece, and expect to be away from Putnam six to eight months.

At one hotel in Pomfret are a number of guests, most of whom will remain during the month of September. They are Mr. and Mrs. Winfield S. Hoyt of New York; Mrs. Henry Sanford of Bretton Woods; Mrs. Charles Coster of Newport; Miss Louise Gladding, Miss Mary Woodberry and Miss Jeanne Robinson of New York; Mrs. Charles Davis of Boston; Mrs. R. C. Connell of Bar Harbor; Mrs. Edward Haven of Marblehead, Mass.; Miss Marie Winchester and Miss Spaulding of Baltimore; Miss Pauline Townsend of Philadelphia; Mrs. John Heard, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hansen of New York; Professor and Mrs. Waldo S. Pratt of Hartford; Mrs. R. M. McLean and her son of New York.

The Garde Jeanne d'Arc of this city has earned an enviable record by capturing six prizes in four out-of-town visits. The members have had a very successful season and have brought back four gold medals and on this recent visit to Webster where they competed in prize drills they returned with a gold medal and a cup. The Garde is composed of sixteen young ladies with Miss Estelle Beaudreault as captain and have been coached by David Breault, a member of Garde Foch.

Henry Bugbee, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Bugbee of Park street, who enlisted in the United States Marine Corps a short time ago is now stationed on the Island of Haiti. He writes that he has been there but a few weeks and that the climate is delightful and that the scenery and other features of the island are most interesting.

The marriage of D. N. Medbury and Mrs. Laura Shepard took place on August 27, at the parsonage in Abington, officiating. Mr. Medbury has been tonu, officiating. Mr. Medbury has been a well known resident of Pomfret for many years and has four children. Mrs. Medbury has been a resident of Putnam for a number of years and has two daughters, Mrs. J. W. Levell of Putnam and Mrs. Thomas McDermott of Danielson.

After a wedding trip to eastern Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Medbury will make their home for the present with Mrs. Medbury's daughter, Mrs. J. W. Levell.

The Rev. Talmadge Root of Summerville preached at the Thompson Hill Congregational church last Sunday. Mr. Root and his family have been spending the summer at their home on Whiting Hill, where they have spent their vacation for a number of years.

Miss Muriel Grosvenor has returned from spending the summer at her home in Malden, Mass., and is with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Omer Milot, for the winter.

Miss Edith Pease, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Pease has gone to Manchester, Conn., where she will teach in the kindergarten department of the schools there. Miss Pease was graduated in June from the Kindergarten school at Oberlin, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Stanton and family of Fremont street have returned from a three weeks vacation.

Miss Priscilla Smith of Boston spent the week end and holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Smith of Seward street.

William Easton of Lawrence, Mass., has been spending his vacation with his family on South Main street.

Miss Lillian Gould of New York city is the guest of Mrs. Rose Oblets and family on Providence street.

Mrs. Emory Munyon and son Winthrop of Worcester are the guests of her mother, Mrs. Lowell D. Ross of Main street.

Mrs. Peter E. Belair of Providence has been entertaining her aunt, Mrs. Dianna Plouffe of Jamaica Plains, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Spatcher spent the week end and holiday with relatives and friends at Middletown, Conn.

HOW CAN WOMEN KEEP WELL ENOUGH TO GET UP SINGING?

MRS. BELLE THOMPSON
3101 E. 44TH ST., EAST LAKE, TENN.

Springtime streamed in through the open windows. The green fields of Georgia were basking in the sunshine. Somewhere a bird was trilling. It was a day to be happy.

But the pale woman at the table sighed and pushed away her plate. Nothing tasted right. She couldn't eat much. She couldn't sleep well, either. She was so weak, it was hard to do her work. When the baby cried, she wanted to cry, too.

She had not been well for four years. Her husband watched her with a man's helpless expression. But his mother knew a remedy.

"My mother-in-law," says Mrs. Belle Thompson, 3101 E. 44th St., East Lake, Tenn., "told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children, and always after the babies came I had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. It does more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and I do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how both of the medicines have helped me."

Another Happy Woman

"I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel better and could eat better and had fewer headaches. I feel like a different person. At anytime that I don't feel good I take the Vegetable Compound again, as I always keep a bottle on hand. You may use this letter for every word is true. I will answer any letters sent to me."—Mrs. Jennie Bollerman, 611-11th St., Union City, N. J.

This dependable medicine has been in use for over fifty years.

JEWETT CITY

USEFUL FORD FISHED EVEN WHILE SINKING

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 6—Some years ago, the report became current in this section that at one of the once popular Beach pond picnics and horse race days, that a horse had waded into the pond to drink, had sunk from view, and been swallowed up in one of the pacthes of quick sand, claimed to exist. The presence of quicksand was always scouted, but now, ask "Doc" Wallace. He knows—Sunday the Doc went over to Beach pond in his flivver, which same was covered with mud, as the result of a run from Providence last week, on one of those rainy nights. The Doc took along a wagon sponge, and after having eaten his dinner, he searched along the bank, and finding a partly cleared place backed Lizzie into the pond, and wading out aways started to give her a much needed bath.

After the rear wheels were clean and bright, and while at work on the hood and front wheels, with his back turned toward the pond, he noticed that the angle of slant was becoming considerably steep. The Doc, turning to investigate, discovered that where the rear wheels were, was only water, with the back seat slowly sinking. Jumping to the seat he tried to start her up, but not a spark responded. Running to the near by road that crosses the east end of the pond on a viaduct, good luck stood strong in the Doc's favor. A New York man in a big Cadillac just happened to be passing. A word or two explained, and the driver could see the fast vanishing flivver, with only the top in sight above the water. Without delay he backed in his powerful machine and hitched on. Putting the Cadillac into low gear, and stepping on all the gas he had, with two strong men and the Doc prying with long fence rail levers in the water, he slowly dragged her out to safety. When Lizzie was hauled up into the bushes, and the water had drained out of her "innards" there was found to be a half a water pail of perch and bullheads on the bottom, caught as in a trap. They had "swum" in after the Doc's lunch that was parked under the rear seat.

EASTER LILY BLOSSOMS TO SUIT TWO BIRTHDAYS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 6—Last Easter, April 17, Miss Bessie Burton was presented by her sister on her birthday, an Easter lily. After it ceased blooming, Miss Burton put the plant in the ground. Tuesday, September 6, Miss Burton brought to the same sister, Mrs. Joseph Rood, on her birthday, two beautiful blosoms from the same plant. That is a coincidence which would scarcely ever occur.

Mt. Vernon lodge opens 1:30 d. s. t. Wednesday. Funeral Bro. Fred S. Campbell, per order L. G. Drescher, master.—Adv.

Finn's, tonight. The Merry Youngsters in an entirely new and different show. Feature, Betty Bronson in "Ritzy."—Adv.

At Tuesday morning's session of Griswold town court, Judge John T. Barry, continued to September 13th at 9 standard time, the case against Jerome Gereaux, whose automobile killed Fred S. Campbell, Sunday evening Bonds of $2,000 were secured by Gereaux, and he was released, after being in the lockup since Sunday night.

The funeral of Mrs. Henry LaPointe was held Tuesday morning from her home on North Main street. Requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Nicholas Caron. Pie Jesu and When Evening Comes were sung by Mrs. Noel Garand. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, in Lisbon. The bearers were Felix McMahon, George Bryant, Lawrence Olsen, Napoleon and William Raille, and Moses Salvis. Relatives were present from Plainfield, Westerly, Willimantic and Norwood, Mass. Hourigan Bros. were in charge of the arrangements.

During Labor day night the mercury dropped to 41 above, the lowest reading since last March. Some believe there was a slight frost in the low land of parts of the town. Within the borough limits a light air stirring would have prevented frost even had the mercury dropped several degrees lower.

The August rainfall recorded at the Jewett City Water company's gauge on Stone Hill, showed 6.42 inches. The reservoir September 1st was but 18 inches low. Last year at this time it stood 8 feet below full pond. There is higher water now than for any corresponding date, since the basin was filled.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davis, Miss Bertha Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gray were recent callers on Deaconess Clara Wood at the Wilbur Home in Natick, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stewart and Miss Irene Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Benjamin and daughter Ruth May, with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Allen of Portland, Me., motored over the Mohawk Trail during the wek end.

The Congregational Missionary society meeting is to be omitted this week.

Recent visitors at Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Armstrong's were Mr. and Mrs. John Gardiner and daughter of Wollaston, Mass., Chester Appley of Norwich, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Geer, Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong, Mrs. Fred Rathbun and Eldred Wales, Providence, Mr. and Mrs. James Appley, and Mr. and Mrs. Milo Appley, Canterbury and Miss Catherine Appley, of Springfield.

Elias Bacili and children Louise and Fred of Worcester and Henry Tager of Springfield spent Labor day at Abraham Zegeer's.

Faith chapter O. E. S. resumes meetings this week after the summer recess.

The case of Norman I. Phillips of New Jersey, was nolled on payment of actual costs. He was found driving in the borough last week without certificate or registration. Correspondence proved that he had neglected to bring them along, but that he had them in proper form elsewhere.

Alex Norusko, held at the police station for failure to grant the right of way, opposite David Hale Fanning park, Sunday afternoon, had his case continue dto Friday.

The Woman's Baptist Missionary society held the first monthly meeting of the new year Tuesday afternoon in the church parlor. Twenty were present. Mrs. A. M. Brown presided and Mrs. G. H. Prior had charge of the program, the interesting title of which was "A Hungarian Landlord." The program included stories of Americanization work and the selections were read by Miss Edith Butts, Mrs. E. M. Gray, Miss Ruby Thornton, Mrs. S. F. Brown, Mrs. Lewis Hewlett and Mrs C. F. Gardner. An acrostic on the study of stewardship was conducted by Mrs. Brown, with the use of the blackboard. "Seven Challenges to Baptists" was read by Mrs. George Sharke, Mrs. B. R. Gardner, Miss Belle Guy, Miss Ellen Prior, Miss Emma Dearnley, Miss Clara Richardson and Mrs. E. E Scates. Miss Prior gave very interesting sidelights on the Chinese situation as they were presented by Dr. Yeats, a medical missionary to China, home on a furlough after five years' service. Miss Prior was a member of Dr. Yeats' class at Ocean Grove, Maine, this summer.

Mrs. C. Bischoff, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bischoff and four nephews and nieces of New York were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Kalinberger.

Misses Alice Jodoin and Cleo Couture spent Labor day with Miss Dora Couture in Pawtucket. Miss Couture remained for a week's visit.

MR. HUGHES' VIEW

It was inevitable that Charles Evans Hughes should be faced with the question of his candidacy for president of the United States on his return from Europe. He has been prominently mentioned among the possibilities since President Coolidge expressed himself. There were those who had previously regarded him as the man for the republicans to select next year and he had been sounded out on such a proposition.

At that time Mr. Hughes declared that he was too old to enter such a campaign and stated that he believed Mr. Coolidge would be the man. And that is still the opinion which the former secretary of state still holds. He not only sees Mr. Coolidge renominated but reelected, and he says nothing whatever about himself in connection with that office for which he was once nominated.

Mr. Hughes was besieged with questions on landing in the hope that he would say something which might be twisted into an admission that he would permit the use of his name or that he could be considered as desirous of making another try as the standard bearer of the republican party. He parried all thrusts concerning himself but he was right to the point in regard to his views concerning the presidential contest next year. That in itself must be regarded as indicating his attitude concerning himself and it indicates the view which Mr. Hughes takes of the brief sentence by the president last month concerning the presidency in 1928.

Mr. Hughes did not say how he believed the renomination would be effected but it is to be inferred that he figures that President Coolidge will be drafted for the office by the republicans in convention. Mr. Hughes apparently believes that there is a national demand for such action when he expresses his belief that the people of the country want it done and that they will back it up at the polls. Always considered weighty, the judgment of the former secretary of state in this particular instance and at this time cannot fail to have an important bearing. His expectations are in accord with a widespread feeling.

BORAH'S ATTITUDE

Perhaps there will be some support of the attitude which Senator Borah has taken in displaying his opposition to the plan of France to the floating of a loan in this country. It is possible to be swayed by the view that inasmuch as France refuses to pay what it owes this country that there should be no eagerness here to give assistance to France. Senator Borah seems to think that a better understanding might be effected between the countries if the proposed loan were delayed until an agreement had been reached concerning the payment of the French debt. He at least asks the question with that point in mind.

There is no question but what there ought to be some understanding between the United States and France regarding the debt payment, and it is not to France's advantage that it has thus far refused to sign the Berenger-Mellon agreement. Because of it, it is reasonably certain that the administration would not be favorable to the floating of an entirely new loan in this country, but when it comes to the floating of a new loan to take the place of an existing one it is a different matter. It is a case where we can help or hinder. If we help by not opposing the move it will mean that France will be able to effect a considerable saving each year because of the reduced rate which the new bonds will carry. If we hinder and block the refunding, or force the bonds to other countries, it will give reason for French bitterness and cause it to display even less interest in the matter of coming to an understanding in regard to settling the debt.

By looking at it another way the approval of the new loan by the administration should serve to improve the financial position of France and cause it to take a new view of its position and see better possibilities of coming to an early understanding debtwise. It is difficult to see where antagonism to the proposal is going to make us stronger in the eyes of the French. On the other hand it can be readily appreciated that it would steel the French against doing what this country wants them to do.

FAKING ALTITUDE FLIGHT

It was with much surprise that the world learned of the careful manner by which the French aviator, Jean Callizo, had planned to get its plaudits for doing something greater in altitude flying than any other person and yet know that the record which he claimed to have made was a false one.

Callizo has been known as a high flier so it was easy for him to be given credit for a new accomplishment. After he got to a certain height he knew that he was out of sight and having fixed his barograph so that it would register in keeping with his claims he even went so far as to make a poor landing in order to support his subsequent story about being so badly affected by the thin air that he had no further desire to make any more altitude flights. He even said that he didn't want to fall off the earth.

Under his scheme everything had been carefully planned. He hadn't however reckoned that he was being checked up all the time. He knew nothing about another barograph secretly placed in the machine which showed that he had gone up out of sight, stayed long enough to correspond with the time needed to make a record climb and then descended. When confronted with the facts he had no defense and the whole story came to light.

That means that an American aviator will probably become the recognized altitude record holder, but it casts suspicion upon all that the flier has done in the past and whatever he may attempt in the future. He had hoped to pose as a hero but he must stagger along under the name of being a poor sport. He was so eager for fame that he was determined to have it at any price and carried the idea that he was clever enough to fool all the people all the time. He was caught at his own little game and his case should prove an example to all others similar minded. Falsifying a record may do no real harm but it is the worst kind of practice and fraud.

HAND SIGNALLING

"Well, what's that fellow ahead going to do?" is a frequent query on the part of automobile drivers.

The fellow ahead may have been lagging along, may have started to turn off the road and changed his mind, may have given a peculiar signal. He may have come to a stop without any signal or he may have stuck his hand out and quickly withdrawn it in the belief that it was a sufficient indication to those at his rear of what he intended to do. He may have done as the Danbury driver did when he gave a wrong signal in making a left turn and for which he was fined in court.

It is quite evident that all signals are not as explicit as they might be, that some may be misleading, but the very fact that there is a signal given, provided it is continued longer than it would take a person to flick the ashes from a cigar, should serve as a warning to those in back that they should be prepared for some change in the course of the car ahead.

Except in cases of emergency it is quite as easy to give correct signals as not to, provided there is a uniform understanding of such, and some warning is important in order to avoid bad mixups when cars are following too close to each other.

What a wrong signal will do is easily imagined. If it indicates that a car is going to the right and the car is actually driven to the left trouble is certain to follow. Interpreting signals is not always the easiest thing in the world, but the knowledge conveyed by them that some change is to be made cannot fail to be of value in placing other drivers on their guard. They are necessary for safe driving but it is important that they be correct.

WAYNE B. WEELER

During the years in which prohibition has been so strongly to the front and particularly during the time it was being urged upon congress and since it was enacted into legislation, there has been no more prominent figure working in its behalf than Wayne B. Wheeler. He is rightly credited with being the father of the prohibition law and his activity in its behalf has been as persistent since as it was before the country adopted the dry law.

The death of Mr. Wheeler is therefore certain to be a serious blow to that organization known as the Anti-Saloon league in whose cause he labored so diligently and unquestionably at great self sacrifice. He was a leader of marked ability whose early inclination and training fitted him for that particular line of work. He was an organizer who got results, whose work commanded attention and whose activity could not be ignored by the opposition. Efforts, in fact, to obtain his services on the other side was perhaps the greatest compliment that could have been paid him.

There is no getting away from the fact that Mr. Wheeler was sincere in his activity as the head of the Anti-Saloon league and in his efforts in behalf of prohibition and a man of peculiar fitness for the aggressive work that was required. This only serves to emphasize the loss sustained by that cause in his death and the difficulty that will be experienced in getting a successor who will be able to shoulder his duties and get results.

WIGWAGGING THE PULPIT

"Does your wife make fun of your carving?"

The question was distinctly audible above the rumble of the loop traffic. Mr. Hughs checked his businesslike stride and glanced around as one scenting insult. Surely he had not been specifically addressed, but in his home the subject was not merely a bone of contention—it was a whole skeleton.

"Does she complain about things, getting cold and objects to the looks of the slices?" ....

Mr. Hughs sought the speaker with fascinated eyes. Only last night his wife had remarked that the roast looked as though he had carved it with a chisel and a set of false teeth. For 20 years now Mr. Hughs had been hacking at an endless succession of joints and the magic touch still eluded him. In the first place, he always stood up to do his work; how could one subdue an unruly roast save by leaning on the fork? In the second place he inevitably reached a point where it became necessary to cross his hands; why should his wife quarrel with the inevitable? Then there was the obscure theory of cutting with or against the grain; the mystic science of thick or thin slices; the unlimited subject of approaching bones and lofting into casual gravy—

"Don't let her get away with it, gentlemen. Anybody can carve perfectly."

Mr. Hughs no longer considered the five-twenty train imperative. Surely the whiskery individual who had unfolded his card table in the mouth of an alley deserved a hearing. Why not join the crowded crescent about this unique individual who approached the sacred subject of carving with such confidence and contempt? Mr. Hughs was willing to receive the words of the prophet.

"Carving doesn't amount to anything if you have the tools to work with. All you need is a real knife. I don't mean the thing your wife expects you to carve with; I mean a sharp knife. Most of you gentlemen don't know what a sharp knife means. Just step up and examine the Kitchen Imp, the real solution to the carving problem. Puts a razor edge on any knife in 12 seconds. Makes carving a pleasure and also sharpens scissors. Big free book on carving given away with each Kitchen Imp. Moreover, gentlemen, the price is two-fifty, but as a special advertising scheme I am giving these away at $1."

Mr. Hughs missed the 5:20 but as he fought politely for a seat on the 5:32, a shiny new Kitchen Imp bulged his pocket. Mr. Hughs enjoyed an unprecedented peace of mind, and his smug grin exposed two more teeth than usual. So he had been bungling the carving all these years, and all the time the fault had been Marion's. The idea of expecting a man to carve with that cavalry saber.

His ancient, cross-grained enemy, the pot roast, was awaiting him when he reached home. Mr. Hughs gashed it at random to demonstrate how hopeless was the task, then triumphantly drew the Kitchen Imp from his pocket. His wife leaped into the air with an anguished yelp.

"Arthur! You cut the table cloth! What are you trying to do?"

"I'm sorry," offered Mr. Hughs contritely. "That was an accident. I just bought this little device today and it solves all our carving problems."

"But why try to sharpen a sharp knife?"

"Ah, my dear," said Mr. Hughs confidently, "you don't know what a sharp knife means. In 12 seconds the Kitchen Imp—razor edge—carving a pleasure—" His voice faltered and broke before his wife's baleful glare.

"Since when did you start buying utensils for the house? That thing belongs in the kitchen. If you want to play around out there come with me."

Mr. Hughs learned one thing from the subsequent expedition into a strange territory; a Kitchen Imp was already fastened to the wall over the sink.

"But you shouldn't have bought it, my dear," he protested. "Why, I got mine for a dollar—special advertising offer."

"Special advertising puppy cat! Your mother used a Kitchen Imp and they cost 40 cents at the hardware store."

"Anyhow, I have a book on carving," murmured Mr. Hughs as the pot roast skidded into his lap.—Chicago News.

DAILY SCHEDULE FOR THE SCHOOL CHILD

By Edward S. Rimer, M. D., New York City
Member Gorgas Memorial

In a previous article it was suggested that the school child be put on a schedule so as to allow time for all necessary functions. The following may be modified according to age and other conditions as necessary.

7 a. m.—Rises, bathes, brushes teeth, dresses, and drinks glass of water.
7:30 a. m.—Breakfast.
8 a. m.—Bowel movement.
9 a. m.—School.
12:15 p. m.—Lunch (rest for 10 minutes, best lying down, is very beneficial for the nervous or under-nourished child.)
1 p. m.—School.
3 p. m.—Outdoor play.
5 p. m.—Study.
7 p. m.—Dinner.
8 p. m.—Bed. Children over 12 years, 9 p. m.

By having a definite schedule we see that there is a proper time allowance for each essential thing such as his meals, sleep and rest. Outdoor play and recreation.

Having in mind the kinds of food necessary for growth and energy, the daily menus should be planned ahead of time. Food means more than something to satisfy hunger.

Milk has all the elements for growth, repair of waste and the supply of heat and energy. Cereals and bread stuffs rank high for they, with rice and potatoes, make up the bulk of carbohydrate food. Green vegetables, the part that grows above the ground, give us not only carbohydrates but also important vitamins, mineral matter and all the necessary fodder foods.

Fruits contain vitamins, easily digested carbohydrates, minerals and roughage. They satisfy a natural craving for sweets in a wholesome way.

Flesh foods furnish more of the necessary protein, though some comes from vegetables such as rice and beans.

Fish is not a brain food, but is valuable just as is meat.

Eggs may not always be well tolerated and should not be used to take the place of cereals.

The most expensive cuts of meat are not necessarily the most nutritious. Liver, commonly considered rather poor meat, has recently been proved especially valuable in certain forms of anemia. Meats should be served hot, broiled, baked, or boiled, not fried.

For desserts many nutritious and easily digested puddings are available. Stewed fruit should be given once a day.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

AUSTRIAN TYROL

Austrian Tyrol, skrunken in size by the fortunes of war, but with courage undaunted and scenic beauty unmarred has once more established its popularity as a pleasure resort, having just reported the most successful tourist season in years. "Tyrol, the mountainous arm of Austria thrust in between the Swiss, German, and Italian Alps, now comprises little more than the valley of the River Inn, with the neighboring ranges and reflies," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "The 'South Tyrol' of prewar days is no more, but has become the 'Alto Adige' of its new Italian masters.

"Although small in geographical extent Tyrol looms large in European history and art," continues the bulletin. Innsbruck, the capital, was an ancient seat of a branch of the House of Hapsburg, and under Emperor Maximilian I flourished as a center of government and learning. The son of Maximilian married a daughter of Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain, patrons of Columbus. The great emperor lies buried in the ancient church at Innsbruck, surrounded by statues of his two wives and his most prominent kinsmen. Stories of their lives combined would form the European history of the day. In the same church is the tomb of the inn-keeper patriot and defender of Tyrolese freedom, Andreas Hofer.

"The Empress Maria Theresa, mother of the ill-fated French queen, Marie Antonette, spent much time in this part of her dominions. The principal street of Innsbruck bears her name and there is a triumphal arch built in her honor.

"The quaint little city of about 70,000 people is a delight to the lovers of ancient architecture. In the older sections narrow streets are bordered by tall houses with dormer windows and gabled roofs. At one corner there is a rather plain house with an elaborately carved and painted two storied Gothic balcony, topped by a gilded tile roof, dating back to a count of Tyrol, nicknamed 'Empty Pockets' because of overindulgence in his hobby of architecture. This is the famous House of the Golden Roof.

"The streets of Innsbruck seem to end in the very mountains themselves, which rise on all sides in jagged, grey peaks high above the town, many showing snowy summits even in summer. Ranges on the south side are a bit more friendly and less forbidding. Austrians are fond of mountain climbing and there are many Alpine clubs organized to promote the sport. On holidays during the summer season contingents from local organizations overflow railway stations enroute to favorite peaks. Their costume consists of jacket and flapping short leather breeches, rolled stockings, that leave much of the leg bare, and on the shoulders a knapsack. This ensemble is surmounted by a felt hat into which is stuck the inevitable chamois tail, which valued ornament is like nothing so much as a shaving brush. The Alpine clubs have erected rest huts far no remote valleys and furnish their members with charts of difficult passages. Younger members are systematically trained on easier peaks, progressing with an increase of skill to almost perpendicular heights. Thus high mountain ranges have become a great national playground and a source of health and strength to the nation.

"Tyrolese peasantry are notably a hardy race. Unremitting toil is required to wring a living from the narrow valleys and hillside farms, but struggle with nature has not marred the peaceful aspect of the countryside. Wide eaved farm houses dot a landscape musical with the tinkle of cow bells.

"Great crucifixes at the cross roads indicate the religious nature of the peasantry. Above every village rises the spire of the parish church. Until late years each valley had its own details of custom and costume, still clung to in the more remote regions.

"For over a century Tyrolese yodelers have been heard on the concert and vaudeville stage of Europe and America. The first Tyrolese to popularize the yodel in the theater made a fortune in England by so doing and returning to his native land, purchased a castle and retired in wealth.

"This form of vocalization was perfected at family concerts organized to while away the long winter evenings in the country. It thus became the custom for groups of brothers and sisters who were especially noted in their own valley to go together upon the concert stage in family groups. To see rural music and folk dancing at home the traveler now must go to remote country districts.

"However, markets and streets in the towns and villages are full of local color beloved by tourists: mountaineers with their staffs, women in quaint bonnets whose two long black streamers reach to the ground, urchins with flowers for sale. Feudal castles of the old toll-taking barons frown from their rocky heights. Comfortable inns and luxurious hotels invite the tourist to rest. The mountain climber, the motorist, the health seeker each finds delights of his own. Tyrol has preemminently that combination of climate and scenic picturesqueness which makes it a perennial playground."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Miss Megan Lloyd George, who has recently declined an invitation extended to her recently to contest the parliamentary seat for Pontypridd, Wales, is the daughter and constant companion of the former British premier. She accompanied her father on his recent visit to America and made the acquaintance of numerous Americans. In the dark days of war, when Lloyd George was directing the British ship of state, "Little Megan," as she then was known, was a sunbeam at No. 10 Downing street, as was little Dorothy Drew during the premiership of her grandfather, the late William E. Gladstone, Lloyd George, it is said, is never so happy as when enjoying a few minutes' relaxation in the company of his daughter, who is said to use her persuasive powers upon him with admirable effect.

Stories That Recall Others

A Doubtful Suggestion

It was at a small informal party that a group of people were partaking of a delicious chicken stew. Miss B. had just taken a chicken foot from the plate and another member proceeded to do the same. Mr. M watched Miss B. closely to see just how the member should be eaten. Miss B. became rather annoyed at his attention, and was heard to say: "For goodness sake, Mr. M., stop staring at me, and start chewing on your own foot."

Travel Culture

Some American tourists were following a guide through the narrow streets of Quebec, Canada. "And this," said the guide in his best French-English, "is erected in memory of Frontenac, first governor of Quebec."

"Frontenac," repeated the young daughter in amazement, "Why, dad, I though Frontenac was a hotel."

Lucky Fall

Rastus was a hod carrier, lost his balance and fell three stories to the ground, alighting head first on a pile of brick. Getting up, he rubbed his head and soliloquized:

"Effen it hadn't been for dat pile o' brick to break de fo'ce o' mah fall At mighta broke mah fool neck."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Farmer Brown's Boy Gets a Bath

Inquisitiveness takes no heed;
It cares not where it chance to lead.
—Old Mother Nature.

It was a good thing that Cubby was a very small Bear at the time he upset the hive and helped himself to Farmer Brown's honey. Had he been a big Bear, he probably would have upset several hives. As it was, there was more in one hive than he could eat, greedy as he was. So after a while he began to be annoyed by the stings of the bees. Presently he retreated, growling and snarling and snapping at the bees. But his little stomach was by this time swelled out like a little round balloon. It was surprising how much of sweetness such a small stomach could hold and not make its owner ill. Of course he bees followed him. Of course he headed straight for his little house, which was also the house of Bowser the Hound. Bowser was in there at the time taking a nap. One minute after Cubby ran in, Bowser came out yelping. With his tail between his legs he tore off around the barn. He was running away from those bees.

After that scrape Farmer Brown's Boy took care that Cubby never had a chance to visit the beehives again. That was mischief he couldn't afford to let Cubby get into. But there were plenty of other kinds of mischief for a lively little Bear to get into, and it sometimes seemed as if Cubby made it his business to try every kind. He got into every sort of mischief that you might think a little Bear would get into and a whole lot that you would never think of at all.

One of the duties of Farmer Brown's Boy is to milk the cows. Every night and every morning he has to milk the cows. Cubby, chained up to his little house, often had watched Farmer Brown's Boy going into the barn with milk pails, and some time later coming out again with pails full of milk. Cubby wondered what it all meant. He longed to follow and see what Farmer Brown's Boy did in that big barn. But for a long time he never got the chance. Then one evening after Farmer Brown's Boy had disappeared in the barn Cubby felt that chain give a little. He kept pulling and pulling. By and by the stanie pulled out. Cubby was free. He still had the chain attached to him, but he could go where he pleased. He pleased to go straight in at the barn door. He could hear the cows and horses munching their hay and he could also hear the sound of the little streams of milk as they struck in the pail. But he couldn't see where this came from.

Farmer Brown's Boy had his second pail nearly filled. In a few moments he would be through. This was the last cow to be milked that night. Suddenly he heard a jingling sound in the barn. From where he was he couldn't see what might have made it. He stopped milking for a moment. "That's funny," muttered Farmer Brown's Boy. "That sounds like a chain being dragged. I wonder what it can be."

Right then and there Farmer Brown's Boy stopped wondering. The cow he was milking suddenly gave a snort of fright and at the same time kicked. The kick was unfortunate.

He kept pulling and pulling

It hit that pail of milk in such a way that the milk was thrown all over Farmer Brown's Boy. In fact, he had a milk bath.

Meanwhile some of the other cows had begun to kick and snort and appear very nervous. Farmer Brown's Boy, who had been upset with the pail of milk, scrambled to his feet and ran around in front. There was a little Bear clinging to the manger and peeping over at that cow. No wonder she had been frightened, and kicked! (Copyright, 1927, by T. W. Burgess.)

New York Specialist's New Preparation Now on Sale at Local Druggists

Hemorrhoids are varicose veins of the lower intestinal tract, and are caused by chronic inflammation, weakening of the vessel walls. The usual treatment is a salve containing either a narcotic, like cocaine or morphine, or drugs like Oxgall, Tannin, etc., that constrict the blood vessels.

Prox, as the new preparation of a great New York Specialist is called, acts on an entirely new principle by dilating the veins, and thus re-establishing normal circulation. Prox contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. All pain is banished with the first application and its continued use results in permanent relief. Has been used successfully by thousands who have never been able to get quick relief with any other treatment.

Prox now on sale by all the following druggists: Lee & Osgood Co., Frank Eggleston, G. G. Engler, H. M. Lerou, Andrew McLaughlin, J. A. Morgan, George M. Rathbone, Charles C. Treat, Utley & Jones.

Last of Asphalt Laid

The last piece of asphalt on the Main street work was laid Tuesday from a point at the crosswalk at the New Haven railroad entrance to connect with what had been laid previously along the street further to the east. This completes the highway from Ferry street to Burnham square and the whole street is now in use.

WEDDING.

Paradis-Fregeau

Miss Solfride Fregeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fregeau, and Louis M. Paradis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Paradis, both of Taftville, were united in marriage at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at Sacred Heart church, Taftville. Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault solemnized the marriage and was celebrant of the solemn nuptial mass. Rev. Henri F. Chagnon was deacon and Rev. Omer Mandler subdeacon.

The musical part of the ceremony was in charge of Miss Agnes Frechette, the organist, who played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin and the Gregorian mass at the offertory. Ave Maria, by Rosewig, was rendered by Miss Grace Culen, R. N., of Hartford, who was accompanied at the organ by Miss Aurora Fregeau of Stamford. O Promise Me was played at the recessional.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Violet Blanchard of Taftville, niece of the bride, as maid of honor; the bridesmaids were the bride's niece, Miss Claire Bousquet of Danielson, Miss Isola Blanchard, another niece of the bride, and Miss Coranna Paradis, sister of the bridegroom, both of Taftville. Lionel Paradis of Taftville was best man for his brother. The ushers were Horedore Fregeau, of Danielson, brother of the bride, Alfred Proulx of Taftville and Fregeau LaFrance of Central Village, nephews of the bride. George Dupont of Taftville also a nephew of the bride, was ring-bearer.

The bride wore white duchess satin trimmed with pearls. The hand-embroidered veil with cap was in Russian style, caught with pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore melon taffeta trimmed in chiffon and silver stitched, the gown being made in shepherdess style. Her hat was of velvet and moline to match. Her bouquet was of snapdragons and sweet peas. Miss Bousquet, a bridesmaid, wore pink and blue taffeta, hand painted and shepherdess style, with hat of blue and pink velvet moline. She carried tea roses. Miss Blanchard and Miss Paradis, bridesmaids and representing the Children of Mary, had dresses of yellow taffeta and gold lace with bonnets of yellow taffeta and gold lace. Their message bouquets were of sweetheart roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and buffet lunch was served to 150 guests on the grounds of the home of the bride's parents. Guests were present from New Haven, Hartford, Bristol, New Britain, Rockville, New London, Willimantic, Stamford, Moosup, Central Village and Danielson. Mr. and Mrs. Paradis will spend their honeymoon in Bermuda, after which a motor trip will be taken to St Anne de Beaupre and other points of interest in Canada. Upon their return they will reside in a newly furnished home in Hartford.

The bride is a graduate of the Presentation of Mary convent, St. Cesaire, Canada, also of St. Francis' hospital, Hartford. The bridegroom is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy, and attended Assumption college, Worcester, and Tufts college, Boston. At Norwich Free Acadamy he was interested in athletics, playing second base on the baseball team. At present he is carpenter foreman for the Southern New England Contracting Co., of Hartford. Mr. and Mrs. Paradis are well known in the village, where they have a wide circle of friends, who wish them every happiness in their married life. The bride received many handsome gifts.

In part because crowded conditions are always prevalent in the lower grades of Groton borough schools, also because a new system will be inaugurated in the kindergartens, children under five years will not be admitted when the schools open this (Wednesday) morning.

STATE PRISON SENTENCE GIVEN FOR SOUSA IN CRIMINAL COURT

One state prison sentence was imposed here Tuesday by Judge John R. Booth who presided at the opening session of the September term of the criminal superior court, which was called to order at 9 o'clock in the morning, standard time. Before the business of the court was taken up, prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. David A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church.

There were twelve prisoners in the pen, eleven having been brought from the New London jail and one from the Norwich jail in charge of sheriff Sidney A. Brown and his deputies. State Attorney Arthur M. Brown prosecuted the cases and many of the accused were represented by Public Defender Charles A. Stewart. The spectators' seats in the courtroom were filled to capacity.

Fine With Suspended Sentence

George Turano of Westerly pleaded guilty to seduction of Anna Anthony of Jewett City, a minor on July 20. State Attorney Brown told the judge that Turano fell in love with the girl and they left Jewett City to which they were brought back from Greenwich and she is now an expectant mother. One of the difficulties in the case is that Turano was married at the time he took the Anthony girl away, but an interlocutory decree of divorce has now been granted in his case. The state attorney made the recommendation that the man be fined $100 and costs and given a suspended jail sentence of one year under probation. Attorney Brown stated that Turano wants to marry the girl and it is expected he will do so when the interlocutory decree becomes effective at the end of six months.

Attorney Roach of Westerly spoke for Turano, saying that the accused man would carry out his part, and Judge Booth accepted the recommendations made by the state attorney on the sentence.

For Theft of Canned Goods

William J. Hamilton of this city who pleaded guilty to theft of a quantity of canned goods from the store of James D. Fitzpatrick, 17 North Thames street, on the night of May 25, was given a sentence of three months in jail without costs. State Attorney Brown made a recommendation of six months in jail, explaining that the man's troubles were due to drink and that he had broken into the place because he was hungry after getting over a drunk. Public Defender Stewart's plea for Hamilton was effective in getting Judge Booth to make the sentence three months without costs.

Nolles on $50 Payments

A nolle on the payment of $50, which has already been paid, was recommended by the state attorney in the case of Rosa Pothier, proprietor of a gasoline station in Lisbon, who was accused of violation of the liquor law. The state attorney said he thought the evidence not sufficient to secure a conviction.

There was also a nolle on payment of $50 in the case of Charles Johnson of this city, who was bound over on the charge of breaking and entering. The state attorney told the court that Johnson broke into a club room and went to sleep there. The place was one which he was in the habit of frequenting.

Stole Money at Restaurant

Walter Slawinski, 17, pleaded guilty to statutory burglary in breaking into the restaurant of James De Vernier in this city on the night of May 31. He secured $7 there. Following the recommendation of State Attorney Brown, Judge Booth made the sentence one year in jail suspended under probation. Attorney Richard Dudkowski spoke briefly for the accused.

In the case of James Connell of Hartford on the charge of reckless driving of motor vehicles, which had been continued from the previous term of court, State Attorney Brown recommended a nolle, which Judge Booth ordered. Attorney Brown said that the case had been brought against Connell for killing his own mother in an automobile skidding accident while they were returning from a funeral, but that the case had been continued because he did not want to take action while there were civil suits pending as he knew it was the practice of both defense and prosecution in civil suits to make use of the action taken in criminal matters. These civil suits have now been settled so that he recommended a nolle. The accident happened at Colchester.

Nolle on Bigamy Charge

In the case of Mrs. Gladys B. Jello of this city, accused of bigamy, State Attorney Brown recommended a nolle which the court ordered. Attorney Brown explained that Mrs. Jello had been living in this city with her lawful husband, when a man came here from New York and claimed she had been married to him. This man was a tattoo artist and the state attorney declared his investigation showed that the woman found herself on a barge with the tattoo artist after a rather wild party in New York. She lived with him two years but there is nothing to show that she ever married this other man and she is now back with her lawful husband.

Given Stiff Fine

Peter Albano of New London who had been charged with assault with intent to commit rape on May Edmonds of New London, on Aug. 3, was allowed to plead guilty to simple assault, when State Attorney Brown said he would be satisfied with that and would recommend that the man be given a stiff fine of $250 and costs. Judge Booth directed this action in the case.

Jail for Taking Automobile

Eugene Gillette and William S. Barker, two sailors from the U. S. Cushman, seamen 1st class, pleaded guilty to theft of the automobile of Edwin Frederickson of Ivoryton which they took after drinking and attending a circus in New London on June 11. They were caught with the car in Ledyard by the state police. State Attorney Brown recommended a six months jail sentence without costs, but Public Defender Stewart made a plea for a lesser jail term and Judge Booth made the sentence three months without costs.

State Prison Sentence

State prison sentence of not less than one nor more than three years on each of three counts for obtaining money under false pretenses, sentences to run consecutively, was given to Albert Sousa, alias Boston Blackie, alias Lewis, alias Parker, of East Boston, when he pleaded guilty to the three counts. These grew out of passing of the phoney check on the New London City National bank, the obtaining of a radio set from Thomas J. Ealahan, of New London by means of a fraudulent check and also the purchase of a $200 diamond ring from Morris Mallove, for which he gave the jeweler another fraudulent check. Warrants for his arrest are held in Grafton, Mass., Augusta, Me., and Saco, Me. He is also wanted as a deserter from the Coast guard.

Public Defender Stewart made a plea for a reformatory sentence for Sousa on the ground that he might be given a chance but State Attorney Brown read the police record of the man showing that he had been arrested at least seven times for various offenses.

Thief Gets Six Months

George A. Hodge, 38, of New London, pleaded guilty to theft of silverware and linen from the New Haven road for which he was employed as a porter and was given six months in jail without costs.

Edward H. Greenhalgh, 20, of Bradford, R. I., was given a one-year suspended jail sentence and placed in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield when he pleaded guilty to theft of the motor on June 5 from a car belonging to Helen Kelleher, of Stonington. The case implicating Peter Panciera with being an accomplice was nolled when State Attorney Brown said that he did not believe Panciera knew anything about the theft.

Waterford Man Sentenced

Howard Rogers of Waterford pleaded guilty to statutory rape on Mary Mulvey and was given six months in jail.

Two Get Year Each

Emory Myers and James L. Wallace of New London were each given a year in jail without costs when they pleaded guilty to rape upon a Groton girl. The acts were alleged to have taken place on July 19.

Charles Carlton of New London pleaded guilty to indecent assault and was given a year in jail without costs.

Washing Machine Case

State Attorney Brown brought up the case of George J. Findlay of New London, district agent for the Maytag washing machine, accused of obtaining money under false pretenses. He said that he had about 300 fictitious contracts in his possession on which Findlay had obtained $120.75 from the General Contract Purchases corporation and he thought the man ought to go to state prison, but Findlay's wife was critically sick at the present time in the hospital and it was feared by her counsel and her physician that if Findlay were given a prison term now, the shock might be very detrimental to her. Under the circumstances, the state attorney said he would not oppose continuing the case till the January term of court, when he understood Findlay would plead guilty. Attorney Lubchansky concurred in this and Judge Booth ordered the continuance.

William H. Treat, Jr., 20, charged jointly with Findlay in the case was given a suspended sentence of one year in jail, on recommendation of the state attorney, who said Treat was only a hired employe to bring in the fictitious names and he did not benefit from the fraud.

Bootleg Blackmail Case

In the case of Charles Garvin of Scotland), a "spotter" for the police, Clifton W. Sinclair of New London and his wife, Marion E. Sinclair, jointly charged with blackmail of an alleged bootlegger, Roland B. Brantner, at an inn outside of New London on June 25, State Attorney Brown recommended nolles for Mrs. Sinclair and Garvin, which the court directed.

As to Sinclair, who was chief train dispatcher for the Central Vermont road in New London, the state attorney said that he extracted $50 from the bootlegger on the promise to protect him and he thought Sinclair ought to spend a short time in jail. Attorney Lubchansky made a long and affecting plea for leniency for Sinclair, stating that the man had not been really right mentally since his daughter was killed by an automobile just before this, that he had lost his position and that the family of the wife and three children was in destitute circumstances, but Sinclair could get work with other railroads if given a chance.

Judge Booth called Sinclair before him and questioned him as to his intentions and prospects. Judge Booth imposed a suspended sentence of a year in jail, telling the accused man that he proposed to give him a chance to rehabilitate himself.

Fine and Jail Sentence

Arthur Perry of New London, who was driving the automobile that killed the Sinclair girl on Feb. 26, pleaded guilty to the charge of reckless driving. State Attorney Brown said there was not the wanton recklessness to make it a manslaughter case, but Perry had gone on driving a car after he lost his license and was now in jail for that. He recommended a fine of $100 flat and 30 days in jail, which was the sentence Judge Booth passed.

Jail for Embezzler

Daniel J. Sweeney of this city, accused of embezzlement of $389.56 from the American Railway Express company through retaining C. O. D. money was sentenced to six months in jail. This was a continued case from the last term of court and Attorney Thomas M. Shields asked for another continuance for Sweeney so that he might attempt to make restitution to the express company, but the state attorney opposed this on the ground that Sweeney had done nothing towards this so far and that the Norwich police now have a warrant for non-support against Sweeney.

$1,500 Bond Called

The $1,500 bond given by Alexander Behnke of Jewett City for Rosa Behnke, accused as a third offender in violation of the liquor law, was called, when she did not appear in court. Her counsel, Attorney Thomas M. Shields, stated that he had received a telephone message from a doctor in a New York hospital, stating that Mrs. Behnke was a patient in the hospital at present.

Philip Weyant of New London was sentenced to a year in jail without costs when he pleaded guilty to indecent assault upon Gladys Sabrowsky on Aug. 13. A second count was nolled.

Two Cases Continued

In the two statutory manslaughter cases against William Buchner, Jr., of Salem and George Ledoux of Waterford, involving automobile accidents, continuance to the next term of court was taken as there are civil actions pending.

THREE PAY FINES FOR DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED

Three motor vehicle drivers were each fined $200 and costs on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor when they were presented at the Tuesday morning session of the city court. Two pleaded guilty and the third not guilty. Almon J. Dennis, 29, New York city, pleaded guilty. He was arrested Monday evening for driving his sidecar motorcycle while under the influence of liquor. Fine $200 and costs.

Stanley Tomczky, No. 543 North Main street, pleaded guilty to driving his automobile while under the influence. He was arrested after he had hit a tree, zig-zagged up North Main street and climbed the sidewalk near Mueller's gas station. He was given a similar fine.

Charles Juraszyk of No. 191 West Main street pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving his machine while under the influence. He was found guilty, however, and fined $200 and costs. He was arrested at Shannon corner Monday afternoon when he attempted to drive past the traffic beacon which was set against him. Officer Clifford Crary who stopped him discovered that he was in no fit condition to drive.

VIC DARR, LOCAL AMATEUR, WILL BOX AT DUWELL A. A. SHOW FRIDAY EVENING

Young "Vic" Darr of Jewett City, the versatile south-paw lightweight and who right at this time is about the most popular boxer in this neighborhood as a result of the rip-slashing scrap that he put up against Kid Chappe of Westerly at the last Duwell show, boosted the stock of the coming amateur card to be staged at the Duwell field on Friday night with the announcement on last night that he is in condition and ready to meet anyone selected for him. The Jewett City lad has a style all of his own, which the most severe of critics have been unable to solve. Although only seen in action locally on two occasions, he has gathered together a big following who without a doubt will get a big kick out of the announcement that he has signed up for the third Duwell show.

VIC DARR

Those who saw him and Chappe at each other all over the ring for four rounds, for several days after were still talking about the scrap. Both boys punched and punched, with little regard for science and at the conclusion of the bout were declared to be on even terms. Less than an hour after Darr's entry had been received word was received, that the Westerly stable of scrappers including Chappe would all be on the card Friday night. The Salmonlo and Rossi outfits which are made up of boys ranging from 100 to 200 pounds are signing up from Rhode Island with intentions of walking off with a big percentage of the winners' prizes. The prizes for the coming show will be bath robes and regulation pure silk boxing trunks for the winners, with training sweaters for the losers.

TILDEN HAS CHANCE TO WIN BACK TITLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—"Big Bill" Tilden faces the prospect of battling the three French "Musketeers" of tennis on successive days in his attempt to win back the American singles championship now held by Rene LaCoste of France.

This was indicated today when the draw of 64 players was made for the title tournament starting Sept. 12 at Forest Hills.

It showed Jean Borotra, Henri Cochet and LaCoste "seeded" in such manner that they will block Tilden's path in the quarter-finals, semi-finals and finals, respectively, providing none of the four are previously eliminated. If form prevails, "Little Bill" Johnston will be LaCoste's semi-final opponent so that it is possible that the little Californian may be the one to meet Tilden in the finals.

In making the draw the United States Lawn Tennis association made two lists of eight seeded players. The American "big eight" comprises in order: Tilden, Johnston, Alonso; Francis T. Hunter, Tilden's probable Davis cup doubles partner, Lott, Richard N. Williams, Lewis N. White of Austin, Texas and Doeg.

FINE GRID PROSPECTS AT HOLY CROSS THIS YEAR

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 6—(AP)—With prospects pointing to one of its finest seasons, Holy Cross launched its 1927 football practice season today. Twenty-nine candidates, only half the number ordered to report, turned out for the opening drill.

Of the sixteen veterans available for this year's team, only Captain Bob O'Connell, center; Gus Cervini, Frank Connors, Ed Gannon, linemen; Tony Karpowich, Jack Foley, Walter Carroll, ends; and Sam Drais, halfback, appeared in togs today. All the others are expected before the end of the week with the exception of Larry Lowrey, speedy halfback who is at his home in Waltham recovering from a minor operation.

The Crusaders will play nine games this year. The schedule: September 24, Newport Training Station; October 1, St. Johns; 8, Dayton; 15, Harvard at Cambridge; 22, Catholic university; 29, Rutgers; November 5, Fordham at New York; 12, Marquette at Milwaukee; 19, Boston university; 26, Boston college at Boston.

EIGHTY REPORT FOR FOOTBALL AT BOSTON COLLEGE

NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 6—(AP)—Eighty candidates today reported to D. Leo Daley, new head football coach at Boston college, for the opening of fall practice. Of the total 40 were freshmen, but nine out of the 12 available letter men of last year's varsity eleven turned out, as well as many other veterans. Boston college this year inaugurates the one year rule under which freshmen are not eligible for varsity competition. The day's work consisted of conditioning exercises.

MCGRAW NOT TO GO ON WESTERN TOUR

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—The New York Giants will wade out into the thick of the National league fight without their manager, John J. McGraw, when the club opens its western invasion in Chicago on Friday. However, McGraw hopes to join the team within a week if physicians permit.

He has been confined to his home with a touch of erysipelas. Hornsby will direct the team.

RICHMONDS AND CARTONS BATTLE TO 5-5 TIE

The league leading Richmond Radiators and last place Atlantic Cartons went six exciting innings to a draw last night in the Industrial league at the Academy campus before a large crowd. Action and plenty of it was the watchword last night as the two nines battled tooth and nail through the six frames with no result.

A two-run spree in their half of the last inning gained a well earned tie for the Cartons, Marra's Texas leaguer driving in Gauthier and Ryan with the tying counters.

Rabbit Gauthier and Lloyd Jarvis hooked up in a neat mound duel with each allowing six hits and much of the scoring off each coming on errors. The Atlantics had a big inning, the second, when three runs came over on two errors, a double and single and a pass while the Ironmen came back with four in the fifth on three errors, a double and single. In the last inning Gauthier had singled and Ryan walked before Marra inserted his timely blow for a pair of runs while the other run of the game came in the second for the Radiators when Kampf was safe on Marra's wild toss, took second and third on passed balls and came in on Blinderman's hot shot past second.

Besides allowing five runs and six hits apiece, both Jarvis and Gauthier secured two hits themselves and had three assists, quite an unique situation.

But Gauthier fanned twelve as against eight for Jarvis and Lloyd walked three while Rabbit did not issue a pass.

This tie further complicates the league situation and adds more of importance to the Werman-Richmond game Thursday night. The Wermans are now in second place, two games behind the Ironmen. It has been announced that this game will start at 6 o'clock. The score:

Tonight's Game

Tonight at the Academy campus in the Industrial league the Y. M. C. A. and Thermos Bottlers meet in what should be a fast encounter. At the present the Yers are now in the first division one game ahead of the fifth place Bottlers so that, by simple arithmetic, we ascertain that a win for the Laurel Hill gang tonight will come mighty close to producing a tie for fourth place. But, on the other hand, should the Thermos lose they will drop back mighty near the fast-coming J. B. Martin and be in danger of losing their lead of the second division. So that it looks like a ball game.

Couture will pitch for the Yers for their first game in over two weeks and if he is anywhere near his early season form he will give the Thermos lots to think over while either Dudek or Mullins will twirl for the Bottlers.

The game is slated to get underway promptly at 6:15 p. m.

"CHUCK" WOJACK IS ILL WITH ATTACK OF APPENDICITIS

NEW BRITAIN, Sept. 6—(AP)—Frank "Chuck" Wojack who once guarded the short field for the Chicago White Sox and for the Hartford team of the Eastern league was operated on today for appendicitis at the New Britain General hospital.

Wojack was with the White Sox in 1924 when they barnstormed Europe and played before "crowned heads" and he still has a hankering to swing the willow in the majors. He says that he has been in communication with several of the major league managers and may get a chance to go back after he has had a good rest.

In recent years, Wojack has been handling the interests of a New Britain semi-pro team.

DEMPSEY HAS QUIET DAY AT HIS CAMP

LINCOLN FIELDS, Crete Ill., Sept. 6—(AP)—The only commotion around Jack Dempsey's training camp today was the chugging of a track scraper, the creaking of machines digging a lake to beautify the infield, and the snores of Dempsey himself.

Dempsey, starting a 48-hour loaf, made a flying trip into Chicago for a conference with Promoter Tex Rickard, returning at 2 o'clock this afternoon. He immediately went to bed and at four o'clock started for Olympia fields to take a few swings at golf balls.

GOLF CLUB NOTES

In the first match of the club championship played on Tuesday afternoon Sam Wilcox, favorite to become a finalist, won handily from J. Ralph Howe, 7 and 6. Sam was shooting nice golf getting a 37 on the way in after taking a 38 on the outward trip.

It is expected that the club championship will be cleaned up this week, the finals to be played either on Saturday or Sunday.

No matches in the Labor day tournament were played Monday. The pairings for the first round of the championship flight follow: Dave Morton vs. John Dick; W. G. Park vs. E. A. Harris; W. B. Mitchell vs. Lucius Briggs; Sam Wilcox vs. W. L. Chaffin; John Moulton vs. A. H. Chase; Dr. V. Eldred vs. A. E. Payson; J. R. Howe vs. J. T. Hunter; J. A. Rogers vs. Harry Prentice.

The first round matches in the second sixteen are as follows: P. A. Johnson vs. C. A. Gager; H. B. Campbell vs. W. E. Turner; Wm. Shields, Jr., vs. Mrs. H. B. Campbell; A. Mitchell vs. L. Goffe Briggs; L. M. Young vs. F. S. Wilcox; E. Learned, Jr., vs. E. R. Bliven; F. R. Smith vs. E. Learned, Sr.; J. Sayles vs. E. S. Bean.

Pairings in the remaining eight of the tournament are: A. E. Finlayson vs. J. E. Knott; H. A. Tirrell vs. H. B. Ford; F. Davis vs. J. McKinley; A. Brown vs. C. W. Nay.

The last four days have been perfect golf days and during the period of fair weather more golf has been played than at any time during the season.

Notice has been posted on the Bulletin board that all players in the Labor day tournament who have not completed their first round matches this week will be disqualified.

GIANTS WIN FROM BRAVES TO HOLD THEIR POSITION

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—The New York Nationals kept hard on the heels of the Pirates today with a 9 to 6 verdict over the Braves in the series final. It gave the Giants 27 victories in their last 34 games. The two pitchers who figured in the big deal of last June, Larry Benton and Kent Greenfield, opposed each other at the start. The latter retired after four innings and the McGrawmen continued the attack on Goldsmith and Wertz. Benton was relieved by Grimes in the ninth.

Fournier of the Braves was chased out of the game by Umpire Hart for protesting on a decision.

This was the last apearance together for the clubs, the season's count giving New York 15 out of 22 games. The score:

PIRATES HOLD ADVANTAGE BY BEATING CINCINNATI

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 6—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates held their slender lead in the National league pennant race today by defeating Cincinnati 5 to 0.

Ray Kremer gave proof of a complete return to form by holding the Reds to three scattered hits. Only 28 men faced the big Pirate hurler, who experienced difficulty in working back into trim again after a knee injury earlier in the season. He issued no passes.

First base was as far as any Cincinnati runner got throughout the game. Hits by Picinich in the third and Allen in the fifth were each followed by double plays. Picinich got another scratch hit through Wright in the ninth inning but Zitzman, who ran for him, was left on first when the last out was made.

The Pirates continued their heavy hitting off Jakie May's slants, chalking up 13 hits, four of which were long doubles by Smith, Grantham, Wright and Traynor. In the second inning Smith's double brought in two runs and two more scores were added in the third on Grantham's double and singles by P. Waner and Traynor. The Pirates fifth run was produced by successive hits by Wright and Traynor in the fifth inning.

Comorosky, Wichita outfielder, replaced Cuyler in middle field. He obtained one hit.

Before the game Manager Bush and Barney Dreyfus, Pirate owner, held a conference with newspapermen when announcement was made that Bush had been retained to pilot the Corsairs next year. The score:

TAD JONES RESIGNS AS YALE GRID COACH; EFFECTIVE AFTER 1927 SEASON

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 6—(AP)—T. A. D. Jones, head coach in football at Yale university, has resigned, effective at the close of the 1927 season, it was officially announced by Professor George H. Nettleton, chairman of the Yale University Athletic association tonight.

Mr. Jones is in business here and increasing duties in that connection is understood to be the reason for his action. His contract as coach which was a three year one will terminate with the close of the 1927 season.

Mr. Jones who is better known in football as "Tad" says that irrespective of the outcome of the season now opening he will not change his decision. He has been coach at the university since 1920. The athletic association will make no move it is stated looking to a successor to Jones until his resignation is effective. The committee states no reason is offered by Jones for his action but it is known that as he recently incorporated his coal business and arranged for expansion facilities his resignation from coaching responsibilities had been forecast.

The statement made public by Professor Nettleton today read as follows:

"The Yale University Athletic association confirms the decision of T. A. D. Jones to retire at the close of his present three year term as head football coach ending with the 1927 season. His definite intention and plans have for some time been known to many friends both within and without the Yale association membership. Announcement is made at this time at his request and that of the football committee, for this decision is independent of the actual outcome of the coming season. Since Mr. Jones in his accustomed position this fall, no formal action has yet been, or will now be considered by the board of control.

"The association is however, unwilling even to confirm the fact of his ultimate retirement without expressing deep regret that it has proved inevitable and deep gratitude for his long and effective service to Yale athletics and to the best traditions of college sport."

Jones graduated from Sheffield Scientific school, Yale university in 1908 and has since that time been associated with the football coaching squad either as assistant or head coach for almost a dozen years.

The football year he graduated, Jones returned as assistant backfield coach and the following year went to Syracuse as head coach. In 1911 and 1912, he coached at Exeter and turned out a winning team each year.

Yale received him as head coach in 1916 and gave him a lion's share of the credit for Cupie Black's all-powerful "Big Three" championship team of that year. Then came the war and football saw Jones no more until 1920, when he again returned to Yale as head coach. Since that year, his service at Yale has been continuous.

Since he came to Yale he has coached three "Big Three" championship teams; Black's 1916 team, Bill Mallory's 1923 combination, and Lovejoy's eleven of the following year.

When a student at Yale, Jones played three years on the football and baseball teams and as captain of the nine in his senior year. For a time it apeared that baseball had the strongest attraction for him but when John McGraw offered him a tryout with the Giants at graduation time, he declined it and, turning his back on baseball, cast his lot with the pigskin followers.

He was quarterback on Tom Shevlin's 1905 team and Sammy Morse's 1906 team and in his senior year, as a member of Ray Bigelow's team was picked by Walter Camp for a place on his All-American eleven.

CARDS BATTED TWO CUB PITCHERS FOR 13 RUNS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6—(AP)—Battering two Chicago pitchers, the Cardinals took the first game of a scheduled doubleheader today 13 to 1, while the second was postponed because of rain after the Cubs had gained a one run lead in the first inning. Two games will be played here tomorrow.

Grover Cleveland Alexander allowed the Cubs eight hits, while Pitcher Jones was pounded for four in one and two thirds innings and relinquished the mound to Brillheart, who was touched for ten safeties in the remainder of the game. Bottomley's homer in the third accounted for a pair of runs, Holm also scoring. Bell hit into the stands in the fourth with none on.

The Cubs' lone run in the opener came in the sixth when English bunted safely and scored on Wilson's single. The Cubs were credited with four errors.

Pitcher Frankhouse started the second game for the Cardinals, opposing Carlson. English scored as Schuble was throwing out Stephenson at first. The Cards retired in order in their half, and the Cubs were threatening to score, with Beck on first and Hartnett on third and one out when the rain started. The score:

BARRET'S HOMER IN SEVENTH WINS FOR SOX

DETROIT, Sept. 6—(AP)—Bill Barrett's home run in the seventh inning with the bases filled and the score tied enabled the White Sox to take the closing game of the series from the Tigers today. The score was 9 to 6.

Both starting pitchers were taken out in the seventh. Billings retired with three runners on the sacks and Barrett the first batter to face Smith, lifted the ball out of the park for his second home run in two days.

Lou Blue, captain of the Tigers, was ordered from the field in the seventh after a prolonged argument with Umpire Van Graflin. The dispute arose when Van Graflin called Flaskamper safe at first on his grounder to Tavener. The score:

RUTH BANGS OUT THREE HOMERS AS YANKS SPLIT

BOSTON, Sept. 6—(AP)—Babe Ruth reeled off three homers to equal his 1926 performance of 47 before 20,000 fans today while the Yankees split with the Red Sox in a doubleheader, winning the first by 14 to 2 and dropping the other, 5 to 2. Ruth made a pair of circuit wallops off Welzer in the sixth and seventh innings of the first contest and the other in the ninth of the nightcap. Gehrig hit a four-bagger in the first contest bringing his total to 45.

The king of swat drove out his first big wallop with two on base, the ball sailing over the high center field fence and was easily the longest home run ever made at Fenway park. One was on base for the second homer and none on the third time. The score:

TROLLEY ROAD EMPLOYES AT FUNERAL OF PETER ASHE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 6—The funeral of Peter Ashe was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at his former residence, 180 Vauxhall street, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including employes of the Connecticut company, with which corporation Mr. Ashe had been associated for many years. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. The bearers were Lieut. Commander James E. Maher, Lieut. George K. Ryley, Henry Armstrong, William Davis, Joseph A. Burr and John McQuarrie. Burial was in Greeneville cemetery, Norwich.

Private funeral services for Ralph S. Wolfe, three years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen C. Wolfe, who was suffocated by smoke when a fire attacked the Wolfe residence at Oak Grove, East Lyme, Sunday afternoon, were held at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon at Beckwith Memorial chapel, Cedar Grove cemetery. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth officiated. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Lillie A., wife of William O. Perkins, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 50 Pleasant street, Groton and were attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. The bearers were Perry B. Kenyon, New London and Loren Perkins, Harold Hempstead and George parks, of Groton. Burial was in Starr cemetery, Groton.

Fred C. Eager, 79, died Monday, at his home at Harrison's Landing, Waterford, after a lingering illness. He is survived by his wife. Mr. Eager was a member of Brainard lodge of Masons, Konomoc Hose company and W. W. Perkins post, D. A. R., of this city. He was born in Worcester, Mass., but had resided in Waterford practically his entire life. Mr. Eager was a locomotive engineer by occupation and for many years was employed by the Central Vermont railroad. During the latter years of his life, Mr. Eager had been employed as a stationary engineer. He was the son of the late John D. and Coritha L. Eager.

Edward Muller, 25, of Boston, was admitted to Lawrence-Memorial hospital Saturday night suffering from an injury to his wrist, sustained in an automobile accident. He will be a patient there but a few days.

Mrs. Josephine Sixer, 34 Chappell street, was admitted to Lawrence-Memorial hospital yesterday suffering with an injury to her cheek, resulting from an auto accident. She will be under treatment for a day or two.

Phyllis Haywood, a stranger in New London, was arrested at 5 o'clock this morning on State street by Acting Sergeant William Graham. The woman was not charged with any act of criminality, but was taken to police headquarters as she was acting strangely. She was turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

A still alarm received at fire headquarters this afternoon caused Chief Thomas Shipman and Ockford Hose company to go to Caulkins park, where the city dumping ground was ablaze, an accumulation of paper, rags and boxes having ignited. The fire was subdued with a large quantity of chemicals.

Frank McLaury, of Quincy, Mass., was in the police court today charged with reckless driving. He pleaded guilty and was fined $35 and costs. McLaury was driving an automobile easterly on Golden street and when nearing the corner of Bank street it skidded, climbed to the sidewalk and against the store of Coffey & Co., smashing a plate glass window and doing other damage to the building. The automobile was damaged, but its occupants, men and women, escaped injury.

George Ross, colored, has been arrested many times on charges of intoxication. He was in the police court again today and was fined $10 and costs. Ross was arrested last night very drunk on North Bank street by Patrolman William Riordan.

Clarence E. Krack, submarine base, was arrested last night on State street by Patrolman William Riordan, charged with intoxication. He was not presented in the police court, but was turned over to a shore patrol and taken back to the base.

Joseph Lawsky, 125 Bank street, made complaint to the police last night that his Chrysler automobile had been stolen. Lawsky said that he parked the automobile in front of his home and that it was stolen. Several hours afterwards Lawsky informed the police that he had recovered the auto and that it had been taken by his brother.

An automobile driven by Wilfred Mardenborough, 181 Summit street, Providence, struck and knocked down Harry Edgcomb, 36 Walden avenue, last night on Bank street, while Edgcomb was attempting to cross the street in traffic. Edgcomb was taken to the office of a physician where it was found that he had sustained only minor bruises and contusions.

Stanley Budnick and William and Alex Kaminski, whose arrest was sought here by the police of Willimantic yesterday, were not found here, but were arrested in New Britain and turned over to the Willimantic police. The men were in an automobile and are charged with breaking and entering.

Henry Ellison, colored, of Moore Court, was fined $10 and costs in the police court today charged, with breach of the peace. Ellison engaged in a quarrel with his neighbor, Mrs. Robert Price, yesterday and was arrested by Patrolman Harry Waterson and William Riordan upon complaint of Mrs. Price.

Joseph Casey, went to Lawrence-Memorial hospital last night, intoxicated. He refused to leave the hospital and complaint was made to the police with the result that Casey was arrested by Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman William Riordan. He received a suspension of judgment.

Philip Turner, of Hartford, was arrested at Salem last night by State Police Officer Donald Brown and will be presented in the justice court there this week.

William Weimer, Poquonoc, came to New London this afternoon, driving an automobile that belonged to another. He did not have a driver's license and drove the auto about until he came to the corner of State and Bank streets, where he encountered Traffic Officer John Courtney. The officer detected the fact that Weimer did not drive the auto properly and when he held him up he learned that Weimer did not possess a driver's license. He was arrested and will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

J. P. Watson, United States Coast Guard, a member of the crew of patrol boat 290, assigned to traversing the sound in search of rum-runners, reported to the police tonight that he lost a wallet containing $21 between Haddad's locker room, Main street and State street. Watson went to the locker room and after leaving there he went to state street, where he discovered his loss.

Frank Wagner and Frank Corcoran, were arrested tonight on a charge of Abraham Katz, that clothing had been stolen from the Katz establishment. Patrolman George Labouc made the arrests and Wagner and Corcoran will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

Marion Spicer, 19, five feet, five inches in height, light hair, blue eyes and wear a blue dress, escaped from the state farm for women tonight. With her was Theresa Morrisey, 20, five feet five inches, blond hair, brown eyes and wearing a blue dress. Both, it is believed came to New London, for they were headed toward this city when last seen. The New London police were requested to be on the lookout for the girls.

Mrs. J. S. Smith, 770 Williams street reported to the police tonight that articles of value had been stolen from her automobile while it was parked on Green street, a place where numerous thefts of articles from cars has been perpetrated throughout the summer.

With election drawing near, some of the candidates for the office of members of the council have had circulars distributed among the voters in the hopes of obtaining their election. The circulars have been placed in conspicuous places and with reading matter designed to attract citizens and induce them to cast their respective votes for the candidates.

Robert Clark, formerly of New London, but who has been located in Florida four years, has returned to New London, and is now located here permanently.

Although a vast crowd of summer visitors and vacationists concluded recreative trips here yesterday, many remained over until today before departing for home. The afternoon and evening trains were congested and were operated behind schedule so great was the traffic. In several of the suburban resorts, the patronage is greater at this time of the year than for several years.

MRS. TIMOTHY T. WHIPPLE DIES SUDDENLY TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

MYSTIC, Sept. 6—Mrs. Ellen Elizabeth Whipple, 74, wife of Timothy T. Whipple died at her home on Mystic road this afternoon. Mrs. Whipple was born in North Stonington, May 22, 1853, the daughter of Daniel H. Frink and Sophia Maria Brackett. A little over a year ago Mrs. Whipple had an accident, breaking her hip and she was in a New London hospital for some months. After her return home she was able to walk around the house with a cane, but a few weeks ago she went to the hospital for an operation on her throat and since her return home has gradually failed, dying suddenly Tuesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Whipple have been married over 50 years and spent nearly all their married in Old Mystic and at their present home on Mystic road. Mrs. Whipple was a very industrious woman and their married life has been happy. Her parents, sister and brother died many years ago and she leaves no relatives besides her husband, except two nephews and a niece.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

Today for the last times a real big time performance may be seen. Five tremendous all star acts of vaudeville are presented and each one a sure fire headliner. The feature act, Thrash and Norene with their clever Filipino band of six men, will take you back to the days when soft soothing music was the rage. The feature screen attraction Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle in Adam and Evil, is without a doubt the funniest and sweetest picture we have seen in many a day. The Palace management may well be proud of such a show and we advise all who have not seen it, to avail themselves of the opportunity today.

Commencing tomorrow for three days another big five act bill of vaudeville will be featured as well as the big screen attraction that the entire United States is talking about, The Country Doctor, with Rudolph Schildkraut. This is a marvelous production on a par with the sensation Over the Hill, that took this country by storm several years ago. We heartily recommend this show as being in a class by itself and sure to please one and all.

Broadway Theater

With the new Broadway theater opened but a few days the folks seem to have nothing else to talk of but the marvelous change that has taken place in the few months that the theater was closed and reconstructed. It is truly the "talk of the town" and judging from the many pleasant things they are saying about it, we venture to say that everyone is well pleased.

The porters find it difficult to get the house cleaned mornings on account of the crowds, who returning from summer resorts and visits, are anxious to "take a peep" at the wonder theater of all New England. One elderly woman who has not been in the theater for ten years was so delighted with the transformation that she just walked around and around for over an hour gazing in admiration at the beautiful drapes, the gorgeous fixtures and the comfort of the seats. When the theater was lighted just for her benefit she begged that the lights be kept on so she could sit back and enjoy the sight. And this is but one instance of the interest that has been aroused by the opening of the magnificent playhouse. On Monday, notwithstanding, the beautiful day and the fact that it was a holiday, the theater was practically crowded from the time the doors opened until the exit march at night.

Today and tonight is the last chance folks will have to see the funniest film of the year, Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in Firemen, Save My Child. To those of you who like to know how not to fight a fire, stroll over to the Broadway and laugh until your sides ache. But take a tip bring some safety pins as we cannot promise that all your buttons will stay on.

Starting tomorrow the attraction will be Jackie Coogan in his latest and greatest Metro Goldwyn picture, The Bugle Call. Here you will see America's favorite in a picture made to order for him, and if you liked him before, you will rave about him after you see the Bugle Call.

Breed Theatre

"High Hat," the name of the hilarious burlesque on the movies, produced by Robert T. Kane for First National release with Ben Lyon, Mary Brian and Sam Hardy featured, comes to the Breed theatre today and Thursday as the main attraction of a double feature bill.

Ben Lyon is particularly appealing as a lazy, but lovable, extra. Mary Brian does a turnabout from the Barrie type of role she has heretofore played, and gives a splendid performance as a sophisticated little boss of the studio's wardrobe.

It is Sam Hardy, however, who rivals Ben for the honors of the show. As a conceited, self-conscious ham actor, he contributes much to the comedy.

James A. Creelman directed from his own original story.

Lou Tellegen, Matt Moore and Margaret Livingston are featured in "Married Alive," the Fox Films production coming to the Breed theatre for a two day run beginning today as an added feature.

This clever satire on Polygamy deals with the theories of a brilliant professor whose books and lectures on the subject have caused such a furore throughout the country and with the practices of a modern Bluebeard whose reputation is seemingly of the best and none of whose wives know the others exist.
